Then the object of this fund, which is for the sole benefit of the officers of the Salvation Army in Canada—The work of the Salvation Army, in its various phases, is now well understood and needs no comment. But it may be a matter of surprise to some to learn that in Canada alone there are over 1,000 men and women whose lives are entirely devoted to this work, and who have given up their secular callings for this praiseworthy object. Think of what a mighty force this body of men must constitute as missionaries in the Home Mission Field, and let the call are they not worthy of the co-operation of all Christians, who are interested in the welfare of Canada's unfortunates. The Thanksgiving Fund is applied for the sole benefit of the officers in the Canadian field. Last year the total amount raised in Canada was $25,784.87, and all of this money, with the exception of the expense of collecting ($183.40) was applied to various funds for the benefit of the field and social officers; $8,000.00 was expended in assisting officers and their families whose health had been impaired under the strain of the strenuous work; $4,000 in the training and equipping of officers for their specific duties; $7,624.13 in grants to officers in poor and difficult stations; and the balance was distributed in various ways as necessity demanded.

The amount contributed by the Peterborough Corps and friends last year was $385. The sum allocated to this city this year is $325, and I make an earnest appeal to all our friends to assist us in raising this amount, so that this fair and prosperous city will be "right in line," as it is in so any other philanthropic and charitable enterprises.

All donations sent by mail to Ensign J. H. Merrett, 320 King St., Peterborough, will be duly acknowledged and appreciated. Or 'phone 440, will find him.

Thanking you for your valuable space, I remain

Respectfully yours,

J. H. Merrett, Ensign.

CANNED MUSIC

During the late war with Spain General Miles, at that time ostensibly the Commander-in-Chief of the army in America, got himself into all sorts of trouble by saying that the troops were being served with embalmed meat, referring to the meat done up in cans and sold for the use of the army, says Washingtonia. Of course he had in mind the age of the prepared article, as well as the chemicals used for preserving the meat. This was before the days of pure food laws and at a time when it is claimed that the packers went upon the theory that any old thing was good enough to can, and that some chemical preservations are actually beneficial to health.

"Canned Music" does not stand in this class. Some of the old songs may be old, in fact some of them are old for they are written by such eminent composers as Handel and Hayden and Meyerbeer and Gluck, but they are as fresh and as young as they were when they were first given to the public Those songs, sung by the best singers and the music accompanying them rendered by the orchestras and bands of Europe and America, have been canned, and so perfectly has the work been done that when served up from the can they are almost equal to the best produced in the opera house.

Every evening hundreds of thousands of people listen to a delightful entertainment with out the trouble of going to the opera house; they can have this entertainment when the opera houses are closed and the professional singers and musicians are taking their summer vacation. There was a time when eminent musician as Sousa railed against this music but now Sousa and his incommparable band are playing through the canned process to thousands who never has an opportunity to hear the band any other way.

It is not alone the music of this high class that one can get from the can, but if he desires he can have the best of the popular order, and the reproducing instruments are especially fine in rendering sacred music, and there are few church choirs that render as sympathetically and well the grand old hymns of Luther, Wesley Watts and others who have made their songs of praise so touchingly beautiful. The chants and songs of the early missionaries had more to do with civilization among the barbarous and savage nations than the priestly vestments, church ceremonies or eloquent sermons. Music is a great civilizer not only a great civilizer, but a great refiner. The household wherein music is found is always more peaceful more refined than is the one where music is never heard. Edison in his invention of the phonograph was a greater benefactor to the human race than even Bell, who gave us the telephone. All styles of Edison phonographs sold on easy payments—prices from $19.00 up. Come in and hear them. The J. M. GREENE MUSIC Co., L'T'D., Charlotte street.

SPLENDID SERMON BY REV. DR. BOYLE AT ALL SAINTS' CHURCH

Large Number Attended Harvest Thanksgiving Service at the Church Last Night--Beautiful Decorations and Appropriate Music.

A very large and attentive audience grasped the opportunity of listening to a splendid thanksgiving sermon by Rev. Dr. Boyle, Professor of Trinity College, Toronto, at All Saints Anglican Church, last night. Rev. Dr. Boyle needed no introduction to the people of Peterborough. The announcement that he would conduct the annual Harvest Thanksgiving service was sufficient to insure a large gathering. He is one of the ablest of the younger clergy, as was evidenced by the eloquent and intensely interesting sermon he preached.

It is needless to say that the edifice was magnificently decorated with harvest grapes, vegetables and other agricultural productions, appropriate for the occasion, but it is well to mention this fact in order to extend to the congregation the congratulations they deserve, for the splendid success of their efforts at decorating.

A word, also, might be said, in a small attempt at praising the members of the choir for the splendid music they supplied under the leadership of Mr. G. Chandler. The beautiful selections were well chosen for the occasion, and the splendid music supplied by the church organist, Mr. Cyril Devey, also was a feature, and tended to brighten the Thanksgiving service.

The reverend speaker chose his text from the 44th Psalms, the 1st and last verses:

"We have heard with our ears, O God, our fathers have told us, what works Thou didst in their days, in the days of old. Arise for our help and redeem us for Thy mercy's sake."

He spoke of the beautiful lines contained in the text, and stated that it was not known, and would not likely ever be found out, who wrote them. Perhaps it was the old prophet, Jeremiah, in his desire to bring back the children of Israel from their destitute condition in the wilderness, so they might be as one of the nations of the earth. The reverend speaker went on to say that the words in the text had a peculiar relationship to our religion, for our religion originated in such a time, as the time this Psalm was written—during a period of war, blackness and despair. But there were people who hoped for better things. They saw how God had stood up for His church, and how He sent a remnant of His disciples forth to evangelize and conquer the world, and so again they took heart, and the prayers rose up: "We have heard with our ears O God—our fathers have told us." In this period, in Southern Europe, civilization was almost extinct, but there was a spark of it left, and it developed to the conditions of the world to-day. But it is hard to see it, in its present perspective. People must wait a week, a month, yes, a year or so, and then look back, and they will see the effect of God's holy presence and of God's hand. The old Jews were taught that God was present everywhere at all times, and the speaker pointed out that there is no deeper lesson that people can learn to-day than that God is present everywhere, at once.

The speaker further drew attention to the fact that they could choose something more appropriate for a Harvest Festival service, but this was one fact that was always appropriate, to know that God is everywhere at once.

Rev. Dr. Boyle continued by saying that he had no doubt but that each one in the audience had, at some time or other, a trouble, a sorrow, a regrettable occurrence of some description, which wrung their hearts, and during that time they would feel and almost think, that God had turned away. But after the lapse of a year or so, they turn and look back at the dark event, and see the work of God's hand and the light of His countenance.

The speaker said that although the lesson here might not be quite clear to them, they were able to say, like the prophet: "Be still and know that I am present at thy right hand."

The reverend speaker concluded by impressing the fact that God is just as near at the present, as He was when He talked face to face with His disciples, and He has been and will continue to be, with His church, and its congregations.

An English Chemist Has Discovered How to Grow Hair

In England the ladies have entirely abandoned wearing rats, which is due entirely to this new discovery.

It has been proven that Henna leaves contain the ingredients that will positively grow hair. That they contain this long-looked-for article is proven every day.

The Americans are now placing on the market a preparation containing the extract from Henna leaves, which is having a phenomenal sale.

This preparation is called SALVIA, and is being sold with a guarantee to cure Dandruff and to grow hair in abundance. Being daintily perfumed, SALVIA makes a most pleasant hair dressing. McDermid and Jury, your druggist, is the first to import this preparation into Peterborough, and a large, generous bottle can be purchased for 50c.

Luxurious New Cars for C.P.R. Montreal Service

Another triumph in car building has been achieved by the C. P. R. and it marks a further advance in railroading.

The new compartment observation cars which have just been sent out from the Angus shops, are intended for the service between Toronto and Montreal, and as evidence of the growing popularity of the service between the North Toronto station and Montreal, they are attached to the train, leaving that station at 10.00 p.m. daily.

These new cars have seven compartments, a drawing room, an observation parlour and an observation platform. The entrance to the rooms is from aisles running along the sides of the cars, ensuring absolute privacy. There are two berths, the lower being made up from two double seats and there are all toilet requirements in each compartment.

The cars are lighted with electricity, and in the warm weather are kept cool with electric fans.

These cars are models of luxury and comfort, in which the C. P. R. standard of equipment excels.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

I HAD rather stretch my arm or rise from my chair than be served by one who does it not for love." —Emerson.

The maid problem was on the tapis.

One woman with a family of three complained bitterly that she paid her maid five dollars and a half a week put out all the washing, did the upstairs work herself and even then received very poor service.

Another indignantly related how a domestic sent out by the employment bureau to look her over, calmly refused to engage herself because there were two rooms with carpets instead of hardwood floors, and because the family was too large. The family consists of herself and her mother.

A third disconsolate house mother, with the abnormally large family of four, told of her absolute failure to get any maid at all, although she offers six dollars puts out all the starched things and does some of the cooking herself.

The social worker came in at this stage of the conversation.

The social worker lives alone but has a very large, old-fashioned house and a pack of "company." She pays her maid fifty cents a week less than any of us, puts none of the washing out, and does absolutely nothing about the house herself. Her maid, besides the regular three meals, often serves afternoon tea or chocolate to evening guests. And she has a thoroughly capable, effic ient and good-tempered maid, who has been with her for three years, and who was recommended to the place by another maid, who served the social worker for five years and left to enter a convent."

The social worker related this state of affairs.

It was hailed as a miracle.

"I don't see it," said the social worker.

"You pay fifty cents less than any of us and you get very much better service. What do you do?"

The social worker thought a moment. "If there is anything I do which is different, it's this," she said. "Besides giving my maid her board and wages, I try to share with her some of my interests, and to take a kindly interest in her affairs. I have a good many unusual experiences, you know, in my work. Well, if I am alone, I often talk to Mary about them when she is serving me or when we are looking over the pantry and ice chest together, and planning the work, or in the evening. Several times she has helped me when I have had investigating to do which required two persons.

"In return she tells me about her beaus and her family in Ireland, and shows me her sister's picture with her four children in her lap, and her husband standing behind the chair with his feet crossed, and asks my advice about her plans for the future and so forth."

"But doesn't she take advantage of your kindness and get presuming and impertinent?" broke in the lady with the inefficient maid.

The social worker smiled. "I don't think dignity and kindness are incompatible," she said, "and I try not to have them so. My maids have always been most respectful."

"Well, that may do very well with Mary," said the lady with the abnormally large family of four, "but I think she's an unusual girl. Isn't she the kind that would stay anywhere if anyone was halfway decent to her?"

"She was in five places in two months before she came to me," said the social worker.

"Oh," said the lady with the abnormally large family and then — "Oh, look, there goes the L's new touring car. Why, I thought it was much larger than that from all I'd heard about it."

And the servant problem was off the tapis for the day.

Although the social worker's recipe for getting efficient service at a reasonable price did not seem to appeal to those who solicited it, others may perhaps appreciate it.

To their attention it is respectfully submitted.

IT GROWS HAIR

Here Are Facts We Want You to Prove at Our Risk

Marvelous as it may seem, Rexall "93" Hair Tonic has grown hair on heads that were once bald. Of course, in none of these cases were the hair roots dead, nor had the scalp taken on a glazed, shiny appearance.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic acts scientifically, destroying the germs which are usually responsible for baldness. It penetrates to the roots of the hair, stimulating and nourishing them. It is a most pleasant toilet necessity, is delicately perfumed, and will not gum or permanently stain the hair.

We want you to get a bottle of Rexall "93" Hair Tonic and use it as directed. If it does not relieve scalp irritation, remove dandruff, prevent the hair from falling out and promote an increased growth of hair, and in every way give entire satisfaction, simply come back and tell us, and without question or formality we will hand back to you every penny you paid us for it. Two sizes, 50c. and $1.00. Sold only at our store,—The Rexall Store, McDermid and Jury.

POST CARD COLUMN

Editor Examiner:

As one who was not able to be present at the rally of the British born to hear Mr. Arthur Hawkes, and had to be content with reading a pamphlet entitled "The British Born Movement and Its Leaders," from which I would like to express my views upon the same pamphlet.

In the first place, he says, "Canada is in the throes of a new birth and when the passion is over her ideas will be ennobled." They may be, but it will certainly not be brought about by such assertions as he makes against the British born when he says that when the British born comes to Canada he knows little of England and much less of Canada.

My experience of the average English workingman is that he studies the history politically and socially of his country far more than many of our Canadian workingmen do except at election times, when he is open and willing to receive any opinions that may be offered to him as Gospel, not diving deep enough into the question of the day, to be able to express an unbiassed opinion of the same.

Mr Hawkes goes on to say that "We have to be careful lest the nurses at Ottawa do not let the child 'Canada' be kidnapped." Does Mr. Hawkes think that we are children led by the apron string and not able to discern right from wrong?

A few years ago and even to-day many of the British emigrants to our shores are called by many sparrows. Sparrows they may be, and, like sparrows, they will remain here, but have grown too old to be caught by such chaff as is being spread around at present.

The course that is being pursued by Mr. Hawkes in this contest is only going to show to a foreigner the expression that we as Canadians and British subjects are not capable of running our own show, therefore adding insult to the intelligence of the Canadian working people.

It is the British born, says Mr. Hawkes, that have made Canada "out of vacancy a nation, out of a lone frontier a bulwark of an empire," but he does not for one moment give the credit to the statesmen under whom Canada has been brought to the prosperous condition she is in to-day and the place she holds in the colonies of the British Empire.

The last move taken by the Conservative party is the climax, namely, that of bringing to their help a man who not six months ago was looked upon as the one great turbulent spirit of England, David Lloyd George, and to-day using his words as a guide to the electors to show how they should vote so as to bind into closer union that Empire upon which the sun never sets.

JOHN CANUCK.

Editor The Examiner:

The splendid advertising that you and others gave Arthur Hawkes drew me, as I presume it did many other British-born, to hear him at the Opera House last night.

Oh! What a disappointment he was! The chairman at the outset put his foot into it when he referred to Mr. Hawkes as a cute bird. He was not cute enough to keep himself out of trouble, and he surely was disgusting to any true Britisher.

That a man who prides himself as a Britisher could so prostitute his talent as did Mr. Hawkes last evening when he dragged himself down by defaming inferences to God's Holy Bible and resorted to words quite uncalled for in referring to the Liberal candidate, came as a shock to true Britishers. We expected something worthy of Mr. Hawkes. But he gave us a fine show of how low a man will sink himself for money. Small wonder that a good part of his audience left before he had got fairly started and that he was called severely to task by a true Britisher.

Why there has been all the talk about Arthur Hawkes I cannot well make out. His influence last evening was to the disadvantage of the cause he was supposed and paid to represent, and you and he, Mr. Editor, may depend upon it that the British-born of Peterborough may be counted upon to-morrow to vote in their own immediate interests as citizens of Peterborough, of Canada and of our great Empire, as he advised them to do, but they will do it by marking their ballots for a good, live representative—the man who was reviled last evening and whom the latchet of his shoes the said Arthur Hawkes showed himself unworthy to unloose.

BUILDING PERMITS FOR PETERBOROUGH "CONSTRUCTION'S" FIGURES

With a total investment well in advance of that noted in the corresponding period, July adds another substantial increase to the heavy list of gains that have already characterized operations in the building line so far this year. From returns to hand, in fact, there is every sign that the country in general is still forging ahead at its much accustomed gait, with no indication of a halt of any consequence occurring for some little time to come. The value of new work undertaken in the thirty-three cities reporting to "Construction," amounted to $12,952,076, as against $10,206,276 for the same month last year, the average gain as based on the comparative figures amounting to 23 per cent. Aside from the decrease noted in the case of Montreal, all the principal cities exceeded their former figures, while in many of the secondary centres a marked degree of progress was strikingly in evidence.

As in the previous month, Winnipeg, with an investment of $2,787,100, has th largest amount registered, although Toronto, with a total of $2,786,520, is but a slight margin behind, the increase noted being 161 and 42 per cent. in order named. Vancouver comes next in this respect, her expenditure of $1,108,378 representing a gain of 73 per cent., clearly indicating that this city has fully recovered from the labor troubles which for a short period embarrassed its progress. The West, in fact, with the exception of the loss of 38 per cent, recorded in the case of Lethbridge, experienced a cycle of unbroken gains. From the standpoint of increase per cent., Brandon(gain 562 per cent.) is well in the lead, her growth for the month being proportionately greater than of any other city in the list. Saskatoon and Regina, where respective increases of 397 and 97 per cent. were registered, the investment for the month was over $600,000. Moose Jaw and Prince Albert, in the same province, are also well ahead, the advance noted being 281 per cent .and 97 per cent. in order named. In Alberta, operations were likewise undertaken on quite an extensive scale. Calgary made an investment of $817,980, representing a gain of 57 per cent.; Edmonton issued permits amounting to $474,909, while Medicine Hat noted an increase of 250 per cent. At Edmonton, according to a report to hand, work has been seriously held up for the past three months owing to a shortage of cement. However, this material is now being received in larger quantities, and a number of large buildings, at present under consideration, are shortly to be projected.

In British Columbia, in addition to Vancouver's gain previously mentioned, Victoria is ahead by 50 per cent., while the totals at New Westminster ($134,112) and North Vancouver ($196,415), both of which fail to submit comparative figures, show a very satisfactory state of activity and development.

Ontario experienced a steady advance in general, although four of the losses noted occurred in this province. Peterborough and Port Arthur have respective decreases of 20 and 81 per cent., while Stratford and St. Thomas are behind to the extent of 37 and 9 per cent. in order named. On the other hand, Ottawa has a total of $262,575, netting a gain of 29 per cent. Hamilton issued permits valued at $285,500, which is 6 per cent. better than July of last year. London advanced 148 per cent., Guelph 295 per cent., and Fort William 44 per cent. Other gains are Berlin 20 per cent., Brantford 25 per cent., and Windsor 14 and Kingston 1 per cent.

The aggregate value of new work undertaken at Montreal, which has the fourth largest total noted, amounted to $1,657,761; and while the comparative figures show a loss of 51 per cent., it must be taken into consideration that the month of July in 1910 was one of the greatest building months that Montreal ever experienced. Judging from the amount of work in prospect, this city will witness fall operations that will measure up in every way to the marked activity of the period immediately preceding.

Of the three Maritime cities reporting, Sydney, where the investment was $216,860, is the only place to show an increase, Halifax and and St. John sustaining losses of 33 and 63 per cent. in respective order.

LAZY LIVER, BILIOUSNESS, SICK HEADACHE COATED TONGUE OR SOUR, GASSY STOMACH

You men and women who somehow can't get feeling right—who have an almost daily headache, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel all worn out.

Are you keeping clean inside with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the decomposed waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box will keep your entire family feeling good for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

Cascarets

REGULATE STOMACH, LIVER & BOWELS. TASTE GOOD—NEVER GRIPE OR SICKEN.

New York Tailoring at Canadian Prices

"The Mark of High Degree."

LAST year we sold a great many New Yorkers and other American tourists Semi-ready Suits in the latest New York style at from $15.00 to $20.00 less than they could buy them at home.

The price-saving is obvious. The American tariff on fine woollens is 100 per cent; and yet they must have the best English woollens, for their domestic worsteds are inferior.

A Semi-ready Suit such as we sell for $20.00 costs $35.00 in the United States. And no tailor in New York can produce better work than Semi-ready.

WEDDING BELLS

SHERRY—DAVIES.

St. John's church was the scene of a very pretty though quiet wedding at 3.30 this afternoon when Miss Helen, daughter of Mrs. Alfred Davies and George E. T. [illegible] of Mr. George J. Sherry of Peterborough, were united in holy matrimony.

The Rev. Canon Davidson was the celebrant, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Carpenter.

Although composed solely of immediate friends, the assembly was a large one, and the bride, who was unattended, was given away by her mother.

After a visit to western points, Mr. and Mrs. Sherry will take up residence in Deloraine, Manitoba. Mr. Sherry is manager of the Union Bank, Deloraine.

ELLIOT'S

MUSIC AND DRAMA

Announced as Broadway's biggest, brightest, breeziest and best musical play "The Beauty Spot," by Reginald DeKoven and Joseph Herbert, with Frank Deshon as the star, will play an engagement of two performances, Saturday matinee and evening, Sept. 23rd at The Grand.

The play is said of have been embellished with every possible touch known to the art of staging a musical comedy. The two scenes are described as rich in colour and design, representing a bathing resort in the South of France and the tropical gardens adjoining the hotel. A large chorus is introduced in every form, from little girls to beautiful grand dames, and it is claimed that every face is pretty, every figure a delight, every dance effect attractive and every light effect new. An artist's fete in the second act introduces golden chariots, drawn by real, live ponies, of the pony ballet and Goldie Josh in her dance, does some very charming novelties.

DeKoven's music is too well known for comment, but in "The Beauty Spot" it is claimed that he has grasped the more popular style of music in a manner which goes far to prove he has kept the present day demand in mind. Number after number of the excellent score has that tunefulness which lingers in the ear. "Creole Days," "A Prince of Borneo," "The Boulevard Glide," "The Goblin Glide," "In a Hammock," "Cutie Dear" and many other numbers are songs that are said will be remembered for many a day.

You think I look so much better; yes, and I feel better—Miller's Compound Iron Pills did it.—Wm. Madill, druggist.

VOTE THROUGHOUT COUNTRY IS HEAVY
Both Leaders When Interviewed Expressed Assurance of Victory

Special Wire to The Examiner.

TORONTO, SEPT. 21.—With the rain pelting down in some constituencies and the warm sun shining in others, the electors all over Canada turned out to-day to vote on the greatest political issue set before them for many years. Early reports indicate a very heavy vote from east to west, north and south of the big Dominion. In the farming communities the volume of vote is unprecedented and the market gardening districts in the neighbourhood of the big cities and towns, are polling, also, a very heavy vote. In cities and well-populated centres, generally, electioneering is very keen, and charges of impersonating and corruption are many. Also several arrests have been made by Secret Service men on both sides. It is expected that the greatest urban voting will be late in the afternoon, when many industries have arranged to close, so that the men can vote. Sir Wilfrid Laurier spent a quiet day at Chateauquen, Frontenac, Quebec City; and Mr. R. L. Borden cast his ballot at Halifax this morning. Both leaders, when interviewed, expressed assurance of victory and were glad that the big campaign was over.

GOSSIP.

For the past month the air has been full of rumours and no story has been too absurd to find currency and circulation, and, perhaps, for the moment, to be believed. These stories were not invented, perhaps, but once set afloat on the breath of summer, repeated the story of Topsy's development—"jes' growed." Such rumours, if left to their own guidance, soon die of inanition. But it is the exploitation of them that gives them vitality. In the same line are the combined remarks and stories about individuals. Some frank-speaking persons are apt to make frank, and possibly truthful, but unkindly critical remarks about their friends. These remarks, of themselves, are harmless, so long as they are not repeated. Members of, even, the same family, often criticise other members of the family among themselves, with no harm done so long as the object of the remarks remains in ignorance of these. But it is the gossip, the talebearer, the ready-mouthed and wide-mouthed purveyor of unkind remarks that does the harm. It does you or me no harm if, even, our best friends, not to speak of our worst enemies, say unkind things about us if we do not know of it. We don't know what our best friends think of us—of our little faults and foibles. No harm is done if all do not know their thoughts. No harm is done, either, if our friends, in a moment of confidence and frankness, say things about us that they wouldn't say to our face for the world, things they wouldn't say for the world if they for one moment thought they would be repeated. But here is where the gossip, the most detestable, and dangerous moral malefactor, gets in his or her work; and to her shame be it said, more often "her" than "his". This sneaking, sly serpent of the social garden, this pestilent purveyor of tittle tattle, harmless till it is made vicious by repetition, is the one that does all the mischief—is responsible for more broken friendships, more heart burning and suffering than any one class of criminal in the community. He or she rolls a chance remark about a mutual friend under his, or her, tongue, as a sweet morsel. If it is an unkind and cutting remark, all the better for him, or her, the more he, or she, gloats over it. Unashamed, he, or she, repeats to the subject of an unkind comment, what a properly-constituted and a right-thinking person would, in repeating it, feel as guilty as if he, or she, had said it themselves. Thus the mischief is done. The man who would prepare a torch commits no crime; but the incendiary who lights it and applies it to his neighbour's house, is the real felon. The man, or woman, that frankly criticises their best friends in the intimacy of the social circle, does no harm; it is the repetition of it to the object of the remark that does the harm—that lights and bears the incendiary's torch. The gossip is the creation of a paradox—it is not the one who slanders who is the slanderer, it is the one who, by repetition, gives it effect.

AN INSTRUCTIVE PUBLICATION

From Farm and Dairy.

An altogether interesting and instructive publication relating to dairying has been issued from the Dairy and Cold Storage Commissioner's Branch at Ottawa. It is entitled "The Dairy Industry in Canada," and is an historical and descriptive account of the dairying industry of this country written by Mr. J. A. Ruddick, Dairy and Cold Storage Commissioner.

The work has been prepared with a view towards making a permanent record before it is too late of the more important events connected with the early history of dairying in Canada, and particularly of those events which relate to the factory system to which Canadian dairying owes so much. Much valuable information pertaining to all branches of dairying in the various provinces of the Dominion is set forth in an interesting and most readable style in this bulletin and anyone on reading it will place themselves in possession of many facts they will treasure for years to come.

Illustrations of the several breeds of dairy cattle, of cheese factories, creameries, dairy schools, and farms in the several provinces; portraits of men engaged in the industry in its early history in Canada, as well as portraits of some of our leading dairymen of the present day, enliven the work and make it of the more interest. Three photographs of the Mammoth cheese made at the Ingersoll factory in 1866 and at Perth, Ont., in 1892, are given; these will prove of special interest to our younger dairymen of to-day.

Every reader of Farm and Dairy will wish for a copy of this bulletin, and may have the same free on application to the Dairy Commissioner at Ottawa, who has done himself credit in the general excellence of this interesting and attractive bulletin.

PILES Do not suffer another day with Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles. No surgical operation required.

Dr. Chase's Ointment will relieve you at once and as certainly cure you. 60c. a box; all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. Sample box free if you mention this paper and enclose 2c. stamp to pay postage.

AFTER DOCTORS FAILED

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cured Her.

Midgic Station, N. B.—One can hardly believe this as it is not natural, but it was my case. For ten months I suffered from suppression. I had different doctors, tried different medicines, but none helped me. My friends told me I would go into a decline. One day a lady friend told me what your medicine had done for her, so I wrote you for advice and received your reply with pleasure.

I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and at the second bottle showed improvement. Now I am regular and never was so well in my life, thanks to Mrs. Pinkham's medicine.

Please publish my letter for the benefit of others.—Mrs. JOSIAH W. HICKS, Midgic Station, N. B.

Indian Head, Sask.—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is indeed a boon to women who suffer from female ills. My health is better now than it has been in my five years of married life and I thank you for the good your advice and medicine have done me. I had spent hundreds of dollars on doctors without receiving any benefit.—Mrs. FRANK COOPER, Box 448, Indian Head, Saskatchewan.

The most successful remedy in this country for the cure of all forms of female complaints is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

ANY PERSON who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts, a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of home stead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3 per acre in certain districts. Price $5 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

CRUISER HITS LINER.

S. S. Olympic Is Rammed Near Isle of Wight.

Southampton, Eng., Sept. 21.—The great steamship Olympic of the White Star Line, which left Southampton shortly before noon yesterday with a large crowd of returning American tourists, lies off Calshot Castle, at the entrance to Southampton Water, today with a gaping hole in her side as the result of a collision with the British protected cruiser Hawke. Fortunately no lives were lost, and of the 2,000 or more passengers and crews of the vessels no one was injured.

The accident occurred a few miles from the spot where the American liner St. Paul and the British cruiser Gladiator collided nearly four years ago, and as in the previous case the warship came off second best, so far as can be ascertained. The extent of the damage to the liner, however, cannot be decided until she is docked and an examination is made of the rent which the cruiser's ram cut in her side.

The warship, moving at great speed, was following the liner out of the harbor, but apparently was quite clear of her. Suddenly she observed, in, and before the passengers could realise what was happening the cruiser struck the liner in the starboard quarter near the stern, tearing through a section about forty feet in extent. The miracle is that the Olympic was not sunk, as the Hawke is fitted with a ram especially designed to sink a vessel in spite of its watertight compartments. The liner's frame stood the shock well, and the watertight doors, which automatically closed, held the compartments hermetically sealed.

So far as can be learned the Hawke suffered more severely. Curiously enough twelve feet of her upper deck was twisted out of all recognition. The stem appears to be completely gone. The plating was ripped open, exposing the forward torpedo tube.

LABORS ARE OVER.

Sir Wilfrid is Now Resting at Chateau Frontenac.

Quebec, Sept. 21.—After his strenuous campaign Sir Wilfrid is a guest at the Chateau Frontenac, where he will, as usual, receive the election returns to-night. The Liberal leader held two meetings in the Quebec district yesterday, and last evening he took a walk on the Terrace, where under the bright lights of Quebec's promenade he was afforded the first absolute relief from his labors of many weeks past.

Sir Wilfrid had another very hard day yesterday, when he addressed two meetings. The first was at Ste. Anne, where George Parent is the candidate against Rodolphe Forget. Later he spoke at Beauport in the interests of J. B. Casouette, who is being opposed by Hon. J. P. Pelletier. Both meetings were largely attended, and the Prime Minister spoke in the usual strain of his recent speeches.

Although Hon. L. P. Pelletier had expressed his willingness to meet Sir Wilfrid wih Armand Lavergne or Henri Bourassa, the offer was not accepted, and Sir Wilfrid had the field to himself. He was accompanied by Dr. Beland, Postmaster-General, and other speakers.

Shot His Daughter's Lover.

London, Eng., Sept. 21.—A man named James Robinson shot himself dead at Winlaton, Durham, Tuesday, after firing at a young man who had been keeping company with his daughter against his wishes. The tragedy occurred in the daughter's presence.

Her sweetheart, Thomas Bilclough, was not seriously injured.

Ate Sulphur Matches.

Montreal, Sept. 21.—Mrs. Gaston Jacobs of 1,645 East Ontario street died yesterday in the Royal Victoria Hospital despite the efforts of the staff. The woman, who was 25 years old, had eaten the heads of a number of sulphur matches which she had got into the habit of chewing, and the diet resulted in her death from poisoning.

Drowning at Cornwall.

Cornwall, Sept. 21.—A young man named E. Gouin, employed as cook on the freighter Hebron, plying between Montreal and Cornwall, was drowned here yesterday afternoon by falling off the railing of the boat into the canal. Gouin joined the crew at Montreal last Friday, and little is known of him by the other members of the crew. He was about 25 years of age, and his mother lives in Montreal. The body was recovered.

Spanish Cruiser Ashore.

Melilla, Morocco, Sept. 21.—The Spanish protected cruiser Catalunya went ashore yesterday at Azanen, west of Cape Tres-Forcas.

Danderine

Stops Falling Hair and Destroys Dandruff

Makes the Hair Grow Long, Heavy and Luxuriant and We Can Quickly Prove It

If You Wish to Double the Beauty of Your Hair at Once, Just Get a 25 Cent Bottle and Try This

Surely try a Danderine Hair Cleanse if you wish to immediately double the beauty of your hair with little trouble and at a cost not worth mentioning—just moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one small strand at a time, this will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or any excessive oil—In a few moments you will be amazed. Your hair will be wavy, fluffy and abundant and possess an incomparable softness, lustre and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Besides beautifying the hair, one application of Danderine dissolves every particle of Dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. It's exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow abundantly long, strong and beautiful. It at once imparts a sparkling brilliancy and velvety softness to the hair, and a few moments' use will cause new hair to sprout all over the scalp. Use it every day for a short time, after which two or three times a week will be sufficient to complete whatever growth you desire.

You can surely have pretty, soft, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will just get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed.

Prominent Divine To Preach Here

A message has been received to-day from Dr. Joseph Sullivan, of Olivet Baptist church, Montreal, consenting to address the congregation of Murray street Baptist church at their re-union on Friday, Sept. 27th. The name of Dr. Sullivan is sufficient to insure a crowded building. He will arrive at 4.28 and leave for home again on the midnight train. There will be no charge for admission as this is the annual gathering of the church family and their friends. Refreshments will be served during the evening.

No Desire for Food

The Stomach Seems Played Out and the Appetite Fickle.

The Digestive System is Overloaded With Poisons—Relief Comes With the Use of

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

Weak stomach, loss of appetite, indigestion and all the accompanying symptoms of energy, tend to make the springtime anything but joyous for many people.

The system is full of poisons, the blood is impure, the liver and kidneys have been overworked in an effort to remove the waste matter and have failed. This accounts for the biliousness, the constipation, the backaches and headaches.

How is this condition to be overcome? There is no quicker or more certain way than by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This treatment gets the liver and kidneys in action at once and ensures regular movement of the bowels.

The poisonous waste matter which has been clogging the digestive system is removed and the organs of digestion are enabled to properly perform their duties.

Appetite is sharpened, you eat your food with a relish, the stomach is strengthened, the vital organs get the nourishment they require, and vigour and energy are restored.

Known of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to have impure blood or to suffer the annoyance of tired, spring feelings. One pill a dose. 25c. a Boxes & Co., Limited, Toronto.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

SOME topic of sex came up the other day, and a young engaged girl detailed to us her fiance's views on the subject.

A sweet little old lady leaned forward and listened most intently to the young girl's words, and when she had finished, cried out in evident wonder: "But you don't really mean you talked over all that with him?"

"Why, yes," said the girl. "We feel that it is false modesty to be afraid of talking about such real vital things, and so if they happen to come up, we aren't afraid to speak out. Of course, we always talk about them in a perfectly nice way."

The little old lady shook her head.

"Of course, it's all right, my dear, or I know you wouldn't do it, but I'm sure we never did. Why, just imagine John's telling me about — about — the old lady's lips refused to name the subject—about things like that," she finished, "before we were married. Well well, I suppose times have changed."

It was twilight, but even in the semi-darkness I could see that the little old lady was blushing.

Times have changed in this particular.

The pendulum has swung from the extreme of an ultra-modesty that attempted to ignore the existence of sex, and that fled from any frank speech on that subject as from a plague and that either produced or assumed a ridiculous ignorance of vital things, instead of a fine, fearless innocence.

And this, I think, is very, very good.

But like all pendulums, I am afraid this one is inclined to swing too far the other day.

The girl of to-day is very anxious not to be prude.

I wonder if in her anxiety to stand erect instead of with the drooping posture of her grandmother's day she does not sometimes bend too far backward.

She wants to be sensibly frank.

Isn't she sometimes foolishly so?

She thinks she talks of all these matters merely to be sensible, and to show that she is not afraid to call a spade a spade.

But I wonder does no other motive ever creep in?

Does the excitement, the intimacy, the thrill of venturing on the forbidden ground hand-in-hand with him have nothing to do with her desire to be frank?

I understand me, I do not mean that this is a deliberate conscious motive.

Rather one of those deeply hidden springs of action whose presence can only be revealed even to ourselves by a trip to the bottom of our hearts.

Indeed, I do not mean to be harsh nor to impugn your modesty, dear honest, frank, little girls of the twentieth century.

I hate prudishness as much as you do.

But I want you to stand on this matter neither dropping forward nor bending ungracefully backward, but finely and splendidly erect.

So you will try to be sure you are doing that, won't you?

Prominent Citizen Denounces Milk By-law---Unsanitary And Undesirable---Milk Trust Result

The new milk by-law, under consideration by the city officials, was the subject of some very severe criticism at the hands of Mr. John Carlisle, yesterday. In conversation with an Examiner reporter, Mr. Carlisle denounced the by-law, as being one of the first steps toward the forming of a milk trust in the city. He also thought that bottling the milk would be a far more unsanitary way of delivering it, as the bottles would pass from one house to another, without being properly cleaned and bottles would be left at houses where there were infectious diseases; from there they would go all over the city, spreading germs of all descriptions. Mr. Carlisle did not mean to infer that the milk vendors of this city were so unclean about their work, as this infers, but he was quite confident that there were very few milk vendors in this city, or any other city who would take the trouble and time to disinfect and thoroughly sterilize their bottles, to the extent of making them secure against the dangers of spreading contagious diseases.

"It would send the price of milk up so high that the poorer class of people could not purchase it at all," was the firm opinion of Mr. Carlisle. "Milk is nine cents in Toronto to-day, which is nothing but the work of such a bill as that under consideration by the city officials here at the present time. We have gotten along splendidly in the past, with the old well scalded and washed cans, and I am confident that we will not get anything better in the future, and certainly I denounce the bottling scheme, as being unsanitary and undesirable, in as much as it will raise the price of milk. In Toronto, the milk consumers would do a great deal if they could smash the milk trusts, but they see, as we shall see, what a hard proposition this will be."

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"BABY MINE."

For the first time in six weeks Peterborough people had a chance to forget reciprocity and other things last night, when Margaret Mayo's ludicrously funny farce "Baby Mine" was excellently presented by a splendid cast at the Grand Opera House. Nothing funnier than this sparkling comedy has been seen at the Grand for a long time and last night's big audience laughed until the tears were perilously near rolling down their cheeks. A wife's stratagem in which she tries to win back her husband by borrowing a baby results in unexpected complications, in the shape of a couple of extra babies and in the arrival of the indignant real owners and as a result, husband and wife and, incidentally, the husband's friend, Jimmy, are involved in a series of funny incidents that keep the audience convulsed. The chief fun comes from the complications in which the latter gets as a result of his efforts to help the scheme along. Of course, the husband forgives the wife and everything ends happily.

The cast last night was a most capable company of farceurs. Daisy little Nanon Welsh, who succeeds Marguerite Clarke, as Zoie, the wife made a most favourable impression by her winsome girlish charm, and the ease with which she handled the part. She was given capable support by John J. McCabe, as Jimmy, and Benedict MacQuarrie as the husband. Indeed, it may be said that the whole cast was above the average, and the production most finished and enjoyable.

PETERBORO' HORSES SECURE HONOURS AT OGDENSBURG

OGDENSBURG, NEW YORK, SEPT. 20.—The greatest exhibition of high class stepping horses that ever took place in this city is being exhibited at the present time. Expert horsemen who have visited the important shows in New York, say that this year eclipses any former shows.

In the run-about class to-day, Mr. Stratton's "Midget," with six horses competing, took the red ribbon.

In the combination class, "None Nicer," in competition with twelve, took second.

In the high stepping class, "My Pride" came to the front again with nine horses competing.

In the gentleman's pair, "My Pride" and "Premier" took first.

In the four-in-hand class, Mr. Stratton's horses eclipsed all, and carried the red ribbon.

In the ladies' pair, "Latest News" and "Loch Ryan Princess" were first again.

In the free-for-all class, "Loch Ryan Princess" and "Latest News" obtained second prize.

In the class for Canadian horses, "My Pride" also took first in the high steppers.

THE CAT AND THE FIDDLE

IS COMING

Fancy Dress Carnival

The managemetn of the Brock street rink has arranged a special attraction for to-morrow night in the shape of a fancy dress carnival that should prove very popular with the patrons of the rink and that should result in a record crowd being in attendance to-morrow night. The prizes are of unusual excellence, well worthy of being won, as a glance at the window of F. Clarke and Sons, jewellers, George street, will show.

GIANT APPLE

Mr. John Best, 426 Donegal street, has left with the Examiner an apple of a size and appearance to have excused Mother Eve yielding to temptation to eat the forbidden fruit, that is if Pewaukees were among the fruit of the garden of Eden. This apple measures twelve inches in circumference and weighs thirteen ounces. It may not be the best apple in Canada, but it certainly is one of the best apples in Canada.

RECORD-BREAKING CROWD ATTEND LAKEFIELD FAIR

The Attractions Were Many and of a High Order—It is Estimated That There Were 3,000 People on the Grounds—Races Proved a Strong Drawing Card.

The Lakefield Show Grounds was the Mecca of thousands of those interested in agriculture yesterday and Tuesday, when the Lakefield Agricultural Society held their annual Exhibition. Yesterday was a glorious day and one well suited to the requirements of the occasion. The sun shone continuously with a radiant glow; yet it was not too warm. There was a continued influx of visitors all day and Mr. W. Sherrin, the Secretary, when interviewed, expressed himself well satisfied with the proceedings, but at that time of the day, viz., four o'clock, an estimate of the attendance would be difficult. However, a rough estimate places the number in the grounds at that time at about three thousand. Mr. Hopkins, the District Representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, also eulogized the show.

The main building was well stocked with fruit and vegetables, while numerous specimens of fancy needlework signified that the ladies had not been idle. On entering the grounds proper, strains of music, emanating from the popular band of the 57th Regiment, met the ear. The Midway was well filled with shows and amusements of various descriptions, including an African scene, Merry-go-Round, Ball games, and Hoop-la, while several exhibits were also in evidence. Conspicuous amongst these were a clothing exhibit by Messrs. Grafton & Co., and a stall where results of the fruit of sprayed trees were seen to exceed that of unsprayed trees, both in quality and size. This manifestation was by the Ontario Board of Agriculture.

The showing of cattle and horses of various classes was splendid, and was said to have surpassed that of last year. The poultry was both numerous and of a high order.

The strongest and most interesting feature in connection with the Fair was the races, which were of a very creditable and exciting nature. "Adrian Pointer" owned by Mr. Elmhurst of Keene, was an easy winner in the 2.30 trot. He proved himself to be a wonderful performer, and the outcome of the heats in which he figured were never in doubt.

The conclusion of the first heat, which was of the 2.35 variety, brought forth a wild outburst of enthusiasm from the hundreds of speed fans who lined the track.

The results were—1, "Adrian Pointer," 2, "Barber Boy"; 3, Hazel Brook.

On starting, Barber Boy led, but was soon displaced by "Adrian Pointer, who maintained first place; "Barber Boy" broke his shoulder strap. Time 2.38.

2nd heat—1, "Adrian Pointer"; 2, "Hazel Brook"; 3, "Barber Boy."

3rd heat—1, Adrian Pointer; 2, "Hazel Brook," 3, "Barber Boy."

Second race, free-for-all, first heat—1, "Furioso,, 2, "Dot L," 3, Harry Direct; 4, Orillia Bell.

This was a neck-and-neck race between "Furioso" and "Dot L," and only half a length divided them at the finish. Time, 2.27.

Second heat—1, "Furioso"; 2, "Dot L"; 3, "Orillia Belle"; 4, "Harry Direct".

Third heat—1, "Furioso"; 2, "Dot L"; 3, "Orillia Bell"; 4, "Harry Direct".

Result of race—1st, "Furioso". owned by Mr. Park of Orillia; second money, "Dot L." owned by Mr. Bowen of Orino; third, "Orillia Belle," Frank Montgomery, Peterborough; fourth, "Harry Direct," owned by Dr. Johnson of Peterborough.

There were many entries for the exhibition of harness horses of various classes, and so well were they matched that the judge found the selection not an easy task. After some deliberation, however, the prizes were distributed as follows:

Single horses in harness and buggy, 15 1-2 hands and over—1, J. W. Madill, Lakefield; 2, Mr. Kelly, Bridgenorth; 3, Mr. Beavis, Lakefield.

Single horses in harness and buggy, under 15 1-2 hands—1, W. H. Downes, Dennis Garvey, James Bickell.

Best lady driver, for residents of Division only—1, Miss Preston, 2, Miss Hamlin.

Mr. Wm. Mooney, East Hawkesbury, County Prescott, acted as Judge.

ROBBERS SECURE SEVERAL THOUSAND DOLLARS AFTER MURDERING THEIR VICTIM

PITTSBURG, SEPT. 16. — David Steen, thirty, a mine superintendent and paymaster, was found shot to death in the road leading out from Carnegie, about twelve miles from this city, a few minutes before 1 o'clock this afternoon. The motive for the murder has been established as robbery and county detectives, constables and deputy sheriffs are searching the surrounding country for the highwaymen. As far as can be learned the robbers obtained $3,000. They are believed to have taken refuge in an abandoned mine, which will be thoroughly searched.

Steen was superintendent of Wilma Mine No. 2, which is leased to his father, W. J. Steen, by the Pittsburg Coal Company, which takes the output. To-day was the miners' pay day and Steen, as the superintendent, was acting as paymaster.

First Reports of Tragedy.

The first reports of the tragedy indicated that a greater robbery had been perpetrated. Steen was formerly employed by the Pittsburg Coal Company as paymaster, and it is but a short while since he left it and joined his father in coal operations. To this was due an early report that several hundred thousand dollars had been taken by the robbers.

The Wilma mine is a small mine and employs under normal conditions between seventy-five and one hundred men.

Steen left Carnegie about noon for the mine. He carried a satchel loaded with currency of small denomination. In the buggy with him was his father, W. J. Steen.

As they neared an abandoned Steen mine, the highwaymen stepped out and commanded that they hold up their hands. Young Steen, it is claimed, reached for his revolver, but before he could use it, he was shot twice.

Body Falls From Buggy.

His body tumbled from the buggy, and his father, who had cut the horse with a whip, was jerked down the road. The highwaymen stopped the horse and pulled the satchel, which contained the $3,000, from the buggy. They struck the horse and sent it flying down the road.

The shots were heard at the County Home, which was within sight. John Hemphill, a carpenter at the institution, who saw the wild flight of the horse and heard the shots, ran to the scene. Mr. Steen was breathing his last.

Chief of County Detectives Henry Muth was informed this afternoon that the highwaymen were two Italians. There was an exchange of shots between the Steens and the highwaymen, according to this information, and one of the bandits was wounded.

One was described as being a short man, about thirty-five, with soft hat and dark clothes and a short black mustache.

The other man was said to be tall, thirty, wearing a dark, short coat.

The police of Carnegie, Crafton, McKee's Rocks and the railroad police are hunting the men.

THE CAT AND THE FIDDLE

IS COMING

The Jackson Family

There is no denying the Jackson family in the major leagues. While Joe ("Stonewall") Jackson of the Naps is giving Ty Cobb a battle for the batting honours in the junior organization, "Hickory" Jackson of the tailend Boston Rustlers holds up the honour of the family tree in the National League. He is leading the swatters on the Lynch circuit with 47 hits in 131 times up, an average of .360 per cent. He is 14 points ahead of Hans Wagner, who got back in the game against the Cubs last Thursday.

Well up in the list is Chief Myers, whose record is, including the game of Oct. 14, 112 hits in 330 times at bat, an average of .330 per cent.

Ty Cobb,, Joe Jackson and Larry Lajoie are fighting tooth and nail for the individual batting honours in the American League. Although Cobb is leading and has been doing so nearly the entire campaign, he is by no means sure of winding up the season as the best sticker in the Ban Johnson organization. The great hitting of 'Stonewall' Jackson, with Lajoie's come-back to the game, and to his terrific stride of old, has somewhat endangered Cobb's desire to once more annex the batting honours this yea.

Cobb is up to the .416 notch, having four points during the week and has only eighteen points on Johnson. Larry fell back eight points and now has a mark of .382 per cent. Jackson is Cobb's only rival in point of hits, extra bases and as a run-getter. He has scored 118 runs to Cobb's 134, made 209 hits to 219 for the Georgia Peach, and has accumulated almost as many extra bases.

Cobb's ambition is to make 240 hits this season. He has started well on the last lap of his difficult journey. He has now 219 hits for the year. He now has 21 games left in which to get the needed 31 safeties and must average 1.48 hits per game. His average for the season on his first 200 safe drives was better than this, being 1.08 hits per game.

Jackson has just reached the 200 mark. Wahoo Sam Crawford is the next high hit gatherer to Jackson.

A new candidate for passing the double century mark has loomed up in Frank Baker, the silent man of the Athletics. He is only a few hits shy of Crawford's total.

THE CAT AND THE FIDDLE

MURDERED WHILE SHE WAS ASLEEP

Examiner Special:

BROWNWOOD, TEX., SEPT. 20. — Mrs. Sallie Brown, wife of George W. Brown, a well to-do farmer, was brutally murdered Saturday night of last week while asleep on a bed on the front porch of her dwelling, and after a week of investigation the mystery remains unsolved. The murderer used an iron rod an inch in diameter, and two feet in length, with which he crushed her skull. The victim lived twenty-four hours in an unconscious condition. Her husband was arrested, charged with the murder, and is in the county gaol awaiting an examining trial and the Coroner's verdict.

On the night of the murder a Brownwood physician received a call from the Brown house, saying that Mrs. Brown had been struck on the head by a burglar. The physician found several of the neighbours there. Ivy Beeman, a farmer who lives near the Brown place, was the first man to arrive on the gruesome scene.

According to the statement of Beeman, Brown was standing beside the bed washing the blood from his wife's face. The physician saw at once that death would ensue in a few hours.

Tells of "Tall Assailant."

Brown told the officers he was awakened by a sound like a blow and saw a tall man standing over the bed in the act of striking his wife with a club. He said one blow barely missed his own head as he dodged out of bed and ran for an open door, just inside of which a gun was standing. He asserted he saw the man snatch his (Brown's trousers) from the foot of the bed and run into the yard. When he returned with the gun the intruder had disappeared. Seeing his wife was badly hurt he called a physician.

Deputy-Sheriff Harl Daniels rode his horse from Brownwood to the Brown home, seven miles, in little more than fifteen minutes. He placed Brown under arrest. Other officers found an iron cudgel with which the murder was committed in a flower bed near the porch. It was smeared with blood.

Brown told the officers that his trousers had contained four silver dollars and a pocket knife. They were found some distance from the house. The money was missing but the knife was found nearby. The investigators also found the tracks of a man leading from the porch to the spot where the trousers were found, then in a circuitous manner back to the dwelling.

His Clothes Bloodstained.

The Sheriff had Brown remove yesterday the suit of clothes he had been wearing since the tragedy. His underclothes were found to be spattered with blood.

Brown is reputed to be worth between $20,000 and $40,000. The couple had been married little more than a year. Brown had been married once before and has five children, while Mrs. Brown had been married three times and brought four children to her new home.

Y.M.C.A. NOTES

The first fall "hyke" will be held on Saturday morning, when every boy of the Association who would like to spend the day in the bush gathering beech or hickory nuts, should put in an appearance at the building at 8.45 a.m. with a big lunch under his arm. The hykers will leave the building at 9 a.m. sharp so the tip to every boy is to be on time. A good time for all, and a good outing in the bush.

The business boys' class is now doing business, under the old leadership of Mr. G. Galley. The business boys meet every Tuesday and Thursday at 7.00 p.m. Better line up with this class after work and enjoy the fun, and a good swim.

The junior leaders corps meet tomorrow evening at 5.30 p.m. for floor work, after which tea will be served, and study will follow the tea hour.

EXAMINER'S LANTERN SERVICE OF ELECTION RETURNS TO-NIGHT

There is the greatest possible interest in the results of to-day's battle of the ballots, not only in Peterborough, but in the Dominion of Canada and there seems every reason to believe that there will be a record crowd in the vicinity of the Examiner office to-night to learn how the fight has gone. Both parties were at work early to-day and as a result there has been a grand vote polled. Vehicles of all kinds, automobiles included, have been kept humming from 9 o'clock this morning.

The Examiner has made complete arrangements for bulletining the results. By means of a stereopticon lantern, the figures will be thrown on a canvas opposite the Examiner office. Arrangements have been made for a complete telegraph service, supplied by the G. N. W. and the figures for the Dominion will be given out as quickly as they are wired.

ARREST GIVES CLUE TO CHINATOWN MURDER

Special to The Examiner:

New York, Sept. 20.—Johnnie Rice was arrested yesterday in his room at No. 213 Pearl street by Central Office Detective Philip Murphy on a bench warrant issued April 11 last, charging robbery in the first degree. By this arrest the police hope they are a step nearer the capture of the murderer of Dr. Eugne Post ,th Chinatown dentist, who was shot to death early last spring in his rooms at No. 21 Catharine street.

With the arrest of Rice comes the true story of the murder, its motive and accomplishment. The story brings the price of a man's life in Chinatown down to the low level of $1.50, for, though Johnnie Rice will not speak, his friends, who know every acident of the murder, say Post owed $1.50 for stolen goods and was killed because he would not pay.

A reward is offered for the arrest of Jackie Dalton and May Mansell. Dalton was the murderer of Post, the police say. Rice had nothing to do with the murder, for he was a "pal" of Post. But he was a "pal" of Dalton's too, and when the latter was wanted by the police little Johnnie "went to the front" to get money for his friend.

LED RAIDS ON GAMES

To do that, it is charged, he led the many hold-ups on lower east side stuss rooms and other gambling places where the bank rolls were taken by men who arrived in taxicabs.

In that manner the funds that took Dalton to England were got. In Coronation week he was picked up "on suspicion" behind the grand stand at Epsom Downs. Scotland Yard took Dalton's finger prints and forwarded the mto New York. New York cabled to Scotland Yard to hold the man, as he was wanted for murder. But before the message reached London Dalton had invoked the English laws and had been released. He fled from England.

May Mansell was held for weeks in the House of Detention hmere as a material witness. She testified at the coroner's inquest and was released. Now the police want her, but she too is gone.

Dr. Post, well educated, of good family, with means, had quit the houses of his own class and had drifted into Chinatown, where opium and cocaine made a gutter wreck of one who had been reared a gentleman. He made a few dollars, most of which went for "hop," by filling the teeth of Chinese and putting gold crowns into the mouths of women of the district.

ROW ABOUT A SHIRTWAIST

Dalton was living with May Mansell. She was a "booster," which means she stole from department stores. She pilfered a shirtwaist one day and turned it over to Dalton. He sold it to Dr. Post, telling Post it was a bargain at $1.50 and would fit Post's girl. The shirtwaist was not a fit and Post gave it to another woman. Dalton demanded his money. Post said he didn't have the amount. Dalton drew a revolver and fired.

After the killing Dalton turned to Johnnie Rice as the one to help him to escape. Rice had no cash either. The quickest, easiest and biggest money lay in the drawers of the bankers for the little stuss games on the east side. A taxicab would draw up before a cigar store that was a "blind" for a game in the rear. The newcomers would enter. A pistol would be thrust in the banker's face, the "roll" would be grabbed and away would go the robbers in the taxi.

CHANGED A CLUB'S NAME

Raids were made on three different stuss games. The most startling was on the Gondolier Club, which after the raid became known locally as the Gone Dollar Club. More than $1,000 was taken there.

Rice won't talk. His counsel, Michael Delagi, after listening yesterday to the history of the Dr. Post killing, said to a reporter: "All Chinatown knows that what you say is the truth, but my client has nothing to say."

Rice was taken to the Tombs. He may be indicted as accessory after the fact to the Dr. Post murder because of the aid he gave Dalton to escape. Chinatown hears rumours that Dalton will come back and give himself up to save the man who befriended him. It is whispered that the stuss game owners have engaged extra "lookouts" to protect themselves against raids in the aid of Rice. Knowing men say: "Don't worry. 'Shut Up Mike' is on the job. Leave it to him."

There is nothing like it for colds and throat trouble, and it is so soothing and pleasant to take, my children would drink a whole bottle if they were permitted."

Gave His Blood To Save Girl

Special to The Examiner:

Philadelphia, Sept. 20.—While the body of Miss Mary Gerlach was being buried to-day in Frederick, Md., Charles Jesse Evans, her fiance, who for three hours lay on an operating table in the German Hospital here Tuesday while his blood flowed into the girl's veins in a brave but futile effort to save her life, was at his home at Fern Rock too weak to attend the funeral.

On the Saturday before Labour Day Miss Gerlach went to Atlantic City for a short vacation. The following day she was taken sick and had to return home. Her condition became serious and she was removed to the hospital. On Tuesday morning the physicians found she could not live through the day.

Mr. Evans was telephoned to and asked if he would immediately submit to transfusion. Evans rushed from his house, stopped a passing motor car and told his tale. The owner willingly aided in the effort to save the girl's life and speeded to the hospital.

At 4.30 o'clock he was on an operating table alongside his sweetheart, who was in a semi-conscious condition. For three hours the blood flowed from him into the girl and as the healthy fluid entered her veins she seemed to rally.

At 7.30 o'clock the operation was ended, and Mr. Evans by that time was almost as weak as the girl. It was believed that he had saved Miss Gerlach's life, but at midnight she suddenly became worse and died.

Mr. Evans did not know of the failure of his effort until morning, and then the shock prostrated him.

SELLING TO THE HOME CREAMERY

From Farm and Dairy.

A. H. Halls, Garretson, S. Dakota.

In selling to the home creamery, the patrons receive many small courtesies. They get their different cows tested, so that they can sell their poor ones and keep only their best. There are also many other small favors they can get in selling to the home creamery which cannot be got by selling to an outsider. The patrons take great interest in seeing their own creamery grow by selling their cream there.

Some creamery men might say, "Those things are not the work of a buttermaker," but I have learned that if we want to keep our local creameries running amidst the strong, shrewd competition of outsiders, we must have our patrons with us. I try to do the work in the creamery well, but I would not lose the opportunity of explaining a point to a patron in order to attend to some routine work in the creamery. It is much easier to hire someone to do the bulk of the creamery work, than it is to hire a man to attend to the field work. The creamery work and field work are both important and interdependent, but the patronage must be retained, otherwise the creamery cannot prosper.

The patrons of the Garretson creamery are loyal to their local institution, and so long as they remain so the local creamery will prosper. This may be said of every other creamery. I say, therefore, that to keep the local patronage is a most important work, if not the most important work, of a buttermaker in a local creamery.

ABOUT CREAM

From Farm and Dairy.

Poor and off-flavored cream more often results from improper care than from any other cause. The most common fermentation in milk and cream is due to the development of lactic acid bacteria, or souring, which in the case of cream for butter-making is not very objectionable, if it is not carried too far. Since it is almost impossible to obtain milk or cream free from dirt, which carries undesirable bacteria (especially as produced under conditions prevailing on most farms), a special effort must be made to check the development of these bacteria, or a poor, off-flavored grade of cream will be the result. This is most economically done by means of cold well water, which usually must be pumped in abundance for the stock.

COOLING AND TREATMENT OF CREAM

When one is through separating, the vessel containing the cream should be placed at once in cold water. Common milk scatters or shot-gun cans, ordinary milk cans or any other well tinned metal vessel, free from rust, are better containers for cooling cream than crocks or jars because metal vessels are betters conductors of heat and cold. Consequently the cream can be cooled more quickly in them. It is desirable to stir the cream once or twice while cooling, because stirring hastens the cooling, increases the keeping qualities, and results in a smoother and more uniform cream.

Never allow the cream to run directly from the separator into the can containing a previous skimming, nor permit it to stand beside the separator so long as half an hour before cooling; either is sure to result in poor quality. If the cream is left at animal temperature, especially on warm and sultry days, there may develop in an hour millions of bacteria, which will cause a rapid deterioration in quality of the cream. Therefore, cool at once. Each separating should be cooled thoroughly before being mixed with previous skimmings, and whenever two or more batches of cream are poured together, the whole lot should be thoroughly stirred. All cream should be stirred often and thoroughly to prevent its becoming curdy because an accurate sample cannot be taken from lumpy cream.

THE CELLAR

Unless well lighted and well ventilated, the cellar should never be used as a place in which to keep cream. Of necessity, vegetables, fruits, meats and strong odored household provisions must be kept in the cellar, and from these the cream very readily absorbs odors. Setting warm cream in the cellar does not cool it nearly as quickly nor to as low a temperature as when placed in cold water, and consequently the cream does not keep so well. Many cellars have a dirt or clay floor, and many, particularly in older houses, are very poorly ventilated. Keeping the cream in such places gives it a very objectionable musty flavor that cannot be eliminated in churning. Hence "Do not keep the cream in the cellar."

PACKING APPLES

From Farm and Dairy.

As to preparing a barrel for packing apples, an expert packer has handed Farm and Dairy the following instructions: Drive all quarter hoops down firmly and nail with three nails in each upper quarter hoop. Then drive the hoops well on to that end of the barrel having the poorest head, and nail with four nails. Then headline by using four nails in each headliner. Exercise care in headlining, and drive the nails in on the slant. If a nail shows through to the outside of the barrel don't clinch, but take out and drive right so it does not show through. Now, take out the other end of the barrel and clinch the quarter hoop nails. Use one and one-half inch wire nails. Next stencil the barrel. Now you are ready for packing.

If using a paper head, place this in the end of the barrel. With great care pick and stem the facers; select not the largest but the average size of grade you are packing. See that every apple is a perfect one with the very best color you have to choose from. It is well to have no difference in size in the facers; but if there should be, place the smaller apples in the outside row and the larger ones in the centre. A good many inexperienced packers do the opposite. Always place the stems down, with the exception of long shapely varieties, as Gilliflower and Bellflower, in which case lay the red cheeks down.

The sorting must be done carefully. Reject all apples with worms, scabs, bruises, and unshapely apples for both No. 1's and No. 2's. Now, place the barrel on a plank and after each basket of apples is emptied, give the barrel several quick, short shakes. We will have to be governed according to the size of the apples we are packing as how full to fill the barrel before using the leveller. At all times level the contents, so that room will be left to take one row, blossom end up, the apples then being about one-half inch above the staves. Care must be exercised in racking the apples down. Nail and headline the barrel and it is ready for shipment.

GOOD RECIPES

From Farm and Dairy.

CREAM BISCUITS

Three heaping tablespoons of sour cream; put in a bowl or vessel containing a quart and fill two-thirds full of sweet milk, two teaspoons cream tartar, one teaspoon of soda, a little salt; pour the cream in the flour mix soft and bake in a quick oven.

LUNCHEON CAKE

One-half pound butter, one pound flour, one-half ounce caraway seeds, one-fourth pound currants, six ounces moist sugar, one ounce candied peel, three eggs, one-half pint milk, one small teaspoonful of carbonate of soda; bake in a moderate oven from one to one and one-half hours. Proved to be very good.

CRAB APPLE JELLY AND JAM

Remove stem and blossoms from the apples; let them scald, and pour off the first water; next put them in plenty of water and let them cook slowly; as they begin to soften dip off the juice for jelly, straining it through flannel. One pound of juice to a pound of sugar for jelly. Next add more water; let apples stew very soft; strain through a sieve, which takes out cores and seeds; to this pulp add brown sugar, pound for pound; it needs careful cooking and stirring.

TO PRESERVE CITRON

Pare the citrons and cut them into slices about an inch and a half thick, then into strips the same thickness, leaving them the full length of the fruit; take out all the seeds with a small knife, then weigh, and to each pound of citron put a pound of white sugar, make a syrup; to ten pounds put a pint of water, and simmer gently for twenty minutes; then put in the citron and boil for one hour, or until tender; before taking off the fire put in two lemons, sliced thin, seeds taken out and two ounces of root ginger; do not let them boil long after the lemon and ginger are put in; do not stir them while boiling. The above is very fine if carefully attended to.

DAIRYING IN SASKATCHEWAN

From Farm and Dairy.

W. A. Wilson, Supt. of Dairying for Sask.

Natural conditions for dairying in Saskatchewan during the present season have been all that could be desired. The spring months were warm and the growth of grass in consequence rapid and luxuriant. Good pasturage was provided somewhat earlier than usual, precipitation in May providing sufficient moisture to obtain those conditions. June rains came at regular intervals, and we experienced very little extremely hot weather. July was cool, and with a surplus of moisture, splendid pasture conditions were maintained. August has also remained ideal. The season as a whole has been considerably cooler than usual, and there has been a noticeable absence of troublesome flies, which usually annoy the stock and affect the milk production.

Markets on the whole have been fairly good, although prices have ranged from one to two cents a pound of butter lower than in 1910. The buyers have been exceedingly careful in placing their orders, and their selection of goods with respect to quality was very close. For the welfare of the industry, however, this condition is commendable, as it brings the producers to a realization of the fact that if they are to meet competition year after year and obtain the best price for their product, greater precautions must be taken in handling the raw material in order to meet the trade demands. For ourselves orders have been frequent and heavy, and at the time of writing all butter up to the end of August has been placed.

The International Milk Dealers' Association will meet in Milwaukee during the International Dairy Show in October. The Association is made up of the leading milk dealers of the country. In its membership are included such men as Horton of New York; Hood, of Boston; Bingham of Ottawa; Potter of Toronto; Wills of Philadelphia; Peck, of Chicago; Le Feber of Milwaukee, and others.

UNANIMOUSLY ADOPTED

IRELAND ANXIOUS

Railway Strikes on a More Serious Aspect—Manager of Great Southern Wants More Troops

GENERAL WALKOUT

Dublin, Sept. 21.—Manager Dent of the Great Southern Railway, in an interview, complains that the Dublin Castle authorities have undertaken only to protect the property and traffic of the company, but have said nothing about safeguarding the lives of the men who are willing to work.

Without more definite assurances for the men, he says, the company would be afraid to undertake the risk of running the trains. He declares that it is imperative to have more military protection.

The strike, by which the south and west of the island are already practically isolated, last night took on a new aspect, which is arousing the most serious apprehension.

The members of the Executive Committee of the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants, which declared the recent strike on the English roads, have gone to Dublin, and Tuesday night issued a threat of a national Irish strike.

Seeing that the genesis of the Irish railway strike was the fact that two porter refused to handle timber consigned to a firm whose men were "out," and that in practically all respects the present developments are same as known as a "sympathetic strike," the public is confronted with the threat of a national railway strike for which no direct grievance is put forward by the railway employes. The managers of the Irish railways refuse to have any dealings with the executive committee of the union. The principal railways refuse absolutely to comply with the demand of the men that they should pick and choose among their customers. They say they are common carriers and are bound by law to forward all goods properly consigned to them; they have no business with quarrels between third parties.

RIVAL PROCESSIONS.

Conservatives and Liberals Rally In Halifax.

Halifax, Sept. 21.—The election campaign in Halifax closed last night with two great rival processions. R. L. Borden and A. B. Crosby, the Conservative candidates, were in a big open team and headed by brass bands and torch-bearers, proceeded through the city, spending two hours en route and addressing several meetings. Messrs. MacLean and Blackadar for the Liberals spoke in a hall, and also at street corners. They also had a big torchlight procession.

The Conservatives say they are confident of being able to divide the province equally, or do even better, and the Liberals claim that the followers of R. L. Borden from this province will be less than in the last Parliament, in which they numbered six.

The Conservatives in P.E.I. talk of capturing Queen's County from the Liberals, in addition to holding Queen's, which they had in the last House. The Liberals, on the other hand, say there will be no relative change.

Bound to Stop the Fight.

New York, Sept. 21.—A London cable says:

Lord Mayor Strong yesterday threw all his influence against the holding of the proposed prize fight between Jack Johnson and Bombadier Wells on October 12. He announced he would make a request to Home Secretary Churchill to stop the contest. If that fails, declares the Lord Mayor, other steps will be taken. The Lord Mayor received a letter from the Bishop of London, which contained the following message: "I will heartily support any protest made against the proposed prize fight."

No Foundation For Charges.

Chatham, Ont., Sept. 21.—The cases against John Robinson and Thomas Wilson, charged with perjury at the election registration, were adjourned to the Police Court yesterday morning. The evidence brought out showed that there was little ground for the charges.

Contemplate!

Do not weigh anything in a second, but take a second thought when a druggist or dealer asks you to accept a substitute for DR. FOWLER'S Extract of Wild Strawberry.

This preparation has been on the market for over 65 years, and so far as we know has never yet failed to either relieve or cure the worst case of DIARRHOEA, DYSENTERY, COLIC, CRAMPS OR PAINS IN THE STOMACH, CHOLERA MORBUS, CHOLERA INFANTUM, SUMMER COMPLAINT, OR ANY LOOSENESS OF THE BOWELS.

Mrs. A. J. McLellan, London, Ont., writes:—"It is with much pleasure I write to say that I have used Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry with great success. Last summer my little boy, 15 months old, was attacked two or three times with Diarrhoea, but each time, after one day's dose, he was all right again. My husband was also taken bad one night. The next day three doses cured him. I always insist on Dr. Fowler's being given me."

If you want to be on the safe side, ask for Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and insist on getting what you ask for.

The original is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont. See that our name is on the wrapper. Price 35 cents.

MORAL REFORM GATHERING

Councillors of Methodist Board Discuss Many Subjects—Want Red Light Districts Removed

OTHER CHANGES

Toronto, Sept. 21.—The General Board of Temperance and Moral Reform of the Methodist Church in session yesterday, considered a great many phases of the social reform movement throughout Canada. Delegates were present from all the provinces and Newfoundland.

The board appealed to the clergy to denounce from the pulpit the various forms of gambling. The inefficiency of the Miller bill was noted. Although the bill should have had an opposite effect, the number of race tracks had greatly increased. The pari-mutuel system, it was asserted, had increased betting. The board also observed that the law regarding the dissemination of gambling information was apparently not being enforced to any great extent.

The conditions in Canada regarding the temperance and local option were surveyed and a campaign for improvements resolved on. In Ontario the convention commended the Government for their action and success in the enforcement of the license laws. The extension of the provincial police approved, the board believing that the laws were enforced better from headquarters than locally, where prejudices might enter in action.

The board sweepingly recommended that the license law should be amended so that liquor should not be sold for consumption off the premises where bought, except for medicinal purposes. Another resolution was to the effect that cities of over 25,000 should be empowered to make bylaws regarding the shortening of the hours of selling. The board strongly urged that all the temperance forces of the country unite to secure the complete enforcement of the provincial liquor laws.

The innumerable phases of the great social evil confronting the reformers were discussed at length, and several important changes in the laws were recommended. The board will seek to have the law so amended that all classes of employers may be punished equally if guilty of seducing a girl under 21 years of age. The board will endeavor to have the age of consent raised from 14 to 16 years.

The reports of investigations in several large cities of the States and in Montreal and Winnipeg regarding segregation of houses of ill-fame were read, and the pronouncement after discussion was against segregation. The only remedy that the board could find was a full and constant enforcement of the present laws relating to this evil.

A new executive was appointed, consisting of Drs. Carman, Chown, Moore, Rose, Hazlewood, Williamson, J. W. Aiken, John Garbudd, S. W. Foller, Prof. Bland, Controller Spence, Ald. McCarthy, Dr. Watson, Alex. Mills, Samuel Carter, James J. Mason and John J. Mason.

An Important Step.

London, Sept. 21.—Sydney C. Buxton, president of the Board of Trade, has taken an important step in an effort to assure permanent peace in the cotton trade, Great Britain's greatest industry. He has invited leading representatives of the employers and employes to form a permanent industrial board on lines advocated by Sir Charles Wright Macara, chairman of the committee of the International Federation of Master Cotton Spinners and Manufacturers' Associations, during the recent upheavals.

According to the plan the board would be composed of ten leading employers and ten prominent labor representatives with the newly knighted Sir George Ranken Askwith, chairman of the commercial, labor and statistical departments of the Board of Trade, as chairman. These men would form a panel from which an equal number from both sides could be selected to deal with any disputes arising before work was actually stopped.

C.N.R. Lake Boats.

Montreal, Sept. 21.—It was stated yesterday by Guy Toombs, general passenger agent of the Canadian Northern Steamship & Railway Co., that by the spring of 1913 the Canadian Northern would be operating its own line of passenger, freight and ore steamers from Duluth or Port Arthur to a port on the Georgian Bay Canal route not yet decided upon.

Found Dead in Ditch.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Sept. 21.—Patrick Farmer, a former employe of the Ontario Power Co., was found in a ditch on Fourth street yesterday morning, with a broken neck.

It is not known how he came to be there, but it is thought that he fell into the ditch while returning home intoxicated. He has a sister in Prince Edward Island.

Hector Beeton Still Missing.

Toronto, Sept. 21.—Hector Beeton, who disappeared from his home at 156 Spadina avenue, a week ago last Tuesday, has not yet been found, and any information will be gladly received by his parents.

When the lad left home he wore dark clothes and a soft cap. He is about 4 feet 2 inches in height and a bright lad.

Labor Leader Sentenced.

Sydney, N.S.W., Sept. 21.—One hundred and eight persons, who took part in the riots here in August, were fined from $5 to $20 each. The secretary of the Federated Iron Workers was sentenced to two months at hard labor for aiding the disturbance.

Harvester Trust May Re-adjust.

Washington, D.C., Sept. 21.—That the Government is ready to permit the International Harvester Co. voluntarily to re-adjust its organization to conform to recent interpretations of the Sherman law became known here yesterday.

SIR ROBERT HART DEAD

Famous Diplomat Passes Away in England After a Busy Career —Did Much for China

A POTENT LINK

London, Sept. 21.—Sir Robert Hart, director-general of customs in China from 1991 to 1908, and inspector-general since 1863, died yesterday. Sir Robert had been living in England since his retirement from the Chinese service on account of ill-health.

Sir Robert Hart, who was an Irishman by birth, had been in the Chinese maritime customs service since 1859. He was born in 1835.

The office of director-general of Chinese customs—inland as well as maritime—was bestowed upon him, together with other high honors exceptional in the case of a foreigner, as a reward for services rendered the Chinese Government in connection with the international settlement of the Boxer troubles.

Sir Robert Hart was the most potent link between China and the wester nworld. He created its customs service; he gave China a comprehensive tariff, and was behind practically every commercial treaty that China made prior to 1908, when he returned to England on account of ill-health. Soon after his return, he retired from the Chinese service.

He was secretary to the commission of the allies, which met in Canton in 1858. He entered the Chinese customs service as deputy commissioner next year. After being advanced to the post of inspector-general of customs in 1863, he reorganized the service on modern lines. Chinese and Malay pirates at the time made Chinese waters unsafe to commerce.

Hart equipped a large fleet of steamers to hunt the pirates down. He established lighthouses, and later, a postal services. In recognition of his innumerable services, he received the greatest honor in the gift of the Chinese Government.

Charged With Murder.

Coatsville, Pa., Sept. 21.—The most important development in the recent negro lynching case came yesterday, when warrants charging two members of the mob with murder and two policemen with involuntary manslaughter were issued by Judge Butler upon the recommendation of the special grand jury. The jurors were discharged. They had been in session for three weeks, and it had been charged that they were reluctant to take action.

The men indicted are: Richard S. Tucker, insurance agent, who was the first man to enter the hospital on Sunday night, August 13, when Zack Walker was dragged by a mob from his bed and burned to death; Walter Mark Wood, milkhand, who, it is claimed, took only an obscure part in the lynching; Policeman Stanley E. Howe, who was on guard at the hospital, and did not exert himself to prevent the crime; and Chief of Police C. B. Umstead, who, it is claimed, failed to do his duty to prevent the lynching.

Many Arrests in Spain.

Madrid, Sept. 21.—Soldiers are doing police duty to-day. Arrests were made during Tuesday night in several provincial cities. At Barcelona, 156 persons were apprehended, and many were taken into custody at Bilbao, Seville, Valencia, and Saragossa. Despatches from these places say they are quiet to-day.

There have been some disorders in small industrial centres. The revolutionaries apparently are still in possession of Jativa, toward which troops are marching from Valencia. At Jativa and Carcagente, rioters set fire to the public buildings and tore up the railway tracks. There has been trouble in Amurrio.

At Gijon the workingmen's committee outwitted the military, and meeting secretly Tuesday night, planned a general strike. They sent agents to all workshops and factories early in the morning and the strike has become general. The garrison here is small.

London's Water Supply.

London, Ont., Sept. 21.—London's water supply has been greatly overestimated for years. Recent meterings of the Springbank supply show that instead of the five and six millions a day that were supposed to be pumped from the springs, little more than three million gallons has been the volume. The auxiliary system of the Horton street wells reach a daily capacity of between four and six millions.

Worked Worthless Check.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 21.—Fred. Hansen was sentenced to six months in the Central Prison yesterday by Magistrate Fraser for attempting to cash a worthless check for $56 at the Imperial Bank here.

The Right Way To Do It.

Montreal, Sept. 21.—A telegram was sent out yesterday to all officers of the C.P.R. and signed by the president, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, to the effect that it is the desire of the company that every employe who can possibly be spared from his duties at any time during the day should be given opportunity to vote, and that no questions be asked as to his politics.

U. S. Customs Lost $500,000.

New York, Sept. 21.—Sigmund L. Fleischer, a member of the dry goods importing firm of Nadav and Fleischer, on Fifth avenue, was arrested by a United States marshal yesterday on charges of being concerned in a conspiracy to defraud the Government out of customs duties amounting to $500,000.

Couldn't Get Away.

Queenstown, Sept. 21.—The White Star liner Cymric sailed from Queenstown yesterday, leaving behind 150 passengers, who, owing to the strike on the Irish railways, were unable to reach port in time to catch the vessel.

Woman Drinks Carbolic Acid.

Toronto, Sept. 21.—"You told me to take it and finish myself, so I have done so.—Louise."

Writing this note Mrs. Louise Morgan, who roomed at 301 Parliament street, took carbolic acid yesterday afternoon and died a short time later. Dr. Costsworth was called in when the body was found, but life was extinct.

Inquest Was Adjourned.

Toronto, Sept. 21.—After viewing the body last night at the city morgue, Dr. J. J. Thompson's jury on the inquest of Walter A. Woodhouse, an Englishman found dead on Sunday in the waters of the bay, adjourned until Friday evening at 8.15, for further evidence and the report of the autopsy.

Body Carried 18 Miles.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Sept. 21.—Herman Regenhardt, after being struck and killed by a New York Central train, was carried a distance of 18 miles before his body was discovered on the fender of the engine. He had been in this country only a year and was an expert linguist.

Foreigners Not In Danger.

Chunging, Sept. 21.—Refugees arriving here from the disturbed districts of Szechuen, report that they received fairly good treatment whilt traveling, which appeared to indicate that the rebellious movement was organized. Foreigners did not appear to be in danger.

Practically Conceded Pennant

CHICAGO, SEPT. 20. — Manager Chance of the Cubs to-day practically conceded the 1911 pennant to the Giants, by settling himself to the task of reorganizing his old machine for 1912. Chance needs first and third basemen, another good outfielder, another catcher and a new pitching staff.

Chance can never play first base again himself and Vic Saier "won't do." With the exception of Brown, the Cubs haven't a reliable twirler, and one pitcher cannot win a pennant.

So, while the Giants and Athletics are dividing the world's championmoney, Chance is going to try to figure out how he can make a real old-time machine out of the Cubs again.

NOTES OF THE DIAMOND

Joe McGinnity says Jennings has a star in Billy Louden, the utility youngster, secured by the Tigers. Louden is a .325 hitter.

According to Detroit scribes, only eight Tigers are sure of their jobs for next season, the same being Cobb, Crawford, Bush, Bianage, Summers, Donovan and Gainer.

This has been a great seson for Jimmy Sheckard. Schulte was asked recently what was the greatest play he had ever seen and replied: 'Check pulls so many of them it would be hard to say which was the greatest.'

The season of 1911 has been a bad one for accidents, especially in the maiming of star backstops. The list of receivers crippled in this season's strenuous campaign includes almost every catcher of ability in the two leagues. Among the backstops whose loss was felt the most are Roger Bresnahan, Charlie Dooin, Ed. Sweeney, Bill Carrigan, Gabby Street, Bill Sullivan, Jimmy Stephens, Eddie Ainsmith, George Gibson, Oscar Stanage, Jack Lapp and Larry McLean.

Joe McGinnity's right wrist, which was broken early in the spring, when he was cranking his automobile, has not bene right since, and explains largely the Iron Man's poor success this season. Whenever Joe tries to curve a ball he feels sharp pains in his arm. As soon as the season is over Joe will have the X-rays applied, as he does not think his wrist healed propetly. However, in spite of this handicap, he has turned in several brilliant victories.

Last year, the total receipts of the world's series was $174,480. If the Giants win the National League race they will go to $200,000 or more, this year.

Manager Hughie Jennings has made an announcement which practically means that he has given up the battle for the pennant in the American League. He has said that the Tigers must have an entire new pitching staff, and after a conference with President Navin telegrams were sent to several clubs from which Detroit has recently bought prize pitchers for delivery at the end of the season to send them on at once for immediate work.

"When I was with the Pittsburgh Club," said Capt. Davis, "we went to Louisville to play a morning's game. We got paid for precisely 87 persons. You see it was Derby Day, the big day of the annual race meet there, and every colonel was out at the track. There was no interest in the club, at that, as they always finished last. When our secretary figured up he got his split of eighty-seven admissions, which didn't pay for the 'bus that dragged us ot the grounds.

Charles Dooin has picked an all-star team which he believes would beat the recently selected by Hughey Jennings. Dooin's club follows: Pitchers—Brown, Ford, Marquard, Moore Coombs; catchers, Gibson, Thomas, Archer; infielders, Daubert, 1b.; Lajoie, 2b.; Baker, 3b.; Tinker, s.s.; Doolan, utility; outfielders, Schulte, Murphy, Clarke, Jackson, utility.

Ping Bodie of the White Sox hits because he's a hitter and not because he outguesses pitchers. Bodie made a single against Eddie Plank in the recent White Sox-Athletic series, but when he reached first Stuffy McInnis said: "What did you hit, Ping?" "A spitball," said the fence buster. "Ed. Plank never threw a spitter in his life," said McInnis. "Well, then, it was a straight one," said Ping.

Nobody seems to want any baseball war. It has been proved that war is h—," and also that baseball is sometimes.

Socks Seybold holds the American League record for home runs. He established it in 1902. The former fielder of the Athletics in that year made sixteen.

Manager Fred Clarke of the Pirates thinks luck and physical condition of the players will be the decisive factor in this hot National League race. He says hard playing is liable to make players on one of the three leading teams go stale and that will put the team out of the running. Staleness generally comes after a team has played at top speed for a week or more," says Clarke. "The Cubs went stale last season and that's why they looked dead on their feet in the world's series. The Giants appear to be fresher right now than the Cubs. The pitchers on the three teams are in great shape."

Jake Stahl, famous baseball player, who lives in Chicago, will officiate in several of the biggest gridiron contests in the West this fall. Jake used to be a star at the pigskin game with the University of Illinois.

Six Murdered In Colorado.

Colorado Springs, Sept. 21.—With their heads battered and cut open six persons were found murdered here yesterday in adjoining houses. The dead: Mrs. Alice May Burnham, her six-year-old daughter and three-year-old son; Henry Wayne, Blanche Wayne; the one-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne.

A. J. Burnham, who is a cook at a sanitarium, was immediately sought by the police, although there was nothing to connect him with the crime. He was found at the sanitarium and brought to the city. He stoutly denies any knowledge of the killings.

It is rumored that an arrest has been made in the Burnham murder case and that the man in custody has confessed his guilt. However, the sheriff's office refuses either to affirm or deny the report or give out the name of the man.

MARKET REPORTS.

Liverpool Wheat Futures Close Lower, Chicago Higher—Live Stock —Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Doubt about the success of reciprocity rallied the wheat market to-day after a decline to free movement of the grain from the harvest fields of Germany and France. Closing figures were steady at a shade lower to 1-8c higher than last night. Latest trading left corn 1-8c off to 1-4c up, oats 1-16c to 1-4c increased in cost, and hog products varying from unaltered to an advance of a nickel.

The Liverpool market closed to-day ¼d lower than yesterday on wheat and ⅛d lower on corn. Berlin closed ⅝c to 1⅝c higher on wheat. Antwerp unchanged.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Sept. 20.—There continues to be a good inquiry from European sources for Manitoba spring wheat and in some cases the prices bid were 4½d higher, but even at this advance no business could be done. There was some demand for American corn and sales of car lots of No. 2 yellow were made at 74c per bushel, ex-store. The tone of the market for oats was stronger and prices advanced ½c per bushel with a good local and outside demand. A firm feeling prevailed in the flour market to-day under a good steady demand for local account. Bran and shorts are in good demand and scarce. A good business is passing in cheese at firm prices and butter is quiet. The demand for provisions is fairly good.

Oats—Canadian western, No. 2, 46c; extra No. 1 feed, 46½c; No. 3 C.W., 45c; No. 2 local white, 46c; No. 3 local white, 45½c; No. 4 local white, 45c.

Eggs—Firm, unchanged; receipts, 15,709.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Sept. 20.—At the Canadian Pacific Live Stock Market this morning the offerings were 600 cattle, 1300 sheep and lambs, 1300 hogs and 300 calves.

A weaker feeling developed in the market for cattle and prices declined 25c to 35c per cwt., owing to the fact that the demand was very limited, as the butchers' requirements were small and they were not disposed to operate for future wants. It was reported that fully 1000 head more Canadian northwest ranch cattle were near at hand for the market on Monday, and this, coupled with the very slow demand from packers, tended to depress the market, and the trade on the whole was dull, even at the above reduction in prices.

Choice Ontario steers sold at $5.75 to $5.85; good, at $5.50 to $5.65; fairly good, at $5.25 to $5.40; fair, at $4.75 to $5; and common, at $4.25 to $4.50; choice northwest steers sold at $5.50 to $5.65, and mixed carloads, at $5.40 per cwt. A few heavy bulls brought $5.25 to $5; light, at $3.50 to $3; choice cows, at $4.60 to $4.75; good, at $4.25 to $4.50, and the lower grades at $3.25 to $4 per cwt.

The trade in sheep and lambs was slow and the market was quiet with no change in prices to note. Lambs sold at $5.50 to $5.75, and sheep, at $3.50 to $3.75 per cwt.

A fairly good trade was done in hogs and prices were steady at the recent decline with sales of selected lots at $7 to $7.25, and heavy fats, at $6 to $6.25 per cwt., off cars. Calves sold at from $8 to $10 each, as to size and quality.

At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, the offerings of live stock were 250 cattle, 200 sheep and lambs, 1200 hogs and 150 calves. The demand for hogs was good and the tone of the market was steady at the recent decline in prices, with sales of selected lots at $7 to $7.25 per cwt., weighed off the cars.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Sept. 20.—Cattle—Receipts, 225 head. Market steady to 10c lower. Prime steers, $7.50 to $7.60; butcher grades, $6.90 to $7.

Calves—Receipts, 75 head. Market active and 25c higher. Cull to choice, $5 to $10.75.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 1600 head. Market, active and 25c stronger. Choice lambs, $6.75 to $6.90; cull to fair, $4.75 to $6.50; yearlings, $5.50 to $5; sheep, $2 to $4.60.

Hogs—Receipts, 1200 head. Market active and 10c higher. Yorkers, $7.50 to $7.60; stags, $5.50 to $6; pigs, $6.25 to $7; mixed, $7.50 to $7.60; heavy, $7.60 to $7.80; roughs, $6 to $6.25.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Beeves—Receipts, 3461 head; steers slow and 5c to 10c lower; top grades 10c to 15c lower; bulls and fat cows 10c to 15c lower; thin cows steady; steers, $4.60 to $7.60; bulls, $3 to $4.85; cows, $1.50 to $4.85.

Calves—Receipts, 1575 head; prime and choice veals steady; veals, $7 to $8.50; culls, $5 to $6.50; western and southern calves, $4 to $7; grassers and buttermilks, $3.50 to $4.50; culls to $3.50.

OBITUARY

JAMES HEFERNAN.

The death occurred on Friday last at Williston, North Dakota, of James Hefernan, aged fifty-nine years.

The deceased was a formerly well known resident of Peterborough, but has lived in Williston for some fifteen years.

He is survived by one son, Percy, of Asphodel.

The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon.

MRS. THOMAS HUSTON.

A highly respected resident of Otonabee passed away to-day in the person of the late Mrs. Thomas Huston. Deceased, who was in her 58th year, has been a life long resident of Otonabee. She was of a kind and charitable disposition and her demise will be regretted generally. Four children survive, three sons and one daughter. They are, namely, B. T. Huston, Toronto, William, Napanee, and Alexander at home, and Mrs. Pammitt, of Otonabee.

Funeral will take place on Saturday at 2.30 from the deceased's late residence and proceed to Little Lake cemetery. Rev. Mr. Rollins will officiate.

HER LONG LOST BOY?

Michigan Mother Is Not Sure of His Identity.

Niles, Mich., Sept. 21.—Stepping back from the proffered embrace of the man who claims to be her son, Mrs. Estella Kimmel yesterday faced him for the first time since a dramatic meeting in the prison at Auburn, N.Y., four years ago.

"Why, mother, don't you know me?" exclaimed he who claims to be George Alfred Kimmel, as the woman entered the home of a cousin where the man of mystery has been acknowledged as a relative. With the words, he stepped forward with arms extended, but the woman recoiled and responded sharply: "I'm not so sure about that."

Then she subjected "Kimmel" to a cross-examination that went into details of her son's early life and school days in Niles. She asked him also why, if he was her son, he had not written to her during the many years he was away from his birthplace.

Mrs. Kimmel is not ready to deny flatly that the man is her son, neither will she admit that his claims are just. Former acquaintances of the woman's son are divided as to the identity of the man. Some asserted that he has readily recalled happenings of boyhood, but others declared yesterday that he was an impersonator.

"Kimmel," who says he disappeared thirteen years ago, and now returns after $5,000 life insurance had been paid Mrs. Kimmel for his death, said he had no motive for returning other than love for his mother. "I do not want to cheat any one out of the $25,000 more life insurance which my relatives would receive if they could prove I'm dead," said Kimmel, "but I am not dead."

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

A gun on the French armored cruiser Gloire burst yesterday and 13 members of the crew were injured.

The estimation at Bilbao, Spain, appears to be normal to-day. The rioting has ceased and the restaurants have re-opened.

A break in the machinery of the steamer Uranium delayed her ten hours between Halifax and New York, it was learned on her arrival there.

G. R. R. Cockburn recently president of the Ontario Bank, has been ill since July, after an operation in London, Eng., but is slowly improving.

An appeal for immediate contributions to a fund for the relief of famine sufferers in China was sent out broadcast yesterday by the Red Cross Society.

Two Englishmen, stated to be officers of the British army, are detained at Emden, Prussia, because of the suspicion that they have been guilty of espionage.

Gen. Auffenberg has been appointed to succeed Gen. Franz Schoenaich as Austro-Hungarian Minister of War. Gen. Schoenatch resigned his portfolio on Sept. 6th.

The Capt Town Volkstein, a leading Government paper, condemns colonial acceptance of titles as tending to snobbishness. It compliments Botha for withstanding such a temptation.

A. J. Price, 27 years of age, fell from a scaffold at the Queen's Hotel, and Frank Wojtkiewicz, a Pole 51 years of age, of 595 Bercy street, fell from a scaffold at the Canadian Rubber Work, Montreal. Both have fractured skulls.

Easier to Talk It Over.

Berlin, Sept. 21.—Several bankers stated on the Bourse yesterday that they had been informed by the Foreign Office that the Moroccan question would be settled in two or three days.

The adoption of the verbal method of negotiations, it is thought, will facilitate a settlement, as one of the chief impediments heretofore has been the reluctance of either side to abandon points once formally proposed in writing, lest such action be construed as a sign of weakness.

On the Other Foot.

The jeweler had just paid his doctor's bill.

"Now, Mr. Putnam," said the doctor, "I'm ready to buy a good watch, and I want you to tell me the best one I can get for about $75."

"Doc," responded the jeweler, "it has taken me more than forty years to learn all I know about watches. Do you want me to give you my professional advice for nothing?"—Chicago Tribune.

Facts From France.

The Women Suffrage Association of France, founded less than two years ago, now numbers 4000 members.

The official figures for the census of Paris show a total population of 2,888,000 as compared with 2,722,731 in 1906. This is an increase of 134,-255 in five years.

Paris is now interested in my lady's jewel box with burglar alarm works in it. When the burglar picks up the box or tampers with it the thing gets busy with more noise than an alarm clock.

She—Idiot! How many women do you suppose are going to apply for an old age pension?—Baltimore American.

Why?

"I'd rather have three sober men and a bottle of ink to start a movement," says a Nebraska philosopher, "than a hall full of people and a keg of beer."

"Sound doctrine, but why bother with three sober men?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

SAGE AND SULPHUR

Made Her Look Twenty Years Younger

Read Mrs. Herrick's Sworn Statement

STATE OF NEW YORK } ss: ROCHESTER, N. Y.
COUNTY OF MONROE }

Nancy A. Herrick, being duly sworn, deposes and says: When I was a girl I had a head of heavy, long, dark brown hair which was the envy of my friends and which attracted the attention and remarks of strangers, but as I grew older, it commenced to come out. When my hair was quite thin and gray, I was induced by many good reports I had heard of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur to try a bottle; and you can imagine my satisfaction when I found my hair was fast coming back to its natural condition. I continued to use Sage and Sulphur until my hair was as heavy, dark and smooth as when I was a girl of sixteen. It is now four years since I began using Sage and Sulphur and my hair is in splendid condition.

Night Classes

Many ambitious young people are taking advantage of the splendid opportunity to improve their education by attending the night classes at the Peterboro Business College. These classes are conducted on Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights, and students receive instruction in any one or all the subjects of the comercial or stenographic course. By this method, young people may learn while they earn—and thereby increase their salaries and better their positions without losing time from their work. You may enter any time but it will be to your advantage to enter now. The cost is small, while the benefit to be derived therefrom is incalculable.

The business world is full of opportunities, but the best positions are open only to those who are competent to fill them. By attending Night School at the Peterboro Business College, you may become competent.

GOVERNMENT GOES DOWN ON THE RECIPROCITY ISSUE

Annexation Cry Did the Work---Quebec Stood Loyal to its Beloved Chieftain but Ontario Answered the Loyalty Speeches of the Conservative Orators and Returned 71 Conservatives---Seven Ministers Defeated.

Toronto, Sept. 22.—The Laurier Government has suffered a decisive defeat. Yesterday's polling gives the Conservatives thus far 130 seats, and the Liberals 80, a majority of 43.

The verdict was Ontario's, and the "annexation cry did it. As a whole the remaining provinces voted to sustain the Government, though losses were experienced both in the Maritime Provinces and the West.

Eight of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Ministers are defeated, and but four of them survived the battle of the ballots. Sir Wilfrid Laurier himself was elected in two constituencies, Quebec East and Soulanges, but Hon. G. P. Graham, Hon. Mackenzie King, Hon. William Paterson, Hon. Sydney Fisher, Hon. W. S. Fielding, Hon. Sir Frederick Borden, Hon. William Templeman and Hon. Jacques Bureau were unable to hold up their end. Hon. Dr. Beland, the new Minister, was also defeated in Montagny, although he was elected in Beauce.

RETURNS IN BRIEF.

Where The Conservative Gains Were Piled Up.

Toronto, Sept. 23.—The lists of gains form a fair summary of the polling.

There are four elections still to be held, every one of which will undoubtedly favor the Conservatives; so that Mr. Borden's majority will be in the neighborhood of 50.

In the last House Sir Wilfrid Laurier had a majority of 44, without the Speaker.

The landslide was chiefly confined to Ontario, though every province contributed something towards the final result, except Manitoba and Alberta, which stand exactly as they were.

In Ontario there were 14 Liberals who came through safely, though this figure may be changed. Smyth, in East Algoma, was reported late as having gone down, though possibly the mining district may pull him through. There were 29 Conservative gains in Ontario and 5 Liberal gains.

In Quebec the Bourassa influence went practically for naught. The wonderful hold of Sir Wilfrid Laurier on the affections of the people of his native province was never more manifest than in the hour of the defeat of his Government. Quebec stood by Laurier, and gave an effective answer to those who sought to raise racial and religious cries.

British Columbia still incomplete, the figures not being in from Comox-Atlin, where Clements is expected to beat Duncan Ross.

Conservative Gains.

The seats won over from the Government are:

Ontario (20)—Brockville, South Huron, South Oxford, West Northumberland, Stormont, East Simcoe, North Bruce, South Grey, West Peterboro, Ottawa (2), Kingston, Brantford, Wentworth, Brant, North Perth, South Ontario, North York, North Middlesex.

Quebec (17) Conservatives and Nationalists — Yamaska, Maskinonge, Three Rivers, Berthier, Compton, Hochelaga, Montmorency, Joliette, Chambly-Vercheres, Dorchester, Nicolet, Quebec County, Montmagny, Rimouski, Brome, Labelle, Pontiac.

Saskatchewan (3) — Saskatoon, Prince Albert.

Manitoba (2)—Provencher, Brandon.

British Columbia (1)—Nanaimo.

Nova Scotia (4)—Queen's-Shelburne, King's, Hants, Lunenburg.

New Brunswick (2)—King's and Albert, Charlotte.

Prince Edward Island (2)—Queen's (2).

Liberal Gains.

The Government gains are:

Ontario (2)—Norfolk, East Algoma.

Quebec (4)—West Quebec, Soulanges, Drummond-Arthabaska, Sherbrooke.

Nova Scotia (1)—Halifax (one seat.)

Prince Edward Island (1)—King's.

Manitoba (2)—Lisgar, Dauphin.

Alberta (1)—Medicine Hat.

GERMAN'S DEADLY NEW SIEGE GUN

Fires Huge Bomb Which Does Not Enter Bore---A Destructive Weapon

A destructive new type of siege gun has just yielded satisfactory results to experiments conducted by the German military authorities.

The new gun was constructed by the firm of Krupp. It is an improvement on an idea much used by the Japanese in the siege of Port Arthur, and is designed to aid the advance of infantry storming an entrenched position. At the same time, experiments have been carried out with a new form of hand grenade, which effects much the same purpose.

For long military experts in Germany have been puzzling over the problem of how the long range artillery of an army could render efficient support to its own advancing infantry right up to the trenches of a fortified position. According to present "siege technique" the artillery of an attacking army has to cease bombarding the enemy's entrenchments as soon as the storming infantry gets to close quarters, otherwise the stormers are likely to be shot down by their own guns from the rear.

This cessation of the attackers' bombardment enables the besieged to emerge from their entrenchments and pour a devastating fire at close quarters into the ranks of the attacking force, which is thus deprived of the support of its own artillery just at the moment when it most stands in need of it. The new gun has been devised to overcome this difficulty.

It has an extremely narrow, unrifled bore, and is of very light construction, easily capable of being carried by two men, and is intended to be carried in the front lines of the advancing infantry. Its most remarkable feature is its projectile, which consists of a round bomb of great diameter loaded with a very powerful explosive mixture. The bomb is of far greater diameter than the bore of the gun which throws it, and is provided with a long stick-like tail which is loaded into the barrel of the gun, its lower end, which is enlarged to a wad or piston-like form, resting on the guncharge att he bottom of the barrel. The bomb itself merely lies on the gun mussle, quite outside the bore.

On being fired, the trailing stick-like tail serves to keep the bomb in its proper direction of flight, and only detaches itself and falls to earth after a certain distance has been covered, leaving the bomb to pursue its course alone.

The experiments have shown that a reasonable precision can be obtained with the new missile up to a distance of 300 to 400 yards, and the bomb itself, which, owing to its large capacity, is capable of great destruction, serves not only to prevent the defendends emerging from their cover, but also to make great breaches in their entrenchments or fortifications.

CAULIFLOWER SEED

A Woman, on Puget Sound Island Grows a Huge Quantity of It

Nine-tenths of the world's supply of Cauliflower seed is grown by a woman on a Pudget Sound island. Startling as this statement may seem, the fact remains that it is not due altogether to any supremacy of knowledge or skill that has enabled Mrs. Anne Archibault to achieve what thousands of first rank gardeners hopelessly abandoned. It is due to the peculiar climatic conditions of Whidby island. Outside of Holland no other section affords the climatic requisites for maturing the seed pods of cauliflower plants.

It was an accident, this discovery of Mrs. Archibault, that has made it possible for her to own 1,000 acres of fertile land and to enjoy a business of $100,000 annually. Cauliflower seed will not mature except under certain favorable conditions. One is dampness, humidity, which gives the tiny seeds the plumpness so essential to development. Another is water—not irrigation, rain, nor the wet, boggy mush of a marsh, but a continuous moist soil beneath which a hardpan subsoil acts as a floor to a reservoir. The land of Whidby Island is ideal for this culture.

Cauliflower plants are transplanted like cabbage in rows. The usual cultivation is continued until the seed pods form. Then even the wind should be kept from the fields, for even the flutter of a tiny bird over a cluster of the seed pods will mar the perfect development of the seed. Harvest consists in gathering the dry pods, artificial drying in the sun, a clover-seed separator and a fanning mill.

Mrs. Archibault's first crop amounted to a handful of seed. About this time she read in a bulletin issued by the department of agriculture that the supply of this seed was short and limited to a few hundred pounds. This was five years ago. Like a flash Mrs. Archibault saw her longed-for independence. She grew 400 pounds of seed in 1907. Communication with some well-known seedmen brought orders for her supply at $3 a pound. Every year since she has increased the yield of seed until the present world's supply of 30,000 pounds is practically all grown by her.

Farmers all over Whidby island grow this seed and sell their product to Mrs. Archibault, who markets it through her eastern sales agencies.

The cauliflower fields are beautiful at flowering time, the immaculate snow-white blossoms being alive with white butterflies. The mistress does not interfere with these cabbage moths, believing they aid in scattering the pollen from flower to flower.—Gail M. Fickle.

Eczema Worse in the Spring

The Blood is Watery—Difficult to Get the Healing Process Started.

But Whatever the Cause You Can Relieve the Itching and Heal the Sores With

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Salt rheum and eczema are usually worse at this time of year because of the sudden change of temperature and the watery condition of the blood.

It is not necessary to refer to the suffering caused from the intense itching nor to the tendency of these ailments. The essential point is how to bring about cure, and if you have been reading the cures reported from time to time in this paper you will already know that there is nothing like Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for eczema, salt rheum, psoriasis and every form of itching skin diseases.

This ointment stops the itching almost as soon as applied, lessens the discharge from the vesicles or blisters, cleans out the morbid growth and stimulates the process of healing.

Because other treatments have failed, you may feel discouraged. But in Dr. Chase's Ointment there is a cure for you. We know this because of the reports we have received from so many thousands of cases.

For instance, there is the cure of Mrs. Nettie Massey, of Consecon, Ont., who had psoriasis or chronic eczema so bad that almost the whole body was covered with sores, and three doctors failed to cure her. One doctor said she could never be cured. Write to Mrs. Massey about her case.

SUPERIORITY OF WOMEN

French Minister of Transportation Orders Male Officials to be Gallant

A victory for the female workers of the Prussian State railroad, just confirmed by ministerial decree, will be rather a sore trial to the consistency of advocates of equality of the sexes, for it establishes the "superiority" of women, and thus destroys the principle for which they are striving. Henceforth, according to the decree, railroad officials of the male sex must be courteous to their gentler fellow-functionaries, even should the latter occupy inferior rank in the hierarchy. Until a few years ago all Prussian railroad officials were men, and the organization being vertually on a purely military basis, there was no room for doubt about every subordinate having to salute his superior, who saw to it in his ingrained Prussian way that he obtained his due quota of respect. Of recent years, however, women have won their way into the service as clerks. Ever since there have been constant bickerings between the women and the male officials,—and they were numerous—whose vanity of rank outweighed their gallantry. The men maintained their "rights" as "superiors," and dismissed all claims for courteous treatment towards inferiors, of whatever sex. The women, on the other hand, demanded to be treated as "ladies" first, and as officials afterwards. Eventually the murmurings of both sides reached the ear of the Minister of Transportation, with the result that he has decreed in favor of the lady employes, so that in future even the higher male officials must act as gentlemen.

PRINCES ON BICYCLES

Young Royalty Had a Pleasant Time in the Highlands

The young Princes enjoyed immensely their holiday in the Highlands. Every day they engaged in healthy sports in company with their tutor, Mr. Hansell, who reduced the period allotted to studies to a minimum. Prince Albert and Prince Henry invariably had a spin on their bicycles before breakfast, which was served in the garden cottage adjacent to Balmoral Castle, in which they lodged. Afterwards they usually indulged in shooting, fishing and kindred sports. The Princes are adept cyclists, and indulge freely in trick riding. A favorite practice is to ride backwards until a collision with Princess Mary or some other bystander appears to be inevitable. Princess Mary also cycles a great deal, and drives a pair of greys with her governess and a coachman in attendance. Prince John does not participate in his brothers' sports, but he is frequently a keenly interested spectator.

RECOVERING LOST TREASURE

The Salvage Association is After Gold and Silver Bars

In the North Sea, between the islands of Vlieland and Terschelling, an expedition organised by the National Salvage Association, is now at work with a view to the recovery of treasure which was lost with the English frigate Lutine in 1799 while on passage from London to Hamburg.

The Lutine set sail from the Thames in October of that year with an enormous amount of gold for the English garrison on the Dutch island Texel, and gold and silver bars for Hamburg banking houses, valued in all at $6,625,000, but she was wrecked during a violent storm and only one of the crew was saved. Repeated attempts have been made to find the precious metal, notably in 1809-1 and in 1859-61, and it is estimated that a little over $500,000 worth has already been recovered.

SHOCKED IN TRAIN SEAT

Passenger in an Electric Grip Burned While Crossing a Bridge

One of the most peculiar accidents ever recorded in the history of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company occurred when Abraham Mender, of East New York, a passenger in a train crossing the Williamsburg Bridge, was nearly shocked to death in his seat by electricity.

Mendor and Nelson Kentor boarded the train in Manhattan and took a seat in an open car. Mender's feet were on the iron top of a generator box beneath the seat in front of him. The train had reached the middle of the bridge, when Mender, in illustrating a story he was telling his friend, placed his hands on the metal handle on the back of the seat in front of him. Suddenly his face grew pale, and he ceased talkingg and began to tremble like a man with palsy. He tried to take his hands from the seat, but could not dislodge them. His feet were also fastened to the generator box by the electric current. While making efforts to free himself he screamed in agony.

Kentor jumped from his seat and grabbed Mender about the waist, but the electricity held him, too, and he could not let go. The heavy current passing through Kentor made him dance involuntarily and pound the floor with his feet. Rushing to the aid of the two men, George Williams, conductor of the train, seized Kentor, and was also held in the electrical grip. Several passengers finally lined up as if in a tug-of-war, and they, too, were held fast. Then the train stopped and the policemen went about and pulled all the men free from their position, although they, too, felt the force of the shock.

Mender, who was barely conscious, was immediately taken to the Eastern District Hospital. His feet were found to be badly burned. Kentor was also in bad shape, but after being treated by Dr. Schwartz was able to go home. The doctors said that Mender would have died in his seat had he been there a few seconds longer.

A PAYING IDEA

A Boy Who Developed a Business From Growing Sweet Peas

This is the story of a boy with a $2,000 idea—and perhaps more. He was seventeen and just out of the Manual Training High School in Kansas City when the great thought came to him.

"I shall grow sweet peas for the city florists," he told his astonished parents, "there's money in that business."

Happily for Bryson's idea his father owned several acres of unused land ten miles from the city and in close touch with rapid transportation. Bryson borrowed about 100 feet of it, got enough money from the bank—backed by his father—to build the necessary greenhouse so that winter should not interfere with his work, and buy seed and tools. This seed he bought from the best florists in California. He did most of the work himself because, you see, he had learned carpentry in the manual training school; and he studied at night every catalogue and all the botanical books he could get. It took some nerve at this period to go ahead because the boy's school friends and a few of the neighbors laughed at his project. When they learned that he had cleared $100 and had paid back some of his borrowed capital they quit laughing. One hundred dollars was a mighty pile in Bryson's opinion that fall. He had learned something valuable about the dignity of labor and also he had a few pertinent ideas about money. He learned that with a good reputation one had good credit and with credit he could do many things. Therefore he rented more land from his father, signed up a few more customers, and went to work more eagerly than ever. At the end of the year—the second—he had paid his last note and had $400 to his own account. By this time he had two people working for him. Incidentally, Bryson's father was willing by this time to back him in anything. The boy cleared $800 the third year.

This boy, now twenty-one, has not given all his time to sweet peas, but these were his principal product. He grew violets and lilies-of-the-valley also, but sweet peas were by far the most successful flowers on the little place. He sold and still sells his products almost exclusively to city dealers in wholesale lots. He received prices ranging from $25 a thousand at Christmas to $5 a thousand for his sweet peas in the summer midseason. Early in the spring, before the snows had gone, he got $7.50 to $10 a thousand and sold from five to ten thousand a day. The sweet peas were arranged twenty-five to the bunch. Bryson has from ten to fifteen girls for the picking and employs six or seven laborers and gardeners for the setting out and care of beds.—Charles Dillon.

GROWING TOBACCO

Twenty Acres Set Out in Plant at Kelowna this Year

Louis Holman, of Kelowna, has planted 20 acres in tobacco this year. A much larger area would have been placed under cultivation had Mr. Holman been able to secure experienced help.

In discussing the future of the tobacco industry in the Okanagan Mr. Holman observed that for the success of the industry it was essential that one or more experienced men should take up tobacco-growing in each of the different districts of the interior where it might profitably be gone in for. These would be, as it were, guide-posts for other ranchers who went in for the project, and with this assistance there should be no failures in crops even at the commencement, with the exception of those caused very occasionally in this province by exceptionally cold winters. It took about three years, Mr. Holman stated, for a man starting in "green" to properly master planting, irrigating and harvesting without any aid from experienced planters. As far as ultimate success was concerned he was certain of it.

Bees Cause Panic at Station

Through accidentally lifting off the top of a hive of bees while removing it from a truck at Cramlington, Northumberland, station, a porter caused a swarm of bees to escape. They created quite a panic. They stung the porter, three old men, and some children, before Mr. Wright, the stationmaster, who happens to be a bee expert, induced the bees to return to their hive.

St. Lawrence Sugar

Laboratory of Provincial Government Analyst.

MONTREAL, 22nd February, 1909.

I HEREBY CERTIFY that I have drawn by my own hand ten samples of the St. Lawrence Sugar Refining Co's EXTRA STANDARD GRANULATED SUGAR, indiscriminately taken from four lots of about 450 barrels each and six lots of about 450 bags each. I have analyzed same and find them uniformly to contain 99-99/100 to 100 per cent of pure cane sugar, with no impurities whatever.

FRENCH SAILORS COURT MARTIALLED

Tragic Execution of Guegan and Lemarchal in Expiation of a Crime

The execution of the two French sailors named Guegen and Lemarchal at Toulon has produced a profound impression throughout Europe.

One correspondent describes the execution in the following words: "Toulon is, in a little way, a 'Venice,' and the town is divided up by parts of the harbor and canals, so that in order to get from one place to another it is necessary to go by boat. And so it was that, just before sunrise, the two men who were to be shot at the post had to be embarked, chained and fettered, and were conveyed in a small boat across the harbor—a twenty minutes' journey. It was known at midnight that the execution would take place in the morning by the order that all troops were to be confined to barracks or to their ships. At one time it was thought that there would be some difficulty in getting a firing party together, but on volunteers being called for any number of men stepped forward, so that the authorities were able to choose the best marksmen and men bearing irreproachable characters. Each firing party was made up of twelve men, quartermasters, and sailors, in charge of a lieutenant. When the authorities went to the naval prison at three o'clock Lemarchal was sleeping soundly in sailor fashion in his hammock. On being told that his petition for a pardon had been refused he simply replied, 'Thank you,' and right up to the end of the terrible ordeal, which lasted for more than an hour, he behaved in a most calm manner. Guegen, on the other hand, twice attempted to commit suicide. He was sleeping in company with two other prisoners, whose duty it was to watch over him. When the authorities appeared his companions promptly left him, and when told of his fate, he exclaimed, 'My poor mother!' Then, with a gesture of anger, as he got out of bed and threw his sailor cap to the ground, he exclaimed, 'How is it going to be done? I don't mind so long as it is not Deibler'—meaning the man who operates the guillotine. Both men were to be allowed to bear mass, and the first step of their pilgrimage began when they were taken to the prison chapel. Here the priest gave them the comforts of religion, and then offered the condemned men meat and drink. They received bread and drank several glasses of wine, and each was provided with a number of cigarettes. These they continued to smoke down to the end. Guegen put one as a reserve behind his ear, which is decidedly a French fashion. The Lemarchal asked permission to write, and while his companion kept on smoking Lemarchal sat down, and in a firm hand filled two pages, and addressed them to his brother. In the meantime troops and crowds of curious had begun to gather on the rifle butts across the harbor. Representatives of all arms stationed at Toulon were present, with the regimental bands, while behind the troops an enormous concourse was present to demonstrate noisily. The two condemned men had been degraded some three or four days before, so that this part of the ceremony did not have to be performed. In the matter of uniform all that they had on was a pair of trousers and an overall. Their hands were chained, and they were surrounded by four gendarmes, and, upheld by the priest who had attended them at the chapel, they were marched down to the water's edge, where they embarked in two naval pinnaces going across the harbor. The men smoked continuously, and gazed fixedly at the dawn which was appearing. Two posts had been erected at the place of execution, and there was a painful wait of twenty minutes here, as it was not yet the hour of sunrise. The crowd began to whistle and hiss, while the priest who was looking after the prisoners tried to engage them in conversation and while the time away. The priest said that the wait was regrettable, to which Guegen replied: 'They do not seem to be in much of a hurry,' while Lemarchal replied: 'We are not standing by the guns here.' Still the two men went on smoking, for the noise of the crowd seemed to divert their thoughts. Finally, when all was ready, the troops stood at attention, drums and bugles sounded, and the two men had to parade before the troops. This first part of the ceremony over, they were taken to the posts, which were placed about fifty feet apart. Then the drums rolled, and the clerk of the naval court read out the death sentence. While this was done, the two men continued to smoke and to listen to the priest, who was bidding them to show courage. Lemarchal declined to have his eyes bandaged, but as the priest insisted, he assented. Guegen also did not want to have a cloth over his eyes, and when the bandage was placed managed to shake it down to his shoulders. The man's attention was directed toward the priest, and the captain commanding the troops who, he believed, would give the order for the firing paries to fire. These had quietly taken their places well in front of the criminals, twelve men being in each party. Guegen had not noticed the lieutenant in command, who was placed on his left. The lieutenant drew his sword and lowered it with a swift movement. A volley rang out, and the two men fell to the ground. A coup de grace was administered in each case by a quartermaster armed with a revolver. Guegen still had his cigarette between his fingers when this was done. Then the massed bands played the 'Marseillaise' and the Funeral Hymn, and the bodies were taken away."

ELECTRICITY ON FARMS

Labor Will Be Trifling—Nothing to Do But Turn on Current

In these days when the metropolitan city may be described as a great electrical laboratory and consuming station, it should not be overlooked that the farm itself is coming in for its share of this universal source of power.

There are many ways through which the farm that can afford the use of the electric current may have it for the trouble of installation. Some nearby inter-urban electric line may have its surplus current for sale; some stream close at hand may have a gravity waterfall to develop electricity sufficient for half a dozen farmers; or the gasoline engine in connection with a dynamo is within comparatively easy reach of the prosperous farmer who discovers that to keep his boys on the farm—or even to make certain that his hired help will stay with him through the season—it is up to him to lighten those old drudgeries of twenty years ago.

In the home of the farmer, the first adaptation of the electric current would be in displacing the kerosene lamp. A motor in the basement and a pump and tank on the outside would effect a system of water-works for the house. In the dairy the cream separator, churn, and the washing machinery for dairy necessities can be operated. Laundry work—that bugbear of the farmer's wife—is simplified and lightened to the last degree. Even the long-sought "milking machine" is to receive an impetus at the hands of Yankee ingenuity, and, if it shall be perfected, the electric current must drive it.

In the cow barns and horse stables the electric bulb attached to wires in gaspipe housings not only will give the safest light for winter mornings and evenings, but already the vacuum cleaner has made its appearance, adapted to the easiest and most thorough currying and cleaning of the coats of cows and horses.

Instead of the long and laborious process of ice cutting from ponds, the electric current will operate the refrigerating room's ammonia fluids, with automatic stoppages of the motor when the required degree of cold is reached. The power may be directed to the farm workshops, where lathes and grindstones and emery wheels may be run for the farm's "jack-of-all-trades," saving not only the charges of the village blacksmith in hundreds of troubles, but saving the time of driving to and from the town.

In some of the northern fruit growing sections the electric warning signal is set for agousing the whole farm population any time in the night when the "danger" temperature is reached out of doors. This means at the present time that every available worker turns out and kindles fires in the smudge pots that are set in the orchards, prepared for the torches that shall wipe out the dangers of frost. But as electricity is light, power, and heat, all in one, may not the present smudge pots become electrical heaters, automatically turned on?

To-day there is not a practical electrical engineer who does not look upon the present state of electrical service as in its infancy. We have the electrical city. How long before the electrical farm?

When "Work" Becomes "Labor"

There's Something Wrong. Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Will Right It.

Thousands of Women feel just like this.

When it seems as if you simply could not bear up any longer it is high time to look for the cause of the trouble—and the remedy. In an astonishingly large number of cases the real cause of woman's misery is found to be constipation, and the remedy that always cures is Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

Neglect of the daily movement of the bowels, so necessary to health, soon poisons the whole system from the impurities retained in the body. Headaches, indigestion, biliousness and lassitude follow, and often more serious female disorders are brought on or aggravated.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills not only regulate the bowels, but they stimulate kidneys and skin as well to throw off waste matter and purify the blood. The result is quickly apparent in the disappearance of the headaches and biliousness, and the return of health and vigor. Thousands of women all over the world owe their present good health to Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

THE FORMATION OF ICEBERGS

They Originate from Glaciers in Western Greenland and Assume Every Shape

Icebergs usually originate in western Greenland. Everywhere, according to a bulletin of the Hydrographic Office, Greenland's mountainous belt "is penetrated by deep fiords, which reach to the inland ice and are terminated by the perpendicular fronts of huge glaciers, while in some places the ice comes down in broad projections close to the margin of the sea. All of these glaciers are making their way toward the sea, and, as their ends are forced out into the water, they are broken off and set adrift as bergs. This process is called calving. The size of the pieces set adrift varies greatly, but a berg from 60 to 100 feet to the top of its walls, whose spires or pinnacles may reach from 200 to 250 feet in height and whose length may be from 300 to 500 yards, is considered to be or ordinary size in the Arctic.

"These measurements apply to the part above water, which is about one-eighth or one-ninth of the whole mass. Many authors give the depth under water as being from eight to nine times the height above. This is incorrect, as measurements above and below water should be referred to mass and not to height. It is even possible to have a berg as high out of the water as it is deep below the surface, for, if we imagine a large, solid lump of any regular shape which has a very small sharp high pinnacle in the centre, the height above water can easily be equal to the depth below. An authentic case on record is that of a berg grounded in the Strait of Belle Isle in sixteen fathoms of water, that had a thin spire about 160 feet in height.

"Bergs are made all the year round, but in greater numbers during the summer season; and thousands are set adrift each year. Once adrift in the Arctic, they find their way into the Labrador current and begin their journey to the southward. It is not an unobstructed drift, but one attended with many stoppages and mishaps. Many ground in the Arctic basin and break up there; others reach the shores of Labrador, where from one end to the other they continually ground and float; some break up and disappear entirely, while others get safely past and reach the Grand Bank. The whole coast of Labrador is cut up by numerous islands, bays, and headlands, shoals and reefs, which makes the journey of all drift a long one, and adds greatly to the destruction of the bergs by stoppages and by causing them to break up.

"It is the greatly increased surface which the fragments expose to the melting action of the oceanic waters that accounts for the rapid disappearance of the ice after it has reached the northern edge of the warm circulatory drift currents of the North Atlantic Ocean. If these processes of disintegration did not go on and large bergs should remain intact, several years might elapse before they would melt, and they would ever be present in the transoceanic routes. In fact, instances are on record in which masses of ice, escaping the influences of swift destruction or possessing a capability for resisting them, have, by phenomenal drifts, passed into European waters and been encountered from time to time throughout that portion of the ocean which stretches from the British Isles to the Azores.

"They assume the greatest variety of shapes, from those approximating to some regular geometric figure to others crowned with spires, domes, minarets, and peaks, while others still are pierced by deep indentations or caves. Small cataracts precipitate themselves from the large bergs, while many icicles hang in clusters from every projecting ledge. They frequently have outlying spurs under water, which are as dangerous as any other sunken reefs. For this reason it is advisable for vessels to give them a wide berth, for there are a number of cases on record where vessels were seriously damaged by striking when apparently clear of the berg. It is generally best for vessels to go to windward of them, because the disintegrated fragments will have a tendency to drift to leeward, while open water will be found to windward. Serious injury has occurred to vessels through the breaking up or capsizing of icebergs."

NAVY SECRETARY'S DOCK YARD PLANS

Naval Correspondent in London Discusses Ideas of Reorganization.

INSTANCES ARE CITED

Experiences of Other Navies Are Compared with Those of England and America in the Matter.

[Special Despatch.]
LONDON, Saturday.

DESCRIBING his recent visits to British dock yards, Secretary Meyer is reported to have expressed his special interest in the ship yard of Messrs. Yarrow & Co. because of the similarity between the circumstances which caused the removal of this firm's works from the Thames and those which exist to-day in regard to some of the United States navy yards.

No doubt what Mr. Meyer has seen in England will confirm his views as to the need for closing down certain American yards, and in any case he must have found many arguments in support of such a policy in the history of the British establishments.

In his last annual report Mr. Meyer advocated the closing of eight minor navy yards, and in the Naval Appropriation bill power was asked for to abandon five of them, these being San Juan, Culebra, Port Royal, New London and Sackett's Harbor. The House of Representatives, however, struck out this part of the bill on a point of order, but, while disagreeing with the proposal for abandonment, it was noteworthy that the House allowed the works and docks vote to pass in which no financial provision whatever was made for the yards at New Orleans and Pensacola, two of those which the Secretary first asked should be disposed of. Their inactivity in this matter was at least significant, and it remains to be seen whether the tendency to withhold money from the less important yards will be more marked after Mr. Meyer has obtained further evidence to put before his countrymen.

BRITAIN'S HISTORIC YARDS.

The reasons upon which the Secretary advocates this reorganization are not only economic, but strategical as well. Similar reasons led to the closing of the British dock yards at Woolwich and Deptford, historic establishments which built the entire fleet of Queen Elizabeth that defeated the Spanish Armada. Fifty years ago Woolwich dock yard had an area of fifty-six acres, and Deptford thirty-eight acres, but both were closed for building, repair and docking purposes in 1869-1870, Woolwich being allocated to the Naval Ordnance Department and Deptford transformed into a victualling yard and depot, although about twenty-seven acres of the old yard at Deptford was sold by Mr. Gladstone for £70,000. At one time there were public ship yards also at Harwich, Deal and Kinsale, but these have now quite disappeared.

Similarly, within the last ten years, Sheerness and Pembroke dock yards have only been saved from extinction by their use for the building or repair of small craft like scouts and destroyers, neither yard having a dock that could take a modern armorclad. On the other hand, the dock yards of Portsmouth, Keyham (an adjunct of Devonport) and Haulbowline (Queenstown) have grown steadily in the same period, while an entirely new yard is being created at Rosyth, on the east coast of Scotland, and a first class naval harbor has been provided at Dover.

British establishments abroad have also been reduced in consequence of the new strategical policy of the Admiralty, which substituted fewer and larger ships, able to come home for refit and repair, for the numerous small ships which required expensive dockyard establishments to be maintained abroad for their use and equipment. Among the yards so abandoned or reduced were those at Trincomalee, Ascension and Port Royal, while the yards at Halifax, N. S., Esquimalt and Bermuda are now under the control of the Canadian government.

THE PRIVATE YARDS.

Similar economic and other causes have affected the private yards. War ships are no longer built at Shoreham, Wapping, Ratcliffe, Cowes and Southampton, as they were in the last century, but instead we have the great yards on the Tyne and the Clyde. The decline of the Thames as a shipbuilding centre is a case in point. Where there were many private yards a few years ago, now only one remains, the Thames Iron Works, which has apparently no great amount of private work, and is handicapped for public work not only by the small depth of water in the Thames at Blackwall, but by the necessity of obtaining heavy castings, gun-mountings and guns, not to mention skilled labor of a certain kind, from a distance. Even torpedo boat builders have now deserted the Thames, Yarrow's yard being transferred from Poplar to Scotstoun, on the Clyde, and Thornycroft's from Chiswick to Woolston, near Southampton, in 1906.

Movements of the kind to meet altered conditions are also to be observed in foreign countries. Germany's shipyards are more modern than those of Great Britain or France, but it is clear that as her shipbuilding resources on the North Sea coast increase a reduction will be made of those in the Baltic. In France also the ports of Brest, in the north, and Toulon, in the south, have frequently been held of late to be sufficient, and the suppression or reduction of Rochefort and Lorient has been called for. Even in Japan there are naval officers who think that Sasebo should be made the principal dockyard and headquarters of the fleet, and the other shipyards reduced, except that at Yokosuka.

But it is not always the views of naval officers and administrators that are carried out, for in England, as in France and America, political influence exerted by those directly interested in the locality affected has stopped the progress of measures intended to promote naval efficiency. Such exaltation of vested and private interests over national interests must always be deplored, but the idea that the navy yards exist for the fleet and not the fleet for the yards is a very hard one to drive into the minds of the people.

With King and Queen in Their Highlands Castle, London, Save for a Brilliant Wedding, Remains Dull

Sir Starr Jameson Is Best Man for Sir Abe Bailey and Miss Westenra.

[Special Despatch.]
LONDON, Saturday.

WITH the majority of those well known in society still out of town, London continues to be very dull, and the only event of any social importance in the last few days has been the wedding of Sir Abe Bailey, the South African financier, to Miss May Westenra, the only daughter of Lord and Lady Rossmore. The ceremony, which was performed in Holy Trinity Church, Sloane street, was a pretty one, and many well known persons came to town to witness it. The young bride, who was given away by her father, wore a dress of white and gold brocade trimmed with old Italian point lace. She was attended by six bridesmaids, whose dresses were of "pale" pink, with pale blue tulle scarfs and "head dresses" composed of pink roses. Sir Starr Jameson—"Dr. Jim"—was best man. The honeymoon, which will be in the bride's home, at county Monoghan, Ireland, will be a short one, for the newly married couple will depart for South Africa on September 23. The bride had a wonderful collection of presents bestowed upon her, the bridegroom's gift of a tiara and other jewels being really princely.

During their Highland holiday the King and Queen are reviving the old customs which made the Scots so devoted to Queen Victoria. On Deeside they are practically heads of a devoted clan and can live a life of dignified simplicity. They are secure from unwarranted intrusion. The pushful stranger finds his or her way barred and the King may shoot and the Queen walk or ride or be the Lady Bountiful like any other gentleman or lady "within their policies." Tenants and employes on the estate are allied in seeing that "the chief and his lady" have a real good time. Seven o'clock each morning finds the King's piper tuned up and starting on the favorite reveille of the kilted regiments, "Hey, Johnnie Cope, are ye waken yet, and are ye're drums a beaten yet?" Breakfast, which always includes porridge, is served at half-past eight and finishes at nine o'clock. Ten o'clock sees the King off to shoot or fish. Grouse is not plentiful on the royal estate, which is really a deer forest. But the King goes over to his brother-in-law's, the Duke of Fife, and elsewhere for a day's sport with driven birds. Luncheon is a movable feast and the Queen and the ladies of the court seldom share it with the men, because it is uncertain where the sportsmen may find themselves. The Queen meantime is out with her sons and her daughter, usually driving themselves or in an open landau. The Queen is not devoted to the automobile when in the hills. She visits, very much as she used to do in Kew and Richmond, the people on the estate, but admires the contrast between the sturdy independent cottagers on the royal property and the poor, to whom she administered when a girl living on Thames bank.

By the way, Queen Mary has revived the fashion among women of taking a dainty little bit of needlework in a fascinating bag when they go out to tea. Queen Mary always has near her a piece of knitting or other stitchery. Since she was a girl she always has been the best and most industrious worker in the royal family. It is a matter of comment outside the royal circle that the dainty bit of needlework which some smart women take to their friends' houses never shows any advance, though they adhere religiously to the Queen's example.

Mr. Henry Payne Whitney's party had good sport with the [illegible]ause and partridges at Motwick Hall, Upper Teesdale. Indeed, so good has been the shooting on some of the best known moors that the lessees already have obtained the number of birds allotted by the terms of their leases, and in some instances sportsmen have offered £5 per brace for an extension of the privilege. Excellent sport also is being obtained by deerstalkers. Lord Derby, Sir Hector Munro, Lord Durham, Captain Combe and Sir Arthur Bignold have all procured good specimens. Mr. Arthur James bagged one stag of nine points weighing fifteen stone. Mr. "Willie" James one of ten points weighing fourteen stone, while Lord Villiers obtained two, one a royal weighing sixteen stone and the other a ten pointer of fourteen stone two pounds.

Several interesting contributions have been made lately to the new London Museum. Last week a Roman boat was added. This week it is a collection of costumes dating from the fifteenth to the eighteenth century and which is believed to be the most complete private collection in the world. The costumes were originally made by Mr. Seymour Lucas, R. A., for use in painting his historic pictures. Details of the dresses of different periods are correct, while boots, shoes, swords, spurs, frills and furbelows are in perfect condition. Had it not been for the foundation of this new London Museum it is probable that this interesting collection would have found its way to America. As a matter of fact, Mr. Lucas was approached by the Metropolitan Museum, of New York, with an extremely advantageous offer. This, however, after being closely pressed by the Americans, he declined on patriotic grounds. Many other costumes, for every period of London history, have also been acquired, not the least interesting being the coronation robes of England's last three monarchs. In all some eight thousand objects have been obtained, ranging from the bronze age. They are set out in historic order, each age of London's history being kept distinct.

New Consulate in Shanghai an Advance

THE NEW AMERICAN CONSULATE-GENERAL AT SHANGHAI

But Still the Building Acquired Is Not Up to American Dignity.

SHANGHAI, Saturday.

The United States consular officials in Shanghai have at last acquired premises somewhat more in accord with the dignity of their country than those which they have been compelled to occupy for ten years. But considering the importance of the United States' mission in this field, to say nothing of the largeness with which she bulks in the outside world, the buildings now occupied do not even conform with her character or worth or the actual needs of her service.

United States citizens and visitors always have been dissatisfied with the paltry show made by their country's official quarters, and in the past they have had ample justification for whatever indignation they may have felt. Hidden away in a side street, housed in deplorably old, dirty, uncomfortable, unconsonant and entirely insuitable premises, the consular officials have been compelled to put up with their unenviable lot and suffer the humiliation of being regarded by the Chinese as representatives of a parsimonious country. But even the change now made does not mend matters very much.

The Chinese judge mostly by appearances, and a brave show does more to convince them of the grading of an individual, a corporation or a State than all the talk ever breathed, and those who know the old consular premises can imagine the rank in which they placed the United States when they could see that even the Cuban representatives were better cared for. Of the first class Powers the United States was the worst provided for, but the change that has now been effected gives her a little better rank, and the Stars and Stripes wave where they can at least be seen.

The new buildings were recently occupied by the Russians as a consulate, and inasmuch as they are separate houses they are not what America should have or her consul, her court, her post office, her medical officer and her various staffs. They do, however, face the river front and command a good position. The world can see them and that is something.

The consulate occupies one house, the post office another, the government medical officer a third and the mixed court assessors a fourth, and across the road opposite stands the court and the residence of the judge. Not a desirable method of grouping the representatives of such an important country as the United States, but one such as apparently will have to be put up with despite the protests of the American community.

Japan, on the other hand, has just completed a fine, imposing structure to contain all her consular offices. It faces the river a few doors away from the better-generous group now sheltering the United States officials, and not only dignifies the Rising Sun flag but completely puts in the shade the efforts of her rival in the Pacific to make a feeble show before those who live and have their being in the Far East. In most parts of the world apparel is taken to oft proclaim the man, but in this quarter in particular the housing accommodation of officials significantly denotes to the Chinese the grading in the world's Braidstreet of the nations they represent.

PALMISTS CONQUER LONDON SOCIETY

Teachers of "Occultism" Even Become Arbiters of Marriage and Finance.

MEN HAVE "FAITH," TOO

Fortune Tellers Reap Plenteous Harvest from Leading Spirits in Great Corporations.

[Special Despatch.]
LONDON, Saturday.

A REMARKABLE recrudescence of "occultism" has been manifesting itself in London society for some time and has taken the form of a fad. In the entire coronation season perhaps the most popular feature of fashionable gatherings was the palmist or "Egyptian fortune teller," engaged for the evening to entertain the guests.

This feature was found the surest way to draw a crowd, and when invitations were sent out the special engagement of some particular "seer" was invariably mentioned as an extra inducement. At these functions it was no uncommon sight to see a long line of distinguished persons waiting their turn to enter the booth of the gifted one and learn what destiny held in reserve for them.

Lectures on "occultism" and the mystic religions of the East were also popular attractions in many of the best houses in Mayfair and Belgravia, while the theory of reincarnation contained an element of romance that made fashionable persons eager to discover if they had known each other in some previous stage of existence. Certain professional mystics made a specialty of this branch of occult knowledge, and it is even said that the calm assurance that a well favored young couple had met and loved in ages past led to more than one marriage in high life.

PALMIST STOPS MARRIAGE.

There was one case where an engagement was mysteriously broken off without any apparent cause at the time. It became known later, however, that the young woman had consulted a palmist, only to be informed that the mystic number of her fiancé's name did not harmonise with that of her own, which meant disaster in the event of marriage. Her faith in occultism being stronger than her own inclination of judgment, she promptly cancelled the betrothal.

Throughout the coronation season the palmists and fortune tellers reaped a golden harvest from society women of all ages who called to consult them about love and marriage. Many, too, sought advice about contemplated journeys or as to whom they should include among their guests at a particular garden party or reception. Even the day and date of the function were often dictated by the disinterested "seer."

One woman came all the way from Devonshire to consult a crystal gazer regarding the approaching marriage of her daughter. Fortunately the seer approved of the prospective bridegroom and the wedding was allowed to take place.

MEN TAKE UP FAD.

But the women are not alone enthusiastic belief in occult powers and divination. Men of prominence in many branches of life have taken up the fad with equal fervor. A certain managing director of a powerful corporation is said to employ a woman mystic at a yearly salary to advise him in all his business transactions, and he asserts that he has never made a mistake or lost a cent since he adopted that policy.

AEROPLANE SAFETY DEVICE IS TESTED

Demonstration of Mons. Doutre's Invention Is Given at Villacoublay Aerodrome by Mons. Didier.

[Special Despatch.]
PARIS, Saturday.

Ever since the invention of the aeroplane men have sought a means of obtaining [illegible]utomatic stability of the machine [illegible]n the air—that is to say, an apparatus which would relieve the pilot of the work of unceasingly manoeuvring to maintain the equilibrium of the aeroplane.

Such an apparatus a French inventor, Mons. Doutre, declares he has discovered. In so far, at least, as longitudinal stability is concerned. A practical test of the apparatus was arranged to be made at the Villacoublay aerodrome, at which certain newspaper correspondents were invited to be present.

The apparatus had been fitted to a Maurice Farman biplane. Successively several passengers, including Senator Raymond, were taken up for long trips by the pilot, Mons. Didier, and all agreed that apparently the apparatus did all that was asserted it would do. Stability of the aeroplane in the air seemed, indeed, really automatic, the pilot having nothing to do but to guide the machine.

The apparatus is a delicate piece of work, consisting of a series of pistons and springs sliding in sockets. It is connected with a plate about twelve metres by four (39 feet by 13 feet) that faces the wind. The whole is fitted in the fore part of the aeroplane and connected with the elevating rudder.

Virtually it acts first of all as an anemometer. The velocity of the wind and its variations are registered instantaneously by the apparatus, which simultaneously communicates to the rudder the movement necessary to restore the equilibrium which would have been otherwise disturbed unless checked by the pilot. In other words, the rectification of the angle of the aeroplane is effected mechanically, each puff of wind influencing the automatic stabilisation in such a way as to set up of itself the correcting manoeuvres.

Should, for any reason—a weakening of the power of the motor, for instance—the aeroplane tend to pitch nose downward, or vice versa, its speed increases or decreases accordingly, and this acts upon another portion of the Doutre apparatus, which automatically communicates corresponding shocks or pulls to the rudder, restoring immediately the machine's equilibrium. Thus, the pilot's hands, although resting on the steering gear, do not control it.

CONQUER BY PEACE, SAYS MR. SHIMADA

This Is the Text of the Japanese Scholar Who Will Lecture in America.

HIS EMPIRE'S POSITION

Even in Case of War, He Says, Japan Would Find Herself Isolated and with No Sympathy.

[Special Despatch.]
TOKIO, Saturday.

WORLD conquest by peace and not by war—that is the text from which Mr. Saburo Shimada, M. P., will preach during his forthcoming lecturing tour in the United States in conjunction with Dr. Nitobe, the well known author of "Bushido."

These two are proceeding to America to inaugurate a plan for the exchange of university professors and publicists with a view to improving relations between the two countries and effecting a better all around understanding based upon wider knowledge of their respective national cultures. Thus it is hoped by the supporters of the enterprise on both sides that the force which makes for peaceful international intercourse will be sensibly strengthened and the efforts of the yellow press to stir up strife proportionately discounted.

Mr. Shimada has long been a notable figure in the Japanese political and journalistic world. He is a native of Tokio, where he was born in 1852. Politically, with the exception of a short term as secretary in the Department of Education in 1881, he always has been in opposition and for a long time was one of the ablest of Count Okuma's lieutenants in the old Shimpo-to, or progressive party, recently merged into the opposition Kokumin-to, to which Mr. Shimada now belongs. For many years he has sat in the lower house as a member for Yokohama, and for a short time served as vice president of that chamber. He is accounted one of the most fluent orators in Japan, and it is said that it is almost impossible for even the ablest stenographers to make a verbatim report of his speeches. Journalistically, he long controlled the destinies of the Tokio Mainichi, which he sold to Count Okuma in 1909.

POINTS HIS IDEALS.

In an interview Mr. Shimada outlines the nature of his mission to the United States.

"My ideal is," he said, "to conquer by force of peace. The power of our country should not and cannot be increased by means of larger armaments. The age of fighting and butchery has passed, and it behooves us now to seek glory in the fields of peace and not of war. It is the duty of every country to develop itself, while helping others to develop at the same time. No power can any longer glorify itself by crushing another, and it is high time that this truth should be recognized by all.

"Nevertheless, it must be admitted that in the past Japan's policy has not been in conformity with this principle, a state of affairs which may possibly be ascribed to the predominance of the military spirit in our government. We have had few genuine diplomats, but only soldiers in their guise. The military forces of every country ought to be the latter's servant, not its master. Whereas in Japan to-day we are controlled by the army and navy. In short, national development is being seriously checked by rampant militarism. The people are taught and trained to be subjects and soldiers, but not to be men and citizens. The nation is groaning beneath the burden of war taxes, from which there appears to be no immediate prospect of relief. We ought, therefore, to be alive to the fact that peace hereafter can be the only weapon with which we can extend the power of Japan.

"Unfortunately the cruel burden of armaments is being increased at the instigation of certain influential men. Such a course was excusable before the late war, but it can no longer be tolerated. These advocates of increased armaments justify their propaganda by the danger of war between America and Japan—the most ridiculous apprehension that any sensible man could entertain."

With the same frankness Mr. Shimada, analyzing Japan's position in the international comity, declares that the European Powers are watching Japan's development in much the same way as they observed that of the Turks during the middle ages.

WHY THEY WATCH.

"It is because they are curious, and not because they feel any sympathy with us, that they take so much apparent interest in the leader of the yellow race. To be sure, England is our friend. Her colonies, however, are beginning to show alarm at the influx of Japanese immigrants.

"This, then, is the situation. If Japan should declare war against America she would most assuredly find herself in a state of isolation. Even if we should win all the white races would combine for the purpose of crushing the yellow men of the East. On the other hand, if we should be conquered our fate would be such that he who runs may read.

"We must not be so conceited as to imagine that Japan can conquer everything simply by force of arms. Unhappily this idea exists, and as a result fifty thousand Japanese are suffering hardships in California. There is only one way to save the situation. We should bring about harmonious relations between the Japanese settlers and Americans by making them understand that we are really a peaceful people and also by sending to those shores only men who can command respect. This being my idea, I did not hesitate to accept the invitation of our countrymen in California to lecture on the Pacific coast and at other places with the object of correcting and dispelling misunderstandings between Japan and America.

"I do not believe that I can accomplish much, but at any rate I am confident that the situation will change for the better sooner or later. America requires faithful workers, and will certainly welcome our people some day. The anti-Japanese movement is destitute of a reasonable motive and must lose force ere long. It is essential that first of all our true intentions should be understood. The world must know that we do not desire another war. The sentiment is shared by many thinkers, whose duty it is to make their views public. As soon as the advocates of peace gain real influence militarism will naturally die out, and when this happens the subjects of the Mikado will again see happier days at home and abroad."

ENTERPRISE OF A MILLIONAIRE

Rockefeller, at 72, Spends Fortune on His Home

At the great age of 72, John D. Rockefeller, richest man in the world, "oil king," etc., is building himself still more magnificent palaces to live in. He has just agreed to an expenditure of $1,000,000 to improve his country home near New York, and the work is to occupy two years. In the interval he and Mrs. Rockefeller will manage to exist in another abode, gorgeous and immense, but not so big as the one he is altering. These alterations have given him the opportunity of coming out as an architect, for he has designed them himself. He made a model of the new buildings, and placed it upon a turn-table on the spot where he intended to build. Ingeniously arranged mechanism made it possible for him to turn it about by means of levers.

The oil king's reason for building is to add ten guest rooms to his home. Mr. Rockefeller is a man brimful of interest in life, whose chief hobby, apart from golf, is to devote a large portion of his immense income to the investigation of the cure and causes of disease, education, and the social advancement of his fellow man.

The new buildings are to be planned according to his own scheme of daily life. He wanted light in the dining-room in the morning and at noon. The only time he insisted upon having light in his office was between two and three o'clock in the afternoon. He wanted his own bed-room dark between three and four o'clock in the afternoon, the hour in which he takes his daily nap after completion of his business in the office.

After much experimenting, he composed a time-table by which he learned when the sun would shine in each room. When he had completed his calculations he turned the completed time-table over to the architects, and told them to "go ahead."

THE HIRED MAN

Alberta Paper Hands Out Advice to the Farmer

The "Alberta Homestead," which should know what conditions are, hands out this bit of left-handed advice to the farmer:—

"The hired man will soon be with you for the harvest. He can have his sleeping quarters in the hay loft or the caboose, as he ought to want nothing better.

"Should he show unusual readiness for work, this is a quality which should be encouraged, and 18 hours should be got out of him a day.

"Set him to work right after each meal, as a hired man has no business to fear indigestion, and he can get his rest at night.

"If he's inexperienced at farming, an occasional sneer when he makes a mistake will brace him up, and prevent him from repeating the blunder.

"Give him as many chores to do as possible, especially on Sundays, or he might get into idle ways.

"Try and prevent him from running off to town on Saturday nights, where habits of dissipation might get hold of him. A couple of hours' relaxation with the buckaw will soon stop this.

"A policy of this kind will put any hired man in love with farming and with you, too."

ENGLAND'S COAL SUPPLY

Sir William Ramsay Says 175 Years Will End It

Sir William Ramsay gave a surprise to the members of the British Association, in a grave warning to England that the present rate of consumption of her coal supply she will be a bankrupt nation 175 years hence. "It may be said that 175 years is a long time," said Sir William. "In the life of a nation it is a mere span.' Sir William urged Governmental afforestation and general economy in the use of coal, in order that "our life as a nation may be prolonged." Both in industrial life and in the home there was, he said, room for economy. He advocated the appointment of a permanent commission, whose object should be to keep abreast with the diminution of the stores of natural energy, and to take steps to lessen its rate.

THE COMING DURBAR

One Hundred Thousand Will Witness the Ceremony

Some conception of the magnitude of the King's Durbar in India, to take place at Delhi in December, is at length coming to hand. The ceremony of proclaiming King George V. Emperor of India will be witnessed by 100,000 persons. A camp of 250,000 people will surround the walls of the palace. The camp will be served by thirty miles of broad and twelve miles of narrow gauge railway. There will be thirty-one post and ten telegraph offices in the visitors' camp, and among the guests, which will include all the princes of India, will be a hundred journalists. For several days the Durbar will be the scene of unsurpassed splendor. What will be the political effect of it all? Will it appeal to the imagination of the average Indian city mechanic and rice grower? On the whole, we think it will. Oriental ideas of governing power are not yet permeated with democratic notions to the extent that we in the Western world are apt to assume. And yet the Hindoo and Mohamedan citizens of the Empire realize more clearly than they did twenty years ago that the real source and power of Britain's hold of India are in proportion to the justice by which the law is administered and the progress made in emancipating its peoples from the cruelty of its economic systems, and in thwarting the ravages of disease and famine. In the Viceroy's Council, rather than in the palaces of Delhi, lie the true fortress of Britain's strength in India.

MULES FOR CAPT. SCOTT

They Will Accompany Him on the Terra Nova to the Antarctic

Seven mules, a present from the Indian Government, will accompany Captain Scott in the British Antarctic Expedition. Captain Scott wrote to the Indian Army headquarters asking to be allowed to buy the animals, but the Government decided that they should form a gift to the expedition, and added a special equipment also. The animals which Captain Scott desired were to be strong, compact and tractable, about seven years old, of good quality and courage, and capable of drawing a 600-pound load on a sledge over rough ground at altitudes rising to 10,000 feet above sea-level. Lieutenant G. Pulleyn, Assistant Commissary of the Bengal Supply and Transport Corps, was sent to Landour to select the mules, and two British soldiers went with him to test their tractability when in the hands of Europeans. Their outfit has been selected most carefully. Their rugs are of thick felt, faced with waterproof canvas. They have leg-coverings of felt, faced with leather, and eye-shades with smoked glass goggles have been made to safeguard the animals from snow-blindness, which worked such havoc among Sir Ernest Shackleton's ponies. The tethering chains are of weldless steel wire, covered with thin felt and leather.

The mules have now begun their southward journey by way of Calcutta and New Zealand, where they will be placed on board the Terra Nova, which leaves in December.

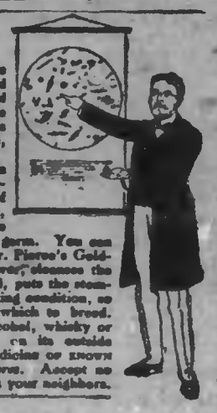
Afraid of Ghosts



Many people are afraid of ghosts. Few people are afraid of germs. Yet the ghost is a fancy and the germ is a fact. If the germ could be magnified to a size equal to its terrors it would appear more terrible than any fire-breathing dragon. Germs can't be avoided. They are in the air we breathe, the water we drink.

The germ can only prosper when the condition of the system gives it free scope to establish itself and develop. When there is a deficiency of vital force, languor, restlessness, a sallow cheek, a hollow eye, when the appetite is poor and the sleep is broken, it is time to guard against the germ. You can fortify the body against all germs by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It increases the vital power, cleanses the system of clogging impurities, enriches the blood, puts the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition in working condition, so that the germ finds no weak or tainted spot in which to breed. "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol, whisky or habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients printed on its outside wrapper. It is not a secret nostrum but a medicine of known composition and with a record of 40 years of cures. Accept no substitute—there is nothing "just as good." Ask your neighbors.

INDUSTRIAL OUTLOOK IN GREAT BRITAIN

A Glance at Recent Developments in the Old Land

(Lloyds' Weekly News).

Looking at the facts of the general situation in the industrial world, what do we find? We find:—

1. A new spirit at work in the ranks of labor. Whatever the primary cause, the average worker is becoming very impatient. This manifestation of impatience shows itself in a growing disregard of certain long-recognized methods of settling labor disputes. The Trade Union Executive would appear to be no longer the workman's Sanhedrin. At one time individualism was the governing principle in the relationship between man and master. Now the pendulum has, in the judgment of hundreds of thousands of working men, swung too far on the other side. Acts of Parliament are so cumbered with officials, formalities, legalities, and technicalities, that the man cannot, and apparently will not, endure the delays that ensue when their grievances are submitted to these new tests. Hence, so it is argued, the present impatience.

2. The skilled workman has at last begun to feel that the time has arrived when he should ally himself with the needs and demands of the unskilled. A New Charter is being silently but none th less effectually formed for the social betterment of the lower grades of labor. The day of the hewer of wood and the drawer of water has arrived. Hence, again, we have unrest, and we shall be wise if we forestall the expansion of this movement by inquiring minutely into the just relationship of this section of labor to a fair and living wage. The State makes few distinctions between one man and another. The dustman and the merchant possesses but one vote each. Both are amenable to the law. Both have to submit to the curtailment of many of their individual liberties in the interests of society as a whole. And the question, How can a man support a home, and conform to those duties of citizenship, on 18s. or 25s. per week? is forcing itself to the front with an almost exasperating persistence, for we are not equipped as a State, nor have we the machinery as a State, to handle the problem with that speed which will overtake and morally destroy the worst aspects of the agitation. Mr. Lloyd George pointed out the other day that, while we had an increasing display of wealth on the one hand and the continuance of squalid poverty on the other, there would be periodical social upheavals.

There is nothing strikingly original in this observation. We have been saying it in one form or another for ages, and theorists have been discussing it and propounding all sorts of remedies. The philosopher and the politician would scarcely survive without the painful fact. But the present unrest has been brought about partly because the ugly fact has just been discovered by the semi-serfs of our civilization, and they have adopted the old-fashioned method of making a row about it. They are banging the knocker on the door of State and apparently are determined to keep on banging it till they are heard.

3. Labor is realising its strength. Samson, by his feat of carrying away the gates of Gaza amazed his friends, but he ended his career by bringing to the ground the glory of the Philistinian world. The Modern Samson is equally destructive. Acts of Parliament and Conciliation Boards are nothing to him, and he is gathering strength in battle. Within a few months this Giant has made England bend to his behests and secured a degree of his demands.

And what next? We are in the dark when we contemplate the possibilities of the next development. We hear of the spread of "Syndicalism" to Great Britain—the organization of labor on the basis of national and international action, and of threats more or less dramatic in the force with which they are uttered.

Marquis's Generosity to Tenants

It was announced that, in consideration of the drought and other adverse circumstances, the Marquis of Anglesey had made an abatement of 10 per cent. on the rents of his tenant farmers, due last March, but payable this month. ENTERPRISE OF A MILLIONAIRE

Rockefeller, at 72, Spends Fortune on His Home

At the great age of 72, John D. Rockefeller, richest man in the world, "oil king," etc., is building himself still more magnificent palaces to live in. He has just agreed to an expenditure of $1,000,000 to improve his country home near New York, and the work is to occupy two years. In the interval he and Mrs. Rockefeller will manage to exist in another abode, gorgeous and immense, but not so big as the one he is altering. These alterations have given him the opportunity of coming out as an architect, for he has designed them himself. He made a model of the new buildings, and placed it upon a turn-table on the spot where he intended to build. Ingeniously arranged mechanism made it possible for him to turn it about by means of levers.

The oil king's reason for building is to add ten guest rooms to his home. Mr. Rockefeller is a man brimful of interest in life, whose chief hobby, apart from golf, is to devote a large portion of his immense income to the investigation of the cure and causes of disease, education, and the social advancement of his fellow man.

The new buildings are to be planned according to his own scheme of daily life. He wanted light in the dining-room in the morning and at noon. The only time he insisted upon having light in his office was between two and three o'clock in the afternoon. He wanted his own bed-room dark between three and four o'clock in the afternoon, the hour in which he takes his daily nap after completion of his business in the office.

After much experimenting, he composed a time-table by which he learned when the sun would shine in each room. When he had completed his calculations he turned the completed time-table over to the architects and told them to "go ahead."

THE HIRED MAN

Alberta Paper Hands Out Advice to the Farmer

The "Alberta Homestead," which should know what conditions are, hands out this bit of left-handed advice to the farmer:—

"The hired man will soon be with you for the harvest. He can have his sleeping quarters in the hay loft or the caboose, as he ought to want nothing better.

"Should he show unusual readiness for work, this is a quality which should be encouraged, and 18 hours should be got out of him a day.

"Set him to work right after each meal, as a hired man has no business to fear indigestion, and he can get his rest at night.

"If he's inexperienced at farming, an occasional sneer when he makes a mistake will brace him up, and prevent him from repeating the blunder.

"Give him as many chores to do as possible, especially on Sundays, or he might get into idle ways.

"Try and prevent him from running off to town on Saturday nights, where habits of dissipation might get hold of him. A couple of hours' relaxation with the buckaw will soon stop this.

"A policy of this kind will put any hired man in love with farming and with you, too."

ENGLAND'S COAL SUPPLY

Sir William Ramsay Says 175 Years Will End It

Sir William Ramsay gave a surprise to the members of the British Association, in a grave warning to England that the present rate of consumption of her coal supply she will be a bankrupt nation 175 years hence. "It may be said that 175 years is a long time," said Sir William. "In the life of a nation it is a mere span.' Sir William urged Governmental afforestation and general economy in the use of coal, in order that "our life as a nation may be prolonged." TRAGEDY AT DIGBY

Brothers Had Been Drinking, Get Into a Dispute and One Kills the Other

SHOT HIM DEAD

Halifax, Sept. 22.—A murder took place in a small house on Maiden lane, Digby, about three o'clock yesterday morning, when Harry Wilson shot and killed his brother George. About 2.30 o'clock Harry Wilson called at the house of Ralph Hooper and said that he wanted matches, that there was a stranger in his house whom he had knocked out, and that he wanted a light and someone to accompany him back to see fair play. He then had blood on his arm. James Buchanan, a boarder at Hooper's, accompanied him and when they arrived at Wilson's, a short distance away, a light was burning. His brother George was in the house and Harry's two children, aged two years and eleven months respectively. Everything appeared to be all right. His wife was absent. George said: "If I have done anything wrong, shoot," at the same time pointing towards his heart, and continuing: "Put it there."

Harry grabbed a loaded shotgun and placed the barrel close to his brother's heart and fired, death being instantaneous. The wound caused a terrible flow of blood.

Buchanan notified Chief of Police Bowles, who entered Wilson's house and found him standing with his youngest baby in his arms, and looking at the body. Bowles immediately handcuffed him and conveyed him to the jail. It appears that while Buchanan was gone, Wilson took his eldest child and the gun and rushed over to his father's house, breaking in through the back door and carrying the child and gun to his father's room, said: "I have shot George and have got to die myself. Take the child and keep it and if you will not lend me a revolver to shoot myself I will drown myself off the Long Wharf."

Search was made for Harry Wilson's wife, who was found at 8.30 yesterday morning in a half-dazed condition in a pile of straw in a neighboring barn. She was clad in a night dress and said she had run away from the house and thought she had been asleep in the straw. She said her husband and his brother had been drinking and that her husband had torn her night dress as she was leaving the bed.

Spanish Premier Warns Rioters of His Determination.

Madrid, Sept. 22.—The men employed in the building trades of this city obeyed the strike order, and quit work yesterday. Thirty thousand men are involved.

The military holds the capital in a close grip, and acting under the authority of the Imperial decree suspending the constitutional guarantees, the Government is maintaining a firm attitude toward the labor leaders who, it is claimed, are being used by revolutionary agents to further a campaign of violence against the state.

The streets had their usual appearance yesterday except for the presence of soldiers doing picket duty, and the absence of cabs.

Despatches from the provinces reporting the general situation throughout the country are closely censored, but it appears that the prompt and fearless course adopted by the Government has headed off anything like a general suspension of industrial activity which might develop into a revolution. All suspected persons, including the Republican and Socialist leaders, are under constant surveillance. Many houses have been searched and arms seized, and the prisons are filled with political suspects and rioters. The King remains in the capital.

The Premier said last night that the Government would respect the right of the workingmen to strike so long as they pursued lawful methods, but made it clear that if employes of the public services quit work without having given legal notice, summary measures would be taken. The first sign of revolt would be, he said, the signal for the troops to use their arms without hesitation. He added:

"I am determined once for all to finish with these mutterings of revolution."

Despatches from Valencia, Ferrol, Corunna, Seville and Saragossa, describe those places as tranquil to-day.

The large roller skating rink on Waterloo street, Brantford, was destroyed by fire which broke out about seven o'clock yesterday morning. Loss $15,000.

CONTRARY to all precedent, but rightly, the voters themselves paid for these Five Million votes.

Each man, by laying down $5.00 or upwards, voted his approval of the shaving system developed and perfected by King C. Gillette, and declared his intention of following this system with the Gillette Safety Razor which he received in exchange for his cash.

The principles of personal cleanliness and comfort, made possible by the quick, efficient little Gillette Safety Razor, were first laid down by King C. Gillette in 1904. When the last General Elections were held, in 1908, over Two Million had subscribed to them. Since then they have been adopted and practised by Three Million more clear-headed voters—practical men whose time is worth money.

The Gillette Safety Razor has freed Gillette's constituents, the world over, from dependence on the barber-shop—has conserved their time—preserved their tempers—and, for them, has transformed shaving from an irksome task into a pleasant incident in the morning toilet.

PETERBOROUGH FRIDAY SEPTEMBER 22 1911

WEST RIDING CONSERVATIVE BY NARROW MAJORITY

With One Division in Galway to Hear From Mr. Burnham Has 58 Majority---Final Returns Will Reduce That Somewhat---Sexsmith Holds the East Riding by a Big Majority.

The electoral contest in West Peterborough yesterday was vigorously fought out by both parties, with the result that the Conservative candidate was elected by the narrow majority of 58, with one division to hear from in the north country, which will probably reduce these figures.

The city returned a plurality of 350 in favour of the Conservative candidate, while the country voted a majority of 292 in favour of Mr. Stratton.

For a long time after the returns began to come in there was great uncertainty as to the result. So close was the counting that it was impossible for a while to be certain which had won. The majority won by Mr. Burnham in Peterborough was being rapidly pulled down in the country, and for some time it looked as if Mr. Stratton would be elected. Finally, however as more returns came in and the statistics were revised, it was seen that Mr. Burnham would be elected by a small majority.

There were thousands on the streets waiting to hear the results. From well above the Examiner down George street to Hunter and along that street past the Review office, the pavements and the muddy roads themselves were a solid mass of humanity, cheering for their respective sides. Both evening papers had a telegraph and lantern service, with which the details of the battle of the ballots all over the country were displayed and the returns were watched with the greatest interest.

At Mr. Stratton's Committee Rooms.

After the result of the counting of the ballots had been learned and it was seen that Mr. Stratton, by a small majority, was not elected, he briefly addressed his supporters, who filled the rooms to their fullest capacity. He said that he desired to express his warmest thanks to all those who had worked so faithfully to promote his election. Perhaps no man had ever had as many warm and enthusiastic friends as those he saw around him, fight for him so faithfully and for so many years. They had not been successful, but that was not from lack of energetic effort, but the influences against them were such as no organization of strenuous effort could counteract. They had the satisfaction of knowing that they had fought a clean contest; they had made no appeals to the prejudices or passions of the community. They had endeavoured to confine their discussion to the real issue and they could look the world in the face to-morrow with the consciousness that nothing had been said during the campaign that would cause any regret to any of his followers, or promote feelings of antagonism between citizens. He would be ashamed to occupy a seat won by an appeal of the character that had attributed to his want of success. In all the twenty-five years of his campaign he had been met by some such appeal, but never before had it assumed such an organized or deliberative form. It looked as if the issue had not been received favourably by the Dominion, and if the reports that were coming in were correct, he was better satisfied that he had not been elected, because he would not have been placed in a position where he could be of the service to West Peterborough that was his only desire in accepting the nomination.

Mr. Stratton's remarks were received with the greatest enthusiasm. The broad manner in which he had dealt with the result of the campaign, which he characterized as one of the most unscrupulous in which he had ever been opposed, met with the hearty approval of his supporters. Mr. Stratton said that he did not wish say of his friends to feel at all disappointed; he fully appreciated the splendid work they had done, and had no feelings of regret at his want of success, no blame for which was to be attributed to any lack of warmth on the part of his friends. They had done their best, and if his opponents could regard their share in the campaign, and justify its character with a clear conscience, they would be fortunate.

Mr. R. R. Hall, chairman of Mr. Stratton's election committee, said that although Mr. Stratton had met with defeat by a very small majority, they all had the proud satisfaction of knowing that he fought his election upon a platform that was a credit to the Liberal party and to Canadian public life. The main principle for which he fought was for the extension of Canadian markets with the great republic to the south. The trade issue in this campaign had been beclouded by all sorts of unworthy appeals, such as annexation, and disloyalty to the British connection. The next, and probably the most important principle he fought for, was for an United Canada, in which the citizenship of every elector, no matter what his race or creed might be, would stand upon an equal and a just basis. After the heat of the campaign had died away, many who had been led away by the base appeals of Mr. Burnham and his supporters, would be heartily ashamed of themselves. In order to have a prosperous and a growing city, every citizen must be treated alike, and he thought that it was a disgrace that bigotry and intolerance should actuate the motives of many in their dealings with their fellow citizens and the way they cast their vote. Mr. Stratton conducted a campaign which was an honour and a credit to him. He was sorry that the splendid service he had rendered to this riding during the last twenty-five years at great personal satisfaction to himself, had been so poorly rewarded by the electorate.

Mr. W. H. Meldrum said that Mr. Stratton had a record of faithful service to his riding during the last twenty-five years and he was sorry that he had not reaped the reward that was his due, in being re-elected. This was not the first time that the electors of the city had make a mistake, and he instanced the defeat of the Hon. Senator Cox.

Mr. Andrew McFarlane expressed his regret that Mr. Stratton's years of service to Peterborough should not have been appreciated in a more fitting manner. He congratulated Mr. Stratton's supporters upon the splendid manner in which they had worked in spite of the difficulties they had to work under in the face of the appeals to prejudice that had been made.

With rousing cheers for the King and Mr. Stratton, the meeting was dispersed.

At the Opera House.

The Conservatives held a big meeting in the Opera House when it was known that Mr. Burnham's election was assured.

The candidate, Mr. Kendry, Mr. Sexsmith, member elect for East Peterborough and others addressed the gathering. Afterwards Mr. Burnham and Mr. Kendry spoke briefly to the crowd on Hunter street, using a balcony of the Oriental Hotel as a forum.

CARD OF THANKS

TO THE ELECTORS OF WEST PETERBOROUGH

Although the result of the election of yesterday has not been what was to be desired and expected, I still have a very warm feeling of gratitude towards those electors who supported me so splendidly in this contest, and wish to take this means of giving them my heartiest thanks.

The outside issues imported into the contest, and the inflammatory appeals made to give them effect, have for the moment succeeded, but it is a source of gratification to me and of gratitude to my friends who supported me that in a fight throughout the Dominion, where so many better men have fallen, the tactics I have referred to have in my case only triumphed by a very narrow margin. The appeal so far as I was concerned was confined to the issue, upon which appeal was made to the people. If my opponents in this contest are satisfied as to their manner of conducting the campaign, they will, from my point of view, find self-justification a very easy matter.

I accept the result with the most grateful feelings towards my friends and supporters. I do not attribute it in the slightest degree to any lack of loyalty, or of lack of faithful effort on their part, and accordingly I repeat my most cordial thanks to them, one and all.

Yours very faithfully,

J. R. Stratton

MILAN, ITALY, SEPT. 22.—While a war engine, invented by the Marquis Iperial, was undergoing a test, it exploded with terrific force, six persons bein gkilled, and sixteen injured, including the inventor.

LIBERAL PRESS ON RESULT

Special to The Examiner.

TORONTO, ONT., SEPT. 22.—Liberal papers throughout the country accept the defeat of the Laurier Government gracefully, adding, in most cases, that the principle at stake was worth while being defeated for.

The Montreal Herald remarks it will be a long time before the farmers of Canada will have another such opportunity. They failed to embrace it yesterday, as the returns show.

THE SCOTCH LASSIE AND THE CORN COB

A tale reaches us from Ohio of a Scottish emigrant lassie. She was given a green corn cob to eat, and that was something quite new to her. "Hoo dae ye dae't?" she asked. "D'ye eat it runt an' a'?" Another Scot, though of the male sex, was able to make his answer to an analogous question quite luminous. The corn cob, he explained, was "something lang, jist like a can'le, an' ye eat a' roon't."

WILL MAINTAIN FOR PRESENT EXISTING TARIFF

Premier-Elect Borden Makes Statement---"No Doubt There Will be Trade Negotiations of One Kind or Another in the Future"---Nothing to Say Regarding Plans for the Cabinet.

Special Wire to The Examiner.

HALIFAX, N.S., SEPT. 22.—Premier-elect Borden spent the day in the seclusion of his own home and legal offices, having time for little else than acknowledging congratulations, which came from all parts of the country. In an interview with your correspondent he said: "It should be understood that in the vote which Canada gave against reciprocity yesterday this whole Dominion had no other desire than to express the friendliest relations with the Republic to the south. No doubt there will be trade negotiations of one kind and another in future, but Canada believes that the best way to preserve and extend fraternal feeling between the two countries is to maintain, for the present, the existing tariff." Mr. Borden had nothing to say regarding plans for his cabinet. He will remain in Halifax for some days. Sir Wilfrid Laurier left Quebec for Ottawa this afternoon. It is not decided yet when Borden and his colleagues will take charge.

HOW THE NEWS WAS RECEIVED IN ENGLAND AND UNITED STATES

LONDON, ENG., SEPT. 22.—The overwhelming defeat of the Laurier government and reciprocity was a great surprise to all parties in England, although to the majority of people, especially the Unionists and Tariff Reformers, also a good many Imperial Liberals, the news was welcomed as an evidence of Canada's loyalty to the British Empire and a desire to secure closer trade relations with the Mother country rather than with foreigners. The proposed reciprocity pact between Canada and the United States was viewed by other colonies with some misgivings, and cables have been hot this morning with messages to Imperialists here from distant dominions, congratulating them on the defeat of reciprocity in Canada.

WASHINGTON, D.C., SEPT. 22.—President Taft and leaders of both Republicans and Democrats are undeniably chagrined at the refusal of Canada to enter into a reciprocity agreement with the United States, on what they considered, excellent terms for Canada. The president is in Michigan, but telegrams received from him this morning, indicated keen disappointment. However, he says, it takes two to make a bargain, and if Canada will make no agreement with the United States, the United States will still go on doing business on the same old stand. Chairman Underwood, a Democrat tariff expert and Speaker Champ Clark declared this morning that Canada had lost the opportunity of her lifetime.

MAGISTRATE DUMBLE'S NEPHEW IS SUCCESSFUL CANDIDATE AT COBOURG

Mr. J. B. McColl, brother of Fr. McColl, of this city, the Liberal candidate at Cobourg, went down to defeat by a majority of four. Mr. Chas. Munson, a nephew of Magistrate Dumble, was the successful candidate.

FORMER PETERBOROUGH BOY MET A HORRIBLE DEATH

Word was received here to-day of the tragic death of John Joseph McEntee, a former Peterborough boy. He was struck by a train on Wednesday night while returning from a political meeting at Porcupine, and instantly killed. The body was horribly mangled.

Deceased, who was a miner, went up to the Cobalt district, nearly three years ago, and was employed as a miner, near South Porcupine. He worked in Dakota for one year prior to leaving for Cobalt.

The unfortunate victim was in his 26th year of age. He leaves a mother, two brothers and four sisters.

The mother, who resides at 645 Reid street, when seen by the Examiner, at her home, was too overcome by grief to make any statement regarding her son's death.

The funeral arrangements will not be decided upon until the arrival of the body.

Shall The Milk Be Delivered In Bottles Or Shall It Not?

Is the milk by-law going to become law, and if it does, what will be the result? This is now the question of the day and one that is occupying the attention of a number of our citizens. People are somewhat divided in opinion, but the majority seems to be in favour of abolishing the by-law altogether. For some time past the Board of Health has been agitating this movement, and have finally succeeded in having it passed, and it is now a question of law.

Mr. Carlisle, one of those opposed to the by-law, expressed a few of his views to an Examiner reporter a few days ago, and these appeared in yesterday's issue of the Examiner. The same gentleman, in conversation with a reporter to-day, states further, that he would like to have the opportunity of speaking to the Board of Health on the subject. He stated that he did not think that the Medical Health Officer ever took into consideration the few facts he had expressed, or he (the M.H.O.) would have taken a widely different view of the matter.

Mr. Carlisle stated that he had been talking to a milk consumer to-day and the latter strongly denounced the by-law, for the same reasons that he had denounced it, and further, on the ground that it would put the price beyond the reach of the ordinary wage earning citizen. 8c. per quart would be the jump according to his views, making the price to the consumer 9c. per quart. There are about 5,000 families, milk consumers in the city, and each family consumes at an average of one quart per day. 5000 quarts at 6 cents per qt., is $300; 5000 quarts at 9 cts. per qt. is $450, making an increase of $150 per day, or $54,750 per year. This, according to the idea of Mr. Carlisle, would simply be a tax on the milk to that extent, for nothing.

If what Mr. Carlisle states, would be the result, it is plainly visible that the by-law would be a burden, but it is contradicted by good authority. Chief of Police Thompson made a statement this afternoon, for which he had many backers. It was to the effect that the price of milk would not be changed in the slightest degree. He was perfectly satisfied that it would be a much more sanitary mode of delivering milk than that in operation at present. He thought that there could be nothing more exposed to disease and germs than is the milk while being carted about the streets in open cans, the latter being in use for some time and until the tinning is worn off them. The Chief had not the slightest doubt that the milk vendors would clean their bottles thoroughly. He was perfectly satisfied that they would take pains with the bottles. He did not think that the glass bottles would carry disease anyway. The milk vendors all say that if the by-law carries they will raise the price, but the Chief does not think there is anything in this. He states that in London and Wandsworth the same by-law was carried and proved a success, being perfect in every way, and the price remained at 6 cents per quart. Now the matter is between the Board of Health and the consumers. Shall the milk be delivered in bottles or shall it not?

THE RESULT IN THE EAST.

The outcome of the voting in East Peterborough, is not surprising in view of the results in other parts of Ontario. Mr. Kerr made a splendid campaign and the outcome is most creditable to his energy and ability, in view of the specially strong influences exotic to the real issue brought against, especially the race and religion cry, which exercised inthe East riding the same influence it exercised especially in Peterborough and in other parts of the province. On the merits of the quest ion submitted to the people, Mr. Kerr would have made Mr. Sexsmith's majority, if any, very modest.

THE GENERAL RESULT.

The result of yesterday's voting in the Dominion was the decisive rejection of the Liberal Government. The issue of reciprocity has been apparently pronounced against—with most marked effect, in Ontario, though the other provinces of the Dominion, taken as a whole, have spoken in favour of the Government's policy. In Ontario, especially, the result was not due to argument. The electors were stampeded, and a specious wove of anti-United States sentiment submerged the thinking and reasoning capacity of the electorate. This, with the bogey of danger to British connection and the play upon the sentiment of the easily-influenced and those more given to feeling than reasoning, formed a combination that was, for the moment, effective. It is iposible to regard the result of yesterday's vote as a defeat of the policy of enlarged trade relations, upon its merits. Its merits were hidden from the electors' eyes, behind a mass of factitious obstacles—questions and irrelevant issues that were ingeniously made to assume an importance they did not deserve, or could not legitimately claim. It is not to be forgotten that while in Ontario Mr. Borden and his managers, exolpited the loyalty and British connection cry, he and they gave countenance and encouragement to the Empire-wrecking Nationalist movement in Quebec; and of the majority claimed by Mr. Borden fifteen are composed of members of Quebec constituencies elected to the war cry: "We have had too much of England and the Empire"—a situation that serves to emphasize the claim that the Government was defeated by influences that were not legitimately a part of the issue upon which the verdict of the people was sought.

THE RESULT IN THE WEST.

The result of yesterday's election in West Peterborough is, it is frankly admitted, a disappointment; but it is not a surprise. In view of the unscrupulous means adopted, in the importation into the contest of issues entirely foreign to the real issue. The rabid and inflammatory appeals to the electorate on the race and religion cry had its share of effect, and the free employment of the "substantial" argument was not without weight. There is reason to believe that many Liberals failed of appreciation of the advantages of the reciprocity agreement, while many Conservative electors, who were more convinced of its advantages, allowed their party zeal and loyalty to influence their action. No doubt many Liberals were frightened by the annexation cry—the fear that was sedulously impressed upon the electorate that the simple exchange of farm products would result in their being forcibly annexed to the United States. Many were unduly influenced by the race and religion cry, and the skillful playing upon theprejudices against Sir Wilfrid Laurier, because he was of French origin, and of the Roman Catholic religion. The workingmen were stampeded by appeals to the danger of injury to the manufacturing interests, and through them to their own interests, which were in no way involved in the issue. Their minds were besieged with the arguments that the price of living would be increased by a larger market and more profitable sale of farm and stock products, while the producers of those were, by one way and another, confused in their view of the advantages they would gain. The lack of knowledge by the "British Born" of Canadian conditions, and of the influence of enlarged trade, was played upon to influence the newly-arrived English, and others, through the alleged danger to the dominance of British connection and British interests, and his sentiment of loyalty to the mother land, were also mischievously played upon to lead him astray—to lead him to cast his vote under false conditions. With all these and many other similar influences more numerously and diligently exploited than in any other political contest in the riding, the result is not so much a matter of surprise.

While the Liberal candidate is naturally disappointed by the result, this feeling is much lessened by the consideration arising out of the fact that the Government, being defeated, his influence would be lessened in regard to giving the best service to West Peterborough. He did not desire to enter the contest and it was only at the personal solicitation of many citizens, many of these Conservatives, with substantial interests in Peterborough, that he consented to contest the election; he felt that if elected and the Government sustained, he could be of service to the riding, which has, by a slender majority, failed of appreciation of his past services, or of his capacity for further service.

MONEY AS A PEACEMAKER.

The situation in which Germany finds herself, as a result of the development of the Morroccan dispute, shows the power of money, and also shows that nations, like individuals, cannot be independent of their neighbours. The mailed fist is muscled by money, and, in the case of Germany, her own money cannot furnish the sinews of war for more than a day, so to speak. When Germany took a threatening attitude, and sent a warship to Agadir; when war actually threatened, the isolation and dependence of Germany speedily developed. Owing to the recent great and rapid industrial and commercial expansion the German Empire has made, it became an attractive field for foreign investments, especially for Great Britain and France, whose financial men have literally poured money into Germany in the form of investments. When the rising war cloud threatened a storm, the value and safety of these investments were imperelled and it was no more than natural prudence — good business — for these capitalists to withdraw, as far as possible, their money. This threw Germany on her own financial resources. Large, as is the German war fund, it is only a drop in the bucket towards meeting the crushing expenses of a great war. This fund would only last a short time, and domestic taxes and home loans would make the burden impossible for the people already crushed under the pressure of militarism. History shows that without money war cannot be waged. Germany is not equipped in this respect, as France was at the time of the Franco-German war. The money of the French was not in the hands of capitalists; it was scattered among the household hoards of the people of France. Here is where the proverbial thrift of the French people was a source of saving strength to France. In her hour of need she did not have to go to the foreign money lenders to meet the tremendous financial obligations imposed by war. With the French peasant and the French peasantry, and the people generally, saving is an instinct, and the little board of a few sous in the hands of the peasant, multiplied a million fold, became the salvation of the nation. The power of thrift, as exemplified by France, speaks volumes of praise for the merits of the Government's Annuities system, founded upon a principle that teaches thrift, which if generally practised, would, in the course of time, make Canada financially strong in other ways than by the accumulation of wealth derived from the exploitation of her splendid resources.

Germany, in her crusade of commercial expansion by high-handed methods, has found that in the case of Morrocco, the flight of capital from the country would, by no means, be compensated for by commercial advantages thus sought, and she will probably be more cautious in the future. This probability is strengthened by the statement made in Paris that Baron Rothschild of Frankfort, made it a condition that Germany should give a reply satisfactory to France before he would agree to furnish the money to pay off some 250,000,000 marks in German treasury notes, which are due next Monday. If this be true, Rothschild might set up a claim to being the European peacemaker, and it is another evidence of the omnipotence of money, even as a peacemaker.

Card of Thanks

To the Electors of East Peterborough:

It is a pleasure for me, in this public way, to recognise the splendid efforts put forth by my many friends in East Peterborough on my behalf.

In the campaign just concluded appeals to prejudice and appeals based on false annexation cries have, for the time, succeeded. I have the satisfaction of knowing that a splendid fight was made on behalf of Reciprocity and Liberalism, but the electors having pronounced unfavourably, it is our duty, as good citizens, to accept the result so pronounced for the time being.

I desire to thank most heartily those who worked in my support and those who voted for the cause that I represented.

There is but one duty for all of us both Liberal and Conservative, and that is to strive, each in his own way, to build up and strengthen our common country. I am,

Yours very sincerely,

F. D. KERR

TO SHOW UNCLE SAM

Enthusiasm, we read, is being wrought up to the greatest pitch in America over a Scottish arrival, but it is not that of the Marquis of Queensberry—or should it be Mr. F Sholto Douglas? The small party that has awakened great expectations consists of two Scots farmers, one from Ancrum, and the other from Arran, and their collies. The farmers have come to show what the collies can do. They are to attend a series of great fairs, and give exhibitions in the driving and handling of the wildest of sheep, and it may be taken for granted that both men and dogs will reflect credit on the national "nous" and uptake. We may hold something in reserve when we are told of the Highland collie that discovered a stray half-dozen sheep by carefully examining the distant hills through a telescope, and then went off and brought them home; and even have our "doots" about the two collies that rounded up the herd of cattle they were driving because some stray bullocks had joined the pack, and then, the one dog getting on the back of the other, examined the brand to make sure which was which, but there is no room for questioning the sagacity of the Scotch sheep dog, and his marvellous acumen in interpreting the signs transmitted to him by his master long after he has passed out of hearing and is working on the face of the hill.

DESCENDANT OF "OLD Q"

The Marquis of Queensberry, who left Liverpool for New York in the Mauretania the other Saturday, may, according to the New York Herald, become a citizen of the United States, says the Daily Mail's Paris correspondent.

"If I can find a chance in business or a suitable position," the Marquis is reported as having stated. "I will make my home in the United States, and become an American citizen. There is no room for me here, where we are played out and the old order is passing away.

"I am a Peer of Scotland, and the only Marquis in the United Kingdom who is not a member of the House of Lords. I am a Liberal, and the Scottish Peers would never select me, because of my known sympathy with progress and real reform. With the Lords of Scotland against me because I am a Liberal, and the Liberal Government opposed to me because I am a Lord, I am seeking new fields to better my condition."

The Marquis of Queensberry, who is forty-three years of age, has been a midshipman in the Royal Navy and a lieutenant of the 3rd Battalion of the King's Own Scottish Borderers.

DEATH OF NOTED SCOTTISH SHOWMAN

Greenockians, Glaswegians, and other Old Country folks in Peterboro will regret to hear of the death of Mr John Wilmot, sen., round-about proprietor and amusement caterer, which took place at his residence, 15 Irongate, Glasgow, on Sunday, 13th August.

Mr. Wilmot, who was upwards of 70 years of age, was among the oldest showmen on the road, and was well-known all over the country. He was a familiar figure at Greenock and Glasgow Fair, which he had visited for a long number of years, for a considerable portion of which he was lessee of the showground. On the occasion of the visit of the shows to the Princes Pier, about ten weeks ago, he was in attendance. He established his business as long ago as 1863, and thanks to his business capacity it has prospered and kept abreast of the times ever since. He had not been in good health for some time, and was only a couple of days in Dumbarton the previous week supervising his business when he took ill, and had to be removed home. He leaves six sons and three daughters, all of whom are in the business.

Exciting Experience

Three gentlemen in a small boat, which left Tarbert, Loch Fyne, for a day's fishing recently on the loch, had a unique and trying experience, as well as a providential escape from death. When returning they espied a monster whale coming in their direction. Closer and closer it came, and the party now realised their dangerous position, and made every effort to divert the course, when the whale was under, but on coming to the surface it would again follow. It rose one time a yard from the little craft, and how the occupants managed to manipulate the boat back and forward out of its way they cannot tell.

Another time as it was rising to the surface they had to pull back, for it was right underneath the boat. It followed them across the loch, and once within arm's length of the shore the party were safe. The monster measured 20 feet, and made its way again out to the open sea.

waters by which her coasts are surrounded.

German activity in the North Sea is being manifested also at Borkum, the island that is situated at the mouth of the River Ems, and the most westerly point of the German territory. The fortifications of this island, hitherto only moderate, are being greatly increased, and their ultimate strength will include between forty and fifty heavy and medium quick-firing guns.

Brunsbuttiel is another point on which much energy is being concentrated. A great repairing yard is in course of construction here, and there is every likelihood of the work, which includes two Dreadnought docks, being completed by 1914, or two years before our one dock at Rosyth. The Kiel Canal, again, is being so enlarged that Dreadnoughts will be able to traverse it, and as this work is costing ten millions sterling—or two millions more than the original cost of the canal—it will be seen that Germany is prepared to sacrifice much to secure something that may be of use to her when the time comes.

GIFT TO THE NATION

It is officially announced that the Secretary of State for War has received an offer of £10,000 as a gift to the nation for the purposes of a gift range, near one of the thickly populated districts of England. The donor wishes to remain anonymous. He signs his letter "An Englishman from Beyond the Seas," and emphasises the growing impulse throughout the Empire towards united action for defence and the importance of organizing the spirit of patriotism on common lines to the best advantage.

In writing to accept the gift on behalf of His Majesty's Government, Lord Haldane has expressed their warm appreciation of the generosity and public spirit which has prompted the gift.

ST. LUKE'S FESTIVAL

St. Luke's Harvest Thanksgiving service will be held to-night at 8 o'clock, when the Rev. Dr. Symonds, vicar of Christ church cathedral, Montreal, will be the special preacher. A number of the clergy are expected to be present.

After the service a cordial invitation is extended to all who wish to do so, to meet Dr. Symonds in the Sunday school.

The Rev. Dr. Symonds, of Montreal, and the Rev. Canon Plumptre, of St. James' Cathedral, Toronto, are visitors at St. Luke's to-day.

"SCOTLAND FOR EVER!"

Knox Church is the venue of the big Scottish clan gathering this (Friday) evening, and the poetic muse has roused the ardour of a local chief thus:

The pibroch is sounding o'er torrent and fen,
O'er mountain and moorland, through valley and glen
The "clans they" are gathering," like foam on the sea,
Like mist on the mountains, like flow'rs on the lea;
Like hurricane's blast in the fierce winter gale,
They're coming from shieling, from hamlet and vale.
Though thunder may crash, they heed not its roar,
Though lightning may flash they but laugh the more;
Born amid tempests—to fear they are strangers—
Their places the forefront, their post that of danger.
Then forward, ye daughters and sons of Auld Scotia,
The stake cannot fear you, your Bible will cheer you;
Your path is the path of the just and the blest—
Descendants of heroes, the bravest and best!

* * *

List to the battle cry, "Forward, ye gallant ones!"
Come in your thousands, brave daughters and noble sons;
How lou'l the pibaeg, high let the Stand, A wave,
Shoulder to shoulder like heroes the brunt we brave.
Dauntless and fearless, firm as our native shore.
The bagpipes will cheer us though loud the cannon roar;
Our warpipes shall mingle with hot and with shells—
Our voices shall sing of our hills and our dells;
And woe to the foemen who stand in the way
When the Scots take the field in stern battle array.
Then come let us sing of the islands and wildwoods,
So dear to our lone hearts that nothing can sever;
And shout loud the chorus, the home of our childhood,
That earth may re-echo it—"Scotland for Ever!"

BRITAIN'S SEA LAMPS

The disuse of the old oil-lamps at St Agnes' Lighthouse at the western extremity of the Scilly Isles and the adoption of the automatic incandescent beacon on Peninnis Head, St Mary's, shows how the business of lighting up our coasts progresses. The Northern Lighthouse Commissioners have installed these beacons at several of their stations. A universal adoption of the automatic principle would mean the abolition of lighthouses in their present form.

Ever since men first began to go "down to the sea in ships" and were overtaken by darkness, beacon fires have been used to guide them safely to the shore. For instances, the beacon is mentioned in the Scriptures. Homer, like a true poet, was impressed with the romantic symbolism of the distant light. In Pope's translation of the "Iliad," after describing Achilles and his "refulgent shield," he proceeds spiritedly:

So to-night—wandering sailors, pale with fears,
Wide o'er the watery waste, a light appears,
Which on the far-seen mountain blazing high,
Streams from some lonely watch tower to the sky.

The ancient mariner seldom ventured out of sight of land, so that the embryo lighthouse would on account of its lofty position, guide him on his way for long distances.

Coming to a later date, the first lighthouse which attracts the attention of the modern writer is undoubtedly the Tour de Cordouan. Situated on a reef at the mouth of the Garonne estuary, it was built during the reign of Henry IV. of France, and completed in 1610. It was 197 feet in height, had many galleries, and an ornateness of architecture characteristic of the time. The outer walls, the lightkeeper's casemates, and the chapel, made it one of the most imposing edifices of its kind that has ever yet been built. At first billets of wood were burned; later on, coal was used to produce the light. The story of the Eddystone and its lighthouse-builders is too well known to need recalling here.

MAY ISLAND

In Scotland, about the time of James VI., there was question of the need of coastwise lighting, and an enterprising Fife laird, Sir George Bruce, proposed that he should be allowed to erect beacons on dangerous spots in the Firth of Forth, and reimburse himself by a tax on the foreign vessels frequenting the firth. The other coal proprietors of Fife and the Lothians felt they ought to have a say in this matter, as only vessels for coal and salt came that way, and they undertook to erect the required beacons. There is no record as to whether Sir George Bruce ever carried out his proposal, but a few years later the royal burghs contemplated having lights erected on the May Island at the mouth of the firth; and soon after one was actually put upon the May, being the first known to have been formed in connection with the Scottish coasts, and for generations a solitary example on those of the island generally. A Fife laird, Alexander Cunningham of Barns—a relative, it would appear, of the wife of the poet Drummond—had the merit of establishing this useful protection for shipping. Obtaining the proper authority from Charles I., he, in 1635 erected on the isle "a tower forty feet high, vaulted to the top, and covered with flag-stones, whereon, all the year over," says Sir Robert Sibbald, writing in the reign of Charles II., "there burns in the night-time a fire of coals for a light; for which the masters of ships are obliged to pay for each ten two shillings (twopence sterling). This showeth light," he adds, "to all the ships coming out of the Firths of Forth and Tay, and to all places between St Abb's Head and Redcastle (Montrose), through a natural [illegible] the powers of darkness and the interest here concerned, the architect of the May light-tower was drowned on his return from the isle in a storm, believed to have been caused by witches, who were in consequence burned. The fire was duly kept burning by the successors of Cunningham till the erection of a regular light house on modern principles by the Commissioners of Northern Lights. It required three hundred and eighty tons of Wemyss coal annually, that kind being selected on account of the clearness of its flame. In 1790, the rack or lease of this privileged light with its tax of three halfpence a ton on Scottish, and threepence on foreign shipping, rose from £280 to £980 and in 1800 it was let at £1,500; "a striking proof," as has been remarked, "of the increase of the trade of this country," during the period.

BELL ROCK

Tradition has worked up a pretty story about the "Inchcape Rock" off Arbroath, but it was not till 1807 that preparations were made for lighting this dangerous reef. The task was an arduous one, as only for a few hours of the ebb tide is the slimy seaweed-grown rock visible; at high tide it is buried a couple of fathoms deep. The engineer, Mr. Robert Stevenson, was equal to the task, although on one occasion he and his thirty men were in danger of being drowned by the rising tide, when the attending vessel had broken adrift. Progress was slow but sure; work was continued by torchlight on calm nights. Yet at the end of the second season only five and a half feet of masonry was built. The whole tower, 100 feet in height, was finished in 1811.

THE DEADLY SKERRYVORE

For very many years mariners navigating between the Hebrides and the North Channel had a wholesome dread of the deadly Skerryvore Reef, which lies about twenty miles westward of Iona, out in the Atlantic. Sir Walter Scott visited it in 1814, and expresses his sense of its extreme isolation in his diary. At least thirty vessels were known to have been wrecked there between 1804 and 1844. In 1838 Mr. Alan Stevenson began operations with a view to erecting a lighthouse on the glassy gneiss. A temporary barracks on piles was put up, promptly washed away, and replaced in the following season. In this structure the engineer and his assistants were sometimes isolated by storms for a fortnight at once, and compelled to spend most of the time in bed. The granite of which the tower was to be built had to be brought from the islands of Tiree and Mull, and the huge blocks were landed from the rolling vessels on to the low rocks with infinite difficulty. The masonry work, of which there was 58,000 cubic feet, was completed in 1842, the artisans having labored from dawn to dusk when the weather permitted. Finally, on February 1st, 1844, the light flashed out from its position 138 feet above the waves. The total cost was upwards of £87,000.

HOW GERMANY IS FORTIFYING HER COASTS

Wilhelmshaven, Germany's great North Sea naval base, was begun as long ago as 1856. Natural difficulties made the work extremely costly, and at one time it was proposed to abandon it in favour of Geestemunde. Teutonic doggedness, however, won the day; and Wilhelmshaven to-day is in the proud position of being the most fully equipped dockyard for Dreadnoughts in the world. Nearly ten thousand men are employed, and there are three docks that can take Dreadnoughts and three suitable for other ships, in addition to three floating docks for torpedo craft. Heligoland, which in an evil hour (says the Pall Mall Gazette) was given to Germany by Britain, is now being converted into a fortress of the first class, and will soon be comparable with Dantzig or Wilhelmshaven. This islet is some thirty-seven miles distant from the outflow of the Ems, the Weser, and the Elbe, and is looked upon as the outpost of the defences of the coast in case of invasion. It is about half a square kilometer in superficies, and is now practically cased in steel and armed with the largest modern guns. So enormous must have been the outlay that it is to be wondered at that the German Navy League did not see how much better value they would have got for their money had it been expended on the mobile navy instead of on an unnecessary fortress. To talk as some do, saying that if a fleet of the enemy were to possess themselves of Heligoland they could then use it as a base of operations, and thereby paralyse the German fleet, is to have but little acquaintance with North Sea conditions. However, it is not we who should complain if Germany cares to throw away her money into the sandy

Doing Things By Clear Thinking

The thought comes first

The better the brain,
The better the thought,
The better the achievement.

A good working brain is built up from food which contains the things brain is made of.

Grape-Nuts

FOOD

is skilfully and scientifically prepared from wheat and barley and contains the "vital" phosphate of potash essential in building up a well-balanced body and brain.

"There's a Reason"

FOR

Grape-Nuts

SAVE NINE
With a Stitch in Time.

To know of and use a food that will feed and restore brain and nerves before slight nervous troubles end in complete nervous prostration or brain-fag is wise; for unless proper food is supplied daily it is unreasonable to expect the nervous system to sustain the demands made upon it.

There is a food, Grape-Nuts, for the particular purpose of restoring weakened nerves or fagged brain to health and strength.

A business man, of Baltimore, who made the trial says:

"Two years ago my health had become so seriously impaired it was impossible for me to attend to business. At the least exertion my nerves would give way and the condition of my system allowed me little or no rest or sleep at night. Stomach trouble soon followed and I could take no solid food. I tried the best tonics and medicines but they all failed.

"Finally Grape-Nuts food was recommended and after using it for 10 days I began to feel its good results and at the end of three months I was again a well man—nerves restored to their normal condition, strength renewed, and I was able to do any amount of both mental and physical work without feeling unduly fatigued.

"I know Grape-Nuts built up my brain and nerves and still keep them strong and vigorous just exactly as food builds up muscles or fat, for instance, and I am glad to have learned this valuable lesson." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Trial 10 days proves things when Grape-Nuts food is used. "There's a Reason."

THE CALL OF THE SEA

At this season of the year in the Auld Land thousands hear it and respond. From city, town and hamlet the human side sets towards the coast. But this extraordinary attraction of the shore for landward folk, which has grown from small beginnings of little more than a century ago, is not the "call" with which I am immediately concerned. The "call" of the sea, as it is known to those who live within sound of it, is something of a mystery. Everyone is familiar with the concluding lines in Tennyson's "Enoch Arden":

Then the third night after this
There came so loud a calling of the sea,
That all the houses in the haven rang.
. . . . .

The poet's own comment on this passage, as recorded by his son, was: "The calling of the sea is a term used, I believe, chiefly in the western parts of England to signify a ground swell. When this occurs on a windless night the echo of it rings through the timbers of the old houses in a haven."

This is true enough in its way, but in Skye and the islands of the west, and among the Erse folk, the sea calls in great roaring billows, or mourns as it sweeps over the yellow sands for the brave men gone down to its deeps; crying to the night in surf and billow and lapping little waves.

There are occasions when miles inland the voice of the sea can be heard, while to the dwellers by the shore the sound is just the same as on other occasions, when at the distance of those same miles inland the sea is inaudible. Why the "call" should be plainly heard far from the shore at one time and not at another, when to the observer by the beach there is nothing to differentiate the two occasions, remains something of a mystery. There is an allusion to this island heard call of the water in another of Tennyson's poems—"The Palace of Art"—an allusion quite different from the reference in "Enoch Arden" to the sound heard in the haven on the shore:

As in strange lands a traveller walking slow
In doubt and great perplexity,
A little before moon-rise hears the low
Moan of an unknown sea.

To other dwellers along the western marge the ear is haunted with little swirling eddies from an unseen, far-off water, tones full of the most melancholy of its own illimitable knowledge, breathed out of the shrouding veil of the mists. Cornishmen know those voices. Scientific men theorise about them. A well-known authority on things Cornish says that when the "'calling of the sea' is heard inland during a calm the next wind that springs up is, in nine cases out of ten, from about the direction of the calling. If during a gentle breeze the calling proceed from the same direction as the wind, the wind will remain longer in that quarter than if no such calling had been heard. During a strong wind there is no calling." This is one of the most curious features of this mysterious sound of the sea—that in a strong wind it is unheard, while in calm weather or in a gentle breeze it may reach the ear of the wayfarer far inland. It is difficult to resist the conviction that the "call" must depend upon atmospheric conditions which are too subtly differentiated to be detected by the ordinary observer with his rule of thumb methods. The ideas of the Breton folk about the "calling" of the sea are much the same as those of their kinsmen the Cornishmen. Souvestre, in one of his Brittany books, "Les Derniers Bretons," gives a graphic description of the "call" as heard a couple of leagues inland. R.

FLAGS OF THE DOMINIONS

A noteworthy point in the conjoint naval organisation of the Empire is that the men-of-war of the Canadian and Australian Navies are to fly the white ensign, without any differentiating device, at the ensign staff, and their own flag on the jack staff. People have got so used to regarding the device of the Union Flag itself as constituting the "Jack" that the project to wear a flag of different composition at the bow of the ship will seem strange and unnatural to many. Of course, it ought not to do so, for the term "Jack" has nothing whatever to do with the device on the flag. Indeed, flags similar in design to ensigns—that is to say, flags with a colored field and the Union in the canton, have been flown on the jack staff before now, and it will be merely a return to an old practice when the men-of-war of the Dominions begin to use a flag with a fly for a "Jack." Throughout the eighteenth century, for instance, all British privateers wore as a "Jack" a Union, "bordered with red"—that is to say, a flag like a small red ensign. But it was both by position and by size a "Jack," not an ensign; its use also was that of a "Jack," whose purpose is, or rather used to be, to show the service on which the ship was employed. That usage arose in the days when the Navy used all three ensigns, so that a ship with a red ensign might, save for the distinction of her "Jack," be either a man-of-war, a privateer, or a merchantman. Of late the prevailing custom has been to make all necessary distinctions of service by means of variation of the ensign. That the Dominion Navies are to wear the white ensign shows that they are in very truth part and parcel of the naval strength of the Empire; while the distinction by means of the "Jack" is not only necessary, but is a happy return to an old and honored usage

A LUMBERMAN'S OPINION

"I was troubled with palpitation of the heart and sleeplessness," writes Mr Wm. Pritchard, Lumber Inspector, Lumsden Mills, Ont., "and used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with very great benefit, as my whole system was strengthened and built up." Dr Chase's Nerve Food forms new, rich blood and restores the feeble wasted nerve cells.

REFORMING THE CALENDAR

Some novel proposals are contained in the Fixed Calendar Bill, presented by Sir Henry Dalziel, and supported by Mr. Wilkie, Mr. Pringle, and Mr. Munro Ferguson. The memorandum accompanying the text of the bill, which was issued recently, explains that the bill purposes to substitute for the present irregular calendar a fixed calendar having regular periods of which the week is a common measure. It differs in some important features from the Calendar Reform Bill introduced on March 16, 1908, by Mr. Robert Pearce. That bill sought to make the months as uniform in length as possible, but as a difference in this respect is unavoidable in a year with twelve months, it is therefore thought better to increase that difference so as to allow of the week being a common measure of all the months. This arrangement makes it possible for each month to begin on a Sunday and end on a Saturday.

The memorandum points out that although the making of a definite and regular difference between the lengths of the months does not introduce any new elements into the meaning of the word "month," seeing that the months already differ in length, it has been thought well to codify the present rule determining monthly periods and to make a rule regarding the computing of monthly salaries. The bill provides that the conditions of labor on "New Year Day" and "Leap Day," and also the remuneration thereof, shall conform as far as possible to what prevails on Sundays. In meeting the desire for a fixed date for each of the movable holy days it has been thought sufficient to enact a fixed date only for Easter, which is to be upon April 15 as all the others are calculated from the date of Easter. As in Mr Pearce's bill and in the Calendar Act of 1751, provision is made regarding the coming of age and other events which may be affected by the passing of this bill. The bill, if passed by Parliament, will not become operative until the Crown decided that sufficient international concurrence has been secured.

A table giving the proposed fixed calendar shows that the months of January, February, April, May, July, August, October, and November would each consist of 28 days, whilst the remaining months of March, June, September, and December would each have 35 days. "New Year Day" is set apart, thus bringing the total of days up to the requisite number of 365, whilst for leap years a special day is set apart as "Leap Day," which is to be intercalated between the last day of June and the first day of July as reconstituted by the bill. A clause of the bill lays it down that the New Year Day and Leap Day shall neither of them be accounted days of the week, and shall not, except where specially mentioned or provided for, be held to be included in any computation of days, but shall otherwise be public bank holidays.

SPECIAL SERVICES

The special Harvest Thanksgiving services, to be held in the S. A. Temple on Saturday and Sunday next, will be of a very special character. The interior of the Temple will be tastily decorated, including a miniature cathedral, with chimes and lighting installed, a farmyard with wind mill, etc. Special music will be rendered and appropriate topics in keeping with harvestide.

On Monday evening the annual sale will take place, and an appeal is made for donations of all kinds of goods, groceries, tea, coffee, poultry, vegetables, tinware, dry goods, fruit—in fact, anything of a saleable nature, suitable for household use, will be acceptable. The Temple will be open all day Saturday to receive donations, and the public are invited to the meetings and the sale.

"Indian" Fined

A local man was fined $10.00 in the Police Court this morning. He was found drunk while under the black list law, but refused to tell who sold him the liquor. The License Inspector gave evidence against him, to the effect that when he saw him he was lying in bed drunk with all his clothes on.

Noted Divines Here

The chimes were rung to-day at noon in honour of Rev. Canon Plumptre, rector of St. James' Cathedral, Toronto, and Rev. Dr. Symonds, of Montreal, who favoured the city with their presence.

THE BEAUTY SPOT

A Very Attractive Production—Popular Price Matinee

Announced as a bewildering mixture of melodious songs, gay dancers, gingery lines, amusing situations, handsome costumes, flowery scenes, star cast, young and fascinating chorus girls, with Frank Deshon in the leading role, will be seen at the Grand to-morrow (Saturday) matinee when the Herald Square Theatre success, "The Beauty Spot," will play an engagement of two performances.

The piece is also claimed to be of a light and interesting plot of laughter-compelling foolery, built on a story by Joseph Herbert and adorned with Reginald DeKoven's tuneful music. The supporting cast is made up of artists well and favourably known to local theatre-goers.

The matinee prices are exceedingly attractive for such a stupendous production and a large audience is assured.

Kinmount Fair

KINMOUNT, SEPT. 21.—The fair was held on the 18th and 19th of September. The weather on the 18th was fine, but on the morning of the 19th it rained quite heavily, which prevented a large number from attending. However, the afternoon turned out fine and those who were present enjoyed themselves. The exhibits were greater than last year or the year before, and the quality was excellent. The judges stated that no better roots and vegetables were seen by them at any fair attended, and could not be beaten. Ladies' work was fine. Horses, sheep, cattle, and fowl were better than for a number of years. Some really fine animals were shown. The speeding in the ring was as usual. A game of baseball was played between Bancroft and Galway, resulting in a victory for Bancroft by a score of 11 to 6.

The judges did their work in an impartial way and to them the thanks of the directors of the Fair are due. The judges were:

Ladies' work—Mrs. and Miss Brandon, Fenelon Falls.

Poultry — Mr. Townsend, Burnt River.

Cattle—Mr. Hadley, Burnt River.

Horses — Messrs. Elliott, Garbley, and Braden.

HARD WINTER

MIDDLE HADDAM, CONN., SEPT 20.—Horace Johnson, Connecticut's aged weather forecaster, who achieved prominence by forecasting the blizzard of 1888, promises a long and severe winter this year.

He says: "There will be a snowfall as early as the 18th October, and ice will form on the streams by the 12th November."

Incidentally he also forecasts a drought for 1912

UMPIRE ARRESTED

MICHIGAN CITY, IND., SEPT. 20.—Umpire Claude Hamilton, of Sault. Ste. Marie, Mich., was put in jail yesterday as a sequel to his officiating in a lively baseball game of 12 innings that the Grand Rapids Central League team won from the Michigan City Grays, 3 to 1. A riotous demonstration of spectators who thought that the umpire favoured the Michigan team, enlivened the contest.

With the ending of the game, scores of men and boys surrounded the umpire, hooted and yelled and made threats, but there was no violence until a young man stepped up to Hamilton and jeered. Hamilton struck the man and two policemen pounced upon him and beat other belligerents away with clubs.

Hamilton, and the man he attacked were led to jail, followed by a jeering crowd, who were prevented from an attack only by the threatening clubs of policemen.

That English Effect

The rolling lapel, with its soft, yielding and natural effects, is one of the outcomes of our wholesale migration to see the Coronation festivities.

It is "that English effect," and it is illustrated in the Semi-ready style book this season. The truly English garment is characterized by the natural shoulders, the softness of the coat front and lapels, the precise roundness of coat corners, and the absolute absence of even the suggestion of a "dip." The vest is high cut and the trousers are "slim."

If you do not find in stock a suit that will fulfil your requirements, one can be made to special order from $18 up.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

My small niece Rosalie had been kept awayke for hours one night by a mosquito in her room.

In the morning her mother was comforting her, and armed with the witch hazel, was hunting for the little warrior's wounds which seemed to be surprisingly few.

"Why, Rosalie," she finally objected, "he doesn't seem to have bitten you more than two or three times. I don't see how that could have kept you awake so long."

"But mother," protested Rosalie, "he buzzed so. It wasn't what he did so much as what he acted as if he was going to do."

It seems to me that poor, little, sleepy Rosalie quite unknowingly described an outlook on life that does more harm than all the other species of mental cross-eyedness put together.

For the most part it isn't what our troubles do to us that makes us so unhappy. It's what they act as if they were going to do.

We could stand the few real attacks they make upon us, the few real injuries they inflict, if it were not for the attacks and injuries we think we are going to suffer.

Suppose you could see all the mental energy your possible troubles have cost you in one total, and that which your real troubles have taken out of you in another—which do you think would be the largest?

The first I fancy, for most people don't fret at all about real troubles—they just endure them.

It's buzzing, not bites that keep us awake of night times and makes us unhappy daytimes, and makes us thin and sad and sour looking, and uses up the precious vitality that we need for other purposes.

And remember this, all you who want to succeed in the business of life—and I suppose that is equivalent to saying everybody—the who is constantly fighting ghosts is seldom capable of fighting any of the real battles on the highroad to success, which require all a man or woman's full powers.

Buster Brown has a resolution on the subject of the needless unhappiness caused by the buzzing of that mosquito which so seldom bites, which I'm sure you'll appreciate, whether you are a victim or not.

"Resolved! that worry is work. People who worry have got a life job with no pay envelope on Saturdays. Worry is crossing the bridge before you come to it, and while you're on it and after you're over. Tige says he never thinks about it until he gets there and if the bridge is down he swims the creek. I guess we can't worry if we stop saying 'if.'"

Buster Brown.

KITCHEN SHOWER

A very pleasant occurrence took place at the home of Mr. Joseph Archer, 4th line of Smith, when the many friends, of Miss Winnifred Deeprose gathered to express their good wishes and present her with a kitchen shower, prior to her departure for the west. Guests to the number of about seventy-five spent a very enjoyable evening and certainly fitted up the kitchen with a great many requisites, which will be very much appreciated when the new home is set up. The presents consisted of linen, cutlery, china, granite ware and silver. Each gift was accompanied by a rhyme grave or gay and original, which when read aloud during the presentation, added greatly to the amusement. The evening was spent in games and music, refreshments being served at eleven o'clock. About midnight the friends gathered in a circle for Auld Lang Syne.

Miss Deeprose, who is a granddaughter of Mrs. Wm. Simpson of this city, left Peterborough Friday for Calgary, followed by best wishes from her many friends.

West Morocco Germany--A Pan-German View

An extraordinary pamphlet on the Moroccan situation, entitled "West Morocco German," written by Herr Heinrich Class, president of "Der Alldeutsche Verband" (the Pan-German League) and issued with the authority of the League, has been receiving wide currency in Germany, 50,000 copies having been disposed of within three weeks of the first issue. A copy of the pamphlet has been sent to the press, and below we give a free translation of some of the more pregnant passages. It is the desire of Herr Class, and the League, of which he is president, to see West Morocco, from Sebu to Cape Juby, a German possession, and his pamphlet is an impassioned appeal to the German Government and people to secure, if necessary by forces of arms, that portion of Morocco as a colony for the surplus population of the Fatherland.

Herr Class begins with a retrospect, in which he accuses the Imperial Government of having neglected a splendid opportunity of seizing Morocco when the attention of France and England was engaged elsewhere. This cynical suggestion he makes in the following passage: "We were convinced that the Russo-Japanese War, and the fact that England and France, next to the Powers engaged in the war, were most closely concerned in the proceedings in Eastern Asia, offered to German statesmen the desired opportunity to show their statecraft, and we considered it self-evident that the Imperial Chancellor of the day would not let slip that brilliant opportunity, given us by fortune, to pursue a genuine welt politik.

As the writer shows, their hopes were doomed to disappointment. But expectation has again been awakened by the events of the last few weeks "In Germany the sending of a battle ship to Southern Morocco has been hailed by the overwhelming majority of the people with joyful satisfaction—one might almost say with rapture. One sees in it after the long, long years of patient waiting the first step towards a policy of the firm hand in foreign affairs. The German people are determined to support the Government in such a policy."

What Germany wants in Morocco, says this writer, is not "one or two harbours." We must have, he says, the whole Atlantic coast, and the possession of the coast implies naturally the hinterlands going with it." Going on to state more fully his view of the status quo, he says: "We believe that the position in Morocco has become untenable—untenable through the action of France—and in consequence thereof, and on account of the interests of Germany, which require to be safeguarded, we are of opinion that negotiations for the division of the country should be initiated: (2) in regard to these negotiations it must be understood from the beginning that the German people will not have a Conference—no 'international forum' must decide the German claims; (3) it is not to be thought that our battleship is to be withdrawn; if France desires that, she and Spain must first withdraw their troops and ships; (4) a settlement by 'compensation' outside Morocco is not acceptable; (5) a harbour on the west coast of Morocco, whether intended as a centre for German commerce or as a naval station will not serve our purpose. We must have a tract of country sufficient for our needs—in other words, a colony."

Coming to the practical question of how these objects are to be obtained, the writer says: "We have already expressed our conviction that Germany can easily come to an understanding with France and Spain over Morocco and this idea is all the more convincing since France is perfectly well aware that she is not in the position to wage war alone against us. Thus, so far as France comes into the question, the settlement offers no difficulties. Trouble can first arise when another Power places herself behind France and encourages her to resistance. For this role there comes into consideration only Britain, and, as a matter of fact, it is getting ready to play the role. Therefore," continues the writer, "it must with all clearness be said that, for whatever consequences follow public opinion in Germany will hold England alone answerable."

Having thus cleared the ground, the writer goes on in a still more threatening way: "But England durst not be left in uncertainty that German patience can have an end, if anyone hampers our Fatherland in that it most certainly will have an end, gaining possession of a colony which our people need for the assurance of their future. . . . But to all those who desire a long continuance of peace, be it said that Germany, which has now guarded its love of peace for forty years, can have only one motive of war, namely when her boundaries become too narrow, and we must have land for our population. When our land hunger is not satisfied the sword must help. Necessity breaks all fetters."

In conclusion, the writer reverts to the point from which he started—the enthusiasm with which the German people received the intelligence of the occupation of Agadir harbor, and the hopes which it has awakened of a more active welt politik. "Twenty years of barrenness in foreign politics," he says, "have left behind them deep furrows in the — not exactly peaceful. Who must not have heard when a retreat followed an advance the bitter questions: 'Are we a conquered people?' 'Why our strong army?' And now when our leaders do what is only their duty, we experience something like a joyful relief. It rings as 'God be praised' throughout our Fatherland."

YOU NEEDN'T DESPAIR

Here's an Offer That Should Interest Sufferers of Skin Irritation

First of all we want to explain that the remedy we are about to tell you of carries our promise of money back for the mere asking to anyone not thoroughly pleased with its use. That should unquestionably establish the sincere faith we have in it.

Parasites or germs cause eczema, and eczema is probably the most prevalent cause of all skin ailments. To overcome them, the remedy must of necessity destroy or remove the parasite or germ before relief can be obtained.

Possessing remarkable antiseptic, germicidal, cleansing, soothing and healing power the curative value of Rexall Eczema Ointment is very pronounced in the treatment of eczema and allied skin diseases, whether of the dry scaly sort, the weeping type, where there is a flow of ill-smelling excretion, or the intermediary kind, such as pimples, blotches, discolorations, ringworm, or acne. It is very useful for treating hives, nettle rash, insect bites and wounds. It is ideal for the skin ailments peculiar to children.

Rexall Eczema Ointment is greyish-white in colour, has a pleasant odour and is very cleanly for use. If you are a sufferer of skin irritations or eruptions in any form whatever, we urge you to try a box at our risk. At the mere hint of dissatisfaction you may have your money back. Two sizes—50c and $1.00. Remember, it is only sold at our store—The Rexall Store—Mellerup and Jury.

GEARING IN MARINE ENGINES

When ropes took the place of heavy gears in factory driving the end of the gearing era was regarded by some people as certain, but such people failed in the first place to realize that in all machinery in which positive speed ratios are essential, such as machine tools and textile and printing machinery, the toothed gear is absolutely essential. Then came the electric motor, and it became necessary to employ gears in car work, and very badly they have been applied, for the essence of good gearing is parallel shafts and good even bearings, and neither of these things has been considered in the electric tramcar.

Next comes the steam turbine and its high speed, and the fact that the marine propeller is more effective at low speeds, and so gears have come back into the steamship this time as speed reducers. When they were used by Boulton and Watt and other engine makers they acted to drive the screw propeller at a speed higher than the engines. In the s.s. Vespasian the turbines run at 1,600 and the propeller at eighty revolutions per minute, and it is said that even without governing the racing of the engines when the screw was out of water did not amount to more than sixteen per cent. In about a year the ship has made about 20,000 miles, and shows no wear of the driving pinion.

Chrome nickel steel of thirty-seven to thirty-eight tons tenacity appears most suitable for the pinions, the same steel of fifty-five tons quality appearing to be somewhat brittle. Mr. Parsons states that in a war vessel of four shafts, the gearing of the highest pressure part of the turbine to the low pressure shafts will effect 2% per cent. saving when cruising at a tenth of full power, and 30 per cent. at one-fifteenth power. It seems strange to find toothed-gearing again recommended for ship driving. There is of course no serious reason against gearing, and there is much to say in its favor, for with all the success of the turbine it does appear that this process would have been much greater had it not been that the screw propeller requires a less speed for best efficiency. Needless to say the marine gearing is a piece of regular machining work, the teeth being carefully cut to form so as to be capable of running in mesh without clearance or blacklash.—Cassier's Magazine.

AUSTRALIAN WILDINGS

They have not the wild flowers in Australia that the home country knows. The flowers of "the dear Homeland," made green with the running of rivers, and gracious with temperate air, are hers alone—sweet-scented blooms, born of gentle showers and colored by a wild sun to grace her verdant summer raiment with a fragrant embroidery of pink and yellow and blue. The daisy, the buttercup, and the bluebell would droop and die beneath the fierce heat of an Australian sun.

Australia has her own wild flowers, though searching for the most part, but arriving to atone for that by a rare beauty of coloring. It is wonderful how Nature adapts her frailest children to unfavorable conditions of existence. For the wattle—Australia's sweet-scented acacia—is the supreme glory of her plant life and her national flower. The wattle redeems a continent's flora from the reproach of scentlessness, and brightens the grey monotone of the Australian bush with an eternal spring symphony of quivering gold; the flower beloved of Australian painters and the source of inspiration of a hundred little poets who are trying to write the songs of a new land. One who sang with a deeper note of poetic insight—the first and most ill-fated of Australian poets, whose self-sought grave in a little Victorian cemetery is shaded by a tree of the blossom he wrote of in sweet verse, immortalised its flower as "wattle gold," and wattle gold it is called to-day throughout Australia:

"When the wattle gold trembles
'Twixt shadow and shine."

The wattle is the herald of spring and the harbinger of summer. When the blue-crested wren—the velvety-blue Superb Warbler of that great naturalist Gould—starts his small harem, nesting in the golden-tufted acacia, and pours forth his throaty melody from the topmost branch, the long Australian summer is at hand.

CASCARETS INSURE INSIDE CLEANLINESS

The Millions of Cascaret Users Never Have Headache, Constipation, Biliousness or Sick Stomach

It is more necessary that you keep your Bowels, Liver and Stomach clean, pure and fresh than it is to keep the sewers and drainage of a large city free from obstruction.

Are you keeping clean inside with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system the decomposed waste matter and poison in the intestines and bowels.

No odds how badly and upset you feel, a Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your entire family feeling good for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

SPORTING NOTES

Picture Rights Sold For $100,000.

LONDON, SEPT. 20—If the clergy's crusade to prohibit the Jack Johnson-Bombardier Wells fight on October 2 proves successful, a motion picture concern that to-day bought up the picture right will be $100,000 out of pocket. It is largely against these pictures that the fight is being directed, on the ground that they would create among children lust for brutality and bloodshed.

"Bat" Nelson Won a Bout.

BOSTON, MASS., SEPT. 20.— Old Man Bat Nelson, ring fighter and writer, is amongst us once more. He came back last night at the Boston Armory in the tenth round of a gruelling bout which the referee stopped at the expense of Billy Nixon of Cambridge, to whom he gave a severe lacing.

Easy For Jimmy Barry.

NEW YORK, SEPT. 20. — Jimmy Barry of Chicago had an easy time in defeating Jewey Smith of England in a 10-round bout at the Twentieth Century Athletic Club last night. The men, both heavyweights, opened in lively style, Smith having the better of the first and third rounds, scoring by his rushing tactics. From the fourth round on, however, it was all Barry.

A Match For the Coast.

LOS ANGELES, SEPT. 20.—Frank Conley and Joe Rivers were matched last night to fight 20 rounds at the Vernon Arene, October 14. The fight is to take place regardless of the outcome of the Conley-Kilbane match, scheduled another date.

Clabby and Willie Lewis.

MILWAUKEE, WIS., SEPT 20. — Fight fans to-day are wondering whether Jimmy Clabby can put Willie Lewis, of New York, away in twelve rounds when they meet in Boston, September 26.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"BABY MINE."

For the first time in six weeks Peterborough people had a chance to forget reciprocity and other things last night, when Margaret Mayo's ludicrously funny farce "Baby Mine" was excellently presented by a splendid cast at the Grand Opera House. Nothing funnier than this sparkling comedy has been seen at the Grand for a long time and last night's big audience laughed until the tears were perilously near rolling down their cheeks. A wife's stratagem ,in which she tries to win back her husband by borrowing a baby results in unexpected complications, in the shape of a couple of extra babies and in the arrival of the indignant real owners and as a result, husband and wife and, incidentally, the husband's friend, Jimmy, are involved in a series of funny incidents that keep the audience convulsed. The chief fun comes from the complications in which the latter gets as a result of his efforts to help the scheme along. Of course, the husband forgives the wife and everything ends happily.

The cast last night was a most capable company of farceurs. Dainty little Nanon Welsh, who succeeds Marguerite Clarke, as Zoie, the wife made a most favourable impression by her winsome girlish charm, and the ease with which she handled the part. She was given capable support by John J. McCabe, as Jimmy, and Benedict MacQuarrie as the husband. Indeed, it may be said that the whole cast was above the average, and the production most finished and enjoyable.

CANNED MUSIC

During the late war with Spain, General Miles, at that time ostensibly the Commander-in-Chief of the army in America, got himself into all sorts of trouble by saying that the troops were being served with embalmed meat, referring to the meat done up in cans and sold for the use of the army, says Washingtonia. Of course he had in mind the age of the prepared article, as well as the chemicals used for preserving the meat. This was before the days of pure food laws, and at a time when it is claimed that the packers went upon the theory that any old thing was good enough to can, and that some chemical preservations are actually beneficial to health.

"Canned Music" does not stand in this class. Some of the old songs may be old, in fact some of them are old, for they are written by such eminent composers as Handel and Hayden and Meyerbeer and Gluck, but they are as fresh and as young as they were when they were first given to the public. Those songs, sung by the best singers, and the music accompanying them, rendered by the orchestras and bands of Europe and America, have been canned, and so perfectly has the work been done that when served up from the can they are almost equal to the best produced in the opera house.

Every evening hundreds of thousands of people listen to a delightful entertainment with out the trouble of going to the opera house; they can have this entertainment when the opera houses are closed and the professional singers and musicians are taking their summer vacation. There was a time when eminent musicians as Sousa railed against this music, but now Sousa and his incomuparable band are playing through the canned process to thousands who never had an opportunity to hear the band any other way.

It is not alone the music of this high class that one can get from his can, but if he desires he can have that of the popular order, and the reproducing instruments are especially fine in rendering sacred music, and there are few church choirs that render as sympathetically and well the grand old hymns of Luther, Wesley, Watts and others who have made their songs of praise so touchingly beautiful. The chants and songs of the early missionaries had more to do with civilization among the barbarous and savage nations than the priestly vestments, church ceremonies or eloquent sermons. Music is a great civilizer; not only a great civilizer, but a great refiner. The household wherein music is found is always more peaceful, more refined than is the one where music is never heard. Edison in his invention of the phonograph was a greater benefactor to the human race than even Bell, who gave us the telephone. All styles of Edison phonographs sold on easy payments—prices from $19.00 up. Come in and hear them. The J. M. GREENE MUSIC Co., LT'D., Charlotte street.

THE ART OF MIMICRY

Hard Work is Needed to Successfully Imitate Actor People

(By Mlle. Fanchette, "The French Maid")

There is no easy road to success as an imitator. At least, I have never found one, for everything I have done has meant hard work. Of course, there are natural mimics, and for them to imitate another person's gestures and manner of speech is easy, but I do not think they attain to real success. The very facility with which they achieve their results imposes a limitation. They are not impelled to the hard work by which alone one can get inside, as it were, and reveal the real responsibility of the actors and actresses they portray.

As for myself, I was never again, as a child to mimicking people, and the way I came to enter the field is rather curious. I saw a performance at a music hall in London, at which a girl gave imitations of various actors and actresses. The thought came to me that I could do better myself. I do not think it was a manifestation of conceit, for she was really not very good. I had always wanted to go on the stage, and I made up my mind that if one could get an engagement to do that sort of thing I would have a try at it. So I studied and worked to prepare myself. I went to the theatre and watched the actresses I intended to imitate, and then practiced their speech and manner at home. Well, I got on.

Every imitation I have done has meant hard work. Whenever I have attempted a fresh one, I have been to see the player I had in mind over and over again, practising between times, until I felt that I could mirror that actor's personality. The most difficult part of all is catching the quality of the voice. Pose and gesture are comparatively easy, but the voice, its timbre and its varying intonations, is a very subtle thing to copy. It is in the utter of the voice that I feel most uncertain in my present imitations. I have done many of them so often that gesture and manner become in part, a habit; but the voice, never. And it is so long since I have heard some of them speak. Of course, one could never forget a voice like Bernhardt's, but to feel sure that one remembers every intonation and inflexion, that is quite another matter.

Imitation is interesting work, but it becomes tiresome when one does the same people night after night, over and over again. And it is a constant strain, for one must never allow oneself to relax. But the study necessary in preparation absorbs one completely. If one goes to see Bernhardt, for example, just to enjoy her performance, one admires and is charmed, but if one goes to study her and her method of expression, one sees deeper and wonders more. I could never tire of watching such an actress. Ellen Terry was a delightful subject for study. Her charm has been felt by her audiences everywhere and one feels it even while one is mentally dissecting her, as it were. Ada Rehan is another actress I have enjoyed studying—her methods are so finished and her charm so gracious.

Although I am seeking to achieve a place for myself as an actress, instead of one as a copyist of others, I am proud of what success I have won in that line, for I am ready to assert that it is really acting, even if it is not creating. And I honestly think it more difficult than playing, say a character role. When one does the latter one presents to the audience a copy of the type, and general accuracy only is required. But when you give an audience an imitation of a popular actor or actress you offer a copy of the individual, with whose every trick of voice and gesture the majority of those who look upon you are familiar. Rather a hard test, isn't it?

Mlle. Fanchette gives a series of her famous imitations during the performance of the big musical comedy, "The French Maid," which plays here next Wednesday, Sept. 27.

Makes Hair Grow
McDermid and Jury has an invigorator that will grow hair or money back.
The time to take care of your hair is when you have hair to take care of.
If your hair is getting thin, gradually falling out, it cannot be long before the spot appears.
The greatest remedy to stop the hair from falling is SALVIA, the Great American Hair Grower, first discovered in England. SALVIA furnishes nourishment to the hair roots and acts so quickly that people are amazed.
And remember, it destroys the Dandruff germ, the little pest that saps the life that should go to the hair from the roots.
SALVIA is sold by McDermid & Jury, under a positive guarantee to cure Dandruff, stop Falling Hair and Itching Scalp in ten days, or money back. A large bottle costs 50c. The word "SALVIA" (Latin for sage) is on every bottle.

A Narrow Escape.

Parry Sound, Sept 22.—Edward Savage of Toronto, aged 23, had a narrow escape from drowning while swimming in a creek near Bolger. He had dived off a boat and became entangled in the weeds. Inspector McClelland of the provincial police and J. C. McMullkin of Toronto were standing on the bank and noticed his distress. The former cut the rope of a canoe which was near and Mr. McMullkin jumped on and went to the rescue. He was just in time to haul Mr. Savage in by the hair of his head as he was going down for the last time.

Found Dead With Baby.

Toronto Sept. 22.—With the body of her baby clasped lightly in her lifeless arms, the body of Mrs. George E. Eagles, 43 years of age, was found in her bed at 280 West Queen street at 7.30 yesterday morning. The gas was turned on full and asphyxiation was evidently the cause of death. The woman had been ill for some time. She had threatened suicide.

Cooking Ham.

Ham is frequently too salt to fry without previous preparation. Put the slices in tepid water and let them stand on the back of the range to soak out the salt, not to boil, for about half an hour. Drain dry between towels, then fry in a hot spider. When a whole ham is to be baked or boiled let it stand overnight covered with cold water.

Thoughtful.

"Well, he's a very thoughtful and good-hearted fellow anyway."

"I can't see it. I was at his home yesterday, and it never occurred to him to ask me to stay to dinner."

"That's just the point, his wife is taking cooking lessons."

How to Stop Drinking

It was formely customary for the habitual drinker to take the pledge regularly, sometimes once a year, and sometimes in every fit of remorse that follow his debauches, and then—Break it.

But now it is gradually dawning on the world that pledges do not stop drunkenness. The nervous system of the habitual drinker is diseased and he must have treatment that will cure his condition. If Orrine does not benefit after a trial, we refund your money. Can be given secretly.

Write for free booklet on Alcoholism to the Orrine Co., Orrine Building, Washington, D.C. Mailed sealed in plan envelope. Orrine costs but $1 per box. Sold in this city by Wm. Madill.

A VISIT TO A CIRCUS IN SCOTLAND

The following is a sort of impression of a visit to a circus in the Old Land—the venue being Greenock:

Every one probably who has cut his wisdom tooth is a little ashamed of admitting that he is going to a circus. The usual thing is to suggest that perhaps the children would like to go, and as they cannot go alone you would not mind taking them. You are at pains not to appear anxious about it, and so one evening, with a respectable air of martyrdom, you take your youthful cousins to the circus. You glide furtively to your seat, carrying, with some ostentation, a box of chocolates, in the hope of giving the impression that you are there only to let the kiddies have a treat. When the show begins you are deep in the latest edition of the Telegraph, and only casually do you glance now and then at the ring. One of these times you are caught by little Harry laughing loudly at a particularly clumsy joke made by a clown, with an abnormal padded development and a nose like the Cloch light in a fog. Hastily you thrust a chocolate into Harry's hand and dive again into the Telegraph.

But at last you know the game's up. You can't hold out any longer. You are not too old to enjoy a circus. How pleasant to see the old jokes, when they are first edged in, oh, so cunningly, and to give yourself up to their simple and obvious humor. Soon you begin to grow discursive over the feats in the ring. The Telegraph is allowed to drop to your feet, and you hand Cissy the chocolates. You laugh, applaud, cheer. And when the baggy breeched clown turns rapidly half a dozen back somersaults you dare the kiddies to say they ever saw anything so clever. But you find they are taking it very coolly. The eldest has picked up the Telegraph, and is laughing over a joke in "Variorum," another is given up to whole-souled delight in the chocolates. And then you realise that they do not see half the fun in the thing that you do. They do not applaud, nor cheer, nor smile. You look around and find others who are sharers in your humiliation. Near by is a lady with her boy of about ten. While Tommy and Joey are in the ring her face is wreathed in smiles. Her eyes sparkle, and when something absurd happens she laughs heartily. When a man jumps on to a horse cantering round the ring, or does some more difficult feat, her dignity completely goes. She almost starts from her seat in anxiety for his safety. What of the boy? He is a picture of dignity, of middle-aged repose. The clowns bore him, except when with loud smacks they knock each other down, and he deigns to smile. He does not think much of the elephant. From what he had read and the tales he had been told, he had expected a much larger, wilder thing. He had dreamt about elephants crashing through jungles, knocking down trees, and killing hundreds of people. He had, himself, been charged by one at a hundred miles an hour, and, when he woke up in the morning, he had told his father how he had stood with his back to a tree and shot the furious animal between the eyes. And now, after all that, he is expected to take interest in a poor, tame, clumsy thing being led round a ring by a gentleman in evening dress and a top-hat. From the heights of his superior imagination—the imagination of childhood he looks down superciliously on the grown-up people around him, who cheer when the elephant raises a leg so that the trainer may sit down on it. He is sorry for the elephant. He wishes it would trumpet loudly, rush at the gentleman in the evening dress, and charge him through the wall of the building. Why should he have his illusions destroyed in this way? He refuses to acknowledge the elephant. It is not worthy of his dreams.

The mother tries to interest him. She makes him look at the ring when something wonderful is going on. She calls on him to admire the riderless horses which are galloping about and swerving in obedience to the slightest gesture of the ring-master. She expects him to hold his breath while gymnasts are swinging through the air; she points out to him the wonderful behaviour of the dogs. But he is not going to give himself away. He has his dreams of what should be, and is not going to allow his vision to be disturbed.

And you, too, go through the same pantomime. You try to rouse your little flock to share your enthusiasm, but you have to give it up. While you have been revelling in the strong, open-air delights of the circus, while you have wondered at the elephant, been astonished by the dogs, longed for the horses, worshipped the acrobats, the children by your side have kept up the same superior lack of interest. You are forced to the conclusion that a circus is for the old, for those who have exhausted the pleasures of the imagination.

And as you hustle your charges into the last car westwards you vow that the next time you visit the circus you will bring the oldest man you can find, or better still, your grandmother, the wise old lady, who could even teach things to Lord Halsbury.

Try on Some of Our New Suits and Overcoats

See how attractive they are in style, how perfectly they fit, and of what excellent fabrics they are made. You'll see an immense line of quite practical and refined styles which are so much in demand by correctly attired men. The gaudy, loud and freakish garments are entirely omitted. The garments we show will appeal to discriminating men who appreciate distinction, yet desire refined styles. We always put the importance of Quality before Price. But our prices are low when you consider the quality. As people grow more careful in buying, the surer we are of their trade.

Jewish New Year

To-day ushers in the Jewish New Year, it being the year 5672. Jews throughout the world will celebrate the occasion in much the same way as it has always been celebrated, the religious feature being specially prominent.

This time of the year is especially regarded with reverence by Jews, as it commences the ten-day period of repentance that terminates with the annual fast day. This ten-day period is looked upon as a time when all must be reconciled with God and man. Even the most calloused in religious matters usually attend service during this period.

In the synagogues in the cities the service will be impressive. It is looked upon as a time for counting up the deeds of the past year and looking to the future. A distinctive feature of the New Year's service is the blowing of a horn in the synagogue which symbolizes the calling together of the hosts of Israel.

Traditions of the centuries helps to make the services very solemn to Jews. The special ritual, together with the inspiring melodies of the services and searching sermons by the rabbis, have a strong effect on the congregations.

KIT'S COLUMN

In his "Foreword" to his Irish Poems, Arthur Stringer lays stress on the difficulty of capturing the Irish brogue and tying it down in print, and there is at least one word which is used profusely by Mr. Stringer and which is especially annoying to the eye of one born and reared upon the west coast of Ireland, which is the particular "brogue" or accent exploited by the poet in his small green book. I allude to "av" for "of." Your west of Ireland born does not say "av" for "of" any more than "at" for "it." If anything "uv" or "iv" comes closest to the half-tone between "av" and "of" which is the expression of your Galway or Roscommon man. Very thoughtfully Mr. Stringer allows that "when it comes to ink and paper the resort to it ("av") seems the only way out of the difficulty." but, somehow, one finds the reiteration unpleasing. Again "shtreet" is an unheard western brogueism, while "sthreet" comes trippingly from a Connemara tongue. Actually the clumsy "shthreet" more fitly expresses what Mr. Stringer beautifully calls "that tenuous rustle of breath with which Erin wafts out its hissing consonant."

But this is perhaps "finnicky" criticism When it comes to voicing the sad, merry, melancholy, mischievous soul of Erin, Mr. Stringer is at his best. He has the gift-key which unlocks the door on the character of a race as mystical, whimsical and "contrary" as Erin's own fairies who dance on the green rath in the waxing and waning of the moon.

While "Cuoch O'Lynn," the little crooked boy-dreamer, who "thravels" everywhere "in his mind," is the darling of the book, not less delightful are such poems as Soft Ways, The People of Dreams, The Wearing of the Green, I'll Niver Go Home Again, and The Pipe Player, who introduces us to these and their fellows in his soft minor melody. For instance, the cry of the exile:

"I'll niver go home again,
Home to the ould sad hills.
Home through the ould soft rain,
Where the curlew calls and thrills!

And I'll niver go home again!
Home to the ould lost years,
Home where the soft warm rain
Drifts like the drip av tears."

There are in this book two poems which, written in plain English, would, I think, carry their message more convincingly than as they are dressed in the brogue. These are The People of Dreams and The Wearing of the Green. There is something deeply appealing to an Irish heart in these poems, one of which is appended:

"We're wearin' av the green, boys,
Beneath their English rose;
We're wearin' av the deeper green
That Home and Ireland knows!

The green av holm and bogland,
The green av lough and lake,
The green that takes us back again
And brings the olden ache!

The green av Aran wathers,
The green av Rathlin waves,
The green av all the hills av Home,
And the green av Ireland's graves."

In his preface the author tells us that the dialect he makes use of "is not the dialect of one particular Irish county," and in the next line or two he remarks that his volume "is designed more as a small gallery of small portraits, or to be more exact, as a record of fleeting impression, caught from the west of Ireland character." But what Connaught man or woman ever spoke of "brae-birds" or the "wee burn" or "strathspeys"! Such terms belong to the north, or Scottish-Irish Province of Ulster. They are neither heard or used in the west of Ireland where the brogue is soft and coaxing, and the voice-cadences the sweetest in all Ireland.

Yet Mr. Stringer has caught the spirit of Erin. She has revealed to him the secret of her laughter and her tears, her whimsies and her fairies, and that deeper, stronger race-feeling of superb pride which is greatest of all.

But a ghost of Du Maurier's Quartier Latin remains. Tourists have ruined (or benefited?) older Paris. A number of sensational restaurants and cafes chantants have of late years cropped up mainly to cater for the desire of wealthy globe-trotters to "do the wicked side of P'ree." The old Bohemia of Henri-Murger — the real Bohemia, when Mimi lived, was not there even in Du Maurier's time. Trilby was the last novel with the Bohemian flavor in anything like its real savour, and it would be difficult to find that slender-footed goddess there now. Such restaurants as the Rat Mort—featured in the Thaw trial, and the so-called Apache cafe, are really dull places which are utilized as a "draw" for inquisitive tourists who believe Paris to be an earthly Hades. But the old-time Quartier sacred to the students and the grisettes has all but disappeared. And now the Bal Bullier is closed up. The most famous men of last century and so far this, have danced in this resort of the Old Latin Quarter. Here Stevenson, with his group of brilliant friends often finished up an evening! Here Du Maurier and his comrades jigged and leaped with Little Billee, and the great-hearted Taffy. The staid Thackeray more than once looked at the mad, dancing crowd of students and "midinettes." The most eminent Frenchmen of past and present days did not consider education completed without a Bal Bullier experience or two. Judges, statesmen, artists, poets foregathered here. Flaubert knew it, and merry-hearted Daudet, and Balzac and de Maupassant. Here Verlaine wrote verses on his ragged cuff, and drowned his nervous soul in absinthe. Lola Montez danced here, and broke hearts with the glint of her pseudo Spanish eyes which were of true Irish grey. La Morode clinked a glass or two in the Bullier with Belgian Leopold, while Anatole France, and delightful Coppee juggled with many a fancy. And I am not sure but that once or twice the gentle face of Marie Claire peered through the door. Every escapade finished at the Bullier. Here, every one danced according to his fancy. Picture shows and syndicates are usurping the gay places of the old quartier, and Parisians—and others—may be pardoned for lamenting the closing up of the historic Bal Bullier. If ever ghosts haunt a place, dim shapes of the once gay and careless spirits who frequented the Boul Mich and danced the old year out and the new year in at the Bal Bullier, may well circle about the closed portals of the last resort of the great old home of romance and adventure.

As I write, the report is abroad that Clara Barton, the Florence Nightingale of America, lies dying. Born in 1821, Miss Barton has led a very full life. It was during the civil war that she first came prominently before the public. She established the relief work on the battlefield, and did great service by organizing search parties for men who were missing from the ranks. Her work extended to military cemeteries, which she laid out and cared for. She was the first president of the American Red Cross Society, and held her post until retired by old age. She it was who with supplies for the starving Cubans, and accompanied by a few nurses and doctors, sailed down the bottle-nosed harbor of Santiago the day that city was taken under the charge of the stars and stripes. Miss Barton stood on the deck among her companions and sang the Doxology as the ship went upon her twisting way past sunken boats and up the hot, steaming harbor to the beleaguered city. She gave me shelter in the wrecked city on that same night, and glad I was to lie on the stone floor of the Red Cross hostel before pursuing my journey to the Spanish lines. It was Miss Barton's nephew, Stephen Barton, who in the Red Cross steam yacht put out one murky night from Key West for Santiago with the writer, a couple of Cuban women, a nurse or two and other officials bound for the seat of war. I shall never forget that voyage—the big monitors and war supply vessels saluted the little ship as she left the mined harbor at sundown, and put straight for the Gulf. The sun sank in a passionate scarlet sky across which streaked stripes of purplish black. Once out there was no returning under penalty of an explosion, and the little boat—so frail and slight a thing to face the lonely and darkening sea, seemed to tremble as she put her timid forefoot beyond the line of safety. She was about as fit for a six hundred mile voyage as a canoe is to go over Niagara Falls, but Necessity was at the wheel, and no other craft seemed at hand. The sense of dreary loneliness which descended upon me as I sat late on deck and watched the seas growing higher and heavier, makes me shudder even now. The sense, too, of forlorn hope, the ominous foreboding of a bitter fate that thrilled in every nerve and steeped the soul in melancholy when we left the last friendly lights behind us and fared into that inky waste of ocean is with me now as I recall the trembling of the little ship when the seas smote her, and the silent way the waves seemed to pile up and up until we sank so deeply in the trough of the sea, and remained there so long that at times it appeared as if we were falling silently to our eternal rest. And when at last, floundering in the Gulf, the message came that the engines were shifting, and that there was nothing for it but to turn while we had yet time, and make for the edge of the harbour. I remember how the Cuban women and I huddled together, whispering and praying in the universal language of the soul which knows no race or creed.

All that night we wallowed outside the mined harbor, not daring to cross the bar. But the big dusky shapes of the monitors and armored cruisers were comforting, and across the whine of the wind and the surging of the sea, we could catch the broken note of some ship's bell striking the hour, and blessed it for the comfort that it brought and the friendly voice of home which called to us across the dark. And all these memories and many more surge upon my soul because of a headline in a newspaper:

"Clara Barton, founder of the Red Cross, is dying."

FATE IN THE CAR

A Short Story

"Of course, you're going to the fair?" Cora Benham nodded.

"I'm going to take my runabout," she explained. "Ten cents to go twice around the track."

"It's a great scheme," Ridgeway said in hearty praise. "Many townspeople would like to make the acquaintance of an auto at close range. I'll come and ride myself if I may."

"Anyone may ride who has the fare," she said bashfully. "I shall see you then? Good night."

Cora almost ran into the house and left Ridgeway gazing after her in mild astonishment. It was always like this. It did not appear that Cora disliked him, and yet whenever a proposal hovered upon his lips, she seemed suddenly to become aware of his intention and always found some means of preventing the declaration.

He could not know that Cora had rushed into the house and was now lying prone upon the bed in the little blue and white chamber sobbing wildly because again her excess of bashfulness had prevented her from listening to Gordon Ridgeway's avowal of his love, and so he went slowly up the street with bitterness gnawing at his heart.

For two years Ridgeway had been seeking an opportunity to tell his love to his old playfellow. When they had been in school together they had been formally betrothed and prattled of love in their innocent childish fashion. But now that she had returned from a fashionable finishing school, all was different. Instead of the old frankness she was so shy when they two were alone that her timidity was almost an agony to her. Ridgeway held in fine contempt men who lacked the courage to propose in person and resorted to writing, so he waited with what patience he could command the opportunity he was determined should come.

But Cora seemed to gain in adroitness as the months passed, and Ridgeway shook his head sadly as he paused at his own gate to finish the cigar he had lighted for solace.

Even after he had gone to bed he tossed impatiently until at last an idea came to him and he went to sleep with a new hope in his heart.

The following was the first of three days devoted to an open air festival to be given on the fair grounds. Cora had just become possessed of a glittering new runabout, the gift of her father, and the first automobile owned in Manvel, so she had arranged to satisfy public curiosity by taking passengers twice around the half-mile track at 10 cents a head, the funds to be devoted to charity.

In the opening hours of the fair she did a rushing business, but as the afternoon waned there were intervals between trips and when Ridgeway came along she sat alone in the car.

"Everybody rides," he quoted, in laughing imitation of the barkers at the summer parks. "How much for a trip?"

"Ten cents a head" was the prompt response, "but we do not start until we get five passengers."

Ridgeway glanced at the temporary seat rigged behind to accommodate the excess of passengers, and produced a half dollar.

"I'll take all the places," he announced, as he climbed into the seat beside the girl. Cora glanced doubtfully about her, but there was no one near the starting point, and at last she threw over the lever and the car slowly started.

"This is fine," commented Ridgeway, as the car sped about the driving track. "It's better than the road and not half the chance of running down stray cows and chickens. It's a fine car."

"One of the best," she said, proudly. "I've been running it all the afternoon without a single breakdown. I've earned $18 for a baby fund so far."

"Here's a chance to earn a lot more," said Ridgeway, comfortably. "I shall not be content with a double circuit of the track. I want more of a run. You couldn't take me up the road a bit, could you?"

"Mercy no," she declared, her shyness suddenly developing at the bare idea of being alone on a country road with Ridgeway.

"All right," was the easy response. "I can say what I want to say here just as well. You needn't put on speed," he continued, as he noticed that the pace was increasing. "I'm going to keep on riding until I finish what I have to say."

"It would make comment if you took too many rides," she said, with rosy face.

"Just why I suggested a slower pace," he explained. "Look here, Cora. I've been trying for two years to ask you to marry me, and every time I've had an opportunity you've run away. Do you hate me as much as that?"

"I don't hate you," she stammered, shocked out of her shyness at the suggestion. "We've always been good friends, Gordon."

"But I want to be more than that," he went on. "I want you to be my wife, dear. Does that suggestion seem so horrible?"

"It's not at all horrible," she confessed. "I—I was just afraid."

"Afraid of what?" he demanded. "Afraid of me?"

"It wasn't that," she exclaimed. "I was—I was afraid that you were going to propose just because of that childish engagement — out of pity, you know. I can't just explain what I mean, but every time I thought you were going to propose I just had to run away."

"It's taking a mean advantage to force myself upon you in your own car," he said, with a laugh, "but it seemed my only chance to get the word in. You will marry me, dear? I want you because it is you, not out of pity."

"I will marry you, Gordon," she said, softly. "I'm glad that you took the ride."

"Autos are the greatest invention of the age," he said with a laugh. "I'm sorry you didn't have one two years ago."

And Cora's eyes echoed an assent. She, too, was glad that fate was in the car.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

ENDS INDIGESTION IN A FEW MOMENTS

Gas, Heartburn, Sourness and All Misery in Stomach Vanishes

Nothing will remain undigested or sour on your stomach if you will take a little Diapepsin occasionally. This powerful digestive and antacid, though as harmless and pleasant as candy, will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you can eat.

Eat what your stomach craves, without the slightest fear of Indigestion or that you will be bothered with sour risings, Belching Gas on Stomach, Heartburn, Headaches from stomach, Nausea, Bad Breath, Water Brash or a feeling like you had swallowed suffering now from any stomach disagreeable miseries. Should you be suffering no w from any stomach disorder you can get relief within five minutes.

If you will get from your pharmacist a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin you could always go to the table with a hearty appetite, and your meals would taste good, because you would know there would be no Indigestion or Sleepless nights or Headache or Stomach misery all the next day; and, besides, you would not need laxatives or liver pills to keep your stomach and bowels clean and fresh. Pape's Diapepsin can be obtained from your druggist, and contains more than sufficient to thoroughly cure the worst case of Indigestion or Dyspepsia. There is nothing better for Gas on the Stomach or sour odours from the stomach or to cure a Stomach Headache.

You couldn't keep a handier or more useful article in the house.

Daniel in the Lion's Den. Dan. vi.

Golden Text—The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him, and delivereth them. Ps. xxxiv. 7.

1. Verse 1—Who was King Darius, whom did he succeed, what kind of a man was he?

2. Verses 2-3—What had been Daniel's history up to this time?

3. What is the relative importance to success in life, of intellectual ability and an excellent spirit, that is a kind heart with polite and winning manner?

4. What are the really essential qualities to success in life?

5. Verses 4-5—Why did the "presidents and princes" dislike, and seek the injury of Daniel?

6. What proportion of men are jealous of the success of others?

7. Why are so many men jealous, instead of rejoicing at the success of others?

8. Is it possible for all Christians to so live, as to perfectly please God?

9. Verses 6-9—Are rich or highly educated men, as liable to be jealous, and seek the injury of another, as are the poor and ignorant?

10. There are two classes of men, one which seeks to injure, and the other which seeks to help their fellows, where do we mostly find them, in or out of the church?

11. What was the scheme of these men for injuring Daniel?

12. Verses 10-11—Why is it wise or otherwise in these days, to open our windows, so our neighbors may hear our prayers?

13. Does the narrative indicate, or is it anywhere in the bible stated as to how many times a day we should engage in formal prayer?

14. Verses 12-15—What is the moral difference in the turpitude of killing a man in anger, and killing him by a cold blooded and systematic follow up plan?

15. What reasons are there for or against the breaking of a promise that never should have been made?

16. Verses 16-17—Was Darius sincere in saying it, and what reason had he to think that God would deliver Daniel?

17. Verses 18-23—What did fasting avail the king, and of what use is it to us?

18. What is the spiritual value of this miraculous deliverance of Daniel to us?

19. If this story should prove to be of the nature of a parable, and not actual history, would its religious value be any the less or more to us? (This is one of the questions that may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

20. Verses 24-28—Was the king just as bad in causing the cruel death of all these enemies of Daniel, as they had been?

21. What is the character of the act to try by threat to make people serve our God?

KING GEORGE AND FASHIONS

His Majesty Will Not Be Such a Force in Sartorial Affairs as His Father

King Edward was commonly regarded as the best-dressed man in Europe, and so he was accepted as the leader of masculine fashion, not in England alone, but almost everywhere. Take a case in point. It was King Edward who some years ago invented a modification of the ordinary frock coat for summer wear, the fronts of which were so cut away that they would hardly meet across the chest, and were held together when necessary by a link connecting with a button. One remembers also that one time, when he was staying at Marienbad, it was noticed that his late Majesty wore a red tie every day, and forthwith all the hosiers in Vienna made a great display of red cravats in their windows, and called them King Edwards. The news was telegraphed to different places; Paris went in for red ties, and later in London also the red tie became a favorite, but not to the same extent as on the Continent.

It was King Edward, too, who first popularized the white vest-slip; for if he was not the very first man to wear it in England, he was the first who was noticed to do so, and then the future of the new slip was no longer in doubt. But here it might be said that as a general thing the King discarded it long before his death. In some other matters of dress, involving possibly a great upheaval in established custom, his late Majesty was very cautious lest by example he should influence the men of his country towards a new fashion which might not be altogether to their liking, and cause much inconvenience. Thus it was not until he saw that the double collar, which has now been so popular for many years, had become thoroughly established, that he took it to himself, and so set the seal upon it. If he had never done so, it is quite likely that, despite the excellent start that it gained, it would not have survived as it did.

Besides uniforms, he had about 200 suits at Windsor castle, Buckingham Palace, and Sandringham; and it was certainly the fact that he had a larger wardrobe than any other monarch in the world, and it might very well have been that, with one kind and another, he had more suits than any other man alive.

It is hardly likely that King George will be quite so much of a force in sartorial affairs as was his royal father, for the good reason that he does not think so much of dress, and is strongly disposed t be quite conventional in his attitude towards it: but one must hasten to add that, of course, His Majesty takes the utmost care at all times to be strictly correct in every detail, and his taste, while careful in its sobriety, is quite perfect. His Majesty is not disposed to take advantage of his high estate in this matter, and generally follows the lead of others; and the chief tailors in the West End will watch his appearances with rather less interest, not to say, anxiety, than they did those of the first gentleman in the last reign. He has, of course, every variety of clothes for town wear, each kind for the most part being several times repeated; while for country wear, especially on the sporting side, his wardrobe is perhaps quite the equal of that of the late King. As is well known, however, His Majesty is a very keen sportsman in those pursuits which involve wandering over the moors and hills with a gun in his hand, and he displays more interest in the selection of his shooting suits than he does perhaps in any others; while it may be added, as an interesting and pleasing circumstance, that he always exercises the utmost effort toward giving help to home industries in the matter of the cloths he selects, most of them being in the nature of homespun tweeds.

Then, as befits his strong naval interests and training, he has probably more naval uniforms than any other man. Indeed, the Kaiser is the only ruler who emulates him in this matter; for not only have these monarchs a very large wardrobe of uniforms for the naval and other maritime purposes of their own country, but each holds complimentary naval rank in foreign navies, and has complete sets of uniforms accordingly. Also, King George is honorary colonel in many foreign regiments, in addition to holding similar rank in several of our own.—Chambers' Journal.

THAT AWFUL BACKACHE

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Morton's Gap, Kentucky.—"I suffered two years with female disorders, my health was very bad and I had a continual backache which was simply awful. I could not stand on my feet long enough to cook a meal's victuals without my back nearly killing me, and I would have such dragging sensations I could hardly bear it. I had soreness in each side, could not stand tight clothing, and was irregular. I was completely run down. On advice I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills and am enjoying good health. It is now more than two years and I have not had an ache or pain since I do all my own work, washing and everything, and never have the backache any more. I think your medicine is grand and I praise it to all my neighbors. If you think my testimony will help others you may publish it."—Mrs. OLLIE WOODALL, Morton's Gap, Kentucky.

Backache is a symptom of organic weakness or derangement. If you have backache don't neglect it. To get permanent relief you must reach the root of the trouble. Nothing we know of will do this so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for special advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential, and the advice free.

Poultry Pointers

George Hansmann, a poulterer of Hillsboro, N.D., gives the following good advice:—

Grit to the fowl is what teeth are to the ruminating animal, a necessity.

A cornsheller is not essential. The hens will do their own shelling if you throw out the ears in short, broken pieces.

Let the fowls have as wide range as possible, but if they must be confined, give them plenty of shade and dig up the ground frequently.

Young geese do not lay as many fertile eggs or produce as many goslings in the first breeding season as they do in the second.

Fresh air and sunshine are the best disinfectants that the poultry-raiser has at his disposal, and ought to be more often used in his work.

A plat of ground 50 feet square divided into two lots will be ample accommodation for 25 fowls. Confine them in one lot for a week at a time, meanwhile spading up the other.

The well-hatched chicks in the carefully-cared-for brooder will amount to little unless the food is supplied in proper amounts and at right intervals.

More harm results to flocks during the summer months than at any other time owing to the neglect of their owners, not keeping the house and bodies of the birds clean.

Prices of grain feeds are high, and the poultryman must watch his feeding closely. Feeding has become a science, and costs are now figured to fractions of a cent.

Always handle ducks and geese by their necks, and never by the legs, as fowls are handled, for their limbs are not strong enough to serve as handles.

A poulterer can well afford to pay one cent per quart for skim-milk. Feed quantities of whole milk and you will find it pays.

London's New Dock

The new dock which the Port of London is about to make will cost between two and three million pounds, will provide for over a million tons of shipping, and will be completed within five years.

Salt in the Fireplace

Throwing salt or powdered brimstone on the fire in the grate, and holding a board in front of the fireplace, is a good remedy if your chimney catches fire.

An Old Instrument

One of the oldest instruments in existence is the drum, which was used among the ancient races of Egypt.

Magnesia on Carpets

Light-colored carpets may be kept in good condition by being rubbed over occasionally with block magnesia.

Shepherds on Stilts

In parts of France shepherds keep their sheep under observation on stilts.

Hailstorms in France

Hailstorms in France cause an estimated annual loss to farmers of $30,000,000.

Are You Anaemic or Bloodless?

If So, the Spring is a Most Trying Time for You.

Your Hope Rests in Getting the Blood Rich and Red by Using

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Shortness of breath and fatigue with slight exertion, failure of the vital organs to properly perform their functions, and pallor of the gums and eyelids, are among the indications of anaemia or bloodlessness.

The blood is thinner and more watery in the spring than at any other season, and for this reason the person who is subject to anaemia, or lack of blood, suffers the most.

You must increase the number of red corpuscles in the blood, and this can best be done by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This great restorative treatment does not merely stimulate the organs to renewed activity, but cures by building up the system. For this reason its benefits are both natural and lasting.

Sleeplessness, indigestion, neuralgic and sciatic pains and weakness and irregularities of the vital organs become a thing of the past when Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is used.

It is only natural that you should get strong and well when this building-up treatment is used, for it supplies to the blood in condensed and easily assimilated form the elements which go to form new, rich blood.

Your digestive system has failed to extract sufficient nutrition from the food you eat, and hence the necessity of such direct nourishment as is supplied to the blood by Dr Chase's Nerve Food. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

WAR ON MOTOR HORNS

Unnecessary Blowing to be Regarded as a Misdemeanor

Herr von Dallwitz, Prussian Minister of the Interior, has set an example to administrators in other countries by declaring war on the nerve-wracking motor horn. In a decree just issued he declares that unnecessary blowing of motor signals, either by day or night, will be regarded as a misdemeanor and a breach of the peace, and will be punished accordingly. Berlin suffers from the motor-horn to no less a degree than big Canadian cities. At night conditions are even more hideous there because the Berliner and his vaunted Nachtleben require much gadding about in taxi-cabs in the small hours, and the nervous minority of the populace, which uses the night for sleeping purposes, is subjected to intolerable annoyance by the roar and blare of the all-night chauffeurs.

THE NEW VEIL

The English Variety In Vogue Just Now Hides the Features

The fashionable woman in London conceals her features under one of the thick silken meshes which are the season's veils. They are a marvel of downy softness and of such an exquisite texture that they can be crushed into a finger pocket or into the tiniest of purses without damage. The introduction of thick mesh for the face has created something of a sensation, but among fashion's many foibles this latest is not without its advantages. First of all the new veil, heavy though it may be in appearance, is so soft to the touch that it cannot irritate the tenderest of skins, and, second, it wears extremely well, and is not so liable to get caught and torn in hatpins and millinery trimming as the ordinary veil; but, of course, its great drawback is that it hides the features completely. The new veil is to be had in black, white, or ecru, but not in colors; indeed, the colored veil, except for motoring, will scarcely be seen next season. Lace veils with elaborate patterns will also be greatly in vogue, but the spotted veil is practically obsolete.

SELECTING A HUSBAND

Mlle. Mallery Wants a Man Who Can Lift More than She Can

Mlle. Mallery has just received the Rosiere's Prize at Vinay, near Grenoble. A "Rosiere" is a maiden possessed of all the virtues, on whom, on that account, a dowry is bestowed, either by the Mayor and Corporation of her native place, or by some benevolent donor. The prize enables her to find a husband, even if her virtues do not. There are innumerable rosieres annually in France, almost one for every hamlet, but Mlle. Mallery stands out from the rest. She is very strong, is six feet tall, and tills the fields with her father, a farmer. She lifts weights, and can easily juggle with one or two hundred pounds. Her feats of strength are many. One of her father's farm hands drove up with some sacks of wheat. One of them was too heavy for him, and he asked for help. Mlle. Mallery smiled and brushed him aside. She lifted the sack, weighing over 400 pounds, as if it were a feather, shouldered it, and carried it into the granary.

She has just been awarded for her virtues the sum of $400 in gold pieces, left annually by a merchant of the south to the most deserving girl of the village. In spite of her virtues and her dowry she has not yet found a husband. She is looking out for one, but will not put up with a weakling. She says the man of her choice must lift more than she can.

Stops Headache

Mr. E. F. Tomkins, Ex-Mayor of Coaticook says so.
"Your tablets are a safe and effective remedy for headache."

Mr Geo. Legge, Editor of Granby Leader, Mail says so.
"Your Zutoo tablets deserve to be widely known as a cure that will cure."

Major A. C. Hanson, B.A., B.C.L. says so.
"I use Zutoo tablets and find them a very satisfactory cure for headache."
So says every mother's son who has tried

Peerless Peninsular

A DURABLE CAST-IRON RANGE WITH MODERN CONVENIENCES

You don't want to use a range as a step-ladder—not as the ordinary thing—but you do want a strong, well-built range. This picture is given here to show that the oven door—a weak spot in most ranges—is a firm, strong piece of construction in the Peninsular and it is typical of the whole make-up of this durable range.

Some people prefer a cast-iron range but want one or two features usually found only in steel ranges.

is designed for just such people.

It has the perfectly-fitting doors and parts, the firm, substantial body and the cosey, homelike appearance peculiar to cast-iron ranges.

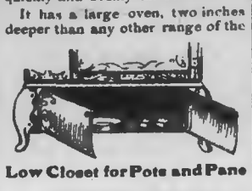
At the same time it has an oven made partly of iron and partly of steel—an oven that will heat quickly and evenly all over.

It has a large oven, two inches deeper than any other range of the same size—just large enough to cook four pies at once.

Grates Easy to Remove

It has a drop oven door, which is not usual on a cast-iron range.

It may be had with a hot water reservoir and a steel warming closet with drop door.



Low Closet for Pots and Pans

The Part You Cannot See

These are all things that you can see—very important things, but not more so than the things you cannot see—the interior construction, which decides whether or not your pies will burn, whether your oven will be perfectly tight so as to keep out dust and smoke, whether it will wear.

These unseen points you can be sure of when you buy a Peninsular range.

Fifty years of building stoves—honest stoves—are behind every range that bears the name "Peninsular." That name says the materials are good—the flue arrangement is good—the oven is built to heat evenly—the range will wear.

There is a Peninsular range to suit every purse and to please every taste in range architecture.

"The Cost" illustrates some of the more popular lines and explains why Peninsular ranges cost less in the long run than others. Don't buy a range before reading this book. It's free.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

ANY PERSON who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties.—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts, a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.
N.B.—Unauthorized publication of this advertisement will not be paid for.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Renewing Wharfs and Construction of Boat House at Kingston, Ont." will be received at this office until 4 P.M. on Monday, September 25, 1911, for the construction of a Boat House and the renewal of Wharfs at Kingston, Royal Military College, Frontenac County, Ont.

Plans, specifications and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained at this Department and at the offices of J. G. Sing, Esq., District Engineer, Confederation Life Building, Toronto, Ont., and on application to the Postmaster at Kingston, Ont.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence in the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
R. C. DESROCHERS,
Secretary.

Department of Public Works,
Ottawa, August 26, 1911. .... ..
Newspapers will not be paid for this advertisement if they insert it without authority from the Department.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Supplying Coal for the Dominion Buildings," will be received at this office until 4.00 P.M., on Tuesday, September 26, 1911, for the supply of Coal for the Public Buildings throughout the Dominion.

Combined specifications and form of tender can be obtained on application at this office.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed form supplied, and signed with their actual signatures.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

ALLEGED THIEF CONFESSES

Says He Has Made Many Thefts from the Louvre, Paris

Extraordinary scenes were witnessed at the re-opening of the Louvre. The building was better guarded than ever it had been before. Many women among the sightseers brought bouquets of flowers, chiefly red or white roses tied with white ribbons. Soon after the re-opening of the galleries some excitement was caused by a wild-looking woman who said she was the Mona Lisa come back and wanted to be restored to her frame. The "Paris Journal" prints an amazing confession by a Louvre thief. This person describes how he was able to carry out a series of thefts of objects of art from the national museum. He has handed over to the paper a bust measuring seven inches in length and weighing fourteen pounds which he took from the collection of antiquities in May last, hiding it under a raincoat. This repentant thief, who says he is a Belgian and has a profound acquaintance with all the art galleries of Europe and America, declares he has never come across grosser carelessness on the part of museum guardians than at the Louvre. His first theft was carried out in March, 1907. He found a guardian dozing in a chair in the salon of antiquities, selected a smal Venetian statue, and walked off with it. This he sold for $10,000.

PRINCE ADALBERT

Third son of Emperor William of Germany. He is 27 years of age and is infatuated over Fraulein Chesela, the daughter of a wealthy tradesman.

HIS POINT OF VIEW

"I notice that the society women of New York have begun a crusade against long hatpins," said the tall man in the crowded car.

"Absurd!" growled the dark stranger next to him.

"Eh?"

The tall man looked around in some surprise.

"Don't you consider the long hatpin a dangerous menace?"

"Stuff and nonsense!" snorted the stranger.

The tall man spoke with much deliberation.

"Don't you know," he demanded, "that hatpins are dangerous the way they are made?"

"I know nothing of the sort," the dark man spluttered; "I make 'em!"

NOT ALTOGETHER

"Is Bilson trustworthy?"

"Well, I'd trust him with my life—that is, if it wasn't insured in his favor."

AFTER TREATMENT

Peter E. Summers relates his experience:

"I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. Likely to Indiscretion and excesses in youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night weakened me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Numbness in the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicine and tried many first-class physicians, wore an electric belt for three months, but received little benefit. I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the NEW METHOD TREATMENT and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and continue to do so.

ADVENTURES of the WORLD'S GREAT DETECTIVES

By George Barton

The French Antique Dealer-

An Episode in the Life of M. Robert, the celebrated Parisian detective.

COPYRIGHT 1911 BY W. G. CHAPMAN.

HE FOUND THE OLD MAN SEATED IN A CHAIR-DEAD

(This is one of a new series of stories concerning adventures that have occurred in the lives of the world's greatest detectives. Mr. Barton has gathered his material from real life, but in some cases imaginary names have been substituted for real ones simply as a matter of justice to the innocent descendents of culprits mentioned in the narratives. Permissible liberties have been taken in the construction and arrangement of these fact stories, but in all that is essential, they may be regarded as human documents of unusual interest and value.—The Editor.)

The Rue Madame is one of the quaint streets of old Paris. It is on the left side of the river Seine. The artistically fashioned balconies of the houses of the ancient aristocracy of France rub elbows, so to speak, with new hotels and antique shops. One of the best known of these shops was kept for many years by Leon Olbert, a whimsical fellow, whose knowledge of the value of works of art was only exceeded by his inexhaustible fund of good humor.

Many royalists reside in the Rue Madame, and they haunted the shop of Monsieur Olbert, for he possessed the rare things of the past—the things they loved to examine and talk about, even if impaired fortunes prohibited them from purchasing. Even the name of the street suggested the glories of the past, for Madame was the title that was given at the court of the Bourbons to the daughters of the King and the King's brother's wife.

Monsieur Olbert was a royalist at heart, and he was in his element in his little shop, filled with all sorts of antiquities and visited with great condescension by his royalist neighbors. Clocks of all sizes and conditions and ages were ticking out the moments that lead to eternity. And around them were mirrors that reflected the love and the hate and the fear and the ambition of men. Silver candlesticks and mahogany bureaus all were there, and Monsieur Olbert loved them every one.

One morning the gendarme who was patrolling that section of the city noticed that the door of M. Olbert's shop was ajar. He entered and found the old man seated in an armchair—dead. There was a look of peace on his face and he clasped a morning newspaper between his icy fingers. The physician who examined the body said that he had probably died from heart disease.

But there was one doubting Thomas, and he was M. Robert, the famous Parisian detective. M. Robert was one of the many men who had often been attracted to the shop on the Rue Madame, and he entertained a fondness for the old dealer in antiques. He felt instinctively that it was the sort of a place that a professional crook would like to rob. It was "different," and the possibilities of a rich haul were alluring. He called at the shop after the death of M. Olbert and tried to ascertain if any of the stock were missing. But alas, no one could give the required information. The old dealer knew his business by heart, but he kept it locked up in his own breast. The only catalogue of the stock was in that quaint old head that would no longer nod.

In the emergency Robert disguised himself and mingled with the friends and neighbors of the dead man. For some days he worked without results. But one night a bit of information was dropped that illumined the situation like a flash of lightning. A group of men were seated about a table in the rear room of the shop, discussing the good qualities of the deceased.

"He could tell a piece of Chippendale at sight," said Robert, by way of making conversation.

"Yes," remarked another, "he was very successful. I have no doubt that he left a great fortune."

"And the marvelous part of it all," chimed in a third, "was the fact that he made his money without knowing how to read or write."

Robert jumped up with a cry of surprise. He hurried to the prefect of police.

"M. Olbert," he cried, "was murdered."

His superior looked at him wonderingly.

"How do you know this?" he asked.

"Because he could not read or write."

The prefect was puzzled.

"Murdered because he could not read or write?" he murmured.

"No! No!" cried the detective, with impatient eagerness. "But the positive knowledge that he could not read proves that he is a victim of foul play."

"How?"

"He was found dead with a newspaper in his hand."

A light broke in on the prefect's mind.

"I see," he said; "I see."

And indeed the two men visualized the scene. They could see the thieves killing the old man and then propping him up in the armchair, with the newspaper in his cold fingers to give the appearance of a natural death.

A second careful medical examination proved that the old man had been strangled to death. Faint blue finger marks were to be seen under the chin and near the back of the ears. Also, it was demonstrated that valuable bits of stock had been stolen from the shop. Beside this, certain bank notes remained unaccounted for. Thus, what would have passed as a natural death had now developed into a very mysterious murder.

M. Robert went at the problem with all his heart and soul. He spread out a vast police net that included the whole of Paris, but when it was hauled in it did not contain the particular fish he was most anxious to secure. There were all sorts of petty thieves, highway robbers and some murderers, but not the particular person for whom M. Robert held his rod in pickle. The marvelous secret detective system of the French capital—a system that knows everybody and everybody's business—for once failed to bring results. Months, and finally a year, went by. At the end of the second year the murder of the gentle old dealer in antiques was still unavenged. M. Robert had assumed all sorts of disguises. He had associated with all manner of criminals. He had been assisted by a corps of clever men, and still the problem remained unsolved.

THE DETECTIVE THREW HIM ON HIS BACK AND FORCED HIS JAWS OPEN BY BRUTE STRENGTH

The long arm of coincidence is a thing which occasionally apepars in all of our lives. M. Robert was to see it in its most interesting phase. After the close of the second year since the Olbert murder the detective went to the country for the purpose of taking a brief vacation. On the return trip he met a delightful old gentleman, M. Dupret, a country banker. They made themselves known to one another and the long journey back to the city was shortened by an interchange of experiences. M. Dupret had met with with some curious experiences in his lifetime. He had frustrated some of the best bank thieves in the country and naturally felt proud of his achievements. M. Robert, in turn, related some of the adventures wherein he had rounded up famous criminals. They separated at the station with many expressions of mutual esteem.

The next morning, while M. Robert was seated at his desk in the police headquarters of Paris, he received a telegram which said:

"Come down here at once. The vault in my bank has been broken open and robbed of valuable negotiable securities."

It was signed by his banker friend of the day before. M. Roberts responded at once, and after reaching the rural bank obtained a complete description of the stolen bonds. He expressed confidence in his ability to recover them within a reasonably short time. He returned to Paris and began the work of obtaining information concerning the securities. It was not a difficult task; indeed, M. Robert looked upon it as one of the routine features of his daily work. It did not present any intricate phases; it was simply a matter of tracing stolen property, a sort of property that could not be offered for sale without exciting suspicion. At the end of the third day Robert learned that a well-known thief, named Oscar Vialard, had been in the financial quarter of the city offering to dispose of some of the stolen securities. He started out immediately to apprehend the fellow. He knew the haunts of thieves well enough to know just where to look for such a person. The first two or three places he visited yielded no results, but finally, entering a cafe on the Boulevard St. Germain, he found the person in whom he was interested, seated at a table with some companions, just in the act of topping off an elaborate meal with a very green-looking cream de menthe. The officer slipped in quietly. He noticed that Vialard had a letter in front of him. It was a mere scrap of paper. The officer touched the thief on the shoulder.

"Come, my friend," he said, "I would like to interview you at my office."

To his surprise, the thief grabbed the small scrap of paper and, crushing it up into a little ball, put it in his mouth and tried to swallow it. The detective determined to recover that bit of paper at all hazards. He grappled with Vialard, threw him on his back and then forced his jaws open by brute force. The man struggled like a maniac, but finally yielded and gave up the crumpled piece of paper. It was an undated and unsigned letter written to a thief named Blum, who was then in jail. The epistle was commonplace and apparently had no significance, but Robert had been a thief taker for too many years to permit any trifle to look like a trifle in his eyes. Vialard was taken into custody and then Robert arranged his plan of campaign. First, he recovered the stolen securities; after that, which was an easy task, they were returned to the country banker, and the detective proceeded to see how much more he could develop from the circumstances that confronted him.

One morning he sent for an officer and had the prisoner Blum brought to his office. He told him to take a seat in an armchair next to the window, which overlooked a courtyard leading from one side of the police headquarters to the other. He had placed the fellow where the light fell squarely on his face. M. Robert pretended to be busily engaged at his work, but all the while he was intently watching Blum's countenance. At a given signal two uniformed men appeared in the courtyard with Vallard handcuffed between them. As Blum saw his pal under these significant circumstances he jumped from his chair and gave a cry of distress.

M. Robert noticed it and said to him in a tone of deep emphasis:

"Well, my friend, you see that the game is up."

Blum looked at him with terror in his eyes. He moistened his dry lips with his tongue and echoed in a stammering voice:

"The game—the game is up?"

"Yes," said the detective, blithely, "and further concealment would be folly."

"Has—has he—"

"Yes," finished M. Robert, with a smile on his face, "your pal has confessed everything."

Blum turned to him eagerly.

"It is not too late for me to tell the truth, is it?"

"No," was the calm response, "it is never too late to be truthful."

Then, in an endeavor to set himself straight and to prove that he was more sinned against than sinning, the thief poured out his amazing confession.

M. Robert sat there and listened with placid face and cool demeanor, but his heart beat a little quicker than usual and it was all that he could do to remain passive. And no wonder! For the thief before him was telling in short, quick words, the story of the murder of Olbert, the old shopkeeper on the Rue Madame.

Blum had jumped to the conclusion that he had been betrayed by Vialard, and he confessed that he had accompanied Vialard to the house and had guarded the door while his pal strangled the old man to death. They did not intend to commit murder, and when they found that M. Olbert was dead they were very much alarmed. There were no marks of violence on the old man, and the notion to prop him up in the chair came as an afterthought. It appealed to their sense of the romantic. It would be such a clever thing to make the public believe the old man had died a natural death while sitting in his armchair. The idea of placing a newspaper in the dead man's hand came as a sort of inspiration to Vialard. It was so clever, he thought, that he had chuckled over it many, many times during the two years that had passed. Yet, that was the one false move that had given proof of foul play and led finally to the discovery and arrest of the assassin and his accomplice.

NOT ANNOYED, OF COURSE

Capt. Butt Was Merely Giving to His Friend a Few Philosophical Reflections.

Capt. Archibald W. Butt, the president's military aide, was called out of bed at nine o'clock one morning to answer a telephone call.

"Archie," said his friend on the other end of the wire, "I called you up to tell you that I shall not be able to keep the appointment I made with you for eleven o'clock today."

"I'm sorry," said Butt, his tone a trifle chilly.

"Yes; it's too bad," agreed the other.

There ensued an ominous pause.

"You know," remarked Butt sententiously, "telephoning seems to be a habit, a bad habit, in Washington. People are beginning to issue their invitations by telephone. They 'phone on the slightest provocation. They don't seem to know when not to telephone. They even get you out of bed to talk to you on the telephone."

"I'm afraid I annoyed you, and you're bawling me out," said the friend.

"Oh, no!" contradicted Butt in a louder tone. "My remarks are merely a few philosophical reflections induced by the early hour of the morning."—The Sunday Magazine.

HER REASON FOR WEEPING

Mrs. Ackroyd's Explanation Also Gives Her Husband Occasion for Some Sober Thinking.

Just when Mrs. Ackroyd had finished packing her trunks and after William had bought railway tickets for her and their two daughters little Bessie came down with a severe case of whopping cough. The doctor positively refused to let the child start on a long journey, and even if he had thought it safe for the little one to leave home he assured Mrs. Ackroyd that she would not be permitted to take the patient into a hotel anywhere.

"Isn't it a shame!" the distressed lady wailed. "Here we are with everything in our trunks and my husband has even bought our berths in the sleeper."

"It is unfortunate, but I don't know what you can do except sit down and wait for four or five days. It may be safe for you then to start away."

When her husband got home that evening Mrs. Ackroyd was weeping.

"Don't take it so hard, dear," he said. "It might be a good deal worse. Our little one is likely to get along all right. The doctor says the case isn't an unusually severe one, and when I telephoned him this afternoon he said he thought it might be safe for you to start away by the end of the week."

"I know. He told me the same thing. But I feel that we'll never go. I never postponed anything yet that didn't turn out badly. I once postponed a wedding and the marriage never took place."

Half an hour later William Ackroyd was still sitting in a corner, thinking it over.

Ambition is a longing that makes some men near-great.

It Might Help.

"My wife used to meet me at the door every night when I got home from work."

"Doesn't she do so any more?"

"No, never."

"Why not try taking home a little check to her two of three times a week?"

The Perfect Spring Door

HAVE you seen the Perfect Spring Door on the warming closet? It is the newest Pandora feature.

The ordinary door, when opened, is inside the warming closet and takes up valuable space.

But the Perfect Spring Door, when opened, is entirely outside of the warming closet. By being outside it adds two inches to the height of the space inside the closet. That extra space provides room for fourteen more dinner or dessert plates. The door cannot drop down and smash the dishes because the spring holds the door up out of the way until you desire to close it.

The Perfect Spring Door is a convenience worth having. There are more than a score of other conveniences on the Pandora. Our Pandora booklet tells about them. Send for a copy.

AN HISTORIC CHURCH

The Deptford Edifice Has Been Condemned as Unsafe

The historic church of St. Nicholas, Deptford, has been condemned as unsafe by the London County Council, under the "Dangerous Structures Act," and an appeal is made for $25,000 for restoration. The history of the church is bound up with the Spanish Armada and its defeat. It was in this parish that Sir John Hawkins lived and devoted his energies to fitting out the ships of war. In this church the Admirals of the Fleet met to worship before setting out to meet the foe. Here Evelyn and Pepys (the diarists), and Sir Francis Drake were constant worshippers. In this parish Evelyn discovered Grinling Gibbons (the world-renowned wood-carver), and some of his greatest work is still to be seen in the old church, including his magnificent representation of Ezekiel's vision, "The Valley of Dry Bones."

The church is rich with associations in the history of the British Empire. It is the Westminster Abbey of the British Navy. Within its walls Peter Pett, the inventor of the frigate, the predecessor of the modern cruiser, lies buried. Many of the greatest naval heroes find their resting-place there. William Hawkins, brother of Sir John Hawkins; Edward Fenton, the notable Elizabethan explorer, who commanded the Admiral's flagship in the fight with Spain; Frobisher, and many of Devon's naval notabilities are also buried there. Also within its churchyard rests Kit Marlowe, the celebrated dramatist and contemporary of Shakespeare. Under its shadow, Peter the Great, the Emperor of Russia, learned the art of shipbuilding.

EX-CROWN PRINCESS LOUISE OF SAXONY

The Saxon Court is in an uproar over the coming publication of ex-Crown Princess Louise of Saxony's memoirs. She has been officially notified that upon the day the book makes its appearance her pension of $10,000 per annum will cease, and every effort is being made to bring the headstrong Princess to terms. The Princess so far refused to withdraw her manuscript. It is rumored that she is to receive $200,000 for the book.

TO SELL BLEAK HOUSE

The Dwelling at Broadstairs Once Occupied by Dickens

The historic house at Broadstairs where Charles Dickens lived was offered at auction at Messrs. Knight, Frank and Rutley's rooms, when, after a number of bids, which nearly reached the reserve price, the property was withdrawn at $30,000. The house, which is the property of Mr. Thomas Barry, will be reoffered at Broadstairs, when there will also be offered for sale the interesting furniture and contents of the house, including Frith's well-known picture "Dolly Varden," which was painted for Charles Dickens, and a replica of which is in the South Kensington Museum. According to the catalogue, before Dickens lived at Bleak House, Wilkie Collins was in residence there. At that time it was known as Fort House, and was renamed Bleak House by Dickens. Here he wrote some of his most famous works, and it is believed that "David Copperfield" was almost entirely written in the small study which faces the sea. Outside this study is a panel-painting by Miss Dickens, and various articles of furniture once belonging to the great novelist are still there.

WOMEN AS PASTORS

The First Woman to be Accepted by the General Synod

An English lady pastor, the Rev. Gertrude Petzold, well known to Leicester and Birmingham, is the first woman to be accepted at Geneva under a decision of the local Synod to admit women as pastors, and to allow all parishes full liberty to choose qualified women clergy.

As many of the parishes in the canton have been without a clergyman for years, it is thought the vacant posts will be generally filled by women, though the stipends are low. The pioneer is Miss Petzold, who obtained her degrees in Germany and England. Since January last she has been the minister at the Waverly Road Unitarian Church, Small Heath, Birmingham. She took her M.A. degree at Edinburgh University, and later studied theology for three years at Manchester College, Oxford. For four years she was minister at the Free Christian Church, Leicester.

DIED AT THE AGE OF 102

Mrs. Crew Was Oldest Resident of Scarboro Township

The death of Mrs. Mary Jane Crew, Scarboro's oldest resident, removes a wonderfully striking figure, and one who had outlived all the friends of her early youth. Born in Prince Edward County in May, 1809, of New Brunswick parents, Mrs. Crew had attained the remarkable age of 102 years. The deceased lady was the mother of eight children, three daughters and five sons. Of these one daughter and two sons survive. One son, William, died in Winnipeg less than a year ago, aged 80. A wonderful woman was the late Mrs. Crew, her hearing and eyesight being almost unimpaired, while her memory was marvellously retained even to the last.

We can sterilize his bottle, we can boil his little mug;
We can bake his flannel bandages and disinfect the rug
That envelops him when he partakes of medicated air.
But there's one impossibility that leaves us in despair—
And a not unjustifiable alarm, you'll most certainly allow—
To wit, We fear 'twould never do to sterilize the cow.

Thus, although we strive to conquer every septic circumstance,
Yet we greatly fear a ghastly alimentary mischance;
For albeit we bake and boil his things and scrub and soak and souse—
As if in his anatomy forever cleaning house—
The recklessness with which he sucks his vagrant, tiny thumb
Imparts much his prodigal antiseptic little tum.

We are careful of his hours, we are thoughtful of his toys;
We are mindful of his sorrows and judicious of his joys;
We are prayerfully considerate of needful discipline,
Of my little "Mothers' Handbook" and the precepts writ therein,
And we strive to render sterile all designed for mouth or tum,
But one frightful danger menaces—we cannot boil his thumb.

To Please Both Sides.

"You allege cruelty, madam," says the court. "What particular form of cruelty?"

"Your honor," says the complainant, "my husband got mad and threw things at me because I tried to please him with the meals I fixed for him."

"What have you to say?" asks the judge of the defendant.

"I'll tell you, judge. Maybe I was a little hasty, but it's this way: She is always trying new salads that she finds in the recipe columns of the papers, and after I had tried to eat nasturtium salad, and hickory nut salad, and carrot salad, and eggplant salad, and dried beef salad, and spaghetti salad, I did lose my temper when she handed me a dish of shredded chrysanthemums with olive oil on them."

"I will not grant a divorce, but I will censure the defendant in my private office," says the judge, leading the way. Once the door is closed on him and the wondering defendant the judge says:

"Shake, old man! I did the best I could for you. I have to put up this bluff about censuring you because my own wife will read of the case, and she is now making delicious desserts from cold mush and left over breakfast foods."

Dry Days in Maine.

Here's a story in the week's annals of Maine merchants, this time from Portland. A Portland tradesman was visited by a friend from the country and among attempts to entertain took the visitor to the theater. When the lights were low the merchant quietly drew forth a pair of opera glasses and handed them to his guest. A contented "Ah!" slipped from the man from the country, and then his arms in the air were faintly discernible.

"What's the trouble?" asked the host.

The answer came in a distressingly plain whisper of disappointment. "Oh, nothing, only the thing's empty."—Bangor Commercial.

A DISCOVERY THAT IS BENEFITING THE WHOLE WORLD

CANADIAN PHYSICIAN MADE IT

Wonderful New Substance Formed By Combining Fruit Juices

It takes Canada to do the really big things that are being done. For thousands of years, people have known that fruit was good for them without knowing exactly why. A Canadian physician experimented until he found out.

Fruit juice is about nine-tenths water and one-tenth solid matter. And this solid matter is eight-ninths sweet and one-ninth bitter. It is the bitter principle that is the curative part of fruit. To get the full benefit of fruit, one must eat great quantities of fruit. By the discovery of this Canadian physician, the bitter or curing part of fruit juice is so combined that it is made to grow or increase many times. In other words, a stronger fruit juice is created. This is made into tablets which are known all over Canada under the name of "Fruit-a-tives". "Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world that cures Constipation. JAMES PROUDFOOT Esq. of Vankleek Hill, Ont. says "If it were not for 'Fruit-a-tives' I am satisfied I could not live".

MR. PROUDFOOT

Chronic Constipation means Paralysis of the Bowels. There are two layers of muscles in the bowels which during constipation become thin and weak and cannot act. In severe cases, people go three and even ten days without the bowels moving. N. JOUBERT Esq. of Grande Ligne, Que. says "I heartily recommend 'Fruit-a-tives' to all who suffer with Constipation".

MR. JOUBERT

MR. WILLISTON

Bile, a liquid secreted by the liver, is the purgative of the body. Two pints of bile should be poured into the bowels every day. In severe constipation only about half a pint is secreted. With the muscles of the bowels weak and little bile, it is impossible for the bowels to move regularly. A. G. WILLISTON Esq. of Hardwicks, N. B. says "I tried 'Fruit-a-tives' and now I am well from Chronic Constipation from which I suffered for many years".

To cure Constipation, the liver must be stimulated to pour out more bile and the weak muscles strengthened.

MISS FOX

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Fox of Newburgh, Ont., say "Our daughter was cured of Appendicitis by 'Fruit-a-tives' after doctors said only an operation could save her life."

MR. PARSONS

"Fruit-a-tives" is not merely a relieving agent but actually cures Constipation. It tones up the nerves and bowel muscles and increases the flow of bile.

WM. PARSONS Esq. of Otterville, Ont. says "I am eighty years of age and find 'Fruit-a-tives' do me more good than any other remedy". Remember — chronic Constipation cannot be cured in a day, but "Fruit-a-tives" will quickly relieve the trouble and certainly cure you if taken a reasonable time.

SENATOR COSTIGAN

Senator JOHN COSTIGAN of Ottawa, says "I have been a dreadful sufferer from Constipation for over thirty years. After taking 'Fruit-a-tives' for a few months, I feel I am well from this horrible complaint".

"Fruit-a-tives" will cure you. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size 25c. At all dealers, or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Easily Explained.

The smart angler from the city thought he would have some sport with the weather beaten native by asking him a few nonsensical questions.

"And why is it that the fish bite better when it is raining?" queried the city man.

"That's easy to answer, sir," responded the old man solemnly. "You see, when it is raining the trout stay under water because they are afraid to come to the surface and nibble the floating insects."

"And why are they afraid to come to the surface?"

"Why, they are afraid of getting wet, sir. Would you mind passing the tobacco?"—Chicago News.

FREIGHT CARS WERE DE-RAILED

Grand Trunk Freight Train Meets With Accident Near Campbellford—Six Cars Leave Rails

NO ONE INJURED

An accident of a somewhat startling nature befell the G. T. R. manifest train at 3.30 this morning. When three miles east of Campbellford, the engine ,from some unknown cause, suddenly left the track, dragging with it six of the cars, which were loaded with grain. The engineer, seeing the impending danger, applied the emergency brakes ,and averted what might have resulted in a horrible railway catastrophe.

On account of the blocking of the track, the passengers from Belleville will be transferred from the Belleville train into a special, which will leave Lindsay for that purpose. The same will apply to the Lindsay passengers. The Belleville train will meet that from Lindsay at the place of derailment for the purpose of receiving its passengers.

Roadmaster Mitchell took a gang of men from Lindsay and another from Peterborough this morning in order to replace the train on the rails as quickly as possible. Trainmaster McMillan has also arrived on the scene and will oversee the work.

No one was injured and it is not anticipated that there will be any serious damage done.

Daring Robbery At Post Office

Special to The Examiner.

WATERFORD, ONT., SEPT. 23.—A dynamitist, apparently experienced in bank robbery, entered the post office here early this morning and got away with three thousand four hundred dollars and about a hundred and fifty dollars' worth of postage stamps. The whole community is excited over the occurrence and the country is being scoured by about fifty county and provincial police and detectives. The discovery of the robbery was made about seven o'clock, when Postmaster Rock arrived to open the office. He found that the rear window pane was smashed, apparently with an axe or a hammer and the safe blown to pieces by dynamite. The money consisted principally of sealed packages registered by the Northern Crown bank yesterday to be sent to Toronto from the Scotland, Ont., branch. Since the report got abroad it has been learned that strangers were seen hanging around Scotland village yesterday. Their descriptions have been noted, but no trace of them as yet.

HOW LIBERAL CHIEFTAIN RECEIVED THE NEWS OF HIS DEFEAT AT POLLS

Sir Wilfrid Took the Intelligence That the Country Had Gone Against Reciprocity Bravely and Unashamed ---"Took it Like a Chief."

QUEBEC, SEPT. 22.—"We have fallen in a high and honourable cause We have received a check, but we shall coe back gain to the fight. I thank you for what you have done for me for thirty years, to-day. We have lost, but our cause shall prevail."

There was a moment's hush in the smoke-filled, dimly-lighted hall of the St. Peter's Market when the speaker had finished the few words. It was one of those moments when no one could applaud. Friends and foes alike were silent, and the tall, grey-haired man, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, bowed slightly, and was silent. Then came a sudden handclap, and the spell was broken. Devlin followed, bold, rugged, courageous, but the eye of the assembly was not on him. As he stepped forward to the edge of the platform. Sir Wilfrid moved back to the table and stood for a moment, his head bowed as in deep thought, and no one spoke to him.

Died for an Idea.

The few who witnessed the scene in the big barracks of the market building when Sir Wilfrid went to get the returns about 8 o'clock at night, will not forget. It was one of the big moments of a nation's history, and the man on whom every eye was fixed was the nation's biggest man. It was more than the fall of a government; it was the checking of an idea, the end of a tradition; the turning of the tide. Men have died for a lesser thing. This was the wrenching away of power which is sometimes more than life. The thing lifted itself above its dim, drab surroundings, and stood upon a pinnacle, and the words which fell from the man's lips were weighed with a great import, which victory itself would not have brought. The man has been great in his many hours of victory, but never greater than in his hour of defeat. Splendid courage, firm resolve triumphing over bitter defeat, the will and the heart holding up the tired body. Indomitable pluck, clear grit to the end. It was almost worth being beaten to have been present when the end came.

Room Blue With Smoke.

The great room was blue with smoke, and dimly lighted. At a table on the platform sat Sir Wilfrid. Beside him, Hon. C. B. Devlin, of the Quebec Cabinet, who has fought the fight like the two-fisted Irishman he is; M. P. Davis, the contractor, and Philip Pardis, Liberal Organiser for Quebec. Of all the thousands who have shouted and sworn fealty to Sir Wilfrid, these alone were with him in his hour of defeat; and it was better, too. Two hundred people were gathered in the hall, and through a window at the side a spitting calcium light threw the returns on a sheet, swinging between the trees outside. Only a small crowd had gathered. The bigger crowds were uptown, in the noise and excitement. Down where St. Peter's Market squats, it was dark and quiet. Return after return came in, and every moment the certainty of defeat became more great and more bitter. Self-contained as ever, Sir Wilfrid took the yellow slips and noted their contents. Not a muscle showed the strain he was labouring under but at last it became too great. He saw that there was no hope of victory, and like the man he is, calmly acknowledged his defeat.

Nothing Flamboyant.

There was nothing flamboyant about it; no posturing, no appeals to sympathy, no heroics. With simple dignity, and speaking softly, he told the men who have followed him through the good report and ill for thirty years that he was beaten, and in the few brief moments of his speech, touched upon the past and present, the alliance which had overthrown him, and the price which Canada might have to pay for that overthrow. Then, his message given, his farewell delivered, he sat down.

There was something wonderfully impressive in that short valedictory, a high courage which, though admitting the defeat of the moment, yet would admit no more, and a proud consciousness that there was nothing to blush for. The fight had been for a great cause, worthily fought and honourably lost.

Ate a Sandwich.

The day had been quietly spent by Sir Wilfrid. After the fatigue of the campaign he might have been excused for passing the day in seclusion, but he was up early and took a little turn around the city, calling at a couple of committee rooms. He did not have to vote, owing to the withdrawal of his opponent. He lunched with Monsieur St. Armand, a lifelong friend at the latter's residence, and came back to the Chateau early in the afternoon. A private wire had been installed in one of the rooms of his suite and shortly after five o'clock the first returns began to come in. As a consequence he did not appear at dinner, contenting himself with a sandwich, as the messages came pouring in in increasing numbers. Almost from the commencement they began to go against the Government, but as the moments passed and the pitiless instruments spelt out more and more of the messages of disaster, Sir Wilfrid's calmness never deserted him.

"Toronto does not seem to favour reciprocity," he remarked jokingly to a newspaper man from that city, when the returns made it apparent that all Conservatives had been returned there.

Left the Hotel Then.

He was neither hopeful nor despondent as he left the hotel for the far off St. Peter's Market in the heart of his division, where he was to get the rest of the returns. Nothing seemed able to affect the wonderful coolness which has made him almost the only man to keep his head in the last six weeks. Then when the crash came and nothing more was to be said he left the hall, head up, smiling, adding a cheery word to a hearty hand clasp as he passed through the respectfully parted crowd to his waiting motor. It was black, and cold, and silent outside. There were no cheers at first, though they sang out as he began to move away and followed him along the streets till the crowd was left.

Passed Their Scrutiny.

Every eye was on him as he passed through the rotunda of the Chateau Frontenac, but those who looked for bowed head and drooping shoulders were disappointed. Had he been returning in triumph he could not have held himself more erect. The chattering telegraph instrument was still when he got up again to his suite. There was no crowding of exultant visitors to shake his hand to let him, the powerful one, see how devoted they were. Mr. Devlin and Mr. Paradis alone accompanied him to his room and far into the night they sat talking things over.

All his friends in Quebec are thinking of him to-night. "What about 'the chief?' "How is he taking it?" was the question that met you on every side. The chief—"He is taking it like a chief."

AN ELECTION QUARREL RESULTS IN TRAGEDY

Dr. Doherty, of Campbellton, N. B., Stabs Mr. J. D. Bruce in the Eye With His Umbrella, After a Heated Discussion

CAMPBELLTON, N.B., SEPT. 23.—Mr. J. D. Bruce died at an early hour this morning, the result of a quarrel with Dr. W. W. Doherty.

The townspeople are shocked by the sudden termination of one of the most sober and quiet elections ever held in Restigouche. It appears that Mr. Bruce and Mr. Doherty were in a somewhat heated argument about political matters. Mr. Bruce being a prominent Conservative, while Dr. Doherty is Liberal, when a very personal matter respecting Dr. Doherty was touched upon. Thereupon he is said to have stabbed at Mr. Bruce with an umbrella The weapon pierced the unfortunate man's eye, and it is supposed that it injured the brain. The injured man was rushed to the Hotel Dieu, where everything possible was done, and he was then removed to his home, where he died at 6 o'clock this morning.

Whitney Government Will, It Is Said, Try to Take Advantage of the Sweep of Victory in the Air

IN NOVEMBER

Special Wire to The Examiner.

TORONTO, ONT., SEPT. 23.—It is derstood in Parliament Buildings circles that it is the intention of the Whitney government to bring on immediately the general elections in Ontario. There are a number of seats vacant in the province at present and the sweep of victory being in the air, advantage will be taken of the opportunity to snatch a victory from the people of this province. It is reported in secret circles that the date will be in November for both nomination and polling.

More About The Milk By-law

A little more information is to hand re the milk by-law, which may be of interest to those concerned. Mr. Carlisle called at the Examiner today, and stated that he had been in conversation over the telephone, with the Manager of the Model Dairy Co., Woodstock, and the latter informed him that the milk by-law in that town had been repealed, and the price of the milk is at present six cents per quart. Mr. Carlisle did not question him as to the advance the by-law made on the price of the milk there, but stated that he gathered from the information received, that it was out of sight. A slight agitation is going on in Toronto at the present time against the milk trusts, formed in that city. Mr. Carlisle denies that the milk is being carried through the streets without being properly protected. He states that any cans he has ever seen were covered and in good shape. Mr. Carlisle is much interested in the subject and is taking considerable trouble to show that the by-law, if it becomes law, will be a detriment, instead of a protection, in any way, it is intended. Mr. Carlisle thinks the people should take more interest in the milk question, as it is the most important question that has come up for some time.

THE BETTING

TORONTO, SEPT. 22.— Like every election the contest terminated yesterday was the occasion of considerable wagering, not so much of the freak variety as the "money talks" kind. The extent of the Conservatives' confidence in their ability to carry the country was evinced in the betting. The most they could concede was that Laurier would not have five or fifteen of a majority and there was a lot of money laid on that figure, but most of the Liberals who were betting were willing to stake their money on the old chieftain being returned with a majority of at least twenty. One well known Conservative put up five hundred dollars against one thousand that Sir Wilfrid Laurier would not have eighteen. He has arranged to give his friends a champagne supper so far as the Toronto ridings are concerned there was never much doubt about any of them, except Centre Toronto, where Ald. Maguire was the Liberal candidate, and here the Liberals were betting that the Conservatives would not have two hundred. As it turned out the majority was nearly 2,000. The biggest majority was in West Toronto, where G. B. Osler rolled up the amazing plurity of 8,600. His last majority was about three thousand, but the riding is so strongly Conservative that never before has it polled its full strength as it did yesterday.

SPECULATIONS AS TO MAKE-UP OF CABINET

Andrew Broder Who Spoke Here During the Campaign is Slated to be Minister of Agriculture---Col. Sam Hughes Will Have a Fight to Land the Ministry of Militia.

OTTAWA, SEPT. 23. — Sir Wilfrid Laurier was at his office bright and early this morning, and after a consultation with the men of his cabinet there, arranged for a general meeting of the cabinet next week. All the ministers are here or on their way and they will immediately straighten up things for their predecessors, who are expected to take office within a few weeks. There's a feeling here that Borden already has his mind made up regarding his colleagues. Among Ontario's prospects, it is said that Andrew Broder, of Dundas will be the next Minister of Agriculture and that Colonel Sam Hughes will have to make a hard fight for the Ministership of Militia against the section of the party which objected to his close friendship for Sir Frederick Borden and the Ross rifle. Whether Hon. George Foster and Hon. Frank Cochrane will be members of the cabinet is the subject of great speculation here.

The question is what representation, if any, that Quebec Nationalists will have in the new cabinet. It is felt that Borden cannot offer to ignore them, yet in view of the navy programme it would be a ticklish job to have any of Bourassa's men on the quarter deck of the new ship of state.

In the meantime the permanent government employees, from the deputy ministers to the humblest clerk who form a big slice of Ottawa's population are speculating on their chances for the future. They are somewhat reassured, however, by the fact that the Conservatives are pledged to a sort of civil service reform which is supposed to take the government service out of the influence of politics.

Chief Bender Talks Baseball

(By Chief Bender.)

The reason I went into baseball as a profession was that when I first left school baseball offered me the best opportunities both for money and for advancement that I could see. I adopted it because I played baseball better than I could do anything else, because the life and the game appealed to me and because there was so little of racial prejudice in the game. And I am glad I did. It has given me a chance to broaden out to see more of the world, and to learn the ways and prejudices of other men.

As you know, perhaps, I am a Cherokee, and my people always held positions of trust in the tribe. I was born and raised near Brainerd, Minn. I played the game with the other boys as a lad on the reservation and also played lacrosse and other games. I liked baseball best, although the game we played was unfinished. I loved the running and delighted in my skill. I think I took more pride in that than in anything else.

Then I was sent to Carlisle to school and began to study the game. I became a pitcher and pitched for the school team in 1900 and 1901. The men who composed the Carlisle team knew more of the game than I did and we had the advantage of good coaching. I began to learn to pitch there, and when I went to Dickinson college the following year I was considered a good college pitcher and had several offers to pitch professionally. I studied the matter over from every point At first I was timid, because I feared that the players might be prejudiced against me. There was another player, an Indian like myself, who joined the Athletics with me in 1903. I want to say now that during all the years I have been with the team there has been scarcely a trace of sentiment against me on account of birth. I have been treated the same as the other men—and they have received me as a fellow. In baseball a man is a man.

The help that I received from Manager Mack helped me greatly in developing as a pitcher. I feel that I owe much of my past successes to him. He taught me a lot and the older men on the team were patient with me.

I had some trouble at first learning to control my feelings, because I felt that the white men were unjust sometimes, but I discovered that one of the big secrets of success is keeping the temper and keeping one's wits at all times. I found also that many of the things tehy said to me were said merely because the older players knew they might be able to disturb my pitching by getting me mad. When I learned that I could laugh at them. I still like the game as much as ever and it has given me a chance to develop, to learn things and see opportunities, so when the time comes for me to retire I will be ready for some other work and better prepared to do it.

MAN ARRESTED ON SUSPICION IN TORONTO

Special to The Examiner.

TORONTO, SEPT. 22.— The arrest three days ago by Detectives Wallace and Newton of a man who was negotiating for the purchase of a jewellery store in Toronto, had an interesting sequel yesterday in the receipt of a circular from the police of Philadelphia asking for the apprehension of Morris Soulinck a former pawnbroker there.

The arrest followed the receipt of letters from Montreal. They were mailed in Philadelphia and were secured in a rooming house by the Montreal police and forwarded to Toronto. These were from Soulinck's wife, and expressed such solliciation as to Soulinck's welfare that the police at once got active.

The Toronto detectives found a man with considerable punk jewellery in his possession, but he said his name was Lee. His explanation regarding the jewellery was not convincing and he was locked up. He said he was a jeweller with a place of business in Montreal, and is said to have admitted conducting a pawnshop and secondhand store at 819 South Second street, Philadelphia, which was recently destroyed by fire. The authorities also discovered that he had some jewellery melted by Lombard street refiners, the result being a bar of gold valued at $400, a silver bar worth $80, and platinum valued at $33. The refiners turned these over to the police.

Letters of Warning.

When Inspector of Detectives Duncan received the circular from Philadelphia, he also reeived another batch of letters from Montreal, addressed to Soulinck by his wife. These told him that it was absolutely necessary for him to remain in Canada, and also that the insurance companies had agreed to pay $120 in settlement of the fire loss.

A search of the prisoners clothing revealed receipts and two keys for safety deposit vaults in Montreal. These were sent to the police there and further information is awaited from Philadelphia.

ABOUT THE COMING DOWN

The bobble and the tube must go,
And exit also must the harem;
Styles come on for a month or so,
And then the girls refuse to wear them,
The bobble and the tube are flown,
And from its honk the harem;
Gone are the gowns we erst have known,
The girls refuse to wear 'em!

Gone are the styles of yesteryear;
All eyes are looking to to-morrow,
To learn what fashion Nellie, dear,
Will buy or beg or steal, or borrow,
Or will it fill the world with sorrow?
What will the coming fashion tell
All eyes are looking to the morrow.

Fair woman looks with shining eyes;
Man looks intently as a mouser;
The coming fashion tops the rise—
Great heavens! Look! It is the trouser!
Lock all the lethal arms away,
And put a heavy chain on Towser;
Bring back the styles of yesterdy,
To-morrow's gown is called the trouser.

Ah, woman! We ne'er thought of that
Nor dreamed of it, nor did we fear it;
Your peach basket and washtub hat
We stood for, nor did we ever jeer it;
Your form is most divinely fair,
No fashion e'er designed to queer it;
But—please excuse this startled stare
—The trouser gown will now come near it.

Time was when man desired a wife,
And a wee cot in which to house her;
White frills and frou-frou brighten life—
What man can warm up to a trouser?
Oh, well, this, too, shall pass away,
But in the meantime, chain up Towser;
You'll still be lovely, I dare say;
Go on, dear, jump into the trouser.

FREIGHT CARS WERE DE-RAILED

Grand Trunk Freight Train Meets With Accident Near Campbellford—Six Cars Leave Rails

NO ONE INJURED

An accident of a somewhat startling nature befell the G. T. R. manifest train at 3.30 this morning. When three miles east of Campbellford, the engine from some unknown cause, suddenly left the track, dragging with it six of the cars, which were loaded with grain. The engineer, seeing the impending danger, applied the emergency brakes and averted what might have resulted in a horrible railway catastrophe.

On account of the blocking of the track, the passengers from Belleville will be transferred from the Belleville train into a special, which will leave Lindsay for that purpose. The same will apply to the Lindsay passengers. The Belleville train will meet that from Lindsay at the place of derailment for the purpose of receiving its passengers.

Roadmaster Mitchell took a gang of men from Lindsay and another from Peterborough this morning in order to replace the train on the rails as quickly as possible. Trainmaster McMillan has also arrived on the scene and will oversee the work.

No one was injured and it is not anticipated that there will be any serious damage done.

Daring Robbery At Post Office

Special to The Examiner.

WATERFORD, ONT., SEPT. 23.—A dynamitist, apparently experienced in bank robbery, entered the post office here early this morning and got away with three thousand four hundred dollars and about a hundred and fifty dollars' worth of postage stamps. The whole community is excited over the occurrence and the country is being scoured by about fifty county and provincial police and detectives. The discovery of the robbery was made about seven o'clock, when Postmaster Rock arrived to open the office. He found that the rear window pane was smashed, apparently with an axe or a hammer and the safe blown to pieces by dynamite. The money consisted principally of sealed packages registered by the Northern Crown bank yesterday to be sent to Toronto from the Scotland, Ont., branch. Since the report got abroad it has been learned that strangers were seen hanging around Scotland village yesterday. Their descriptions have been noted, but no trace of them as yet.

HOW LIBERAL CHIEFTAIN RECEIVED THE NEWS OF HIS DEFEAT AT POLLS

Sir Wilfrid Took the Intelligence That the Country Had Gone Against Reciprocity Bravely and Unashamed ---"Took It Like a Chief."

QUEBEC, SEPT. 22.—"We have fallen in a high and honourable cause We have received a check, but we shall coe back gain to the fight. I thank you for what you have done for me for thirty years, to-day. We have lost, but our cause shall prevail."

There was a moment's hush in the smoke-filled, dimly-lighted hall of the St. Peter's Market when the speaker had finished the few words. It was one of those moments when no one could applaud. Friends and foes alike were silent, and the tall, grey-haired man, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, bowed slightly, and was silent. Then came a sudden handclap, and the spell was broken. Devlin followed, bold, rugged, courageous, but the eye of the assembly was not on him. As he stepped forward to the edge of the platform, Sir Wilfrid moved back to the table and stood for a moment, his head bowed as in deep thought, and no one spoke to him.

Died for an Idea.

The few who witnessed the scene in the big barracks of the market building when Sir Wilfrid went to get the returns about 8 o'clock at night, will not forget. It was one of the big moments of a nation's history, and the man on whom every eye was fixed was the nation's biggest man. It was more than the fall of a government; it was the checking of an idea, the end of a tradition; the turning of the tide. Men have died for a lesser thing. This was the wrenching away of power which is sometimes more than life. The thing lifted itself above its dim, drab surroundings, and stood upon a pinnacle, and the words which fell from the man's lips were weighed with a great import, which victory itself would not have brought. The man has been great in his many hours of victory, but never greater than in his hour of defeat. Splendid courage, firm resolve triumphing over bitter defeat, the will and the heart holding up the tired body. Indomitable pluck, clear grit to the end. It was almost worth being beaten to have been present when the end came.

Room Blue With Smoke.

The great room was blue with smoke, and dimly lighted. At a table on the platform sat Sir Wilfrid. Beside him, Hon. C. R. Devlin, of the Quebec Cabinet, who has fought the fight like the two-fisted Irishman he is; M. P. Davis, the contractor, and Philip Pardis, Liberal Organizer for Quebec. Of all the thousands who have shouted and sworn fealty to Sir Wilfrid, these alone were with him in his hour of defeat; and it was better, too. Two hundred people were gathered in the hall, and through a window at the side a spitting calcium light threw the returns on a sheet, swinging between the trees outside. Only a small crowd had gathered. The bigger crowds were uptown, in the noise and excitement. Down where St. Peter's Market squats, it was dark and quiet. Return after return came in, and every moment the certainty of defeat became more great and more bitter. Self-contained as ever, Sir Wilfrid took the yellow slips and noted their contents. Not a muscle showed the strain he was labouring under but at last it became too great. He saw that there was no hope of victory, and like the man he is, calmly acknowledged his defeat.

Nothing Flamboyant.

There was nothing flamboyant about it; no posturing, no appeals to sympathy, no heroics. With simple dignity, and speaking softly, he told the men who have followed him through the good report and ill for thirty years that he was beaten, and in the few brief moments of his speech, touched upon the past and present, the alliance which had overthrown him, and the price which Canada might have to pay for that overthrow. Then, his message given, his farewell delivered, he sat down.

There was something wonderfully impressive in that short valedictory, a high courage which, though admitting the defeat of the moment, yet would admit no more, and a proud consciousness that there was nothing to blush for. The fight had been for a great cause, worthily fought and honourably lost.

Ate a Sandwich.

The day had been quietly spent by Sir Wilfrid. After the fatigue of the campaign he might have been excused for passing the day in seclusion, but he was up early and took a little turn around the city, calling at a couple of committee rooms. He did not have to vote, owing to the withdrawal of his opponent. He lunched with Monsieur St. Armand, a lifelong friend at the latter's residence, and came back to the Chateau early in the afternoon. A private wire had been installed in one of the rooms of his suite and shortly after five o'clock the first returns began to come in. As a consequence he did not appear at dinner, contenting himself with a sandwich, as the messages came pouring in in increasing numbers. Almost from the commencement they began to go against the Government, but as the moments passed and the pitiless instruments spelt out more and more of the messages of disaster, Sir Wilfrid's calmness never deserted him.

"Toronto does not seem to favour reciprocity," he remarked jokingly to a newspaper man from that city, when the returns made it apparent that all Conservatives had been returned there.

Left the Hotel Then.

He was neither hopeful nor despondent as he left the hotel for the far off St. Peter's Market in the heart of his division, where he was to get the rest of the returns. Nothing seemed able to affect the wonderful coolness which has made him almost the only man to keep his head in the last six weeks. Then when the crash came and nothing more was to be said he left the hall, head up, smiling, adding a cheery word to a hearty hand clasp as he passed through the respectfully parted crowd to his waiting motor. It was black, and cold, and silent outside. There were no cheers at first, though they sang out as he began to move away and followed him along the streets till the crowd was left.

Passed Their Scrutiny.

Every eye was on him as he passed through the rotunda of the Chateau Frontenac, but those who looked for bowed head and drooping shoulders were disappointed. Had he been returning in triumph he could not have held himself more erect. The chattering telegraph instrument was still when he got up again to his suite. There was no crowding of exultant visitors to shake his hand to let him, the powerful one, see how devoted they were. Mr. Devlin and Mr. Paradis alone accompanied him to his room and far into the night they sat talking things over.

All his friends in Quebec are thinking of him to-night. "What about 'the chief?'" "How is he taking it?" was the question that met you on every side. The chief—"He is taking it like a chief."

AN ELECTION QUARREL RESULTS IN TRAGEDY

Dr. Doherty, of Campbellton, N. B., Stabs Mr. J. D. Bruce in the Eye With His Umbrella, After a Heated Discussion

CAMPBELLTON, N.B., SEPT. 22.—Mr. J. D. Bruce died at an early hour this morning, the result of a quarrel with Dr. W. W. Doherty.

The townspeople are shocked by the sudden termination of one of the most sober and quiet elections ever held in Restigouche. It appears that Mr. Bruce and Mr. Doherty were in a somewhat heated argument about political matters. Mr. Bruce being a prominent Conservative, while Dr. Doherty is a Liberal, when a very personal matter respecting Dr. Doherty was touched upon. Thereupon he is said to have stabbed at Mr. Bruce with an umbrella. The weapon pierced the unfortunate man's eye, and it is supposed that it injured the brain. The injured man was rushed to the Hotel Dieu, where everything possible was done, and he was then removed to his home, where he died at 6 o'clock this morning.

Dr. Doherty immediately after the assault was arrested by Chief Hughes

A widow and two children, one son and one daughter, survive. Deceased was a native of Prince Edward Island and was an active temperance and church worker.

PROVINCIAL ELECTIONS THIS YEAR

Whitney Government Will, it is Said, Try to Take Advantage of the Sweep of Victory in the Air

IN NOVEMBER

Special Wire to The Examiner.

TORONTO, ONT., SEPT. 23.—It is derstood in Parliament Buildings circles that it is the intention of the Whitney government to bring on immediately the general elections in Ontario. There are a number of seats vacant in the province at present and the sweep of victory being in the air, advantage will be taken of the opportunity to snatch a victory from the people of this province. It is reported in secret circles that the date will be in November for both nomination and polling.

More About The Milk By-law

A little more information is to hand re the milk by-law, which may be of interest to those concerned. Mr. Carlisle called at the Examiner today, and stated that he had been in conversation over the telephone, with the Manager of the Model Dairy Co., Woodstock, and the latter informed him that the milk by-law in that town had been repealed, and the price of the milk is at present six cents per quart. Mr. Carlisle did not question him as to the advance the by-law made on the price of the milk there, but stated that he gathered from the information received, that it was out of sight. A slight agitation is going on in Toronto at the present time against the milk trusts, formed in that city. Mr. Carlisle denies that the milk is being carried through the streets without being properly protected. He states that any cans he has ever seen were covered and in good shape. Mr. Carlisle is much interested in the subject and is taking considerable trouble to show that the by-law, if it becomes law, will be a detriment, instead of a protection, in any way, it is intended. Mr. Carlisle thinks the people should take more interest in the milk question, as it is the most important question that has come up for some time.

BUILDING PERMITS

The following are the building permits issued since Sept. 13th: Auburn Power Co., prolongation of Anson street power house, $43,000, pressed brick; James Booth, 516 Chamberlain street, stone foundation and re-shingling house, $300; the Ontario Coal Co., Ltd., 160 Aylmer street, new roof on scale house, $28; A. Blade, Dublin street, store and green house (frame) $225; H. J. McCannon, George street, brick veneer dwelling, $2100; John Gibbs, Stewart street, brick veneer dwelling, $1800.

BRADSHAW.—In Peterborough, on Friday, Sept. 22, the wife of Mr. Harry Bradshaw, of a son.

THE BETTING

TORONTO, SEPT. 22.— Like every election the contest terminated yesterday was the occasion of considerable wagering, not so much of the freak variety as the "money talks" kind. The extent of the Conservatives' confidence in their ability to carry the country was evinced in the betting. The most they could concede was that Laurier would not have five or fifteen of a majority and there was a lot of money laid on that figure, but most of the Liberals who were betting were willing to stake their money on the old chieftain being returned with a majority of at least twenty. One well known Conservative put up five hundred dollars against one thousand that Sir Wilfrid Laurier would not have eighteen. He has arranged to give his friends a champagne supper So far as the Toronto ridings are concerned there was never much doubt about any of them except Centre Toronto, where Ald. Maguire was the Liberal candidate, and here the Liberals were betting that the Conservatives would not have two hundred. As it turned out the majority was nearly 2000. The biggest majority was in West Toronto, where G. B. Osler rolled up the amazing plurity of 8,000. His last majority was about three thousand, but the riding is so strongly Conservative that never before has it polled its full strength as it did yesterday.

SPECULATIONS AS TO MAKE-UP OF CABINET

Andrew Broder Who Spoke Here During the Campaign is Slated to be Minister of Agriculture---Col. Sam Hughes Will Have a Fight to Land the Ministry of Militia.

OTTAWA, SEPT. 23. — Sir Wilfrid Laurier was at his office bright and early this morning, and after a consultation with the men of his cabinet there, arranged for a general meeting of the cabinet next week. All the ministers are here or on their way and they will immediately straighten up things for their predecessors, who are expected to take office within a few weeks. There's a feeling here that Borden already has his mind made up regarding his colleagues. Among Ontario's prospects, it is said that Andrew Broder, of Dundas will be the next Minister of Agriculture and that Colonel Sam Hughes will have to make a hard fight for the Ministership of Militia against the section of the party which objected to his close friendship for Sir Frederick Borden and the Ross rifle. Whether Hon. George Foster and Hon. Frank Cochrane will be members of the cabinet is the subject of great speculation here.

The question is what representation, if any, that Quebec Nationalists will have in the new cabinet. It is felt that Borden cannot offer to ignore them, yet in view of the navy programme it would be a ticklish job to have any of Bourassa's men on the quarter deck of the new ship of state.

In the meantime the permanent government employees, from the deputy ministers to the humblest clerk who form a big slice of Ottawa's population are speculating on their chances for the future. They are somewhat reassured, however, by the fact that the Conservatives are pledged to a sort of civil service reform which is supposed to take the government service out of the influence of politics.

Chief Bender Talks Baseball

(By Chief Bender.)

The reason I went into baseball as a profession was that when I first left school baseball offered me the best opportunities both for money and for advancement that I could see. SATURDAY, SEPT. 23, 1911

THE OLD AND THE NEW.

Mr. R. L. Borden is the premier-elect of Canada. The people, who are supreme, have made him so. No matter what influences, irrelevant or otherwise, legitimate or otherwise, have guided the electors, their "say" must be respected.

Mr. Borden in succeeding Sir Wilfrid Laurier, has before him a high standard to live up to—both as a statesman and a man. As a man, Mr. Borden can easily aspire to creditably filling the role Sir Wilfrid has played the past fifteen years. He has the same, or very similar irreproachable personal character. He may lack the dignified geniality, the graceful camaraderie that is so eminently characteristic of Sir Wilfrid, but Mr. Borden, like Sir Wilfrid, is a clean liver, a model of personal morality. In these respects he is, subject to temperamental modifications, in a class with the Liberal chieftain. Now that opportunity has come — opportunity, which is the test of men and statesmen alike—it is hoped that Mr. Borden will develop qualities of administrative and constructive skill, that will make him a worthy successor of the man who has, for the past fifteen years, been practically the maker of Canada—made it in effect a nation, and set it well in the forefront of the countries of the world. Mr. Borden has business abilities that have made him successful and distinguished as a lawyer and have been instrumental in the accumulation of a considerable private fortune.

With the equipment he has, with a large support, even though it owes its origin to motley influences, that will test his power as a leader of men — Mr. Borden should be able to satisfactorily guide the destinies of Canada.

He possesses great advantages that Sir Wilfrid Laurier did not possess. Sir Wilfrid Laurier entered the race handicapped. Mr. Borden enters it with distinct advantages that he owes to the man he succeeds.

When Sir Wilfrid took the reins of power he found the fortunes of Canada at a comparatively low ebb. Trade was depressed; in the industrial domain there was a condition akin to stagnation; our magnificent heritage in the west was neglected and undeveloped; our national income, a reflection of the prosperity of the people, was insufficient, for even the current demands of routine administration, not to speak of urgently needed national enterprises. Canada's position in the eyes of the world was, to speak mildly, a modest one, and comparatively speaking, an obscure one.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier changed all this. He brought Canada into the international limelight," and immensely elevated her position in the eyes of the world. He has filled the national coffers to overflowing, trade and commerce have mightily grown; industrial expansion has been tremendous. In the west, where Sir Wilfrid found one ear of wheat growing, he has left a hundred; where he found one farm tilled, he has left thousands; where he found a scattered population, he has left thriving millions. He has left Canada prosperous, growing blooming and more worthy of our pride and affection; and, omre than that, he has provided conditions of development and growth that only need skilful administration to keep up the pace of progress and the conditions of prosperity, to which the governmental genius of Sir Wilfrid Laurier has brought this great Dominion.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, when he took power, succeeded to the management of a comparatively moribund business. Mr. Borden enters upon the management of a splendidly "going concern." He has a magnificent opportunity and if he shrewdly takes advantage of it; if he will only do half as well by Canada in every way, as Sir Wilfrid has done, he will qualify himself to rank in history on the roll of great and patriotic Canadian statesman. The Examiner, for the sake of Canada, wishes him God speed, and hopes from the heart that his administration will justify the confidence the people have placed in him. After all, when the smoke of political battle has passed away, it leaves us all Canadians, all loyal to our country and the Empire in whose greatness we count greatly, all with a common interest in the welfare of the best country in the world.

ELECTRIC WIRING AND THE PUBLIC.

Mr. T. C. James of Toronto, is quoted as saying that hydro-electric pole wires are as safe as possible. The objections to overhead electric and other wires is not so much a matter of safety as of street disfigurement, street deterioration and obstruction to traffic. Several lines of heavily-wired poles, are ghastly lines of ugliness, linemen are prolific destroyers of shade trees symmetry and dams formed in street gutters by huge poles, destroy the drainage—the first essential of good streets. Mr. James says under grounding of wires is more expensive than poles. Is it? Underground conduits are practically permanent, while poles have to be renewed and the cost of maintenance, and the interruption to service by storms and the damage by ice are worth considering. Underground conduits guard wires perfectly, and are no inconvenience to the public, evidently the last consideration in the eyes of corporations, government, or otherwise.

ELECTION MAJORITIES SINCE '67.

The Mail and Empire claims Mr. Borden's majority as 59. To do this it includes the fifteen Bourassa Nationalists elected in Quebec; and the Mail should know, it speaks quasi officially. This is a big majority, but it is by no means the biggest majority, having been exceeded in 1874, 1878, 1882 and 1904. It will not be without interest to compare with it and with others the party majorities at the twelve general elections since Confederation. In the first parliament elected after Confederation, the standing in a parliament of 183 members was—Conservatives 103, Liberals 80; majority 23. In the general election of 1872, when the membership was increased to 200, the standing was—Liberals 103, Conservatives 97; majority 6. In 1874, when the membership had increased to 206, the figures were — Liberals 133, Conservatives 73; majority 60. In 1878, the Conservatives returned 137, the Liebrals 69; majority 68. In 1882 when the membership of the house was increased to 211, the Conservatives elected 139, and the Liberals 72; majority 67. In the elections of 1891, with 215 members, the result was, Conservatives 123, Liberals 92; majority 31. In the general election of 1896, with 217 members in the house, the result was, Liberals 124, Conservatives 93; majority 31. The Conservative majority in the previous election being exactly reversed. In 1900, the Liberals elected totalled 133 and the Conservatives 80; majority 53. The general election of 1904, resulted in the return of 139 Liberals and 76 Conservatives; majority 63. In 1908, the membership of the House, composed of 221 members, included 132 Liberals and 89 Conservatives, a majority of 43.

The largest party majority in any general election was the Conservative majority of 68 in 1878, and the largest Liberal majority was that of 1904, which was 63. The smallest Conservative majority was 6 in 1872, and the lowest Liberal majority was 31 in 1896. This was the same numerical majority the Conservatives had in the previous election. The Conservatives have been successful in seven of the general elections since Confederation, including the latest, and the Liberals in five. The average of the Conservative majorities has been 39 and the average of the Liberal majority 50.

TO SIR WILFRID LAURIER.

(The Globe.)

Believing that it gives expression to the earnest desires of the Liberals of Ontario, The Globe would urge Sir Wilfrid Laurier to lead the Opposition when Parliament reassembles. How longingly the greatest Canadian looks forward to a period of rest and repose after the incessant labours of the years since 1896 only Sir Wilfrid's intimate friends know. [illegible] in public life [illegible] mier of Can[illegible]

His liber[illegible] He has always had a passion for the masters of literature and never sufficient leisure to gratify it. His well-beloved friends of early life in Arthabaskaville hope that, like Goldsmith's wanderer, he will return to the simple joys of rural life and "die at home at last." To him the pomp and vanity of office and power never made appeal. All his tastes and inclinations are those of the man of culture. He has ever put in practice the sentiment that couples plain living and high thinking.

Having such tastes and inclinations, Sir Wilfrid will be greatly tempted to withdraw from the active leadership of his party. Had it not been for the defeat of several of his ablest and most experienced colleagues there would have been a possibility of withdrawal without serious injury to Liberalism. Under present conditions Sir Wilfrid's relinquishment of the leadership would greatly lessen the effectiveness of the Opposition. He alone has the authority necessary to make headway against the flowing tide of Conservatism.

Not only from the standpoint of the party, but from the still higher standpoint of the country's good, the Liberals of Ontario desire to see Sir Wilfrid take up the Opposition leadership. There are great projects for the development of the country under way, with the details of which he is more familiar than any other man who will sit in the next Parliament. He can do much from the left of the House to aid in the completion of these projects along the lines originally laid down.

For these reasons and because they love him as a man and honour him as a leader the Liberals of Ontario hope that Sir Wilfrid Laurier will continue to guide the party not only by his counsel, but by active participation in public affairs.

DEPARTMENT OF RAILWAYS AND CANALS.
Intercolonial Railway
BADDECK BRANCH LINE.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Alba-Baddeck Branch," will be received at this office until sixteen o'clock on Thursday, October 12th, 1911, for the construction of a branch line of railway from a point on the Intercolonial Railway near Alba to the town of Baddeck, a distance of 23.7 miles.

Plans, specifications and form of contract to be entered into may be seen and full information obtained on and after the 15th inst. 1911, at the office of the Chief Engineer, of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, and at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Intercolonial Railway at Moncton, N.B.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and in the case of firms, which there are attached the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque for the sum of $50,000.00, made payable to the order of the Minister of Railways and Canals, must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The cheque of the successful tenderer will be held as security, or part security, for the due fulfilment of the contract to be entered into.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

By order,
L. K. JONES.
Secretary.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

"It matters little where I was born
Whether my parents were rich or poor,
Whether they shrank from the cold world's scorn
Or walked in the pride of wealth secure;
But whether I live an honest man.
And hold my integrity in my clutch
I tell you brother, plain as I am,
It matters much."
From the Swedish in The Optimist's Good-morning.

Refinement is a most desirable quality.

No one can deny that.

But over-refinement is just as much a vice as the other is a virtue.

No one who has ever met a person who is suffering and making others suffer from a case of super-refinement can possibly deny that.

A woman has just moved into our neighbourhood who belongs to this class.

She is a scion of a splendid stock. She has been finely bred. She has been splendidly educated.

But she has neither inherited nor acquired one inestimable thing — a sense of values. She has but one criterion of worth. It is refinement. If she might assist in the final separation of the sheep from the goats I believe that the people who possessed refinement of taste and manner, no matter what their other qualifications or lack of them, would be courteously directed to Elysium while those who lacked refinement no matter what trifling recommendations, such as sterling character or spiritual worth they possessed, would be firmly steered off in the other direction.

This woman, since her coming into the neighbourhood, has naturally met many new people. I have chanced to be with her a great deal and have been astonished and saddened by her treatment of some of them.

If she decides that a new acquaintance is sufficiently refined, her manner is exquisite in its cordiality and evidence of breeding. She is every inch a beautiful gentlewoman.

But if she decides that a new acquaintance is somewhat lacking in refinement, she becomes so eager to draw a line of distinction between this creature and herself, that she loses all her own refinement. Politeness so cold that it is scarcely politeness at all, and even positive rudeness, characterize her manner.

And the worst of it is that many of the people who are thus treated are people of great mental and moral worth.

One is a woman with great brains and ability, who besides managing her home to perfection, has so much helped her husband in his business, that, though people of moderate circumstances, they have been able to send their four children to college. She herself lacked an early education and has never been able to quite overcome some little roughness of speech. Consequently she is anathema.

Another is a man whose innumerable charities are as beautiful, as they are unostentatious, and whose family life is one continual lesson in "the fine art of being good to live with." But he will wear coloured shirts and ties that do not always harmonise and he hasn't mastered a few of the minor details of good manners, although in all that rests on unselfishness and true courtesy, he is most perfectly versed.

Another is—but why tell you more? You know them all—the simple, kindly, crude, efficient, splendid folks whom such a woman as she cannot possibly understand.

If the loss were not so decidedly hers who deserves it, one might feel much more sorry. As it is, we can only sigh and think," refinement is a desirable quality but over-refinement—" well let's add it to our collection of vices to be preserved from.

Ruth Cameron

THE FAMILY HEARTH

Most men would prefer domestic happiness to great riches.

• • •

With some people a knowledge of housework is ridiculed, but a person who does not give housekeeping a place among the fine arts shows an intellectual calibre away down below the commonplace.

• • •

Supplement what the children learn at school with reading lessons at home. Reading aloud is good, will improve the reading of the reader, and give information to members of the home circle who may be obliged to work with their hands in the evening.

• • •

You will often advance your interests more by spending a social evening in a respectable family, than you will by sitting in your room and pouring over your money matters, or writing a whole package of business letters.

• • •

The glad hearts! How welcome they are in this old world! The hearts that wear a smiling face and extend the glad hand! They scatter sunshine wherever they go. They inspire us with good thoughts and the desire to do noble things. They smooth down the rough places in life. They remove the obstacles from our paths, and sweeten the pleasures of this old world.

• • •

It is often by doing too much for the children, by over-government, over-indulgence, or over-anxiety, that their individuality, their aggressive, vital initiative quality, there self dependence and self reliance, are weakened. Henry Ward Beecher says, "Many children grow up like plants under glass. They are surrounded only by artificial and prepared influences. They are house bred, room bred, nurse bred, mother bred,—everything but self bred. The object of training is to teach the child to take care of himself; but many parents use the children only as a kind of spool on which they reel off their own experience, and they are bound and corded until they perish by inanity or break all bonds and cords and rush to ruin by reaction."

• • •

Young men, study yourselves, choose your work and if it satisfies you move on. Bid defiance to all obstacles. Don't surrender to phantoms—they will ever challenge you; fight it out on some line "if it takes all summer." Our boats are headed up the river and just so sure as we drop the oars so sure we will float down. Keep rowing.

• • •

The cottage and the mansion differ very much in structure and in furniture, but a pretty flower, carefully watered and tended, blooms as well in a cottage as in a palace window. Then the flower speaks to the inmates of the home and tells them the wisdom and love of God: how He sent these beautiful flowers into the world to please the eye of man.

• • •

Show us a boy who obeys his parents, who has respect for age, who always has a friendly disposition, and who applies himself diligently to get wisdom and to do good toward others, and if he is not respected and beloved then there is no such thing as truth in the world. Remember this, boys, and you will be respected by others, and grow up and become useful men.

• • •

Legislate laws against early marriages. "I can't tolerate children," said a little simpleton to us the other day, "but I adore dogs!" and yet that girl had an engagement ring on her finger. There should be a special seclusion for such girls until they develop some instinct of womanliness and should no more be allowed to marry than a Choctak chief should take charge of a kindergarten.

• • •

There is a wise old German saying that "Only a god or a brute can dwell in solitude." Men and women need congenial companionship, both for the sake of health and happiness. Just as your lungs, after using up all the oxygen in a close room, need to be filled with fresh, out-of-door air, so your mind needs contact with other minds to get new ideas. There is such a thing as mental as well as physical hunger. Herders on the cattle ranches of the west frequently become mad from the isolation they are forced to endure. Women on lonely farms and in small villages grow morbid and mildly insane, and people do not guess that the cause is want of companionship.

• • •

Why is it that good mechanics of almost every kind are so scarce, and are commanding their own price, while so many young men are turning their backs upon their father's calling, and lying in wait for opportunities to measure calico between dingy walls, fourteen hours a day, for a mere pittance?

• • •

How much would neighbors rise in value, and how much would neighbors rise in beauty, if all should lay aside habits of criticism, and neighborhood scandal, and petty feuds and ridicule? And if men should study the things that make for peace and the things that make for happiness, everybody trying to make everybody else happy, what a revolution there would be.

• • •

Let the idle young men go to work on farms, and quit seeking third and fourth rate clerkships. In short, go to farming and quit begging.

• • •

A healthy child is always active. It must jump and scream, fall down, cry when it gets a hurt, and jump up only to repeat the same thing. But to keep it still means unhappiness and nearly, if not quite, death. Let them be gay. This is their element.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

At the home of her parents at 98 Gladstone Ave. on Wednesday evening, September 20th, Miss Edith Jenkins celebrated her 14th birthday. There were numerous friends present to supper, which passed off very pleasantly. Amongst the many presents given to Miss Jenkins was a gold watch and chain, presented by her father. After supper a number of songs and recitations were rendered by some of the company present, while variety was added by gramophone selections. This very enjoyable evening came to a close about 9 o'clock, all those present having spent a happy evening together.

A BIG ORDER

The Canadian Locomotive Company at Kingston, Ont., was yesterday in receipt of a contract for 25 large type locomotives. The order was given for engines to be used on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, and 25 locomotives of this large type would alone occupy the company's attention for four or five months with their present plant.

The rush of work which has been offering to the company has, however, resulted in the directors laying plans for immediately doubling the capacity of the plant.

The engines built by the Canadian Locomotive Company are acknowledged by experienced railway men to be second to none built in America, and the company is at present working on orders received from the following Canadian railroads: The Canadian Pacific Railway, The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, The Canadian Northern Railway, The Intercolonial Railway and The Algoma Central Railway.

It is not only the construction of new branch lines which necessitates the construction of new locomotives, but the motive power on all the old lines of a railway suffers constant and serious depreciation, and calls for the purchase of new engines.

Some Spicy Notes Of Interest To Presbyterians

Something About the Three Prominent Men Who Are Coming to Peterborough To-morrow---A Visitation of Every Presbyterian Family in Peterborough Next Week.

To-morrow, the 24th, will see a stirring of the Presbyterians of the city, when they flock to their three churches to listen to three of the most prominent men of Presbytorianism, Rev. Dr. McKay, Rev. Dr. Grant and Rev. Fred. W. Anderson.

Rev. Dr. R. P. McKay holds the highest honor of the Presbyterian Church, as he is the Moderator of the General Assembly. Anyone who watched him last June controlling the Assembly, will testify as to the dignified manner in which he guided that body of men. For many years he has been associated with the Foreign Board of the Church, and in that connection visited the mission fields of the Church in India, Formosa, and China. But he visits Peterborough and the Presbyterian Churches tomorrow as Moderator of the General Assembly.

Rev. Dr. Grant is a man for the newspapers. He supplied them with plenty of copy when he cleaned up the Yukon, not of gold, but of dirt. He is the kind of man men like to meet, because he has done things in his own fearless way, and some people who run joints of various kinds have reason to remember Grant. Incidentally he is Superintendent of Home Missions, one of the biggest jobs in the Church to which he belongs, and he is always on it. He too, comes to Peterborough with a message from the Assembly.

Rev. F. W. Anderson has some advantages over the other two visitors, at least in length. He is younger, but that does not prevent him from being a leader. It helps. He was asked to give up a large church to mix among men and help the men of the Church to see that the work of the Church is a man's job. He too has a message for the Presbyterians of the city, and they will likely respond when they hear it.

Why are they coming? Because the people need them and their message. Church members are not all doing their duty. At least the Assembly thinks so, and it ought to know. Presbyterians in Peterboro will likely set an inspiring example to the whole country as a result of the visit of these men, for they have decided to demonstrate their response in a very practical way. The sessions of the churches and the boards of managers have joined together and have planned a thorough visitation of every Presbyterian family in Peterboro during next week. The church officers will, by this means, have an opportunity of talking over the Church work with the Church members, and much good will result. The people will learn what the Church is endeavoring to do and will increase their givings to enable the Church to do its work.

This means hard work, consecration and personal sacrifice on the part of the officers, but they have heartily given themselves to this work and it will be sure to repay. They may get a few hard knocks at some homes, but these will be few and far between. Some people who spend forty-nine fiftieths of their earnings on themselves may not be willing to increase their one-fiftieth that they give to Christian work, but these will be few. The church officers will not mind one or two of these. They will run across more who do not see further than their own door and who, therefore, have no sympathy for the poor Chinee. Such people are fewer than they used to be, but there are too many yet. Some one makes the appaling statement that as far as missions are concerned, by far the larger percentage of church members are giving nothing regularly, either prayer, money or service. Presbyterians of Peterboro will not allow that to be true of them. But the men who visit may come across such. In spite of difficulties and objections, the officers of the three churches are going into this every-member canvass with enthusiasm. They realize it is the very best known method for securing spiritual and financial results, and any failure to utilize such a canvass would be a failure to do for the local churches what has invariably brought the best results elsewhere.

Churches elsewhere have had wonderful results from such a house-to-house visitation. The following tells an interesting story inspiring to everyone.

Who Did It.

The large church.
The small church.
The church with a mortgage.
The city church.
The country church.
The church with a building enterprise.
The downtown church.
The mission church.
The church whose situation and problems are just as peculiar and just as difficult as yours.

WHAT DID THEY DO?

Multiplied their offerings to missions.
Increased gifts to all benevolences.
Raised the pastor's salary.
Paid off the mortgage.
Added new members to the church.
Re-established faith.
Re-kindled evangelistic zeal, and experienced a great spiritual awakening in all the activities of the church through the introduction of Scriptural, businesslike methods in the finances of the church and a consequent development of higher ideals of Christian stewardship and service.

Here are reports of what has been accomplished in congregations where the work was thoroughly done.

"Twice as much by weekly as by monthly offerings; ladies' offerings doubled; increase for current expenses; $5,000.00 for church improvements."

"Givings for church benevolences, $7.00 per member; church work characterized by deep interest, prayer meeting attendance being exceptionally large."

"Offerings in two years increased from $1,645.00 to $2,368.00. We are convinced of the real benefit of the weekly offering."

"Missionary offerings increased from $1,100.00 to $2,200.00, and since plan was inaugurated we have paid the church mortgage, paid for manse pipe organ and church repairs; minister's salary increased $250.00. No debt. Membership of church increased by about 100, with seven classes in mission study."

"Gifts to missions: 1908, $375.00; 1910, $600.00. Finished the year with a balance for the first time in years. $2,500.00 raised for church improvements. General canvass for all objects at one time. Excellent thing."

"All funds increased; minister's salary raised twice, leaving surpluses which were unknown before; average per member for missions, $5.47 instead of $3.63. Men available for work in the Sabbath school and prayer meeting when needed as never before."

"Missionary offerngs doubled; deep spiritual interest; and all departments in a healthy and growing condition."

"It has had a good effect upon the spiritual life of the congregation."

The Church With a Mortgage and The Church With a Building Enterprise.

The pastor of a church of 235 members writes:

"The main thing in the way of our taking up the movement was the fact that we had a large debt, also the fact that the contributions were not meeting the current expenses. The congregation had been giving to foreign missions $30 a year. Under the new financial system we subscribed this year $560 through the every-member canvass. Last year the church received $560 from the Home Board. This year it makes no request for aid, and has in sight about $600 for missions."

Another writes:

"After having conducted an every-member canvass, increasing the collections for foreign missions from $1,300 to $3,000, we also made an attempt to raise $6,000 for some needed improvements which we have been several years waiting to get courage to ask for. We adopted in part the every-member canvass plan and raised $6,500 with remarkable ease."

A church in Nebraska raised its foreign missionary gifts from $460 to $2,000 by the every-member canvass, and at the same time built an addition to the church and added $500 to the pastor's salary.

Another writes:

"It made local support easier. At any rate, in the face of a record year for missions, we raised $16,000 toward building our new church. I feel confident, from my own experience, that a congregation is helped and not hindered, in its local work, by generous giving to missions."

One Baptist church in Canada, by the every-member canvass, increased its missionary contributions from $99 to $648, and another church in Toronto, with a membership of 227, made an increase from $244 to $1,690. Both of these churches were engaged in building canvasses, and in neither of them was there a member with an income of as much as $1,200.

The question is: What are the Presbyterian Churches of Peterboro going to do?

What do you think of this testimony?

"Our canvass was an almost perfect one, one out-committee alone failing to do its part. The chairman gave practically one whole week's time to this work, and does not begrudge it I am sure. Our missionary offerings will be increased from $294.00 to about $1,500.00. To this church it has meant not an awakening but a new birth."

What will the Presbyterians of Peterboro do?

The following five exhibits have been given by Mr. Raphael Reynolds of Lisbon, who obtained them from the present owner of the land on which the battle of Albuera was fought:

A Portuguese light cavalry sword found upon the field of Albuera.

A Spanish cavalry officer's sword of the period of the Peninsular War, and believed to have been used in that campaign. The hilt is damaged.

A Spanish officer's sword bearing on the hilt the monogram of King Joseph (Bonaparte), and is believed to have been presented by him. The hilt is of curious construction, being hinged so as to form, when open, a basket hilt. The hilt is finely gilded.

A Portuguese sword, of a sergeant of artillery of the period of the Peninsular War.

A Portguguese infantry officer's sword of the early 19th century. The handle is of wood, and hilt of brass, and embossed.

"The Hair and its Care" Sent Free Upon Request

The Herpicide Company want everyone to have a copy of their booklet telling how to take care of and possess nice hair. The booklet contains much valuable information on the subject of saving and cultivating the hair.

If the present-day men and women would begin to live up to the teachings of this little booklet it is doubtful if the next generation would find a baldheaded man or lady wearing false hair.

It is just as easy to have robust and beautiful hair as to have thin, scraggy hair or no hair at all. If the scalp is kept clean and free from dandruff the hair grows naturally and luxuriantly.

The booklet tells how this may be most effectively accomplished by the use of Newbro's Herpicide. Herpicide destroys the germ which causes dandruff, frees the head from dirt and scarf flakes. The hair becomes light, fluffy and beautiful.

Newbro's Herpicide is the original remedy that kills the dandruff germ for which there are many imitations and substitutes said to be just as good. Buy nothing but the original.

All reliable druggists sell and guarantee genuine Herpicide in one dollar size bottles.

Send 10c. in postage to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich., and a nice sample will be sent with the booklet.

Applications obtained at the better barber shops and hair dressing parlours.

Successful Carnival

One of the most successful and probably the most successful carnival ever held in the Brock street rink, took place last night, when there were between seven and eight hundred people present. There were about four hundred skaters and over a hundred in fancy dress costumes, besides about three hundred onlookers. The rink was splendidly decorated for the occasion with flags and bunting, which was very much in keeping with the vari-coloured costumes. Excellent music was provided and all present enjoyed the event greatly. Prizes were given for the fancy skaters and also for the best dressed skaters. The prize winners were as follows:

Gents' Fancy — H. Demmett, E. White.
Gents' Comic— W. Spenceley, J. Riley.
Ladies Fancy—Miss Hetherington, Miss Cavanagh.
Ladies Comic—Miss Kennealy, Miss G. Long
Youths Fancy—Harold Gollop, A. Sharp.
Youths Comic—D. Foster, F. Hamilton.
Girls Fancy—Miss G. Long, Miss M. Evans.
Girls Comic—Miss LeBar, Miss M. Huston.

"MAN IS HIMSELF IMPERFECT" SAYS REV. DR. SYMONDS

Large Gathering Attended Harvest Thanksgiving Service at St. Luke's Church Last Evening---Dr. Symonds Delivers an Impressive Sermon.

The Harvest Festival service, held at St. Luke's Church last evening, was impressive and devotional, and was attended by a large congregation. The entrance to the church was tastefully decorated with fruit and flowers, and the walls were similarly ornamented. The altar, too, was a veritable picture of harvest fruit and vegetable production, while a garland of red roses encircled the pulpit. The service, which was conducted by the Rev. H. R. Trumpour of All Saints' was commenced with the hymn: "Come ye thankful people, come, and the specially selected music that followed was sung by the Choir in such a manner as to denote a careful training. The Rev. Dr. Symonds occupied the pulpit and delivered an interesting and edifying address, in which he said:

"Man, when he was sent into the world, was charged with certain material functions. To be fruitful, to multiply and to replenish the earth, and to have dominion over everything else upon the earth. With the earth, man was given qualifications to enable hi to cultivate it.

One may often hear the words, 'we cannot improve upon nature.' Supposing the Almighty chose to make the earth imperfect. Man was put into the world to improve it, and thus make himself better, so the man who says we cannot improve upon nature is saying an impious thing. Just look at this lovely Canada of ours, with its lovely rivers and lakes. Its broad and expansive prairies; do you not think that the unbroken forests would be unsuitable for the habitation of civilized man. There are vast possibilities there; man, therefore, comes in and cuts down parts of the forest and builds his habitation thereon, and in that manner improves it.

It is thirty years ago this very day since I sailed from the Old Country. The first place I stepped upon in Canada, outside my landing place, was Peterborough. After some time I went to the North Country and undertook work as a lay reader. As I drove Sunday after Sunday from Bobcaygeon to Bunsford the vehicle was sometimes axle deep in mud. To-day I ride over that road and there are decided improvements in the country. Last year I went across to the Old Country, for the first time in twenty-two years, and there I saw what art and science, at the hands of man, has done for the old mother land. So you see we can improve things. It is part of our task and part of our duty.

There is not only a nature that is outside of us, but there is an inside nature. Man is, himself, imperfect, but in the transforming of the earth, he does a similar action for himself. We can and we ought to improve upon our nature.

A great many, said the speaker, without intending to do so, would appear unchristianlike, by saying "A man must look after himself; No. 1 is the person I have to look after. That is true, but as you express it and as you think it in your mind, it is not true. It is a one-sided nature; it is a form of selfishness. We must grow in the knowledge and love of our Saviour Jesus Christ, by sympathy, helpfulness, and love."

At the close of the service a reception was held in the schoolroom, where many of those who were desirous of renewing their acquaintance with Dr. Symonds, found an opportunity of doing so. Refreshments were provided by the ladies.

WAS A BIG NICHT WI' AULD SCOTIA'S CHILDREN

Big Crowd Attended Entertainment in Knox Church—Pretty Decorations and Stirring Vocal Programme.

A SUCCESSFUL EVENT

Friday evening, September 22nd, 1911, has come and gone, but the memory will ever last as a historic and interesting event in the annals of our good city of Peterborough. This, at any rate, especially applies to Scotsmen and Scotswomen here.

"A splendid evening" was the remark heard on all sides in Knox Church Hall last evening. The occasion was a gathering of natives of auld Scotland, who are "faur, faur awa'" on Canada's shores, making their mark and way in this part of the world. For many weeks the reunion has been the sole topic of conversation among the "honest men and bonnie lassies" here. And so thorough were the arrangements made that not a fear as to the details was in the minds of the Committee.

The climax was reached when 350 "buddies" heerkened to the slogan, and foregathered in the hall, and sat down to tables laden with good things, from the dear homeland, and baked by the Scotswomen here in town. Such dainties as soda-scones, cakes and oatcakes, etc., with the inevitable haggis—"thirtain o' the puddin' race," resting serenely at the ends of each table, until the time when it should be sampled.

On the platform, with Rev. H. J. Keith, pastor, in the chair, were his good lady, Rev. Mr. Webb, Dr. and Mrs. McCullough, and a few others.

Previous to commencing the evening's doings, the large party posed at the tables for a flashlight photo, by the Messrs. Roy, the Studio, Hunter street.

The Chairman then asked the audience to join in the "Auld Hunner." The order was now given, after a few remarks by Mr. Keith, to go, and immediately an army of waiters came on the scene, and were attending to the wants of the inner man. This occupied over an hour, and it was a pleasure to the Committee to see how the good fare was sampled.

At 8.30 all the tables were cleared, and the musical part of the programme was proceeded with. The first item was a double quartette—"March of the Cameron Men," whose rousing words set the audience off, and put them in trim for the following items: The solo, "Loch Lomond," by Mrs. Lowrie, was a sweetly rendered number, and was, illustrated, as were other songs, by limelight views of Scotland. Mr. J. McNeill, Toronto, bass, rendered with great acceptance the touching ballad "Hame," to which he gave as an encore "Auld Scotch Sangs." Mr. R. Hendry, baritone, in Highland plaid and Glengarry, gave "Hurrah for the Highlands," and had to respond with "Mary of Argyle," both numbers being well received. "The Scottish Bluebells," by Mrs. McArthur, was a pleasing tit-bit, and was applauded in unmistakable manner. Mr. J. Prace was indisposed. The solo "Faur Faur Awa'" by Mrs. Hendry, was the number of the first part of the programme, and showed her sweet voice to advantage. Then followed the double quartette, "Jessie's Dream," which was well rendered, and received due applause. The concluding item of this part: "The Auld Horse", by Miss M. Kennedy, was a pleasing item.

The interval of ten minutes was taken up by the lantern slides of Scotland and London, the instrument and slides being first-class and ably operated by Mr. Mackenzie.

Mr. Wm. Young, Chairman of Scottish Committee, now rose to propose a vote of thanks to the Ladies' Aid and others, who had assisted to make the evening a success. Following the remarks was a solo, "Angus Macdonald," pleasingly rendered by Mrs. Hendry. "Green Grow the Rushes, O," by Mr. McNeill, was an item which showed him at his best, and an urgent encore brought forth "Leenie Lindsay." Mrs. McArthur was next, with "Robin Adair" in nice voice. "I love a Lassie," by Mr. Hendry had its impression on the humorous side of the audience, and an encore was called for and responded to with "The Bass o' Killiecrankie." Another ite, which had a pleasing reception, was "The Crookit Bawbee," by Miss M. Wilson, and Mr. J. Anderson, with actions, and in costume. An encore had to be responded to, and "Huntingtower" was rendered by the duettists. "Lochnagar" by Mrs. Lowrie, was nicely rendered at this stage. Rev. Mr. Webb was called on, and made a few complimentary remarks. Then came a solo, "Rowan Tree," by Mrs. M. Kennedy, in a manner at once taking. Dr. McCullough then moved a vote of thanks to the committee, vocalists, and pianist for their evening's programme. The concluding item, "Mary," by the double quartette, was a well rendered number. The usual finish to all Scottish gatherings, at least was 'Auld Lang Syne,' rousingly sung by the audience, followed by three mighty cheers.

A word of praise is due the Committee for the fine decorations of platform and tables. Everything savoured of Scotland, and the tartan, thistle and heather, with the Scottish standard overlooking all, were profusely used in the decorations, and sitting at the tables made all feel that it was "jist like hame." So ended a memorable Scottish assembly in Knox Church Hall. The members of the Committee, who all worked like Trojans, were: Mr. W. Young, convenor; Messrs. Dickson, Lorimer, E. and A. Hardie, Taylor, McLeish, Anderson and other gentlemen, along with a host of Scottish ladies, whose efforts at the tables kept them from home from early morning till the finish of the gathering. The accompanist, Mr. H. C. Lewis, played in his usual able manner.

SAGE TEA WILL DARKEN THE HAIR

Restore Faded and Gray Hair to Natural Color—Dandruff Quickly Removed.

There is nothing new about the idea of using sage for restoring the color of the hair. Our great-grandmothers kept their locks soft, dark and glossy by using a "sage tea." Whenever their hair fell out or took on a dull, faded or streaked appearance they made a brew of sage leaves and applied it to their hair, with wonderfully beneficial effect.

Nowadays we don't have to resort to old-time, tiresome methods of gathering the herbs and making the tea. This is done by skillful chemists better than we could do it ourselves, and all we have to do is to call for the ready-made product, Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, containing sage in the proper strength, with the addition of sulphur, another old-time scalp remedy.

The manufacturers of this remedy authorize druggists to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

CELEBRATING THE VICTORY

The action of a purveyor of beef to hotels and of a purveyor of beer to the thirsty, chartering a band and serenading two or three "friendly" hotels in the interest of increasing their bar receipts, and incidentally, celebrating a party victory, is not edifying. It was a victory all right, but it was not a "moral" victory, either as a matter of fact or in the way of celebrating it.

A BRILLIANT SHOWING OF

Exquisite Evening Dresses

Correct Reproductions of New York and Paris Creations

EXQUISITE is the word that comes nearest to describing these wonderful productions of Artistic skill. All are truly beautiful and each has that "Indefinable Something" that gives it a mark of Exclusiveness and Individuality.

Deserving of special mention is a charming gown of very handsome bordered ninon over pink satin; made in draped tunic effect with trimmings of needle point lace and gold beading insertion on the short sleeves and low bust; fastened at the side back and finished with tabs and ornaments of pink satin.

Another particularly striking gown is of rich Coronation blue satin, with high waist line; made in the new straight lines with platoons down front and back, sleeves and front of waist trimmed wath Venice lace in V shaped design, finished with straps and satin covered buttons. This attractive model is procurable also in Ashes of Roses.

A gown that has drawn words of praise, from all who have seen it, is made of Apricot Satin, has high waist line, the blouse is tucked to give surplice effect, trimmings of Chantilly lace, ball trimmings and Satin buttons, the skirt is cut in a very pleasing style, has a very deep plain flounce with side, insert plaits, this permits ease in walking or dancing and still conforms to the straight lines demanded by fashion.

Eggs 28c, Butter 30c, Geese $1.25
Splendid Market To-day---Prices

There was a splendid market this morning so far as the supply was concerned. The market was surfeited with potatoes, apples, pears and other fruits and vegetables. There was a decided drop in the price, owing to the rush on the market. Potatoes took a drop from $1.90 to $1.35. To-day they sold at an average of $1.40 per bag. Butter and eggs were also a feature, but the price remained stationary. Eggs sold with remarkable rapidity, and although the supply was very heavy, the market was rapidly cleared of this much-sought-for commodity at 11.30. The prices were as follows:

Inside Market.

Turkeys—$1.75.
Geese—1.25.
Chickens—35 to 50 cents each, and the average was 60 cents per pair.
Butter—28 to 30 cents per lb.
Eggs—25 to 28 cents per doz.
Ducks—$1.00 per pair.

Outside Market.

Apples—20c and 25c per peck, according to quality.
Pears—30c to 35c per peck, according to quality.
Little pigs—$6.00 per pair.
Potatoes—$1.35 to $1.50 per bag.
Large onions—30c per peck.
Lamb—14 and 16c.
Tomatoes—90c per bush.
Corn—10 cents per doz.
Grapes—30c per basket.
Muskmelons—$1.00 per doz., or 10 cents each.
Cucumbers—30c per basket.
Baled hay—$0 cents per cwt.
Loose hay—$14 per ton.
Farmers hides—8c.
Butchers' hides—9 and 9½c.
Live hogs—$6.90.

No dressed hogs will be on the market until about the 1st of November. An increase of 1-2 cent per lb. is noted in the prices of hides, and there is a drop of about 15 or 20 cts. on hogs. The supply is very heavy and increasing, and the demand is also good.

Although the response has been fairly generous, the Directors feel sure that this cause should appeal to all classes of citizens, as this building will be to care for the aged poor of the city for all time. If the Directors are able to complete the building free of debt, it is hoped that the work will be self-supporting, and that it will not be necessary to make any further appeal to the public.

The Collectors will begin their work again next Monday, but if there be any who are not called upon and are willing to give, even though they may only be able to afford a small sum, their subscription may be paid into the Bank of Montreal, and same will be acknowledged in due course. The lists will be published at the end of each week and we hope they will be large.

Indian Snake Lore.

The story of the serpent in the Garden of Eden and the various serpent stories that appear in pagan mythology are in no way superior in point of wonder and strangeness to the stories of the serpent that inhabited this continent about 1,500 years ago. These stories date back more than 1,500 years; some of them go back to pre-Christian ages. In those days the Algonquin tribes and the Irequoian family lived north of the St. Lawrence.

The country south of the lakes, was the abiding place of a tribe of serpents of tremendous size, who when not doing business elsewhere were likely to appear suddenly and unexpectedly in the Algonquin or the Iroquoian country, to the consternation of the peaceful human inhabitants. Sometimes a single serpent would come rolling across the country, his head sticking up like a factory chimney above the top of the tallest forest, and sometimes a party of them made day and night hideous for the wretched villagers, whom they regarded as suitable fare.

The first of these invaders, according to one Algonquin story, desired to destroy all human beings out of pure unadulterated cussedness, a trait showing his close relationship to the serpent of the Garden of Eden. Not satisfied, apparently, with his own swallowing capacity for that purpose, he brought with him an undescribed monster, three other individuals of unclassified kind, and a flood of water that alone should have been sufficient to exterminate every non-aquatic creature north of the lakes.

Indian mythology is full of snake stories equally as fierce and fantastic as the one related above. They are believed by some archeologists to be specimens of Indian allegory founded upon exaggerated facts. Records of Indian lore are replete with strange and weird tales that give one a good idea of early Indian belief.

Seven-Foot Harvester.

When the C.P.R. harvester train pulled out of the Union Station, Toronto, the other day it carried with it one of the tallest men who ever passed through the Union Station.

According to his own statement, Joseph Lawrence, is seven feet in his stocking feet, and all good Scotch material. When asked what his name was, he said: "My name is Joseph Lawrence, and I was born in a suburb of Glasgow."

"How old are you?"

"Well, according to my mother's statement, I am now 28 years of age. In 1905 I came to Canada and settled in Guelph and worked at my trade as a machinist. I am simply going west for a change."

"No, I never earned any money by exhibiting myself."

Lawrence was presented with a gold medal in 1901 for being the tallest man in the British Isles at a competition held in Glasgow that year.

London Woman's Suicide.

Rochester, N.Y., Sept. 23.—Nellie O'Kane, 31 years of age, of London, Ont., committed suicide yesterday afternoon by taking carbolic acid in the yard of a residence on East avenue. An empty carbolic acid bottle was found on the ground near her. In her purse was a letter written by her, addressed to Jim Downes, 527 Greggs street, London, Ont., Can. A note was found which read as follows: "These letters to be mailed. They don't know I am in Rochester, and if you send a message do it quietly, for my sister is not strong and they will tell you what to do, if they want my remains sent or not."

The SOUVENIR
(NEW MODEL SERIES)
certainly does eliminate furnace bothers

SOME folks dread the winter—because of the furnace troubles it brings.

Antiquated heating systems are certainly a nuisance. Dust and ashes, sometimes deadly gas fumes, all over the house. Or hot air like a breeze across a desert waste—poisonous, dry, health-destroying air. All because conservative manufacturers would not consider New Ideas in heating.

The SOUVENIR furnace makes the hot air system the healthiest, cheapest and best.

It's built right—A solid, one-piece iron fire-pot—tested and selected from all that—and fitted on the outer side to become radiating surface.

The grate is simplicity itself—often easily changed by a simple turn of the lever

No place for clinker troubles.

IS READY FOR CLASH

Italian Navy is Prepared to Move Against Turkey

SULTAN IS BLUFFING

Paris, Sept. 23.—Advices received here from Rome say that the entire Italian naval force is ready, in case of emergency, for a conflict with Turkey if the Ottoman Government refuses to give consent for an Italian protectorate over Tripoli.

The Italian plan, according to these advices, embraces a bombardment of Tripoli and simultaneously a military expedition of 20,000 soldiers to block the Turkish coast along the Adriatic Sea, and to operate in Macedonia, Syria and Arabia with a view to protecting the numerous Italians living in those countries. This latter move, however, will be made only as an extreme measure.

While Italy is perfecting her plans all efforts are being made to induce Turkey to come to an amicable arrangement for insuring to Italy a preponderating influence over Tripoli. Italy even being willing to go to the extent of leaving Tripoli under the sovereignty of the sultan. It is understood that Germany and Austria are supporting this latter plan, and that France and Italy stand ready in case of its acceptance to indemnify Turkey.

The Italian squadron is rendezvousing at Tarante, and is under orders to be ready to start at a moment's notice. The commander of the squadron has instructions which are to be opened when his vessels are on the high seas.

It is believed that the seemingly belligerent attitude of Turkey is only a bluff to save her military honor, the advices from Rome say, and also at the same time to obtain a larger indemnity from Italy.

A squadron of torpedo boat destroyers, which left Messina for Brindisi yesterday, was compelled after five hours in stormy weather to return to harbor owing to damages sustained by several of the vessels.

The Rome advices say the Italian fleet will be divided into five divisions and the Duke of Abruzzi will command one of the squadrons of 23 destroyers, 28 torpedo boats, two cruisers and six submarines. The Rome despatch adds that Tarante has been proclaimed in a state of siege.

The Strike In Ireland.

Dublin, Sept. 23.—The first fruits of the declaration of a general strike of the railroads of Ireland by the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants were not particularly promising from the standpoint of the union. Only about thirty of the local staff of the Great Northern Railway responded to the call and the local men of the Midland Great Western refused to quit.

The trains of the Great Northern system were being operated as usual yesterday. The strike on the Great Southern & Western Railway continues to be the mainstay of the general movement. Queenstown has been cut off from railway communication with the interior.

The fact that the executives of the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants are Englishmen has not tended to make the strike order popular among Irishmen.

Rode in Wheelbarrow.

Toronto, Sept. 23.—'Twas a gaily-decorated chariot that drew up near the St. Lawrence market southwest at the corner of King and Jarvis streets yesterday morning, precisely at eleven. The chariot bore a striking likeness to a wheelbarrow, yet spokes and woodwork were gay with red, white and blue tissue paper, and on its floor stood an armchair likewise decorated and guarded by two flaunting Union Jacks.

The charioteer, Mr. James Hopper of King street east, appeared presently in the midst of the crowd of grinning, cheering people and took the wheelbarrow handles while a stout, merry-looking man, apparently ready to enjoy the time of his life, mounted the chair. The stout man was Mr. McKinnie of the McKinnie House. The thinner man was the wheeler, but he didn't turn a hair as he lifted something like 200 pounds of avoirdupois.

The two men had had a wager of $35 a side on the election, and included was the provision that the loser should wheel his opponent two blocks up Jarvis street and back to the McKinnie Hotel. Bystanders testify that Mr. Hopper came valiantly up to the scratch.

LAURIER TO LEAD

Hon. Sydney Fisher Says Sir Wilfrid Laurier Will Lead Opposition

WILL WIND UP AT ONCE

Montreal, Sept. 23.—"Under present circumstances," said Hon. Sydney Fisher at the Windsor Hotel last evening, "I think it is practically certain that the new Parliament will meet with Sir Wilfrid Laurer as leader of the Opposition. Of course, I cannot speak with authority, but that is my impression, and this will, of course, be decided later."

"What about the plans of the retiring Government?" he was asked.

"Under the present conditions we shall not try to hang on, but shall resign as quickly as can be managed," said Hon. Mr. Fisher. "But that is for Sir Wilfrid Laurier to say, not for me; and as to any discussion regarding the date of departure for Earl Grey, that must be subordinate to the interests of the Dominion. Public affairs here must be carried on, whether Lord Grey leaves or not. In any event the Duke of Connaught is not expected to arrive in Canada before Oct. 14th, and I do not imagine there is any doubt but that we shall be out before that time. As to whether Mr. Borden will have his Government ready by that time or not is, of course, his affair, but I have no doubt he will."

Winding Up Job.

Ottawa, Sept. 23.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier returned to Ottawa Thursday night. His car was attached to the 10.50 train from Quebec. He was met at the depot by a few personal friends and immediately drove to his residence, accompanied by his private secretary.

The defeated Prime Minister made no statement, and, while he looks worn and fatigued, he is in good spirits.

Mr. Borden has wired that he may arrive in Ottawa on Sunday. If he comes at any other time, the Conservatives are arranging to tender him a demonstration in keeping with his victory. Personally Mr. Borden is a great favorite in Ottawa. He has always evinced a deep interest in its affairs, and is a very large property-owner.

The Conservative victory has become very popular in the capital, which has a penchant for being on the winning side, and the average man, especially Government employes, professes to have foreseen what was going to happen and to have voted accordingly.

The Cabinet Ministers will return early in the week and start to pack up, and while no appointments can be made constitutionally, following the Aberdeen precedent in 1896, there is considerable departmental routine which is likely to be disposed of. Then Sir Wilfrid will bow to the public demand, and tender the resignation of himself and Cabinet.

Thereupon Mr. Borden will be called upon to form his Ministry. This may happen possibly at the end of next week, but more probably the week after.

Public interest centres upon the probable selections for the Cabinet. Beyond a doubt, Mr. Borden will himself take the position that Sir Wilfrid Laurier filled as president of the Privy Council; though there are precedents for the Premier also being a Departmental Minister. Common report associates the name of Judge Doherty with the portfolio of Justice. Mr. Monk is talked of as Secretary of State and Messrs. Ames and Perley seem certain of Cabinet rank. For the position of Minister of Railways Mr. Crocket of York has support.

As to Ontario there is speculation regarding Hon. Geo. E. Foster. Claude Macdonell is spoken of as Minister of Labor. Major Sharpe or Col. Hughes as Minister of Militia, while other Cabinet material are W. B. Northrup, Haughton Lennox and Andrew Broder, Dr. Reid, T. E. Armstrong and T. W. Crothers.

The re-election of Cabinet Ministers will be but a formality and it is likely that the new Parliament will assemble the second week in November. The occasion will be of unprecedented brilliancy with the coming of the Duke of Connaught and the advent of a new Government.

If Sir Wilfrid Laurier relinquishes the leadership of the Opposition, as he is more than likely to do, an Ontario man is likely to be selected and Hugh Guthrie of Wellington is a very probable selection. He has the unique distinction of being the only Liberal who retained his normal majority.

Mr. German's Offer.

Toronto, Sept. 23.—W. M. German, M.P. for Welland by acclamation, wired Mr. R. L. Borden early yesterday morning offering his seat in case the final returns for Halifax showed that the Conservative leader was defeated. The message is taken to indicate that Mr. German will support the Borden Administration.

To Eliminate Politics.

Kingston, Sept. 23.—A young men's club will be organized here for the purpose of boosting the city. The chief object will be to keep politics out of municipal affairs and to have all work for the good of the city. A preliminary meeting has been held, attended by members of both parties. It is the intention to place young men in the field as candidates for aldermen, as it is believed young blood will make more progress.

Steamer Rammed and Sunk.

Port Huron, Mich., Sept. 23.—The steamer Joliet was rammed and sunk by the steamer Henry Phipps early yesterday morning in the St. Clair river.

The crew got away on pieces of wreckage. A heavy fog prevailed.

An Incorrigible.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 23.—Nine-year-old Barney Swerling, who confessed to four robberies last week, was arrested yesterday for robbing the Goodyear Shoe Repair Store Thursday night. He will be sent to Mimico Industrial School.

Terrible Itching Got Little Sleep

Mr. T. Williams, Winnipeg.

Until Cuticura Remedies Cured Him

Those who have suffered long and hopelessly from torturing skin eruptions will read with interest this letter from Mr. T. Williams, 218 Pacific Ave., Winnipeg (dated Jan. 14, 1911): "The Cuticura Remedies certainly did work finely, and I am thankful that there is such a remedy, and that I tried it. About three months ago a terrible itching commenced on my body. I could not understand it. It gradually grew worse and covered a large portion of my body. There was also a slight eruption of the skin, sort of a rash. I suffered greatly with the itching and at night time I had little sleep. I tried one or two remedies which did no good, and then I tried Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent. In about ten days I was completely cured."

For more than a generation the Cuticura Remedies have afforded the speediest and most economical treatment for itching, burning, scaly and bleeding skin and scalp humors, of young and old. Sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. For a liberal sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment, with 32-p. book on the care of the skin and treatment of its affections, send a postal to the Potter Drug & Chem. "The Liver Pills act So Naturally and Easily."

Such a statement, coming from the cashier of a bank, shows what confidence responsible people have in these pills. Mr. A. L. Wilson after trying them wrote:

"I have used Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills and also your Anti-Pain Pills, on myself, with good results. The Liver Pills act so naturally and so easily that I scarcely know that I have taken a pill. Frequently being troubled with headache I take an Anti-Pain Pill and get immediate relief in every case."

Mr. Wilson was for a number of years cashier of the First National Bank of Sparta.

Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills are different from others. Many kinds of liver pills are "impossible" after one trial on account of their harshness. Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills do not act by sheer force but in an easy, natural way, without griping or undue irritation. They are not habit forming.

A SURPRISE TO STATES

What Effect Will Canada's Verdict Have on the Future of President Taft

WAS UTTERLY UNEXPECTED

Washington, Sept. 23.—Politicians of both parties are dumfounded at the defeat of the reciprocity bill in Canada. Misled by the optimistic reports from American newspapermen sent to "help across the border," official Washington never dreamed that there was serious opposition to the pact on the part of a majority of the Canadian people.

Every one is asking what the effect will be upon the political fortunes of President Taft, who, even his friends privately admit, was chiefly concerned about this phase of the question from the start.

A very significant remark was made yesterday by an official of the State Department, who had a great deal to do with negotiating the tariff treaty. He said: "Of course, we are sorry that Canada is not going to give reciprocity a trial, but so far as the effect upon Mr. Taft's political future is concerned, there is really nothing to fear. The President had to have something to give him standing as a fighting man before the country. Up to the negotiation of the treaty with Canada, his friends were saying: 'O, what's the use?' His advocacy of the agreement here and his success in forcing it through Congress has increased his chances of election. That is what he wanted and Canada's vote does not affect that at all."

But this is a friendly view of the situation. The insurgent Republicans who are the real low-tariff members of the party, are overjoyed at the prospect of further embarrassment to the President. They say he has failed again, and that is all the people of the United States will see in it. He has vetoed general tariff reduction and promised relief from the reciprocity bill which will not be forthcoming.

"If it was a bad thing for Canada, then it must have been a good thing for us," is the way some of the Democrats are talking. They will also have to defend their support of the bill in the elections a year from this fall.

The tone of the comment both by public men and the press is pretty much the same. The American and Canadian "trusts" are blamed for the defeat of the measure in Canada. Speaker Champ Clark, of the House of Representatives, is also blamed. His annexation speech made in Congress last winter gave the cue to the Opposition in Canada and furnished them with ammunition they were looking for. It is realized here that the explanation of the Speaker that he did not mean it seriously did not carry weight, because it was known full well that he did mean it seriously when he said it, and that his attitude was similar to that of a vast number of American public men.

The Washington Post, a strong Taft organ, thinks it will not interfere with President Taft's political ambitions. It says: "Naturally, the insurgents will try to utilize the defeat of reciprocity to embarrass Taft, but the country is not likely to blame Mr. Taft for Canada's action. On the contrary, the presumption becomes stronger that as Canada does not approve of the pact, it must have proved a good thing for the United States if carried through. Possibly, the relations between Canada and the United States will not be improved by the rejection of reciprocity, but fair-minded Americans will not cherish resentment against the Canadians for their decision. The reciprocity arrangement would not have been worth a straw if it had not been a fair and free proposition, to be accepted or rejected by either country in the light of its own interests."

Clark Dodge Blame.

Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 23.—Speaker Champ Clark made the following statement here yesterday:

"My remarks about annexation did not do half as much to defeat reciprocity in Canada as did President Taft's speech in which he insisted on hurrying up agreeing to reciprocity in this country before Great Britain established her imperial policy of tariff with preferential rates for the colonies.

"He and I were both quoted by the anti-reciprocity crowd in Canada, he more than I, but the chances are that the quotations from his speeches and mine did not have half so much to do with defeating reciprocity as did the corruption funds sent from both this country and Great Britain into Canada.

Taft Is Sorry.

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 23.—President Taft had a heart-to-heart talk here yesterday with the leaders of the different Republican factions in Illinois. He still was downcast by the defeat of the reciprocity agreement in Canada, but his only reference to that subject was made earlier in the day, when he addressed the workingmen in a local manufacturing establishment where farming implements are made.

"I was sorry to hear that in Canada they do not care to have closer commercial relations with us," he said. "If reciprocity had been adopted we could have gotten our agricultural implements into Canada at a substantial decrease. But I guess we can get along."

Passengers Stranded.

Queenstown, Sept. 23.—Two hundred passengers, some of whom came on the White Star steamer Cedric from New York Thursday night, and others on the same company's steamer Arabic from Boston yesterday, are stranded here, unable to reach their destination because of the general strike on the Irish railways, called by the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants, Thursday night.

The city is practically isolated from the land side. The railway officials stated that no trains would arrive at or leave Queenstown to-day, and that they did not know when they would be able to resume operations. Not even the mails can be despatched.

UNIONISTS JUBILANT.

English Tories Now See Hope For Tariff Reform.

London, Sept. 23.—The result of the Canadian election has put great heart in the tariff reform movement here, and has been received by the Unionist newspapers and Unionists generally with great enthusiasm.

Frederick E. Smyth, Unionist member of Parliament for Liverpool, says Canada's example will be of immense encouragement to the tariff reformers here and a corresponding rebuff to the free traders, while Lord Willoughby de Broke declares that he is delighted that Canada has not forgotten the old country.

Andrew Bonar Law, Unionist member of Parliament for the Dulwich Division of Camberwell, believes the result of the election will hasten the triumph of imperial preference. According to L. S. Amery, the journalist, the election is the most important decisive imperial event since the South African War. He declares Canada has given the lead, which England must follow.

William R. Peel, leader of the Municipal Reform party, says the Canadians defeated an American conspiracy to absorb their country, and that imperial reciprocity now is certain. Sir William Maxwell Aitken declares that time alone can make clear the far-reaching significance of the victory by which Canada set the seal of a new declaration of imperial faith and unity.

Viscount Ridley, former secretary to Lord Aberdeen, when he was Governor-General of Canada, said:

"The door bolted and barred by Premier Asquith has been flung open again by Canada. The tariff reformers will work with renewed vigor, and with certainty of success."

Among the more moderate of the tariff reform morning newspapers, the feeling of triumph is tempered by expressions of regret at the disappearance from political life of such a staunch imperialist as Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and the recognition that the victory is partly due to the Bourassa party. These papers declare they are glad that R. L. Borden has a majority large enough to render him independent of Mr. Bourassa's support.

Seven Men Killed In Wreck.

North Bay, Sept. 23.—The C.P.R. wreck at Chapleau Thursday resulted in seven deaths. The wreck was caused by the engine of a work train, running tender first, crashing into the van of an eastbound stock train standing on the main line. Eight men in charge of the stock train were in the van, but only one escaped, saving himself by jumping. The accident occurred at five o'clock in the morning. The dead include Claremont of London, England; Harold of Windsor, Ont.; Nelson of Winnipeg, Geoffrion of Quebec, and three others, names unknown at present.

Fell Fifty Feet.

Montreal, Sept. 23.—While at work on a scaffold, painting the roof of a convent at Pointe Claire yesterday, Leon Robert, aged 28, of Montreal, lost his footing and fell fifty feet, suffering injuries from which he died shortly afterwards.

Fatal Election Dispute.

Campbellton, N.B., Sept. 23.—Campbellton is yesterday mourning for one of her most respected citizens, D. J. Bruce, who died at an early hour yesterday morning as a result of a blow struck him by Dr. W. W. Doherty.

The townspeople are shocked by the sudden termination of one of the most sober and quiet elections ever held in Restigouche. It appears that Mr. Bruce and Dr. Doherty were in a somewhat heated argument about political matters, Mr. Bruce being a Conservative, while Dr. Doherty is a Liberal, when a very personal question respecting Dr. Doherty was touched upon. Thereupon he is said to have stabbed at Mr. Bruce with an umbrella. The weapon pierced the unfortunate man's eye and it is supposed that it injured the brain. The injured man was rushed to Hotel Dieu Hospital, where everything possible was done and he was then removed to his home, where he expired at six o'clock yesterday morning.

Dr. Doherty immediately after the assault was arrested by Chief Hughes.

A widow and two children, one son and one daughter, survive. Deceased was a native of Prince Edward Island, and was an active temperance and church worker.

Fifty Killed In Storm.

Naples, Sept. 23.—A hurricane of great violence and accompanied by a deluge of rain raged yesterday over the Vesuvian region, causing a heavy loss of life and enormous damage to property. It was estimated last night that fifty persons were killed.

Houses were razed by the wind, while others were inundated. Numerous boats in the Bay of Naples are missing, and are believed to have been sunk.

It is impossible as yet to estimate the total damage done by the storm, as telegraph and telephone wires are down, and roads are blocked. Several towns are in darkness owing to the electric lighting plants being compelled to shut down.

Jamaica's Plans.

Kingston, Jamaica, Sept. 23.—Various proposals are before the Jamaican Government with the idea of preparing Jamaica for benefits that are believed likely to accrue through the opening of the Panama Canal. One of these is to make Kingston a coaling station and another contemplates the purchase of a floating drydock and the equipment of a repair plant for vessels. Before acting on the proposals, however, Sir Sydney Olivier, governor of Jamaica, will visit the canal zone next month and make a study of the canal situation and ascertain the benefits the colony is likely to get when the canal is ready for business.

Fire Broke Out Second Time.

Chatham, Sept. 23.—In the damp ruins of the Barnes Livery, fire again broke forth yesterday morning a short time after three o'clock. This place was gutted on Wednesday morning and was still dripping with the water poured on it by the firemen. Previously the firemen quenched the blaze with a single stream of water.

A Positive Cure For Indigestion and Dyspepsia.

Rev. Father Morrissey

Have you ever felt a leaden weight in the pit of the stomach—a feeling of fulness, with belching of wind and perhaps severe pain? Then you know how indigestion feels. It makes a person sarcastic and cranky—it causes misery after every meal—it saps the strength.

FATHER MORRISCY'S "No. 11" TABLETS

—one of the best of the late priest-physician's remarkable prescriptions—positively cure Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sick or Sour Stomach, Heartburn, and all the suffering that comes from a "bad stomach."

Each tablet will digest 1½ pounds of food—a good meal.

Take "No. 11" Tablets regularly, avoid articles of food that you have found disagree with you, and you will be benefitted from the start and soon cured.

EXAMINER ROAD RACES ON THANKSGIVING DAY

The Examiner road races now loom into prominence in sporting circles and a few words in connection with the big event, will no doubt be read with interest. The races will be held this year as usual on Thanksgiving Day morning under the usual conditions; that is, the competitors must be residents of Peterborough or the surrounding counties and must be registered amateurs, holding a C.A.A.U. card. In this connection those who are not registered with the C.A.A.U. and who intend to enter the races should call at the Examiner office, leave their names and the required fee (25c.) and the Examiner will see that they are properly registered. The juniors are not required to register. Contestants are advised to begin training at once as it requires consistent preparation to have a chance at the long distance game. Already a number of runners are working out at nights and within the next few days nearly all those who are going to take part will be hard at work. There are a number of good runners in Peterborough at the present time who will give Albert Smoke, the winner for the past two years, a grand battle for the Examiner trophy. The prizes this year will be better than ever before and everything points to be the best race in the history of the Examiner's competition.

BASEBALL

It's all over but handing the 1911 pennant to Rochester.

The Orioles may win all their remaining games but they can't win the pennant.

The Leafs finish their season today, but the Orioles have a Sunday game at Baltimore.

Of course Baltimore won another, and the Leafs are dead sure of third place.

Donnelly of Toronto, pitched a good game yesterday for Boston Nationals.

One of the features at Rochester yesterday was a catch in centre field in the seventh inning of the second game by Osborn. There was a man on second at the time, and if he had missed it there would have been one run, and perhaps, two.

Umpire Clarence Owens, familiarly known as "Brick," to-day attached his signature to a National League contract as umpire during the 1912 season. Owens hails from Kansas City, and has been an American Association arbiter several seasons. Owens umpired in the Eastern League in the season of 1907.

Ban Johnson characterized as ridiculous the report from Boston that he would resign the Presidency of the American League to take entire charge of the Boston Red Sox. In the first place Mr. Johnson said he had absolutely no connection with the Boston Club, and, in the second place, he has a 25-year contract to remain at the head of the American League at a salary of $25,000 per annum.

There's a peach of a place just under the shadow of Coogan's Bluff for planting that pennant pole — and that's just about where it will rest.

Of course there's a lot of "ifs" but it's a mighty good two to one bet the Cubs never overtake the McGraw bunch for the 1911 rag.

Both the Giants and the Cubs split even in Thursday's double-header, so the Polo Grounders remain seven full games in the lead.

Alexander the Great held the Cubs to four hits in the first set-to, while Curtis, Chalmers and Stanley failed to hold them at all in the second.

After Mathewson went in and saved the first game for the Giants, McGraw got so cheaty he sent in Bert Maxwell, a Birmingham recruit, to pitch the second, which the Cardinals won, 8—7.

The Reds and Trolley Dodgers battled for 15 full innings in their first, the Reds winning, 4-3. In the five-inning second game the Infants copped by 4—0.

Boston was beaten—again—by the Pirates. Which is one idea of nothing to comment about.

Although knocked out for five minutes by a hot liner from Williams' bat, Mitchell returned to the fray and helped the Naps win from the Yankees by 8—1 .

Detroit won a game, honest. Mullin held the Speed Boys to five hits, while errors gave the Tigers two runs, one more than enough to win.

Although they didn't need it, the World's Champions kept their hands in by beating the Browns 7 to 4. Barry got three hits, and stole one base.

Jack Sheridan permanently retired as American League umpire, has been presented with a "medal of honour." Some National League magnates have "cans" they would like to put to some of their arbitrators.

Attempt at Impersonation.

Chatham, Sept. 23.—Thomas Cooper of Detroit, charged with attempted impersonation in the McCoig-Stanworth election Wednesday, was arrested yesterday afternoon. The charge against Cooper is that he went into city polling division No. 9, where he attempted to impersonate a man named Johnston. He was almost instantly recognized by Conservative scrutineers, who demanded that he be made to take the oath. He refused to do so, and had to leave the poll without voting. Later his arrest was ordered.

Concrete Wall Fell on Him.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 23.—Ed. McVeigh is at the hospital in a serious condition last night, as the result of being crushed while working at the Electrical Development plant. A large portion of a concrete wall fell in upon him.

Sentenced to Death.

Kiev, Russia, Sept. 23.—Dmitry Bogroff, the assasin of Premier Stolypin, was tried yesterday by court-martial and sentenced to death by hanging. Bogroff shot M. Stolypin a week ago last Thursday night, during a gala performance at the opera, and the Premier succumbed to the wound last Monday night.

After Long Service.

Kingston, Sept. 23.—Edward H. Welch, aged 32, for twelve years connected with the offices of the Kingston and Pembroke Railway, and for three years auditor, is dead, after a lingering illness. He was a son of the late John Welch, a prominent citizen.

Killed by Street Car.

Montreal, Sept. 23.—Antoine Croteau, a boy of sixteen, met death under the wheels of a street car at the corner of St. Denis and Ontario streets yesterday afternoon, when employes of the Montreal Light, Heat & Power Co. rolled a pole, which they were about to erect, against the wheels of the wagon which he was driving, throwing him from his seat on to the tracks.

"Too Blooming Hot."

Three hundred immigrants arrived from England a few days ago. One hundred and seventy-five remained in Toronto.

Several farmers, who were on hand looking for help, failed to induce any of them to accept a position on the farm.

"It is too blooming hot in this country," was the answer one man made.

The farmer was so disappointed that he replied with some vigor:

"By gosh, it will be cold enough for you in a little while."

Lake Huron holds a curious record in having more islands than any other lake. It has at least 3,000.

MARKET REPORTS.

Liverpool and Chicago Wheat Futures Close Higher—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—Despite sales of millions of bushels by holders realizing profits, the wheat market here whirled upward to-day again and again. Defeat of reciprocity formed the sole reason. After an exciting day, there was a nervous close, 2⅞c to 3¼c higher than last night, and within ⅛c of the top figures reached. Oats, which would also have been subject to free competition from Canada, made a net advance of 1⅜c to 2¼c. Corn rose ⅛c to 1c and provisions 2½c to 10c.

The Liverpool market closed to-day ½d to ¾d higher than yesterday on wheat, and ½d lower to ½d higher on corn. Antwerp closed unchanged on wheat; Buda Pest, ⅛c higher, and Berlin ⅛c higher.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Sept. 22.—There was considerable inquiry from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat, but as the prices bid were all from 3c to 4c per bushel out of line, no business was done. In sympathy with the break in prices for oats in the Winnipeg market an easier feeling prevailed here, but in the absence of any business prices were nominally unchanged. American No. 2 yellow corn was strong. The foreign demand for flour was quiet and bids for winter wheat 90 per cent.'s were 3d lower at 24s. The local trade is fairly good. A firm feeling prevails in mill feed under a good demand and small supplies. Cheese is strong at an advance of ¼c to ½c per lb., with a fair trade doing. Demand for butter is increasing. Eggs active and provisions steady with a fair demand.

Dressed hogs, abattoir, $10 to $10.25 per cwt. Beef, Plate, half bbls., 200 lbs., $7.00; barrels, 200 lbs., $14.50; tierces, 300 lbs., $21.50. Lard, compound tierces, 375 lbs., 9½c; boxes, 50 lbs. net (parchment lined), 9¾c; tubs, 50 lbs. net, grained, two handles, 9½c; pails, wood, 20 lbs. net, 9¾c; tin pails, 20 lbs. gross, 9½c.

Pork, heavy Canada short cut mess, barrels, 25 to 45 pieces, $23.50; half barrels, $13; Canada short cut and back pork, 45 to 55 pieces, barrels, $23; Canada clear pork, barrels, 30 to 35 pieces, $20.50; bean pork, small pieces, but fat, barrels, $16.50.

Oats, Canadian western, No. 2, 47½c, car lots ex store; extra No. 1 feed, 47c; No. 1 C.W., 46½c; No. 2 local white, 46c; No. 3 local white, 45½c; No. 4 local white, 45c.

Flour, Manitoba spring wheat patents, firsts, $5.40; seconds, $4.90; winter wheat patents, $4.75; strong bakers, $4.70; straight rollers, $4.25; in bags, $1.85 to $2. Rolled oats, per barrel, $3.35; bag of 90 lbs., $2.50.

Corn, American No. 2 yellow, 76c. Millfeed, bran, Ontario, $22 to $24; Manitoba, $23; middlings, Ontario, $27 to $28; shorts, Manitoba, $27; moullie, $26 to $32.

Eggs, selected, 24c to 25c; No. 1 stock, 20c to 22c.

Cheese, westerns, 15¼c to 15½c; easterns, 14½c to 14¾c.

Butter, choicest, 25⅝c to 26⅛c; seconds, 25⅛c to 25½c.

Chinese Conditions Better.

Toronto, Sept. 23.—Conditions in West China are improving, according to a telegram received at the Methodist Mission rooms yesterday from Chungking. The message also reported the arrival of W. B. Albertson, R. E. Taylor and C. W. Baldorf from Chengtu.

Another message from Chunking, received late yesterday afternoon, reported the arrival from Chengtu of Rev. A. C. Hoffman and family and Miss Hall Speers. "Serious disturbances here; communication with Chengtu very uncertain; excitement abating; government efficient; all are well," read the message.

Mr. Shore feels very much relieved, as the responsibility of the missionaries in China during the recent riots worried him very much.

Burglars at Chippewa.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 23.—For the second time in a week, E. C. McAvally's drug store at Chippewa, was broken into by thieves Thursday night or Friday morning. The marauders obtained $15 from the till.

Buy Beaver-Temiskaming
BOTH of these Cobalt Companies recently declared their regular dividend of 3 per cent., and according to the reports presented to the directors by the respective managements, Beaver and Temiskaming are in better physical condition than ever before.
BEAVER
The liquid assets of Beaver Consolidated are approximately $190,000, and recent developments in the mine indicate that the ore is getting much richer as depth is attained.
Eight cars of ore—two high-grade and six low-grade—were shipped from the Beaver Mine during August, which will net the company in the neighborhood of $130,000.
A mill is to be erected immediately to treat the large amount of low-grade ore now on hand. Acre for acre, Beaver is proving as rich as any of the big Cobalt mines.
At present market prices Beaver is paying 28 per cent. on the investment, and before the next distribution is made on December 15th, the management expect to ship at least two cars of high-grade ore and ten cars of concetrates, which will net the company $100,000, or sufficient to meet the dividend, as well as to provide the necessary funds to erect the new mill.
TEMISKAMING
Temiskaming's ore reserves, its splendid financial condition, and the fact that the management are now working in an exceptionally rich body of ore below the 575-foot level, warrants the stock selling at materially higher prices. Temiskaming is now paying 12 per cent. annually, or 32.4 per cent. on the present market price of the stock. This handsome return, we are reliably informed, can be maintained for many years to come.
For all those who are interested in BEAVER or TEMISKAMING we have prepared an exhaustive report of the physical condition of both mines, which we will be pleased to send free on request.
We unhesitatingly advise the immediate purchase of BEAVER and TEMISKAMING and state why in our Circular.

EXAMINER ROAD RACES ON THANKSGIVING DAY

The Examiner road races now loom into prominence in sporting circles and a few words in connection with the big event, will no doubt be read with interest. The races will be held this year as usual on Thanksgiving Day morning under the usual conditions; that is, the competitors must be residents of Peterborough or the surrounding counties and must be registered amateurs, holding a C.A.A.U. card. In this connection those who are not registered with the C.A.A.U. and who intend to enter the races should call at the Examiner office, leave their names and the required fee (25c.) and the Examiner will see that they are properly registered. The juniors are not required to register. Contestants are advised to begin training at once as it requires consistent preparation to have a chance at the long distance game. Already a number of runners are working out at night and within the next few days nearly all those who are going to take part will be hard at work. There are a number of good runners in Peterborough at the present time who will give Albert Smoke, the winner for the past two years, a grand battle for the Examiner trophy. The prizes this year will be better than ever before and everything points to be the best race in the history of the Examiner's competition.

BASEBALL

It's all over but handing the 1911 pennant to Rochester.

The Orioles may win all their remaining games but they can't win the pennant.

The Leafs finish their season today, but the Orioles have a Sunday game at Baltimore.

Of course Baltimore won another, and the Leafs are dead sure of third place.

Donnelly of Toronto, pitched a good game yesterday for Boston Nationals.

One of the features at Rochester yesterday was a catch in centre field in the seventh inning of the second game by Osborn. There was a man on second at the time, and if he had missed it there would have been one run, and perhaps, two.

Umpire Clarence Owens, familiarly known as "Brick," to-day attached his signature to a National League contract as umpire during the 1912 season. Owens hails from Kansas City, and has been an American Association arbiter several seasons. Owens umpired in the Eastern League in the season of 1907.

Ban Johnson characterized as ridiculous the report from Boston that he would resign the Presidency of the American League to take entire charge of the Boston Red Sox. In the first place Mr. Johnson said he had absolutely no connection with the Boston Club, and, in the second place, he has a 25-year contract to remain at the head of the American League at a salary of $25,000 per annum.

There's a peach of a place just under the shadow of Coogan's Bluff for planting that pennant pole — and that's just about where it will rest.

Of course there's a lot of "ifs" but it's a mighty good two to one bet the Cubs never overtake the McGraw bunch for the 1911 rag.

Both the Giants and the Cubs split even in Thursday's double-header, so the Polo Grounders remain seven full games in the lead.

Alexander the Great held the Cubs to four hits in the first set-to, while Curtis, Chalmers and Stanley failed to hold them at all in the second.

After Mathewson went in and saved the first game for the Giants, McGraw got so chesty he sent in Bert Maxwell, a Birmingham recruit, to pitch the second, which the Cardinals won, 8—7.

The Reds and Trolley Dodgers battled for 15 full innings in their first, the Reds winning, 4-3. In the five-inning second game the Infants copped by 4—0.

Boston was beaten—again—by the Pirates. Which is one idea of nothing to comment about.

Although knocked out for five minutes by a hot liner from Williams' bat, Mitchell returned to the fray and helped the Naps win from the Yankees by 8—1.

Detroit won a game, honest. Mullin held the Speed Boys to five hits, while errors gave the Tigers two runs, one more than enough to win.

Although they didn't need it, the World's Champions kept their hands in by beating the Browns 7 to 4. Barry got three hits, and stole one base.

Jack Sheridan permanently retired as American League umpire, has been presented with a "medal of honour." Some National League magnates have "cans" they would like to put to some of their arbitrators.

Attempt at Impersonation.

Chatham, Sept. 23.—Thomas Cooper of Detroit, charged with attempted impersonation in the McCuig-Stanworth election Wednesday, was arrested yesterday afternoon. The charge against Cooper is that he went into city polling division No. 9, where he attempted to impersonate a man named Johnston. He was almost instantly recognized by Conservative scrutineers, who demanded that he be made to take the oath. He refused to do so, and had to leave the poll without voting. Later his arrest was ordered.

Concrete Wall Fell on Him.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 23.—Ed. McVeigh is at the hospital in a serious condition last night, as the result of being crushed while working at the Electrical Development plant. A large portion of a concrete wall fell in upon him.

Sentenced to Death.

Kiev, Russia, Sept. 23.—Dmitry Bogroff, the assassin of Premier Stolypin, was tried yesterday by court-martial and sentenced to death by hanging. Bogroff shot M. Stolypin a week ago last Thursday night, during a gala performance at the opera, and the Premier succumbed to the wound last Monday night.

After Long Service.

Kingston, Sept. 23.—Edward H. Welch, aged 32, for twelve years connected with the offices of the Kingston and Pembroke Railway, and for three years auditor, is dead, after a lingering illness. He was a son of the late John Welch, a prominent citizen.

Killed by Street Car.

Montreal, Sept. 23.—Antoine Croteau, a boy of sixteen, met death under the wheels of a street car at the corner of St. Denis and Ontario streets yesterday afternoon, when employes of the Montreal Light, Heat & Power Co. rolled a pole, which they were about to erect, against the wheels of the wagon which he was driving, throwing him from his seat on to the tracks.

"Too Blooming Hot."

Three hundred immigrants arrived from England a few days ago. One hundred and seventy-five remained in Toronto.

Several farmers, who were on hand looking for help, failed to induce any of them to accept a position on the farm.

"It is too blooming hot in this country," was the answer one man made.

The farmer was so disappointed that he replied with some vigor:

"By gosh, it will be cold enough for you in a little while."

Lake Huron holds a curious record in having more islands than any other lake. It has at least 3,000.

MARKET REPORTS.

Liverpool and Chicago Wheat Futures Close Higher—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—Despite sales of millions of bushels by holders realizing profits, the wheat market here whirled upward to-day again and again. Defeat of reciprocity formed the sole reason. After an exciting day, there was a nervous close, 2⅝c to 2¼c higher than last night, and within ½c of the top figures reached. Oats, which would also have been subject to free competition from Canada, made a net advance of 1⅝c to 1⅝c. Corn rose ⅝c to 1c and provisions 2½c to 10c.

The Liverpool market closed to-day ½d to ¼d higher than yesterday on wheat, and ½d lower to ½d higher on corn. Antwerp closed unchanged on wheat; Buda Pest, ⅛c higher, and Berlin ⅜c higher.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Sept. 22.—There was considerable inquiry from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat, but as the prices bid were all from 1c to 4c per bushel out of line, no business was done. In sympathy with the break in prices for oats in the Winnipeg market an easier feeling prevailed here, but in the absence of any business prices were nominally unchanged. American No. 2 yellow corn was strong. The foreign demand for flour was quiet and bids for winter wheat 90 per cent.'s were 3d lower at 24s. The local trade is fairly good. A firm feeling prevails in mill feed under a good demand and small supplies. Cheese is strong at an advance of ¼c to ½c per lb., with a fair trade doing. Demand for butter is increasing. Eggs active and provisions steady with a fair demand.

Dressed hogs, abattoir, $10 to $10.25 per cwt. Beef, Plate, half bbls., 100 lbs., $7.00; barrels, 200 lbs., $14.50; tierces, 300 lbs., $21.50. Chinese Conditions Better.

Toronto, Sept. 23.—Conditions in West China are improving, according to a telegram received at the Methodist Mission rooms yesterday from Chungking. The message also reported the arrival of W. B. Albertson, R. E. Taylor and C. W. Baldorf from Chengtu.

Another message from Chunking, received late yesterday afternoon, reported the arrival from Chengtu of Rev. A. C. Hoffman and family and Miss Hall Speers. "Serious disturbances here; communication with Chengtu very uncertain; excitement abating; government efficient; all are well," read the message.

Mr. Shore feels very much relieved, as the responsibility of the missionaries in China during the recent riots worried him very much.

Burglars at Chippewa.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 23.—For the second time in a week, E. C. McNally's drug store at Chippewa, was broken into by thieves Thursday night or Friday morning. The marauders obtained $15 from the till.

MOST brands of clothing are advertised by means of illustrations. The danger to the prospective purchaser is that often the poorest clothing is as well depicted in illustration as the best.

The actual test is comparison of the garments offered.

Buy Beaver-Temiskaming

BOTH of these Cobalt Companies recently declared their regular dividend of 3 per cent., and according to the reports presented to the directors by the respective managements, Beaver and Temiskaming are in better physical condition than ever before.

BEAVER
The liquid assets of Beaver Consolidated are approximately $190,000, and recent developments in the mine indicate that the ore is getting much richer as depth is attained.
Eight cars of ore—two high-grade and six low-grade—were shipped from the Beaver Mine during August, which will net the company in the neighborhood of $130,000.
A mill is to be erected immediately to treat the large amount of low-grade ore now on hand. Acre for acre, Beaver is proving as rich as any of the big Cobalt mines.
At present market prices Beaver is paying 28 per cent. on the investment, and before the next distribution is made on December 15th, the management expect to ship at least two cars of high-grade ore and ten cars of concetrates, which will net the company $100,000, or sufficient to meet the dividend, as well as to provide the necessary funds to erect the new mill.

TEMISKAMING
Temiskaming's ore reserves, its splendid financial condition, and the fact that the management are now working in an exceptionally rich body of ore below the 575-foot level, warrants the stock selling at materially higher prices. Temiskaming is now paying 12 per cent. annually, or 32.4 per cent. on the present market price of the stock. This handsome return, we are reliably informed, can be maintained for many years to come.

For all those who are interested in BEAVER or TEMISKAMING we have prepared an exhaustive report of the physical condition of both mines, which we will be pleased to send free on request.
We unhesitatingly advise the immediate purchase of BEAVER and TEMISKAMING and state why in our Circular.

Night Classes

Many ambitious young people are taking advantage of the splendid opportunity to improve their education by attending the night classes at the Peterboro Business College. These classes are conducted on Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights, and students receive instruction in any one or all the subjects of the commercial or stenographic course. By this method, young people may learn while they earn—and thereby increase their salaries and better their positions without losing time from their work. You may enter any time but it will be to your advantage to enter now. The cost is small, while the benefit to be derived therefrom is inestimable.

The business world is full of opportunities, but the best positions are open only to those who are competent to fill them. By attending Night School at the Peterboro Business College, you may become competent.

FOUR HUNDRED KILLED IN AWFUL EXPLOSION ON FRENCH BATTLESHIP

"Liberte" Blown Up and Men Are Hurled High in Air With Parts of Vessel — Second Explosion Killed Many More.

BODIES SCATTERED

Special to The Examiner

Toulon, France, September 25th.—The list of terrible disasters to the French navy in times of peace, was added to this morning when the first-class battleship, Liberte, was blown to pieces with the sacrifice of 400 of her crew, in Toulon harbour. From the stories of the survivors, it seems a fire broke out at five o'clock near the ammunition room, but was not considered dangerous. However, it soon reached the ammunition rooms, and there were three distinct explosions. At the first shock hundreds of men sleeping in berths were hurled with parts of the vessel high in the air. Survivors were hastily summoned to their quarters and many were standing at their posts when the second explosion came, killing a hundred more. The discipline was excellent. None of the men attempted to save themselves till orders were given to leave the ship. The commander and most of the officers were killed or went down with the battered hulk of the vessel when the third explosion came. The casualty list would have been much severer but for the fact that three hundred officers and crew were ashore on leave. All France is in mourning.

It is doubtful if more than a hundred of the bodies can ever be found or identified. The effect of the explosion scattered pieces of bodies for a quarter mile around.

Twenty were killed on another vessel near Liberte when the crash came. Th Minister of Marine, Delcasse, has arrived from Paris to take charge of the investigation.

HER GAINED 25 LBS.

Mrs. George Bradshaw, Harlowe, Ont., writes: "I was troubled for many years with weak, watery blood and dropsy. I had nervous headaches, dizziness, and sinking spells, and was, in fact, a semi-invalid. Doctors told me my heart and kidneys were diseased and gave me up. By using 10 boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I have been cured of many of my old complaints and gained 25 pounds in weight."

SAD DROWNING AT CAVENDISH YESTERDAY

Little Greta Westlake Haynes Was Drowned in Mortimer Lake—Was Out Searching For Cranberries in Company With Her Aunt and Fell Into the Deep Water.

A sad drowning fatality occurred yesterday afternoon in Cavendish, when Greta Westlake Haynes, the 6-year-old daughter of Mr. F. B. Haynes of Cavendish, met an untimely end in the waters of Mortimer's Lake.

Greta's aunt had taken her to play on the shores of the lake, but the little one wandered some distance away in search of Cranberries. Suddenly the child's aunt missed her, and on looking around was horrified to discover signs of a disturbance in the water, and a bubble on the surface. The distracted lady rushed to the fatal spot, but the waters were again quiet. She summoned a number of neighbours, who returned with her to the lake, where a search was commenced. For some time their efforts were of no avail, but after the space of an hour the child's body was brought to the surface with the aid of a long pole.

The corpse of the little one was taken to the residence of Mr. John Westlake, from whence the funeral will take place on Wednesday morning at nine o'clock to the Little Lake cemetery.

EARL GREY TO WAIT TO RECEIVE RESIGNATION OF SIR WILFRID LAURIER

Special to The Examiner.

OTTAWA, Sept. 25.—Earl Grey, who had arranged to leave for England on October 6th, may defer his departure for a week or two to enable him to swear in the Premier and his Cabinet before leaving the Dominion. Sir Wilfrid is anxious to surrender the reins of government as quickly as possible. The business for the outgoing Cabinet is light. It was again asserted this morning that positively no appointments of any kind would be made bb ythe Laurier Government before stepping out. W. M. Garman, anti-reciprocity Liberal, of Welland, set at rest all questions as to his future course by calling on Sir Wilfrid this morning and assuring him he would sit on opposition side of house. Premier elect, Borden, did not go to his office this morning.

MR. STRATTON'S STRING OF HORSES CAPTURE A STRING OF PRIZES

Mr. Stratton's string of horses returned yesterday bearing a big bunch of trophies from the Ogdensburg Horse Show of last week. Their arrival on Sunday is explained by the accident on the Grand Junction Railway.

This show was one of the most successful and strongly contested of the series. Canadian stables were represented by the horses of Sir Henry Pellatt, Toronto; Senator Butt, Bowmanville; Crowe & Murray, Toronto, and Hon. J. R. Stratton, Peterborough.

In addition to these, horses were present from all the larger United States stables. As a consequence the competition was very keen, and wearing a red or blue ribbon meant something.

It speaks well for the quality of the Strathormand stables to state the fact that Mr. Stratton's horses came out of the contest with the splendid showing of twenty-seven prizes—sixteen firsts and eleven seconds. They stood in the ring to the last, though many of the other horses, Canadian and others, fell by the wayside—lost bone under the strain of continuous exhibit exercises.

OTHER OFFICIALS TO RESIGN

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, ONT., Sept. 25.—It is expected that resignation from S. N. Parent as chairman of the Transcontinental Railway Commission, will be followed shortly by resignations of others in high positons. This is expected, following the defeat of the Laurier Government.

CAPT. BERNIER RETURNS FROM THE ARCTIC

Special to The Examiner:

QUEBEC, Sept. 25.—After fourteen months in the Arctic regions, Captain Bernier and his Coast Guard Steamer "Arctic," with her crew all well, arrived here this morning. Owing to the presence of large fields of ice, Bernier was unable to make the North-West Passage as ordered by the ex-Minister of Marine, Brodeur.

Are Right After The Silverware

Special to The Examiner:

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 25.—Charlie Querrie, the manager of the Tecumseh Toronto lacrosse team of the Champions' National Lacrosse Union, and challengers here for the Minto cup, expressed confidence this morning that his team were the best that ever came from the East and would surely take back the cup.

Jerry Coughlin, the speedy rover of the Grillers last year, has had a proposition to go to Chicago to play professional hockey, but has turned the offer down. He says he saw enough of the pro. game in that farcical match between Belleville and Port Hope here.

Rain A Boon To Farmers

Special to The Examiner

To-day's rain has done untold good to the country, and the farmers are crying out for more. A farmer, in conversation with an Examiner reporter to-day, stated that the land was so dry that it was almost an impossibility to plow, and even where they could plough it did no good. The rain is a boon, and has been watched for anxiously for some days. The fall ploughing and sowing will begin in full swing if this rain lasts for a while. There has not been nearly enough fallen yet to be of very much use on high land, but in the lower places the ploughing can be proceeded with at once. There will be a rush at the fall work, if the rain continues, and as a result of this there will be a very small attendance on the market on Saturday. Of course this is only a prophesy at present, as there had not yet been enough rain to make all kinds of land fit for working on.

ENSIGN KILLED

Special to The Examiner:

Washington, D.C., Sept. 25.—Ensign Halle Belt was killed and several of the crew of the United States gunboat Tantanga were wounded by hostile natives of the Philippine Islands. A punitive expedition has been sent.

NORMAL SCHOOL

The Peterborough Normal School will open for the term to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock. Already the greater number of the pupils have arrived and have arranged for their boarding houses for the winter. Although the enrollment has not reached him yet, Principal Walker informed the Examiner this afternoon, in answer to an inquiry that there would probably be about the same number in attendance as last year, around 130 or 140 pupils. The only change in the staff has been caused by the resignation of Mrs. Sherry (nee Miss Helen Davies) whose place is being taken by Miss Rannie.

MONDAY, SEPT. 25, 1911

CONGRATULATIONS.

One of the notable personal victories in the late election contest, was won by a Peterborough boy, W. A. Buchanan—"Billy" Buchanan, as he is best remembered here. He defeated Mr. McGrath, one of the cleverest members of the Conservative party in the last parliament, a man for whom was reserved Cabinet honours, if he had been elected. Mr. Buchanan's many friends will give him hearty congratulations, in which the Examiner heartily joins.

TAKE IT DOWN.

The Conservative managers who exploited the bogus loyalty cry to the hilt, are guilty of offending the loyal sensibilities of really loyal people. They should make haste to cover over or take down the foreign flags that disfigure our boardings in different parts of the city. By so doing they will remove at once the evidence and the reproach that the Conservatives are the only party that ever raised the "Yankee" flag in Canada; at least since prominent Conservatives, in 1848, signed the only annexation manifesto ever signed in Canada. The "flag" referred to is that of a friendly nation, but still a foreign nation. It has no more political significance to Canadians than it has argumentative significance in its employment to support a fraudulent claim.

NOT TIME FOR A CHANGE.

There is nothing in the figures of British trade to justify a demand for a change in the British fiscal system on the grounds of commercial decadence. The latest figures show that the total trade of Great Britain for the year 1910 sounted to the astounding figures of 5,264 millions of dollars. This is an increase of 987 million dollars over the figures of the previous years. A nation that can show in one year an increase of trade of early a thousand million dollars, is certainly not in a very bad way. Great Britain's greatness, her power, her predominant influence in the councils of the world in all that relates to material progress and moral and intellectual and social advancement, are due to her policy of free trade with the world. In respect of the influence of free trade on imperial prosperity there is certainly no justification of a statement that it is time for a change. Popular sentiment is against it, and Chamberlainism, which has been three times pronounced against by the people, will have to wait some time yet; and the Canadian advocate of Imperial preference—involving taxation of the food of the British poor—will have still a good deal more time to consider the subject before it ever becomes a question of practical politics.

THE FARMER'S NEED.

The defeat of the reciprocity agreement does not affect its principle; that is as sound as ever; and its economic advantages are equally in existence. The puzzle to the populace involved is the apparent contradiction that reciprocity in natural or farm products would at once benefit the farmer and consumer, had to full share in confusing the popular mind and bringing about the result that was brought about. While worked out in detail, the argument is involved, yet the broad, general principle presents no paradox. The products that, under reciprocal arrangements, would find free entry, naturally divide themselves into two great classes—natural products in the bulky, or raw state, grain, roots, live stock, fruits, etc., and manufactured, or partly manufactured, farm products. It is not denied that free entry of the former into a convenient market, would be of advantage to the producer, whose superiority of farm methods, and soil and climatic conditions, removes any fear of dangerous competition. On these products the farmer gets a profit greater according to the removal of duty and the consumer is placed at no disadvantage. In the form that farm products reach the Canadian consumer, without competition, the price is artificially enhanced by combinations that are permitted, by the help of the tariff, to neutralize competition, and ,to a large extent, to put off the producer at a low price for the "raw" material, and exact a high price for the more finished product. Competition would work to the benefit of both producer and consumer. The former, by having an open foreign market, could get the highest prevailing prices, and would not be dependent upon the low prices the combined interests are now in a position to make prevail. As to the consumer's interests, an open market for foreign finished, or semi-finished food products would create competition that would reduce the cost of living to legitimate prices. Of course, this might be to the disadvantage of the few, but to the benefit of the mass of the people.

The British market mainly takes only our wheat and its products—cattle, cheese, and butter. But under present conditions, Ontario does not produce the wheat the British market demands and the market for meats, cattle, and cheese ,is falling off. In the matter of butter, it has become practically a closed market. These main farm products meet, in the British market, the competition of the world, while under reciprocity they would have the preference in implied in the removal of the duty, which, removed in the case of Canada, stands against the rest of the world. With immensely increasing production the home market is becoming every day more inadequate. Canada still needs larger markets to permit of the greatest pace and degree of development of her great natural resources, and while this need exists, the problem of providing an expanded market will confront the administrators of the national business.

THE DIFFERENCE.

The recent attempt to create a cleavage in the citizenship of Canada as between two parties, in the matter of loyalty, has been futile, and now that it has answered the purpose of a party expedient, we shall have no more of it. There never, for a moment, existed a belief that one party was more loyal to British connection to imperial integrity and Canadian tuitiously engenedered. All the difference in this respect has been gratuitously engendered, and all the difference that exists is in the form of manifestation. The Liberal party has not been wont to parade its loyalty and express it in mere sentiment. They have shown it in action. It is admitted that no Canadian statesman has done more to bring this country and the Mother Country into closer connection of affection and interest tha Sir Wilfrid Laurier. His tender of the British Preference was an act of practical loyalty in that it gave Great Britain special trade privileges and sentimental loyalty; also in that these favours were given without exacting an equivalent. This double attitude has secured an appreciation of Canada's action on the part of Great Britain. tht ha served to increase the Mother Country's respect from our good sense and loyalty; has shown the Mother Land that Canada is not only geographically big, but big in heart and uncalculating affection.

Upon the question of loyalty the two parties, in the recent election, may now agree, as they are forced to agree, in the matter of British and Canadian sentiment; for, from first to last, there has been no difference in these respects—only difference in forms of manifestation—the practical and the purely sentimental. The difference of opinion, adds the Toronto Star, has been as to the influence of trade upon political and national sentiment. It is a Conservative tradition that the heart of a nation goes with its trade. When the British parliament abolished the corn laws, or as we should say, the grain laws, and with them the British preference on colonial wheat, the strict Tories of that day cried out that the British colonies were lost. Lord Beaconsfield, the leader of the Tory revolt against Peel, said: "I hope we shall have an important deputation from Canada, representing that the inevitable result of these free trade measures in corn (wheat) and timber will be to alienate the feelings of our Canadian colonists."

Protests of that kind did come from Canada, and it is interesting to read the reply of Gladstone, then colonial secretary, a Tory by tradition, but a Liberal in thought. The Parliament of England, he said, was showing its equal regard for all the subjects of the Queen by helping the poor. He hoped that the connection between England and Canada was not commercial. He hoped that it rested upon a firmer basis—upon resemblance in origin, laws, and manners, in what inwardly binds men and communities of men as well as by the enjoyment of commercial freedom. Removal of unfair restrictions to trade never impaired loyalty or worked injury to the mass of the people.

BRACE UP AND BEGIN OVER

(Montreal Herald)

The time for the Liberal party to begin preparations for its next term of office is now.

There is nothing to be gained by crying over spilled milk. Fifteen years of power is a fairly long term, quite as long as is good for any party that wants to keep its fighting muscles in good trim. On all the record of performances it may be quite a time before the party is ready to take office again, longer still before it is permitted to do so. The only way to be ready is to begin preparation at once.

There is quite as much of interest in carrying on a vigorous, educational opposition as there is in controlling the spending of a hundred millions of national revenue. Given a good leader, the right spirit, and a government which sometimes makes mistakes, there is a deal more fun to be had out of opposing a government than out of defending one.

The mistakes, the embarrassments, of the new cabinet will soon come upon them. Some of the provincial governments which support them are already past their apogee and on the down grade. There is fighting enough ahead to develop a crop of Liberal public men who in a few years would be able, as in 1896, to sweep like seasoned veterans through a disordered foe.

There is nothing to wait for. The sooner the start is made the sooner the necessary momentum will be gained.

OPEN SORE BAFFLES DOCTORS.

Morriscy's No. 4. Eczema Ointment Healed Like Magic

Nauwigewauk, N.B., Oct. 3, 1910

"I can gladly recommend dear Dr. Morriscy's Eczema Ointment because it cured me of a sore which I had on my ear for over 8 years. I did everything to have it cured, and had the most skillful doctors treating it, but it would not heal up. I went under treatment with Father Morriscy's Ointment, and in a short while it was cured. That was three years ago and I am sure the cure is permanent. When I think how quickly No. 4 Eczema Ointment cured me it seems wonderful indeed, because you know I doctored with several skilled physicians who could not help me. You surely must have a big demand for this wonderful Salve. My only regret is that I did not use it at first, as it would have saved me over 8 years of pain, to say nothing of an unsightly ear and expensive doctor bills." John Ryan.

The above prescription is not a "Cure-All" or so-called patent medicine. Dr. Morriscy prescribed it for 44 years, and it cured thousands after other doctors failed.

THROWN FROM WHEEL

A youthful cyclist, while wheeling out Charlotte street this morning, had the misfortune to fall off his wheel in the muddy street. He was not hurt, but he was covered with mud. The bicycle skidded when crossing the street railway.

ALL YOU NEED IS A CASCARET TO-NIGHT

No Sick Headache, Bilious Stomach, Coated Tongue or Constipated Bowels by Morning

Turn the rascals out—the headache, the biliousness, the indigestion, the sick, sour stomach and foul gases—turn them out with Cascarets.

Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never know the misery caused by a lazy liver, clogged bowels or an upset stomach.

Don't put in another day of distress. Let Cascarets cleanse and regulate your stomach; remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and that misery-making gas; take the excess bile from your liver and carry out of the system all the decomposed waste matter and poison in the intestines and bowels. Then you will feel great.

A Cascaret to-night will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from any drug store means a clear head and cheerfulness for months. Children love to take Cascarets because they taste good—never gripe or sicken.

WHY HESITATE?

MUSIC AND DRAMA

With the whimsical little comedian, Frank Deshon, in the leading comedy role and a large and capable corps of principals and chorus supporting him, the Herbert-De Koven musical comedy, "The Beauty Spot," was presented at the Grand at matinee and evening performances on Saturday to the delight of two large audiences. The plot is the usual flimsy tune show affair, but substantial enough to carry a score of songs, dances and specialties, and the result is a very entertaining production that never lags for a moment. The song hits are numerous and both the original selections and the interpolated numbers are catchy. The company put them over in good style, and, as a result, encores were frequent. Deshon is as funny in Jefferson DeAngelis' shoes as he was when seen here in the "Office-Boy," and makes the most of a good part. A couple of the biggest topical song hits fall to him, notably "She Sells Sea Shells" and "Foolish Questions." Perhaps the most melodious of the musical numbers was the interpolated song, "When Cupid Comes a Tapping," in the chorus of which a violin solo by Karl Krusada and a novelty in the shape of hidden bells accompaniment were features. The "Beauty Spot" furnishes a very pleasant evening's entertainment.

FAIRY LEGEND

The New American Pantomime

To the American youth I doubt whether the "Cat and the Fiddle" title appeals with such force as to the budding imagination of his British cousin. To the English youth it sums up all that is vain and austere in the life of good Queen Bess, and displays the prancing yet poetic Raleigh in the vein of to-day in chief. It is the opportunity for that gentle satire in broadest sense that even the youth can appreciate. To the American youth it is even more, not in its subject, but in its ideas, for, it supplies him with a long felt want. Pantomime in America has been practically non-existent. Here is the typical American pantomime upon which, possibly generations of American child play will be founded. "The Cat and the Fiddle" is a charming simple play, bringing before it the childish vision in kaleidoscopic magnificence, even extravagance, the beloved—ones of childish imagination. In the course of the play we have the mystical production from the fairy cabinet of "Little Bo Peep," "Little Jack Horner," "Old Mother Moffit," "Red Riding Hood," and other childish celebrities that fill the infant imagination and recall the days of childhood and their elders that alone is worth a visit to the Theatre. It is a poem in a minute, a tragedy in movement, it is strong and clever. The music of the play is fresh and delightful, the fun fast and furious, the story mystical and interesting, and never dull a moment through the two and half hours of entertainment. The scenic equipment is beautiful and extensive, in fact, bigger than any show now travelling with the possible exception of "Ben Hur." The company expounding this delightful melange is competent to the last degree. "The Cat and the Fiddle" will be at the Grand next Friday and Saturday, September 29 and 30, with special Saturday matinee at 2.30.

SAID FAREWELL

St. John's Choir Wish God-speed to Rev. Mr. Carpenter and Mr. George

After choral evensong last night, when the musical portion of the service was splendidly rendered by the choir, Mr. R. J. Devey, on behalf of the choir, tendered their very best wishes for the welfare of the Rev. C. Carpenter and Mr. George, who are leaving the parish. Both are Englishmen, and good men and true, and the words of appreciation spoken by the choirmaster were heartily endorsed by the Rev. Canon Davidson. St. John's choir has experienced severe losses during the last few months. In the tenor line alone, Mr. Will. Coleman, Mr. R. Sutcliffe, Mr. Willis, and now Mr. George leave a pretty large gap in a voluntary choir. The soprano and bass ranks have also suffered, but the recruiting forces, hard at work, never forgetting the faithful adherence of the bulk of the choristers, as shown last night, ensure a continuance of the effective and reverent rendition of the grand liturgical services of St. John's.

Special Addresses In Presbyterian Churches

Big Congregations Heard Sermons From Three of the Most Eminent Speakers in the Presbyterian Ministry---A Big Day for Presbyterianism in Peterborough.

The Presbyterian Church in Canada has set itself to raise $1,000,000.00 for the year 1912, for all the missionary, educational, and benevolent work of the Church. Years ago the method of raising money for these schemes, was to have a series of appeals throughout the year. Now the money necessary to carry on the Church's work is lumped into one sum, and the people are asked to contribute weekly, according to their means, and to aim at raising a certain sum, which will be apportioned to each congregation. Then, at the close of the year, the money thus raised is divided among the different schemes, according to the need of each scheme.

The local Presbyterians have set themselves earnestly to measure up to their responsibility. Arrangements are under way to call upon every member of the Presbyterian churches in the city, with a view to getting a definite amount contributed each Sabbath, both for the local church expenses and for their share of the $1,000,000.00. The canvass will commence on Tuesday of this week, and will be conducted in the main, by members of the Sessions and Managing Boards of the several churches. There will be a conference this evening in St. Andrew's church, of all who are to engage in this canvass. Dr. Grant and Dr. McKay are leaving this morning for Whitby Presbytery. They will then be driven from Whitby to Myrtle, so as to catch the "Local" and be back in time for this evening's meeting.

Evening Sessions.

Rev. R. P. McKay, D. D., Moderator of the General Assembly, occupied the pulpit of St. Paul's Church in the evening. There was a large audience present and his address was of a very inspiring and informing character. He based his remarks on the words "Blessed are they that do His Commandments that they may have right to the tree of life." He said in part that access to the tree of life is dependent upon our obeying Christ's commands to disciple all nations. No one can have right to the tree of life, who is not endeavouring to the measure of his ability to tell the world about Christ. The fact that the command of Christ to make disciples of all nations, was the last command, emphasizes its importance. How has the Church been obeying this command? It is the habit in some places to criticize the church. Well, let us see what the Church is doing. She has been seeking to obey this command for the last 100 years, as never before in the world's history. One hundred years ago there were just about 100 missionaries in the world; now there are 19,000, preaching Christ to the heathen. A century ago there was not one ordained native helper, now there are 90,000, telling the story of redeeming love. At the beginning of last century there was given for foreign missions, $15,000, while last year $28,000,000 were contributed. Was this a large sum? It seems so when given to missions, and yet there is a railway station in New York which cost $55,000,000. And yet it is more important to give the Gospel to the heathen than even to build railway stations. The Presbyterian Church in Canada had been made responsible for the evangelization of 14,000,000 heathen. If our church does not do this work it will not be done at all. A congregation like this ought to be supporting two missionaries.

Then, what about our work in Canada? Foreigers are coming to our land at the rate of a thousand a day. We must, at our peril, follow them into the interior of our country with the Gospel. St. Paul's congregation is asked to give $5,000 a year for all missionary purposes. We do not wish this amount to be contributed by a few rich people only, we want the money of the rich, it will do them good to give; but we also want the money of the poor; it will do them good to give. Giving is a blessing which all should share. Christ did not find fault with the poor widow who gave all she had, rather he commended her. It is better for the congregation's spiritual life that the 300 members of St. Paul's should have a share in the raising of this $5,000, than that 300 should give it all."

Frequent meetings of the Session and Board of Managers of St. Paul's church have been held and all preparations are made for the canvass of the members and adherents. The pastor spoke very hopefully last evening concerning the possibility of raising this amount.

Rev. Dr. Grant, Superintendent of Home Missions, took the service in St. Paul's church in the morning and in Knox Church in the evening, and dealt with the whole work of the Church from the standpoint of our Home Mission work. He emphasized the fact that one of the means by which our Home Mission problem is to be solved is by the Church doing her proportion of her work abroad.

The story told by our returned foreign missionaries of the progress of the Gospel in these heathen lands, is one of the ways by which the spiritual life of the churches at home is to be developed.

Rev. F. W. Anderson preached in Knox Church in the morning, and St. Andrew's in the evening. His message in the evening was based on Paul's conception of the programme, and reconciling grace as given to the Corinthian Church in 2 Cor., 5; 18: "All things are of God who hath reconciled us to Himself, through Jesus Christ, and hath given to us the Ministry of reconciliation." Mr. Anderson said "It is not necessary to argue here that the Missionary enterprise is the real business of the Church of God in the world, but I want to emphasize the fact that this great enterprise is being promoted to-day more aggressively and with more abundant success than ever before since the first generation of Christians passed away."

To prove this he showed that modern business methods are being used in promoting the great business of extending the Kingdom of God. For example, the whole world is now being embraced in the immediate objective of Missionary effort. It was not so 25 years ago. When the Student Volunteer Movement adopted its watchword: "The evangelization of the world in this generation," some of the leaders in the church said it was a preposterous notion of young enthusiasts. We find, too, that a proportionate share of responsibility for promoting this enterprise is being recognized and assumed by Christian nations and Christian communities by the different branches of the Christian church, and the separate congregations within these communities, and now this responsibility is being brought home to the individual Christian, as never before. That is the meaning of our Assembly's Million Dollar Budget, estimated to provide for all the extension work of our Church, which is being divided up among the Synods, Presbyteries, and congregations, and the individual is asked to accept his share. Modern methods of education and finance are being introduced into many congregations to-day, which would have been impossible five years ago, and abundant success is following faithful effort along these lines.

The essential need of the enterprise is the willing cooperation of every Christian disciple to the extent of his God-given ability. The command of the Master of Life must be obeyed either in person or by proxy, by every one who is a recipient of the blessings of the Gospel of Christ. The principle of stewardship must be allowed to govern the giving out of ourselves in the matter of life and time and ability for leadership as well as money.

The students at the Haystock prayer meeting in 1806 said: "We can do it if we will." The laymen a hundred years later said: "We can do it and we will." The work is God's but He can do it only as we will do our part, for He still depends on us.

ST. ANDREW'S

Stirring and insistent was the message carried to the ears of the congregation of St. Andrew's yesterday morning, apropos of the place and value of the Bible in the life of a nation. The speaker, Rev. Dr. R. P. McKay, the noted divine, and Moderator of the General Assembly, held the rapt attention of his hearers with his scintillating eloquence, as he gave the chief arguments of his discourse, concluding with an earnest plea for a return on the part of the Church to the study of the Word of God; not merely to know it intellectually, but to obey it and to incorporate it in the every day life of the individual and of the nation.

The occasion of Dr McKay's presence in the city, was the desire, on the part of the Assembly, to have Dr. McKay, and others, bring the message of the Church's need, as regards its foreign missions, to the people of Peterborough. The Presbyterians here will, no doubt set an inspiring example to the whole country, as the result of the visit of these men.

The speaker took for his text the first chapter of Revelation, 12th and 13th verses: "And I turned to see the voice that spake with me, and being turned, I saw seven golden candlesticks, and in the midst of the seven candle sticks one like unto the Son of Man, clothed with a garment down to the foot."

"Christ represents the Church. Are the members of the Church to-day living up to the will of the Lord?" said Dr. McKay. What does He see here to-day, as regards the progress of the Church? We have come to this city on a mission which is of vital importance to the Church's best interest—a mission that will take us from the Atlantic to the Pacific, namely, the Foreign Missionary movement. There are 14,000,000 people coming within the reach of 12 mission stations, which have been established in China, Japan, India, and other places, where the occasion demands. To carry and distribute the Gospel to that vast multitude, by means of the Mission Station, involves an enormous expenditure, but what signifies the cost from a Christian point of view. When you stop to consider the results obtained by this body of faithful Christian workers the financial aspect fades into oblivion. 90,000 willing workers have left the precincts of their homes, left friends and civilization, and have given up their lives to the service of God's noblest work—that of converting the heathen. There are at present in existence between 300 and 350 organizations for the purpose of carrying on this work, while to finance this huge undertaking during the year 1912, $28,000,000 will be needed from all denominations. That may seem a vast sum. In New York State a railway was built a short time ago, costing 50 million dollars; 28 millions seems small, compared to that. Christ did not build any railways, but He did tell His disciples to go out into the world and preach the Gospel. We hope during the course of this campaign that every man, woman, and child will be awakened to his responsibility to the Church and to the needs of his fellow beings in the far-away lands.

In conclusion, Dr. McKay dealt briefly with the evangelization of the world. In Canada, we have a nation in the making. There are upwards of a thousands emigrants coming into the country every day. We must be prepared to cater to their spiritual needs, but not that alone; you must incarnate it into your own life to give it to others. When it becomes a thing incarnate in the life of the individuals of the nation, it becomes a dynamic in the national life. There is nothing more important than that we should know, obey, and study this book.

KNOX CHURCH

The members of Knox Church congregation were the recipients of a most eloquent and inspiring address by Rev. F. A. Anderson, secretary of the laymen's movement, of Toronto, at their morning service yesterday. Mr. Anderson is well known to the congregation, having taken part in the re-opening services of the new church, besides having delivered interesting sermons to the congregation on previous occasions. Mr. Anderson is a keen missionary worker, and having a wide knowledge of the progress of the missionary work in different parts of the world, was in a position to impart to the large congregation, some very interesting information on that subject. He did not go into it so minutely, as he would have done, under other circumstances, but, taking into consideration that Dr. A. S. Graham was going to give a similar address in the evening, he devoted his time more to the interpretation of the gospel.

He chose, as the most appropriate text for his sermon, the following: "God be merciful unto us, and bless us; and show us the light of his countenance, and be merciful unto us; that thy way may be known upon earth; thy saving health among the nations." —1st and 2nd verses of the 67th Psalm.

The reverend speaker, in the course of his remarks, stated that it had been said that the twofold functions of the Church were worshipping and witnessing, and, in his opinion, this idea was brought out clearly in the text. He said that the Psalmists seemed to lead the children with that wonderful worshipping attitude. God be merciful to us and bless us,—so the people of Israel sought blessing of Jehovah, in order that he would be a blessing to the nations around about her. "Oh let the nations worship and sing for joy." Just before Jesus was taken from his disciples, he was asked regarding the time it would take place. He told them that it was better that they should not know, but told them that they had been his witnesses, and they would continue to be so, even unto the ends of the earth. He further told his disciples that not until the last man on earth had been reached, would their work be finished. In view of this statement, the reverend speaker insisted that the Church should not merely be a place of worship, but it should be a place of inspiration, and fitting for God's service, for here and yonder and everywhere. The missionary enterprise is the real interest for which the Church of Christ is intended and required. Abraham said: "I will bless thee, so that thou may become a blessing," and so Abraham's followers became blessed, and their good work revealed the Church of God to the many heathen nations of their time. The Church of the Old Testament was nothing else but missionary, and the Church of the New Testament could not be anything else, the founder himself being a missionary. He came from heaven to earth on that errand, and he constantly declared his missionary purpose in the church. So the New Testament Church was missionary in life and work and purpose, and we are only emphasizing and revising the fact and awakening its larger interests.

In conclusion, Rev. Mr. Anderson said that to-day we find ourselves in the greater and further advanced stages of missionary work. The missionary education movement is one of the later movements, but it has the same purpose, that of promoting the Christian Church. The laymen have the same purpose, and the lay women of the Church are also doing much for the great enterprise. All these movements show the great response of the people to the great appeal of the day. The Church to-day must be missionary or not fulfil the true function to Christ, and it could be said that the Church must be missionary or die. The great question is, however, "Shall we allow the great masses of immigration to flock in and grow up in a heathenish way, or shall the missionaries push to the front, and take them in hand and make good men and women of them? It is a vital question, and one that should be treated with some consideration. There are at least 15,000,000 in India China and Corea depending upon our laborers to carry the gospel to them, and we are responsible for them and we must face it or fail, and so from these facts the question comes to us: 'What can we do more than we are doing for the extension of the kingdom?' The great essentials to overcome this, is willingness and co-operation on the part of the congregation, and if they will work together, sacrifice more of their own pleasures and luxuries, the result will soon manifest itself."

ST. PAUL'S.

The congregation of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church listened to a stirring address yesterday morning from the Rev. Dr. Grant, Superintendent of Home Missions in Canada.

Dr. Grant's powers of oration are well known. The attractiveness of his addresses holds his hearers; they are delivered in a forceful, fearless, and telling nature. He has done much for Presbyterianism in the Yukon district, working in the wilds of that country for a number of years.

The object of his visit was to awaken in the minds of the parishioners a spirit of charitableness, in order to assist financially the work in the foreign missions. The Board of Managers have arranged for a thorough visitation to the whole of the Presbyterian families in Peterborough for that purpose.

This canvass will probably commence on Tuesday next, and terminate a week later.

Dr. Grant was heard yesterday to great advantage; his voice was rich and clear. During the course of his sermon he said:

"The words 'Go ye and teach all nations' have slumbered in the bosom of the Church for centuries. We have not systematically moved upon the sea and undertaken the work. There are fourteen million people to be evangelized, and unless we do this they will not be evangelized. The Ministers of the Church say that is our portion. There is no other one factor that would do more to strengthen our relation to that Church. Hundreds of thousands of heathens who have been taught have surrendered themselves to God. We have the power to do this thing, inasmuch as we use it. And we have the money; not in the treasury, but in the pockets of the men who profess to be Christians. $100,000 are needed this year. Some people think they have done their duty when they have given to their local church. It is not so. He who does not help his church abroad is living a life of death.

There is a quarter of a mile in the centre of New York that has not one single mission, and 20 years ago it had a number. If Christianity is not spread then paganism will prevail, and our greater cities have special need of our work. It is a great responsibility to take money for any purpose, but it is far more so to take the hard earnings of the poor. We do not only want your money, we want you. Should a man put a dollar into an industry, he follows it with interest, and you, putting money into the Church, will follow it with interest.

TO Get Poisons From the Blood

You Have to Depend on the Filtering Process of the Liver and Kidneys.

These Organs Alone Can Purify the Blood, and They Do Their Work Well When Helped by

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

No medical treatment can possibly purify the blood except as it acts in healthy working order the kidneys, liver and bowels.

To these organs is assigned the duty of filtering from the blood the poisonous waste matter which is left over when the nutritious elements are extracted from the food you eat. If they are not overcrowded or slow and sluggish in action they keep the blood pure and healthy.

For this reason Dr. Chase's Kidney Liver Pills are the most satisfactory treatment you can possibly obtain to purify the blood.

Their effects are prompt, definite and certain. The liver action is quickened, the kidneys are invigorated, the regular movement of the bowels is assured. It is only a matter of a few hours until you begin to feel the benefit of this great medicine. Further use, as often as is necessary to keep these organs active, will cleanse and purify the blood and enable the digestive system to properly do its work.

Backache, headache and bodily pains will disappear, and the fatigue which is an accompaniment of poisons in the system will give way to new vigour and energy. One pill a dose. 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

STYLE, QUALITY AND REASONABLE PRICES

——COMMEND THESE HATS——

This trinity of desirable attributes, renders our present showing notable among Fall Millinery offerings. Seldom are all three qualities united—really smart Millinery usually bears a high price tag, and inexpensive varieties generally fall short of the desirable in style and quality.

As the result of careful planning we are able to include in this selection the newest and most effective of Fall designs—each with that indescribable smartness about it that bespeaks the work of a clever Milliner—whether it it originated in Paris, New York, or our own workrooms—each marked at a price which would represent a bargain even if attached to a hat of inferior grade.

There is no reason why the Women of modest dress allowance should not boast of as pretty Millinery as her more fortunate sister if she comes here to purchase it. : : :

Practical and dressy styles, simple and elaborate models, all the new colouring and fashionable designs are to be had for the choosing.

Predicts Fall In Price Of Sugar

BOSTON, SEPT. 25.—That sugar will be cheaper within a fortnight is the prediction of Edward F. Atkins, vice-president and managing director of the American Sugar Refining Company. In a statement issued here Mr. Atkins says:

"The domestic beet sugar crop of the West is just commencing and in two weeks deliveries will be made. This crop is estimated at 530,000 tons. The Louisiana crop, estimated at 325,000 tons, will come on the market the first of November. These two sources will furnish a supply sufficient to provide for all requirements until the new arrivals from Cuba on January 1st.".

VALUABLE POINTERS

(From Hamilton Herald.)

While the speculative issues in the mining market are generally the favoured ones, a certain element among investors is turning its attention to the opportunities presented by the dividend paying securities. In fact, it might be said that this class of investors is growing rapidly, owing, doubtlessly, to the fact that during the summer recession prices have dropped far below what mine values warrant. At the same time dividends are declared with regularity, but market prices remain at a low ebb. With the market in this condition close observers are enabled to pick up rare bargains in regular dividend paying securities. Cobalt mines have the distinction of being the best dividend-paying mines on the continent. Millions of dollars have been paid out in dividends, some mines paying more than their total capitalization. Other than occasional sharp speculative rises the phase of speculation in Cobalt has ceased and now mines in the new district are down to a bed rock basis as to prices and present an admirable paying investment. Chas. A. Stoneham & Co., 23 Melinda St., Toronto ,one of the oldest and best known brokerage offices in New York and Toronto, has issued a circular regarding the choice of Cobalt mining stocks and recommending several for the investor with small or large capital who wishes for a dividend paying stock.

Beaver Consolidated, Temiskaming, McKinley-Darragh, Nipissing, Crown Reserve and La Rose Consolidated, have been selected by this solid firm as offering the best investment and the company is already besieged with investors who are after the good things offered by Cobalt. The firm will be glad to give information by mail or in person to any investors desiring to know anything about the market. Advice regarding Curb and mining securities will be gladly advanced. The firm does business on a system that attracts much custom, and which will prove acceptable to the small as well as the large investor.

T. A.-S. NOTES

The regular meeting of St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society was held yesterday with a large attendance of members present. Mr. Albert New was installed as first vice-president, succeeding Mr. Leo Derocher, who is attending St. Michael's College, Toronto.

The members were pleased to have a visit from their former spiritual adviser, Rev. Dr. O'Brien, who gave them an address yesterday.

A branch of the Catholic Truth Society has been formed in Peterboro.

The Sacred Heart Parish are about to start work on their athletic grounds on Romaine street, and will have them in good shape for next season.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES

The Young Women's Christian Association educational rally will be held on Friday, Sept 29th, at 8 o'clock, in the Y.W.C.A. Gymnasium Hall. Miss Knox, M.A., Dean of Havergal College, will be the speaker of the evening.

There will be a short musical programme.

All are cordially invited to this rally.

MEMBERSHIP CAMPAIGN

Our membership campaign was launched on Sept. 12th for 500 new members. We still urge you to join with us in the campaign.

The classes are especially interesting this year, and a large enrollment is expected. Read our prospectus, or any information will be gladly given by the secretaries at the office from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m.

URIC ACID SUFFERING

Uric acid is an accumulation of poison which finds lodgment in the system when the kidneys fail to remove it from the blood. In the kidneys and bladder it forms stones, in the joints and muscles it causes rheumatism. In any case the pain and suffering is almost beyond human endurance. Uric acid is promptly removed from the system when the kidneys are kept healthy and active by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Assault Case Aired In Police Court To-day

At this morning's session of the Police Court, George Henry, an employee of the C. G. E., was charged with assault by Joseph Parkins, 39 Jackson avenue, and foreman of the C. G. E. sheds. In his evidence, Parkins stated that he was walking out Perry street about a quarter to ten, on the evening of the 18th inst., and he saw four young men standing near the Cordage Company's corner. He only recognised two of them —the accused and a fellow named Jackson. When he got about ten yards past them, there was something whizzed past his ear, which he believed to be a stone, but which the accused stated was a piece of potato. He turned around immediately and walked toward the young men, and they ran.

Henry alleged that he threw the potato without any particular intention to show hard feeling between them. He stated that Parkins had no control over his department in the C. G. E., so therefore he had no reason for having any spite toward him. He said that as he threw the potato, one of the other fellows remarked that that was the speed boss, and he ran simply to keep the man from seeing who he was, in case he might complain about him.

After administering some good advice and reprimanding the young man for his action, the Magistrate dismissed the case.

William Glass, a man of about 27 years of age, and who gave his home address as Trenton, was arraigned on a charge of vagrancy, having been found sleeping in a barn. The prisoner gave as defence that he came to the city to secure a position in the woods for the winter with some of the lumber companies, but spent his money in drink and was compelled to seek shelter in the barn. He was discharged.

A local man was charged with being drunk while on the black list, but did not appear, so the case was enlarged until Thursday the 28th. A man charged with supplying the liquor pleaded not guilty and was remanded until the 28th inst.

Funeral Of Mr. John McIntee

The remains of Mr. John McIntee, who met his death in such a tragic manner near Porcupine some days since, were conveyed to Peterborough by the 11.36 train yesterday, accompanied by his brother Terence.

The funeral cortege proceeded to St. Peter's Cathedral at 9 o'clock this morning, where requiem High Mass was sung by Rev. Fr. Fergus O'Brien. Intement followed in St. Peter's Cemetery, where Rev. Fr. McCarthy officiated. There was a large number present at the interment, and the magnificent floral tributes were significant of the high esteem in which the deceased was universally held.

The pallbearers were Messrs. Fred Murphy, Vincent Murphy, Leo Cassidy, Vess Hickey, John Hiran and Wm. Sinnott.

Further enquiries have been made, but as no one actually saw the accident the cause is unknown. By his watch it is assumed that he was struck at about four o'clock in the morning and lay two hours prior to his discovery.

OBITUARY

LAURA KEARSLEY

At 378 Burnham street, this morning, Laura, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kearsley, passed away, aged three weeks.

Funeral will take place to-morrow at 2.30 o'clock, to the Little Lake Cemetery.

At the Nicholls Hospital yesterday morning the infant child of Mr. and Mrs. James Armstrong, of Cavan, passed away, aged three years.

The funeral will take place from the residence of Mr. Frank Deacon, Stewart street, to the Little Lake cemetery, at 2.30 to-day, Rev. Mr. Carpenter officiating.

The death occurred on Thursday, September 21st, in Montreal, of a former Peterboro business man, well known in this city, in the person of Mr. Edward D. Gough, brother of Mr. B. J. Gough, Lindsay, and Messrs A. J. and R. P. Gough of Toronto. He resided in Lindsay for a time. He was the organizer of the Gough Bros. firm, and was regarded as one of the leading dry goods men of the province. He was in business for a time at Norwood, before coming here. Besides his brothers, his wife and one daughter and three sisters survive.

The funeral took place from the Union Station, Toronto, on Saturday morning to St. Basil's Church, and thence to Mount Hope cemetery.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

Time, they say, is the greatest physician in the world for the sickness of grief.

But there is another healer whose power to heal not only heart but mental sickness, it seems to me, is not half realized.

That healer is "Change"—change of scene, change of the objects of your thought, change of the objects of your vision, change in every way possible.

I know a girl who was made a complete nervous wreck when her lover deserted her to marry another on her wedding eve.

Everything about the house reminded her of him, and the preparations they had all been making for months for the wedding, so the doctor advised that she go away, or that the whole family move with her to some other locality. Neither of these things was practicable and for a time it seemed as if she would lose her reason. Finally, her mother conceived the idea that if they could not change from the house they might change the house. She persuaded her daughter to go away for a week, and during her absence, papered the living room. In spite of herself, the girl, on her return, was interested in the change, and was gradually persuaded to take an interest in some other similar changes. Before they got through they had papered almost the whole house, and completely changed the arrangement of the furniture. Her interest in the work, and the curative effect of seeing new things which did not so much suggest her unhappy experience, the doctor declares, saved her reason if not her life.

One of the most terrible losses I ever knew of, was that of a couple who lost their two grown sons—the only boys in the family—in a railroad accident. They found it absolutely impossible to endure the continual reminder of the old house and after a year or two built a new home in a different part of the town. No one who saw them absolutely crushed and continually possessed by their grief in the old home and gradually beginning to take an interest in life again in the new, can doubt for a moment but that the change prolonged their lives ten years.

Of course there are big changes— changes that cost much money, changes that are not within the reach of everyone, no matter how great the need.

But even little changes often help much

A woman who has been ill so much that the aspect of her chamber has grown hateful to her showed me the other day that she had moved her bed into a different position. "And you don't know how I enjoy it," she said. "It just makes it seem like a completely different place. I don't mimnd lying abed now half so much as I used to."

I remember myself a night when after such a siege of sleepless nights of pain that I fairly dreaded to enter my chamber, I tried the expedient of sleeping in a room in another part of the house, and had my first good sleep for a week.

The power of association to keep the shadow of grief or unhappiness or pain upon us is greater than most of us realise.

Break the chains of sameness and you will often break the chains of sorrow and suffering.

And besides its power to prolong pain, I believe that monotony of scene and thought is dangerous in itself.

Ruts cause more nerves than anything else on earth.

You are dull or nervous or fretful or tired or languid, and you fancy it is rest you need, but half the time it's just change.

Go out and see something or someone new; bring something or someone new into your home; find something new to think about, and I promise —well perhaps not a cure, but at least an alleviation.

New Cars Will Be Ready Inside Month

In conversation with Mr. W. H. Munro, manager of the P. L. and P. Co., an Examiner representative was informed this afternoon that the new pay-as-you-enter cars will be ready inside of a month. Mr. Munro said that they did their best to have them ready for the Exhibition week, but since they were not ready for that time, there is no particular hurry with them now. The new cars will run on the George Street line, and will be operated under the pay-as-you-enter system, with the same transfer system as is now in operation. The C. G. E. and Jackson Park cars will be the same as usual, until such times as the Company thinks fit to change them to the new system. Of course, if the new system proves satisfactory in every way from the start, it will be put into commission on all the cars, as soon as the necessary alterations can be made. The Company are still waiting for the material to arrive for their extension. The trolley line will be put up first, and then the rest of the work will be rushed through before winter.

Many Society Ladies Use Parisian Sage Exclusively

Society women realize that the woman who would retain her youth must look after her hair, for the woman with scant unattractive hair is seldom ever admired.

That is why so many of our loveliest women demand that Parisian Sage be used by their hair dressers. This preparation is guaranteed to cure dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp.

Parisian Sage will make harsh and unattractive hair soft, lustrous and luxuriant in a few days. It is the ideal, delightful, rejuvenating tonic that makes hair grow; it is not sticky or greasy, but on the other hand is most pleasant and daintily perfumed. Sold everywhere fifty cents a large bottle and guaranteed by Wm. Madill who will refund your money if Parisian Sage fails to do all that is claimed for it.

"WITH EDGED TOOLS"

Henry Seton Merriman's Great Book-Play Coming to Peterboro'

According to the advices just received from the Shubert Office in New York, Henry Seton Merriman's great book play "With Edged Tools" adapted from his famous novel of the same name, will open in the Capital, Ottawa, on Oct. 2nd, Peterborough is to have it for one night and a matinee on Oct. 7th.

The original English Company arrive by the Royal Edward on Sept. 30th. It will be precisely the same Company that has given 1079 performances of the play in Great Britain. Many things contribute to the success of "With Edged Tools". It is witty, it is literaray, and withal, it is strong and sympathetic, and with the Merriman glamour of romance over all. It is also beautifully played and splendidly mounted, the entire production, weighing over five tons, being brought over complete.

The enterprise that can spring from London, Eng., to Peterborough, with a theatrical company and production, deserves commendation.

HARVEST HOME SERVICE

The annual Harvest Home Services of the Park street Baptist Church were held yesterday.

The church was beautifully decorated yesterday for the occasion, and Mr. Archie Jackson and his committee are to be congratulated upon the splendid manner in which they accomplished their task.

The choir did credit to its leader and the members by the splendid music it rendered

The pastor of the church ,Rev. W. C. Riddiford, preached two very impressive sermons, and in the afternoon Mr. H. Gilchrist of the Y.M.C.A., spoke to a mass meeting of the Bible School.

The harvest home tea will be held to-night in the parlours of the church.

Tea will be served from 6 to 8.15, after which a platform meeting will be held, and addresses given by Rev. T. R. Webb, Rev. J. R. Bonner, and Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P.

Peterborough is as usual well represented on outside rugby teams this season. Frank Heffernan and Dick Sheehy are on the Ottawa College squad. Peter Campbell is sure of catching the quarter-back position with the Toronto 'Varsity team. Harry Smith is with the Argonauts. Ross Craig is with the Dundas team, and other players from this vicinity will be in the line-up.

P. C. Brown Resigns

The Police Department has lost one of its valued members in the person of Constable John Brown, who has occupied a position on the staff since the 15th of April last. During Mr. Brown's term on the force his services have been of the best, and he leaves with the highest recommendation of the Chief, who regrets very much to lose him. Mr. Brown stated to an Examiner representative that he was going back to his trade, that of moulding, for the simple reason that there was not enough money in his present position. He said that the city authorities would have to pay higher wages if they wanted to keep men.

No appointment has yet been made, nor is there any person in view so far as can be ascertained, but it is expected that there will be a meeting of the Police Commissioners tomorrow to select a man. It has also been rumored that Mr. Brown intends securing a position on the staff of the Toronto police force, but nothing can be learned as to his intentions in this line.

JOHNNY CANUCK PHILOSOPHISES

To Editor, Examiner:

Dear Sir,—If any section of the community are under the impression that those who fought for the people's rights against the special privileges of the tariff favoured classes are down and out, let me inform them that their celebrating has got them under a delusion. It is an indisputable fact that the Liberal party and their representative in this riding were not defeated on account of any action of theirs in the past, but rather on account of the fears that men so successfully aroused into the minds of the people, and when time will show that those fears were groundless, then we will come back. It is for the largest freedom and for the greatest equality in life and citizenship of the great body of the people that true Liberalism stands. If the success of the Conservative party and their representative in this riding is on an equality with justice of their cause, then we Liberals have every reason to look to the future with confidence. As Shakespeare would say, the followers of Sir Wilfrid Laurier have many enemies that know not why they are so, but, like the village curs, bark when their fellows do.

It was stated on the night of the election by one who was elected by the people a few years ago that West Peterboro had at last elected one honest man. Can this be the reason that the people did not elect him the second time, and how about the present member of the local legislature? Those who look for a radical change in affairs only show lack of knowledge of the political situation, and are encouraged in their ignorance for party reasons. It will be our duty in the future to open their eyes. I anticipate great pleasure watching how easily the extremists are handled when we see their great schemes shelved. It is to laugh they have been promised so much that we ought to get a list (especially of the five great results of the election) and prepare ourselves for some real fun. What will those lightweights say to those who were influenced by base appeals when the honest leader and his council show them conclusively that this kind of rot is all right to use in special localities at election time. Enough said. Some honest man will have a hard time proving to some of their friends before very long that they have not been buncoed. When we consider Sir Wilfrid Laurier's worth, it is only natural in disregard of the fact that he is entitled to a well-earned rest that we greatly desire that he will still remain our chief and continue leader of the opposition. We can rest assured that the Hon. G. R. Stratton, who has fought for Liberalism so faithfully in the past is not going to lie down discouraged by temporary reverse, brought about in no small measure by strangers in our midst who do not know the man. It must be a great consolation to him that one charge has never been brought against him in regard to his Parliamentary career. He will find those who know him best will stand shoulder to shoulder and show to the citizens that there is a vast contrast in his favour as a representative compared with what they have now.

Johnnie Canuck.

TRACK IS CLEAR

The engine and six cars of the G. T.R., which were derailed on Saturday, are now replaced on the rails. It was a somewhat difficult and lengthy proposition inasmuch as the entire cargo had to be transhipped to other cars before operations could be commenced. A few yards of torn track is the only damage done.

Semi-Ready

On Guard!

All over Canada—from every town and city—we have had reports of attempted deception on the part of Clothiers who cannot get the Semi-ready agency.

Semi-ready garments have earned a certain prestige by reason of their superiority—and the term "Semi-ready" has established by its goodness a secondary meaning—with people who do not know exactly.

There is but one "Semi-ready"—you can always know a Semi-ready garment by its Trade Mark, and by the guarantee certificate placed in the pocket of every real Semi-ready tailored coat.

There is naught "just as good" as Semi-ready tailoring—this you can prove to your own satisfaction by a side-by-side comparison.

LAURIER TO LEAD

Will Sit at the Speaker's Left When the House Meets—Premier-Elect Welcomed by Friends in Ottawa

MAKES FIRST SPEECH

Ottawa, Sept. 25.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier will remain at the head of the Liberal party, and lead the Opposition when the new Parliament meets, some six weeks hence. He was at his office again early on Saturday morning, looking and feeling physically as fit as ever. He shows his greatness as much in defeat as in victory, serene in the confidence that Thursday's result brings with it no disgrace, and that the principles for which he and his party have stood must ultimately triumph. To his newspaper friends who called on him he smilingly declared that he was still ready "to stay with the boys" and lead the Liberal forces when the new Parliament meets. Any comments on the verdict of Thursday he will reserve for a public statement later.

R. L. Borden arrived in Ottawa at 11.45 yesterday from Halifax. It was a quiet and undemonstrative homecoming. On the platform when he alighted from the train were Mrs. Borden, Geo. H. Perley, M.P., John Thompson, K.C., son of the late Sir John Thompson, W. H. Rowley, and a few other personal friends. In addition, a number of electors who happened to be on the platform, came up and greeted the new Prime Minister elect and shook hands with him.

Mr. and Mrs. Borden drove straight to their home on Wurtemberg street, where Mr. Borden remained all day. He will be at his office on Monday. In the meantime, he is saying nothing, and on the Cabinet subject will have nothing to say until circumstances make an announcement possible.

It is announced that two seats in New Brunswick now claimed by the Liberals, may yet be counted in the Conservative column. They are St. John City and Carleton held by Hon. Wm. Pugsley and F. B. Carvell. In these ridings recounts are demanded. In Saskatchewan, Qu'Appelle, and in Alberta, MacLeod, have gone over to the Liberal list, and in Manitoba the last reports show 8 to 2, with Dauphin and Provencher Liberal.

Makes First Speech.

Truro, N.S., Sept. 25.—Mr. R. L. Borden made his first public address since the election at Truro Saturday morning, where the C.P.R. train bearing Canada's new Premier was met by the Truro band and thousands of cheering and enthusiastic people. A temporary platform had been erected, and from this Mr. Borden spoke. Acting Mayor Stackland welcomed Mr. Borden on behalf of the town of Truro.

Mr. Borden paid a tribute to the great army of Liberals who, on the great issue of September 21, had joined hands with the Conservative party and voted for Canada. In 1878 Canada had entrusted to Sir John Macdonald the reins of power and ever since both parties had supported the national policy, but last January the Government had made a complete reversal of their position. While the Opposition allowed the Government all necessary supply, they had insisted that the question of reciprocity should be placed squarely before the people instead of being ratified by a mere Parliamentary majority. They had been called obstructionists, but the people of Canada had endorsed their stand and converted a majority for the Liberals of about 45 into a Conservative majority of about 50.

He assured the people that the Conservatives would resume the Government in no spirit of exaltation, but with a feeling of responsibility and an earnest endeavor to promote the progress of this strong nation.

In thirty years people would look back on the election of 1911 as a national epoch. The Conservative party would endeavor to build up Canada as mistress of her own destiny and to work out this destiny as an autonomous nation within the British Empire.

Mr. Borden boarded the train after shaking hands with many friends, and amid the waving of handkerchiefs and hats and lusty cheering, was given a "God speed" on his journey to the capital city of the Dominion.

Boiler Explodes; One Killed.

Ottawa, Sept. 25.—A terrible accident happened Saturday in the Township of Gloucester, on the Montreal road, six miles below Ottawa, where a machine was at work on a farm cutting corn for a silo. The boiler exploded, instantly killing one of the men on the machine, named Euclid Lepage. He was struck by flying fragments of the boiler and also scalded by the escaping steam. The engineer, who was standing at the end of the machine, had a miraculous escape, being unhurt. A horse, one of a team tethered 15 or 20 feet away, was also killed instantly by being struck on the head by a piece of the boiler.

WORLD'S GREATEST KIDNEY REMEDY

HUNDREDS CURED BY TAKING "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

WILLIAMSTOWN, Ont. July 27th.

"Last spring, I had a severe attack of Kidney and Bladder Trouble, and "Fruit-a-tives" cured these complaints when the physician attending me had given me up."

JAMES DINGWALL.

The cause of Kidney Congestion and Pain in the Back, is that the bowels are badly constipated and the skin is inactive. Thus, the kidneys are forced to do double work in ridding the system of impurities,—and become strained.

"Fruit-a-tives"—the great fruit medicine—acts on bowels, liver and skin, as well as on the kidneys,—rids the system of all impurities, and completely cures all kidney congestion and pain in the back.

BANKS ARE MERGED

Royal of Canada Absorbs the Colonial of London and Will Double Its Capital

A BIG AMALGAMATION

London, Eng., Sept. 25.—The Colonial Bank, a strong financial institution, with head office in London, and with fifteen branches in the West Indies, where its operations chiefly are carried on, has been absorbed by the Royal Bank of Canada.

The negotiations were put through by C. E. Neill, assistant general manager of the Royal, who is now in London in connection with this matter.

The Royal Bank has a number of branches in the West India Islands, the list including Trinidad, Cuba, Jamaica and Porto Rico. In the British Islands the Royal has been coming into competition with the Colonial. This amalgamation will remove much competition and will give the Royal a stronger hold on the business in the West Indies.

The last absorption by the Royal was a year ago, when that bank took over the Union Bank of Halifax, thus securing firmer hold on business in the Maritime Provinces., and particularly in Nova Scotia.

Toronto, Sept. 25.—When called up in regard to the matter, Weston F. Brock, the local manager, declared that he had not yet heard of it. The matter would be put through by the head office in Montreal.

The Royal Bank is one of the strongest financial concerns in Canada. It has an authorized capital of $10,000,000, with a paid-up capital of $5,200,000. It has a reserved fund of $7,000,000, and its undivided profits amounted to $243,230. Deposits up till April of this year amounted to over $72,000,000. The bank has immediate assets of over $27,000,000.

The Royal has 150 branches in Canada, one in London, Eng., one in New York, and numerous branches in Cuba, Porto Rico, Bahamas, Barbados and Jamaica.

H. S. Holt is the president, and Edwin L. Pease is vice-president and general manager.

The Colonial Bank, with head office in London, Eng., was established under royal charter in 1836. It has a subscribed capital of $10,000,000 with a paid-up capital of $3,000,000.

Will Increase Capital.

Montreal, Sept. 25.—The absorption of the Colonial Bank of England by the Royal Bank of Canada, will necessitate an increase of capital of the Royal Bank from $10,000,000 to $20,000,000, which will make it the bank with the largest capitalization in Canada. The Bank of Montreal has a capital of $15,000,000.

Railway Board For West.

Ottawa, Sept. 25.—The appointment of a western board in addition to the Dominion Railway Commission as at present constituted, is understood to be one of the first changes Premier Borden will make after he takes up the reins of government. The new board, under an assistant chief commissioner, will deal with western cases and will have its headquarters in the west.

Light Sentence.

Brockville, Sept. 25.—F. J. Arnot and Ethel May Baker, the Ogdensburg couple arrested in Ottawa last month on charges of bigamy preferred against each by Mrs. Emma Arnot of Carthage, N.Y., were brought out before his honor Judge Reynolds yesterday for sentence. Arnot was given two months in the county jail and the woman was allowed to go on suspended sentence. The couple were married here on July 4. Letters bearing testimony to the previous good character of the couple weighed with the judge.

When You Think

Of the pain which many women experience with every month it makes the gentleness and kindness always associated with womanhood seem to be almost a miracle. While in general no woman rebels against what she regards as a natural necessity there is no woman who would not gladly be free from this recurring period of pain.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well, and gives them freedom from pain. It establishes regularity, subdues inflammation, heals ulceration and cures female weakness.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence strictly private and sacredly confidential. Write without fear and without fee to World's Dispensary Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y.

If you want a book that tells all about women's diseases, and how to cure them at home, send 21 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce to pay cost of mailing only, and he will send you a free copy of his great thousand-page Illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser—revised, up-to-date edition, in paper covers; in handsome cloth-binding, 50 stamps.

THIRTEEN KILLED

Fast Train Hits Wagon Filled With Merry-makers and a Terrible Disaster is the Result

MORE ARE DYING

Neenah, Wis., Sept. 25.—Thirteen persons are dead, three others are dying and five are seriously hurt as a result of a fast train on the Chicago and Western Railroad yesterday crashing into a hayrack on which a party of merrymakers were returning from a picnic.

Dust and fog, and a big signboard near the side of the track contributed to the cause of the engineer being unable to see the party. Nothing on the train suffered, except from a severe jar.

The collision occurred at 9.40 a.m., at the Commercial street crossing here. Train No. 121 northbound whirled through the wagonload of singing and happy unfortunates, who were returning from the Peter Hanson farm, where they had gone to attend the celebration of a wedding anniversary.

Of the dead ten are men and three women. All but two of the dead and injured were residents of Kenosha, Wis.

Armless, legless and headless bodies covered the right of way as the train, nine coaches in length, was brought to a stop eight hundred feet from the scene of the crash. Several of the bodies were so badly mutilated that identification was possible only by fragments of clothing. Six bodies were discovered on the engine pilot and two other bodies were hurled through a flagman's shanty with such force as to overturn the structure. One of these was a Miss Finn, who was projected through one of the side walls of the house and was breathing when rescued. She died a few hours later. Another of the victims was thrown high over a barn fifty feet from the tracks.

Among the occupants of the hayrack who escaped were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brizinski and child of two years. They were seated in the front half of the rack, the mother holding the child in her lap. About half way back in the wagon sat Mary Schwartzbauer. The latter was hurled about fifty feet and rendered unconscious. When found by rescuers the Brizinski child was in her arms, having escaped unscathed. The parents of the child were only slightly injured.

Peter Hanson, driver and owner of the horses, attached to the ill-fated rig, managed to hang to the reins, and was the only person aboard who was not temporarily stunned by the collision. He declares he did not observe the on-rushing train until his team had reached the track. He whipped up the horses, but managed to get the wagon only half way across.

The train is said to have been nearly a half hour late and was running approximately 60 miles an hour.

Trains Collide.

Pittsburg, Sept. 25.—The Pennsylvania 18-hour flyer between Chicago and New York, was in collision 30 minutes after leaving this city early yesterday morning, killing one trainman, injuring four others and one passenger.

The train had left this city at 12.50, and after passing the Pitcairn freight yards, where there are cross-over tracks entering the yards, the train was held up by the tower-man, near Larimer, 20 miles east of here. While the train was at a standstill a train of 80 empty freight cars was let in on the same track and crashed into the flyer, head-on.

It is thought that the tower-man, anxious at the delay to the flyer, in his hurry threw the wrong levers of the interlocking switch system.

Several freight cars were derailed, blocking the four tracks for several hours. None of the passenger cars left the track. The flyer was provided with a new locomotive and proceeded east three hours late. It was after six o'clock before all tracks were cleared and six other trains that had been delayed were able to proceed.

S. E. Campbell, fireman of the flyer, was caught between the tender and the cab of his engine and crushed so that he died before he could be moved from the scene.

Two Engine Men Killed.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 25.—Two enginemen were killed and several passengers slightly injured when Southern Railway passenger train No. 11 struck a switch engine on the Peachtree Creek bridge on the outskirts of Atlanta Friday night. The switch engine was knocked off the bridge to the Seaboard Air line tracks, blocking traffic on both lines several hours.

The dead: J. A. Farris, engineer, crushed under engine; N. M. Robinson, fireman, caught under engine and scalded.

Passed Derelict.

Halifax, Sept. 25.—The Department of Marine and Fisheries at Halifax received a Marconi message via Cape Sable Saturday, sent by the steamer Reina Maria Christiana. The steamer reports that in latitude 16 north, longitude 68.33 west, she passed a smack, half-submerged, with three foresails stretched. The name of the boat was Stephen G. Hart of New London, Conn. She was flying the American flag. The message says nothing regarding life on the derelict and it is presumed that the crew had abandoned her.

Angry Children Leave Home.

London, Sept. 25.—Angered because her mother spanked her six-year-old brother, Grace, the ten-year-old daughter of J. Simpson, of 124 Mamelon street, left home Saturday at noon in company with her brother Johnny, and has not been heard of since. The two children took with them a suitcase, a satchel and two quilts.

3,000 Gallons of Oil Burned.

Montreal, Sept. 25.—Live coals from a Grand Trunk engine Saturday afternoon started a fire in the yards of the Canadian Oil Co., St. Lawrence street, which consumed 3,000 gallons of oil and did damage to the extent of $15,000.

The Men Can't be Fooled with imitations of O'Keefe's

SPECIAL EXTRA MILD ALE

This special Ale of O'KEEFE'S is not merely a light beer. It is a distinct and special brew—originated and perfected by the O'Keefe Brewery.

It has the full flavor—the rich, creamy deliciousness—of the finest Ales, without their heaviness and bitterness.

Owing to the great success of O'KEEFE'S Special Extra Mild Ale, other brewers are bringing out so-called "Special Ales" and labelling them as such. Of course, these Ales are said to be "Just the same" or "just as good" as O'Keefe's.

MONTREAL SENTENCES.

Judge Treholme Gives Lusher and Proletti Five Years.

Montreal, Sept. 25.—The fall term of the criminal assizes of the court of King's Bench close on Saturday and sentences were pronounced by Mr. Justice Treholme.

Harry Lusher, the young man who had been guilty of attempted patricide, was sentenced to five years in St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary.

The evidence showed that Lusher returned home late one night and that he shot his father and seriously injured him after an unusually bitter argument over the late hours, which the son was keeping and his general misconduct.

A five-year sentence was also meted out to Joseph Proletti, an Italian, found guilty of wounding with intent to grievious bodily harm, and Nicolas Patrie, a Syrian, found guilty of a similar offence, was sentenced to one year's imprisonment, the judge taking into account the fact that he struck his opponent in the heat of a quarrel.

Sentence was deferred in the strange case of Joseph Vaillancourt, found guilty of attempting to murder Napoleon Coulombes in his room on St. Christopher street, a delay being granted until Wednesday in order that the guilty man might be examined as to his sanity.

"I Suffered Years With My Back."

Backache resulting from weak kidneys, a bad cold or other cause, usually renders the sufferer unfit for work and often results in permanent disability.

"I suffered for years with my back, or kidney trouble, and have tried a number of remedies from different physicians. More than a year ago, one of our local druggists induced me to try and after using them some three months I found a decided improvement in my kidneys, and I am glad to say that I hope soon to be fully restored to health." J. P. ALLEN, Ex-Judge City Court, Glasgow, Ky.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills

As long as pain is present in any part of the body rest is impossible and the system becoming weakened is exposed to any form of disease to which the sufferer may be inclined.

Park Street Won From St. James'

Good exhibitions of football are being put up this fall in the Church League, and the game between Park St. and St. James' was by no means the least of these, when Park St. put under their old foes, St. James', after a well-contested game, by the score of 3 to 1.

St. James' kicked off at 3.25, and Park St. took the sphere to St. James' goal, G. Miller missing by inches. The Jimmies came back, but Dawson cleared well, and after a scrimmage in front of St. James' goal, Tooley scored No. 1 for Park St. This seemed to put life into the Park St. aggregation, and, following a pretty piece of combination, G. Miller scored No. 2 for the Baptists with a fine shot. This reverse seemed to wake the Jimmies out of their slumber, and they came away in good shape, only to find Donnell and Renshaw a couple of stalwarts, who played a great game. St. James', though holding the small end of the stick, were putting up good football, and came away again, forcing a corner, which was of no avail. Park St. took the upper hand once more, but Capt. Brown and his able partner were sound, and, set his forward line to work, and a pretty rush resulted in E. Miller just missing the mark. The whistle blew and the rest was welcomed. Park St. 2, St. James' 0

SECOND HALF

Park St. started the ball again, but were sent back, Simmonite, who was playing his usual game for St. James', being conspicuous in this move, but "Billy" Dawson was there, and cleared what looked like a sure goal. Braun handled in the penalty area, "Bennie" Smith taking the kick, but as he is in love, he missed it, to his disadvantage. St. James' goalkeeper, Evans, the C.G.E. relic, was playing a great game, and all credit is due him in his new position, and had it not been for him, the Jimmies would have suffered a crushing defeat. St. James' pressed and were sent back once more, and "Teddy" Allan, securing the sphere, beat Evvans with a beauty for the third point. The Jimmies, determined to show their metal, came away nicely, and were rewarded with one of the goals they had intended to get, the final score being 3 to 1.

Why Giants Will Win National "Rag"

Five weeks ago the National League fight for the flag narrowed down to three clubs, Chicago, New York and Pittsburg. After a brave battle, Philadelphia and St. Louis finally broke, and fell back, leaving the three old rivals out in front to settle the argument among themselves.

Through the greater part of the year these clubs had gone along steadily, but early in August it was apparent that the club fast enough to win out must soon start a sprint. It was just at this date that John J. McGraw's New York Giants swung their keenest stride. Marquard and Mathewson were pitching unbeatable ball. The squad was batting and fielding brilliantly.

From August 11 to the start of last week the Giants fought their way through 29 games with 23 victories, and 6 defeats. Just as Chicago and Pittsburg were floundering, they caught the field and passed on to the front with nine straight victories.

Marquard worked with special brilliancy, setting a new record against Pittsburg, Philadelphia and St. Louis when he held these three hard-hitting teams to four hits in three games.

Early in September while Clarke was trying vainly ot start a winning spurt and while Chance was trying to rally his breakig pitching staff, the Giant caravan again swung forward and opened a long road campaign with five straight victories.

The turning point of the race came when New York cleaned up four straight on the road from Boston, and when Chicago, making a last gallant stand, dropped three out of four to Pittsburg, and then fell before Nap Rucker and Brooklyn. This team practically put the Cubs out of the fight.

While New York was winning 13 out of 15 from Brooklyn, Chicago was only able to win 7 out of 19. So Brooklyn was the one big factor which crowded the Cubs from the top.

McGraw has the league's leading pitcher in Rube Marquard, who has now won 22 out of 27 games; in catcher Myers he has a batsman who is now tied with Wagner, or practically tied as the league's star slugger. The New York delegation is leading the field at the bat with an average above .270, and has set a mark in stolen bases that no other National League club in history has ever approached at this date of the schedule.

Baseball is a game of attack and dentense plus speed and brains. McGraw has shown unusual powers as a tactician all along. The test in baseball is getting away with it, just as in other walks of life. The Giants have led an attack with the best batting and base running team in the league, as the figures show. Upon defense they have had two star pitchers and a capable, though, at times, unsteady, second string to fall back upon.

Pittsburg's recent let-up came as a big surprise. Clarke's team looked to be one of the strongest of the circuit, but at the right moment was unable to shoot forward.

Chance has been struggling with an uncertain pitching staff all the year and despite occasional flashes of form was never able to call upon any two sure of consistent performers. As a team's pitching staff is at least 40 per cent. of the fight the Cub leader was fighting almost hopeless odds.

To win the flag now, McGraw figures that he has only to break even upon the roads through his remaining games, and he is more than confident of bettering this mark.

There appears to be no doubt now but that New York and Philadelphia will again enter the arena upon the first world's series date and continue their argument where they left off in 1905, when the Giants won four of the five games played.

FOOTBALL

Park St., the novice team of last season's schedule, promise to take a prominent part for the trophy this fall, and with "Jack" Williams, who has been promoted to the Park St. aggregation from the C.G.E. ranks, Dawson, Allan and Miller on the job, they will give All Saints a good game for premier honors. Manager Casey is to be congratulated on his work, and will no doubt be offered a bigger salary for next season.

Charlie Ray, former Captain of the Peterborough Hockey Club, who has gone to McGill University and who will not be available in Peterborough this winter.

A Great Loss To Hockey Team

The Peterborough Hockey Club has sustained a loss that wil lbe felt in the departure from the city on Saturday afternoon of Mr. Chas. Ray, captain of the Intermediate O. H. A. team, and son of Mr. Sam Ray, the president of the Club.

Charlie, as he was known by everyone, was one of the mainstays of the team for the past three or four seasons, and will be greatly missed as his consistent playing in the rover position has been a source of great strength to the team. He has gone to Montreal to attend McGill University, and will if intercollegiate rules do not prevent him, make a bid for a place on the forward line of the McGill hockey team this winter. Some of his friends presented him with a handsome traveling companion in a farewell supper at the Boston cafe the other night.

W. J. OKE, 376 George street. Phone 18.

Leaves a Nuisance.

The fallen leaves on the sidewalks are a source of nuisance inasmuch as they have caused more than one accident to-day. On Simcoe street this afternoon, a man was walking along quite off his guard, and popped down on the muddy sidewalk before he had a chance to save himself. He was not much hurt, but his clothes were put in a rather lamentable condition. A couple of young men were standing on the corner, and noticed the accident, and in the course of ten minutes, two other accidents of a similar nature occurred about the same spot.

CURED OF CONSTIPATON

Mr. Andrews praises Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

Mr. George Andrews of Halifax, N.S., writes:

"For many years I have been troubled with chronic Constipation. This ailment never comes single-handed, and I have been a victim to the many illnesses that constipation brings in its train. Medicine after medicine I have taken in order to find relief, but one and all left me in the same hopeless condition. It seemed that nothing would expel from me the one ailment that caused so much trouble, yet at last I read about these Indian Root Pills.

That was indeed a lucky day for me, for I was so impressed with the statements made that I determined to give them a fair trial.

They have regulated my stomach and bowels. I am cured of constipation, and I claim they have no equal as a medicine."

For over half a century Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills have been curing constipation and clogged, inactive kidneys, with all the ailments which result from them. They cleanse the whole system and purify the blood. Sold everywhere at 25c. a box.

SUNDAY SCHOOL EXECUTIVE MET

A meeting of the Executive of the Peterborough Sunday School Association was held yesterday afternoon to make arrangements for appointing delegates to attend the Provincial Sunday School Convention to be held in Brockville from Oct. 23 to 26th. The Convention, it should be understood, is open ot everybody and there are always important points brought out that are of immense benefit to those interested in Sunday School work. It was decided at yesterday's meeting to hold a big Sunday School rally here on November 7th, when reports will be given by those attending the Sunday School Convention.

TO GIVE ADDRESS

At the Archdeaconal Conference which will commence to-morrow at Lindsay and continue until Thursday, Rev. F. J. Sawyers, M.A., of Peterboro, will give an address entitled "The Lines of Professing Christians."

R. B. Bennett Goes to England.

Ottawa, Sept. 25.—R. B. Bennett of Calgary will not, it is believed, occupy a place on the Ottawa stage for any length of time, but will go across the ocean and enter British politics as so many other Canadians have done. This might provide a seat for C. A. Magrath of Lethbridge, who was defeated in Medicine Hat, but for whose return to Ottawa provision is almost sure to be made.

Another Race Riot.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 25.—A race riot between whites and blacks broke out in this city shortly before midnight on Saturday. Three riots occurred in less than two hours, knives and revolvers being used. Most of the participants in the fights were under the influence of liquor. Of three sent to hospitals up to one o'clock in the morning, Joe Cartina, a Porto Rican, was stabbed, probably fatally.

When a patrol wagon loaded with officers arrived in the district a crowd of men unhitched the horses, leaving the wagon stranded. Several hundred people filled the street and blocked the efforts of the police. Patrolman McNally was severely beaten up in making an arrest.

The riot was the result of a feud of several weeks between rival gangs of blacks and whites. The police got the situation under control by 1.30 a.m. and dispersed the crowd.

Connaught's Escort.

Ottawa, Sept. 25.—An effort will be made to organize a mounted band in connection with the 5th Princess Louise Dragoon Guards. This corps will have much to do in connection with the ceremonial events, while the Duke of Connaught is here and therefore a band would be a very desirable addition.

The British War Office has decided that the Duke of Connaught as Governor-General will receive the same sized mounted escort as any other Governor-General, namely, 37 of all ranks, under the command of a captain. As a member of the royal family in official capacity is entitled to an escort of 37 men, it was thought that the Duke of Connaught would receive one that size, while Governor-General.

Will Welcome Connaught.

Toronto, Sept. 25.—The story recently published that Lord Strathcona is coming to Canada in order to resign the position of High Commissioner for Canada is not absolutely correct.

During the Imperial Conference in London, Sir Wilfrid made a rather premature announcement of the resignation of Lord Strathcona. It is said that the High Commissioner resented this, and notified Sir Wilfrid that he would not resign until he had returned to Canada and taken an official part in the reception to be given the Duke of Connaught, the King's uncle, on his arrival in Canada. It is understood that after this event has taken place Lord Strathcona will place his resignation in the hands of the Canadian Government.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

To combat the rise in prices of sugar, housewives of Houston, Texas, have started a movement to boycott its use.

William McFall, an electric railway conductor, was arrested at Windsor, on a charge of being an escaped convict from Michigan.

Henry Houssaye, the French historian and member of the French Academy, died yesterday. He was born in Paris in 1848.

Jean Baptiste Myrand, postmaster of the Senate from Confederation up to two years ago, died yesterday at Ottawa at the age of 68.

Charles Battell Loomis, humorist, author and lecturer, died at the Hartford (Conn.) Hospital. Death was due to cancer of the stomach.

It is reported that the Turks have captured the Italian liner Regina Margherita at Morsina. This steamer is one of the fleet of the Navigazione Generale Italiana of Genoa.

The French Dreadnought Corbet was launched at L'Orient. She is the second of six battleships projected in 1910 to take the water, the Jean Bart having been launched Friday.

Hector Desaulniers, an employe of the C. W. & L. E. Electric Railway, was killed at Erie Beach on Friday. The unfortunate man was caught between two cars and badly squeezed.

Hydrophobia is again abroad in the land. Within the last few months ten dogs have died in Toronto from rabies. It is also said that not long ago a man died from hydrophobia in Toronto.

It is possible that the first session of the new Parliament will open on Wednesday, Nov. 8. The new Ministers can be named and the necessary elections had before that date, it is thought.

The Winnipeg City Council has made terms with Sir William Mackenzie for the purchase of the street railway interests in that city, and the agreement will be submitted to a vote of the ratepayers.

Daring Burglary In London.

London, Sept. 25.—Residents of West London, in the vicinity of Oxford street and Wharncliffe road, are panic-stricken as the result of a daring burglary on Saturday night, when two ruffians entered the home of Joseph Nixon, 151 Oxford street, and, after threatening to kill Mrs. Boug, the daughter of the house, ransacked everything in the place and made their escape with $2.20, all the money in the house.

While Miss Nixon was asleep in her room, about three o'clock Saturday morning, she was awakened by the noise made by the burglars. She was just going to get out of bed and alarm her father when a man entered the room, lighted a match and told her to keep quite or he would kill her.

So far there is no clue to the identity of the robbers, but it was learned that there were two men involved. They rode bicycles.

Bill Miner's Pal Is Dead.

New Westminster, B.C., Sept. 25.—Lewis Colquhoun, bandit, who figured in the public eye in 1905 in holding up a westbound express on the Canadian Pacific Railway near Ducks, B.C., died yesterday in New Westminster Penitentiary Hospital.

Colquhoun was a pal of Bill Miner and Shorty Dust in this hold-up. The trio were captured later by mounted police after a hard fight in the foothills near Kamloops. Miner and Dust were sentenced to life imprisonment, and Colquhoun was given 25 years.

A few months ago Colquhoun's health became impaired and tuberculosis hastened his end. He was 34 years of age and unmarried. He was a school teacher and later bookkeeper before he went wrong.

His brother is in the city and is taking the remains east for burial.

Firemen Killed.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 25.—An avalanche of bricks from upper walls of a burning six-storey building in the wholesale district, occupied by David Baird & Son, crashed through three floors of an adjoining building last night, killing three firemen and injuring several other men. The dead are: Lieut. Virgil Ferguson, salvage corps; Fireman Richard Hardiman, salvage corps; Fireman Richard Deal, salvage corps.

The injured are Jacob Steegel and Arthur Mantanus, employes of the Kentucky Wallpaper Co. The two clerks were dug out immediately, but it was more than an hour before rescuers got to the bodies of the firemen. The Baird loss is $300,000, while adjoining stores suffered damages also.

Fell to His Death.

Brockville, Sept. 25.—Charles Kerr, a tailor, about 40 years of age, unmarried, lost his life some time during the night from falling from his bedroom in the third storey of the Albion Hotel to the pavement below, a distance of over thirty feet.

At four o'clock yesterday morning two policemen found the body lying face downwards in a pool of blood from wounds on the head and face sufficient to cause instant death. He evidently fell head first, as the skull was crushed in by the impact with the pavement.

Kerr had been a patient at the hospital for ten days, under treatment for excessive drinking.

Brothers Fight Duel.

Arkansas City, Ark., Sept. 25.—In a lonely spot near Lead Hill, two brothers fought to death Saturday. Reuben Cantrell, aged 35, was slain, and Thomas Cantrell, aged 58, is dying. The former was shot and the latter received a dozen knife wounds.

Leaving the body of his brother where it had fallen, the wounded man walked four miles to his home, where he declared Reuben had attacked him with a knife while he was at work. The fight was the outgrowth of a family feud.

Killed In Powder Explosion.

Montreal, Sept. 25.—One man is dead and two others are in a critical condition as the result of an explosion in one of the powder mills at Beloeil Saturday. William St. George, Casimir Williams and Maurice Menard were brought to the city Saturday night and taken to the General Hospital, where the first-named died a few hours after reaching there. Two other men, Alphonse Duquette and Arsene Williams, were also brought to the hospital.

An Early Defeat For Conservative Government

Sir Lomer Gouin Says That Sir Wilfrid Laurier Defeated by Sentiment Will be Returned by Reason---Quebec Premier Gives His Opinion on the Result of the Election.

"Sir Wilfrid Laurier was defeated by sentiment, and will be restored to power by reason," declared Sir Lomer Gouin to-day, when interviewed by a Montreal Star representative on the result of the election.

"For every man," continued the Premier, "Sir Wilfrid Laurier stands higher in defeat than he ever stood in victory, and his prestige is rising every day, since the 21st, especially for those who voted against him. He will stand still higher when, in a couple of weeks from now, people will be given an opportunity to compare Mr. Borden with Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and the colleagues of Sir Wilfrid to the colleagues of the new Premier."

Sir Lomer declared that he had no doubt that the Conservative regime was doomed to a premature death and that the Liberal party would come to power, stronger than ever. Sentiments and prejudices had been worked efficiently against Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and his colleagues, but the effects of such a campaign could not be of any protracted effect. The Provincial Premier declared that he did not see how the result of the elections could affect his policy. If the time had come, he would not hesitate in appealing to the people and would be sure of a victory.

FIRE DESTROYS HOME OF SOUTH END RESIDENT

Home of Mr. Edward Webb Was Razed to the Ground by Early Morning Fire---Loss About $4,000

Mr. Edward Webb was rendered homeless by an early morning fire, which threatened to spread to other adjacent buildings, but its progress was circumvented by the efficient work of the Fire Department.

The cause of the fire is unknown, as Mr. Webb was away at the time, having left last night for the country, but it is supposed to have originated from the cook-stove. When first discovered by an employee of the C. G. E. it was making rapid headway. The alarm was immediately turned in, but by the time the brigade arrived the building was doomed to destruction. The firemen devoted their efforts to saving the stable, woodshed and adjacent building. In this they were successful. The house, which was a rough cast one, was completely gutted. It was owned by Mr. John Mervin. The loss is estimated to be about a thousand dollars.

USED SHELL FOR HAMMER WOMAN BLOWN TO PIECES

Special to The Examiner :

NEW YORK CITY, N.Y., SEPT. 26.—Mrs. Anna Halpit, a widow, aged 60, was literally blown to pieces and her room wrecked when she took a one-pound pompom artillery shrapnel shell to use as a hammer this morning. The shell was a souvenir of the Cuban war, and had stood on the mantle piece for years, the woman having no idea of its explosive properties. The shock to the houses for blocks around caused rumours of an Italian bomb outrage.

REV. MR. HENDERSON TO GO TO ST. CATHARINES

Rev. George W. Henderson, who for the past three years and one half has been pastor of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church in this city, has received a unanimous invitation from the congregation of the Welland Avenue Methodist Church in St. Catharine's to become its pastor in June next, and he has decided to accept the call, notifying the St. Catherine's authorities of his decision. A deputation from St. Catherine's quietly visited Peterborough a couple of Sundays ago and heard Rev. Mr. Henderson preach, and, as a result of their visit the call has come from the Welland Avenue Church. Mr. Henderson's four-year term in the Charlotte street Church expires in June next. He will be greatly missed by his congregation and by the citizens generally.

The roof garden scene in the first act of the musical comedy "The French Maid" is the biggest and most spectacular electrical effect ever put on the American stage. 1d-72

NEGRO WANTED ON MURDER CHARGE

Special to The Examiner:

WINDSOR, ONT., SEPT. 26.—Chief Wills, of the Windsor Police Department, this morning swore out a warrant before Magistrate Leggatt for the arrest of Samuel Dalgon, a southern negro, for the alleged wilful murder of Tom Mills, whose body was found in the Michigan Central yards last Wednesday. Dalgon was employed as a dock hand, and slept in a box car on a dock near the place where Mills' body was found. According to detectives, the southern police have been searching the country for Dalgon. He was wanted for attacking a white woman in the south and a reward of $300 is offered for arrest. Information here is that a man answering Dalgon's description boarded train for the East on the morning the murder was discovered.

An Early Defeat For Conservative Government

Sir Lomer Gouin Says That Sir Wilfrid Laurier Defeated by Sentiment Will be Returned by Reason---Quebec Premier Gives His Opinion on the Result of the Election.

"Sir Wilfrid Laurier was defeated by sentiment, and will be restored to power by reason," declared Sir Lomer Gouin to-day, when interviewed by a Montreal Star representative on the result of the election.

"For every man," continued the Premier, "Sir Wilfrid Laurier stands higher in defeat than he ever stood in victory, and his prestige is rising every day, since the 21st, especially for those who voted against him. He will stand still higher when, in a couple of weeks from now, people will be given an opportunity to compare Mr. Borden with Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and the colleagues of Sir Wilfrid to the colleagues of the new Premier."

Sir Lomer declared that he had no doubt that the Conservative regime was doomed to a premature death and that the Liberal party would come to power, stronger than ever. Sentiments and prejudices had been worked efficiently against Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and his colleagues, but the effects of such a campaign could not be of any protracted effect. The Provincial Premier declared that he did not see how the result of the elections could affect his policy. If the time had come, he would not hesitate in appealing to the people and would be sure of a victory.

SPASMODIC VIRTUE.

It is stated that some of the British members of parliament decline to accept the recently established sessional indemnity. Some have returned the money and some have given it to charity. It is only to correctly estimate human nature to say that these persons represent a class, whose financial position enables them to be magnaminous. It is not likely that any member, to whom the sessional indemnity means something that he needs is among those who disapprove of it. But this spirit, of lofty abnegation will not last long. We have had examples in Canada of a member of parliament, apparently declining to accept increased sessional indemnity, but his objections were overcome with very little persuasion and we hear no more of some worthy charity being enriched by the self denial of the member in question. In all walks and circumstances of life we have examples of spasmodic assumption of virtue and deference to the noblest sentiments, but under all these the inextinguishable ego remains, with such vitality that it is not long in working its way to the surface and asserting its authority. As a matter of satire it is easy to say that the ordinary sessional indemnity overpays the ordinary member of parliament for the services he is able to give. But in this, as in other cases, it is a little too much to ask that any public man should give services at his financial loss. We cannot adjust this matter on the basis of merit. On this principle a few men would be paid extravagant sums and some would be heavily fined.

NO IMPERIAL PREFERENCE.

One of the ost potent influences in strengthening and confirming the bond of British and Canadian connection, was, has been and still is, the British Preference, dutifully given to the Mother Country by the Liberal Government as a free-will offering without condition or bargaining. No more tangible and practical evidence of good will could have been given by Canada, nor one more appreciated by Great Britain. Imperial preference so much talked of is, in comparison, a vulgar commercial proposal, a matter of bargain and sale. It involves a fiscal heresy to which the people of Great Britain have steadfastly and formally on the occasion of three general elections, given no more than condemnatory consideration—it involves the taxing of the food of the British people. Not only is the Liberal party now in power opposed to it, but the Leader of the Opposition has been opposed to it, and will continue to be, unless he develops a very improbable spirit of opportunism. He will and must, to keep himself in harmonious relation, in this regard, with British public sentiment, maintain this attitude. The Toronto World, in a news heading, speaks of Europe being "desperate at the high price of food." Yet the World, and the party it stands for, has done its best to make permanent the same condition in Canada; to entrench here the food monopolists, who in Canada, as in Europe, are taxing the producer, negatively by low prices and the consumer positively by high prices. And the World, which professes an exaggerated ultraism, advocates the same conditions in England, where food prices are comparatively lower, thanks to world-wide competition. Imperial preference is so far a dream.

NOT A WEAK OPPOSITION.

The Liberal party is beaten at the polls, beaten in the matter of holding office, but the principles for which the Liberal party stands are not beaten, only temporarily impaired as to application. The Liberal party stands, as it has always stood, as the friend and champion of the people—the masses against entrenched privilege—the political dominance of the privileged classes. In the late contest, no matter how the issue was disguised, the fight was between benefitting the people by relief from tariff burdens and the retention of these burdens in the interest of monopolistic and tariff-guarded interests. The people did not see this a month or week ago; but they will realize it later, when the influence of partisan and interested appeal has subsided and as the heat of partisanship cools.

The Liberal party in Canada is no more affected, as a party, than in its principles. Temporary reverse will only strengthen a party that does not regard the goal of office as the chief object of its existence. While Ontario pronounced strongly in favour of the Conservative party and its campaign the pronouncement was practically confined to endorsation of its campaign more than its principles, briefly summarized as the dominance of the static idea, the as-you-are idea, and the retention of the privileges of the few at the expense of the many. In the other provinces, Liberalism and what it stands for, have been endorsed more largely. The Liberal party has a majority in the Maritime Provinces and a very pronounced majority in Alberta and Saskatchewan; a majority that does not express the full extent of its strength. These provinces would be entitled, under the redistribution of seats following the census to a much greater representation, which would correspondingly increase the Liberal strength of representation. With these provinces electing ten or fifteen more members the gain to Liberalism, in the matter of representatives, would be very important. In the new House the Opposition will not be weak. The Conservative majority is not as great as majorities have been in the case of both Liberals and Conservatives, many times since Confederation; and, besides, it is largely composed of an uncertain, disturbing, and undesirable element—the Quibec Nationalists. Ninety Liberals in a House of two hundred and twenty-one members does not represent, by any means, hopeless odds, and with Sir Wilfrid Laurier as its Leader, we may expect the Liberal Opposition in the Dominion Parliament to give a good account of itself, in watching the course of legislation and administration, and in guarding the interests of the common people—the real people of the country.

A FRESH START FOR LIBERALISM

(The Globe.)

Defeated at the polls, but in no way disheartened, the Liberal party in Canada must at once gather itself together for a fresh start. The splendid unselfishness of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in answering the call to take his place in Parliament as leader of the Opposition is a challenge to every true Liberal from Sydney to Victoria. Nothing less than instant and hearty response to that call of the noblest of leaders will be worthy of that challenge. Without a day's delay or any vain regrets, but seeing the cloud's unexpected silver lining, those who care first for the Liberal cause will take their stand and set their faces again to the high task which is the enduring cause of Liberalism — the cause of freedom, progress, and the people's rights.

When Sir Wilfrid Laurier meets Parliament he will have at his back a body of men superior, man for man, to any like number on the Government benches. In debate they can do battle without either asking quarter or giving it. The younger men will prove worthy of the leaders who went down to defeat, and the freedom of Opposition will develop their powers. From Nova Scotia to New Brunswick strong men with trained leaders will come. Quebec's large and vigorous contingent will have Hon. R. Lemieux and Hon. Dr. Beland at its head. The prairie Provinces have spoken on the trade issue with an emphasis which Parliament will be made to understand, and Ontario, where alone the disaster was serious, will not be ashamed or afraid for its thin red line from Hon. Charles Murphy on the Ottawa to Mr. A. H. Clarke on the Detroit. All they need is Hon. George P. Graham as their leader and as Sir Wilfrid's lieutenant. Let there be no mistake, that body of men, unhampered by administrative details and uncursed with patronage, will give Parliament and Canada what has not been known in Ottawa in fifteen years—an Opposition that really counts.

The first and essential thing is the unreserved acceptance of the principles and program of Liberalism. This is the time for Liberals all over Canada to call to mind the purpose and spirit of Liberalism everywhere. British Liberals, with their aggressive policies of reform, owe their power in office to their rejuvenation when out of office. In Canada the struggle is the same. Here as there the common people are being spoiled of their opportunities and of their rights by privileged selfishness and leagued money power. The burden of the cost of living is well-nigh intolerable to the average household. The evil of food taxation and food monopolies must be attacked stoutly, determinedly, unfalteringly. That evil is as real and if unchecked will grow to be as cruel in Canada as it is in the United States. The conditions of trade not only with the rest of the Empire, but with the United States, must be improved. The fight for better trade relations and for untaxed food for the common people has only begun. It is the fight from which Liberals must not and will not turn back.

And old-time Liberals will not fight alone. A few may have turned back, but from among the people a great new host will arise and join with us if only we are true and unwavering. Some were deceived and misled on Thursday last. Appeals to their half-conscious resentments against the United States and to their racial and religious prejudices blinded them for the moment. But the reaction will set in. When they find how dearly they will have to pay, one by one, for the evil counsel which swayed them in crowds they will learn the truth and justice of the cause for which, on their behalf, Sir Wilfrid Laurier fought and fell. Then they will be Liberals not in name only, but in deed.

Canada is more important than any party. The causes of justice and freedom and equal rights are greater than the honors or the spoils of administrative power. Stripped of the impediments of office, Liberalism now makes a fresh start. The announcement to-day that their loved and trusted leader is willing and ready is the bugle call.

AVOID DECEPTION

Use Newbro's Herpicide Instead

While shopping the most annoying thing for me is to have someone try to sell me something "just as good" when I ask for Newbro's Herpicide. To be sure there are not many druggists who do this, but what few there are should know that such a policy will destroy the customer's confidence When they try it on me I never wait for the story, simply hunt a store where they will sell me what I want.

It is absurd for anyone to say that a preparation is as good as Herpicide. I don't think they believe it themselves. Every druggist knows that there is but one genuine, original dandruff germ destroyer and that is Newbro's Herpicide.

It keeps the head free from dandruff, prevents the hair from coming out and stops itching of the scalp.

Herpicide is really a wonderful remedy which does just what you want and expect it to do.

One dollar size bottles are guaranteed. Sold by all druggists. Applications at good barber shops.

Send 10c in postage for a sample to The Herpicide Co., Dept. B., Detroit, Mich.

MY DAUGHTER WAS CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Baltimore, Md.—"I send you herewith the picture of my fifteen year old daughter Alice, who was restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was pale, with dark circles under her eyes, weak and irritable. Two different doctors treated her and called it Green Sickness, but she grew worse all the time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended, and after taking three bottles she has regained her health, thanks to your medicine. I can recommend it for all female troubles."—Mrs. L. A. CORKRAN, 1108 Rutland Street, Baltimore, Md.

Hundreds of such letters from mothers expressing their gratitude for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished for them have been received by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass.

Young Girls, Heed This Advice.

Girls who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion, should take immediate action and be restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Thousands have been restored to health by its use.

GOVERNMENT'S AIM.

Sir James Whitney Speaks at Prison Corner-Stone Laying.

Guelph, Sept. 26.—Sir James Whitney's speech at the laying of the corner-stone of the administration building at the new provincial prison near Guelph yesterday was brief. He made no reference whatever to the political situation, though it was the great topic of discussion all day among the party which gathered for the ceremony.

Sir James was handed a silver trowel by Hon. W. J. Hanna to "well and truly lay the stone." The stone was inscribed: "This corner-stone was laid by the Hon. Sir James Pliny Whitney, Prime Minister of Ontario, the 25th September, 1911." The box placed in the stone contained coins of the realm, the current newspapers of Toronto and Guelph, and a Canadian Almanac, which latter, as Dr. Gilmour blithely remarked: "contained the names of those who were members of Parliament."

Sir James pointed out that, while the idea being worked out by the Government at this institution was not a new one, it was with a desire to ameliorate the conditions of those who had come within the criminal law because of small infractions.

"As regards these men, the infliction upon them of that just and necessary punishment which our law, and the law of all civilized nations requires, and which is required by God's law, shall be inflicted with due regard for their future welfare and happiness," said Sir James, who then pointed out that it was the aim of the Government to see to it that these people who had been the victims of misfortune, should, when they regained their liberty, carry as slight a handicap as possible. Ordinary considerations of common sense and elementary fair play required that their lot should not be made any harder than necessary for them to redeem themselves.

The Prime Minister then called on Hon. W. J. Hanna, Provincial Secretary, and father of the new provincial prison scheme, to review the history of the movement, and to give the gathering some idea of the progress that had been made.

Luncheon was served in the new Trades Building, at the conclusion of which further inspection of the big estate was made.

NO MORE DISTRESS FROM THE STOMACH

No Dyspepsia, Gas, Heartburn or Indigestion Five Minutes Later

Every family here ought to keep some Diapepsin in the house, as any one of you may have an attack of Indigestion or Stomach trouble at any time, day or night.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a distressed, out-of-order stomach five minutes afterwards.

If your meals don't tempt you, or what little you do eat seems to fill you or lays like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of Indigestion.

Ask your Pharmacist for a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin, and take a little just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or intestinal griping. This will all go and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it prevents fermentation and takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is at your drug store, waiting for you.

These large 50-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin contain more than sufficient to cure any case of Dyspepsia Indigestion or any other Stomach trouble.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

When your babies ask you to let them blow soap bubbles, what do you answer?

Do you say, "Oh, dear, I hate to have you, because you mess things up so and get yourself all wet?"

Or do you go with willing alacrity and get the clay pipes down from the pantry shelf and fill the basin with nice soapy water?

According to the latest discoveries of health experts that is what you should do.

Nay, more than that.

If the babies forget to ask to blow soap bubbles you should instill the desire into them, just as often as you possibly can.

For what do you think! Blowing soap bubbles has been discovered to be a splendid lung developer.

At one of the largest tuberculosis camps in the world, the doctors have given their patients orders to blow soap bubbles an hour every day. At a certain time in the morning all the patients are seen starting out with their clay pipes and their basins.

So if you want your children to have fine healthy lungs you must encourage them in blowing "bubbles soft and fine" as often as possible.

From what I remember of my own delight in the beautiful irridescent things and the fun of competing as to who could blow the biggest, or the one which would last the longest, it seems to me that shouldn't be a very difficult task.

* * *

I wonder if there is a family in which the necessity of putting to death some family pet or stray cat or dog does not occasionally arise.

Probably not.

Wherefore, I am going to pass on a little receipt for doing this unpleasant task as kindly as possible, which the cat specialist whom I quoted the other day is anxious to have made public:

"We have arranged a method of putting cats 'to sleep' in such a way that they actually go to sleep without a struggle and without suffering.

"We believe that cats need air to die, as well as to live, so we put a little chloroform on cotton and let the cat inhale it. By the way, this is usually done at night when the cat has had a full meal and is ready for sleep. Contrary to the universal opinion cats will sleep at night if trained that way. So we give it a very little chloroform, and the cat inhales it so gradually that it does not notice it—if good judgment is used in the giving. Then the cat lies down and gets ready to sleep, and we give it a little more of the vapor. Soon we hear labored breathing from the unconscious cat, and we put a generous amount of chloroform on cotton, throw it in and close the box.

"The heart action stops very gradually this way. The little body shows that there has been no suffering but that death simply comes while the body sleeps."

Surely any animal lover will appreciate the value of this specialist's instruction.

Ruth Cameron

First "Hyke" Of The Season

The first fall "hyke" of the Y. M. C. A. was held on Saturday morning, when quite a large number of the boys took advantage of the fine day and spent it in the woods. A start was made at 9.30 from the Association building and everybody made tracks for the bush, just to the north of Wallace's Grove. Here, headquarters were established and everybody busied himself gathering beechnuts, which were plentiful. When everybody had gathered all that they thought was necessary, a fire was built, and tea was made. Some of the boys had their frying pans and bacon, which they made good use of at this stage of the proceedings. After dinner all started for a cross-country "hike," arriving near Lilly Lake, where one of the good farmers invited the boys into his orchard to clear the apples off the ground, and needless to say, a second invitation was quite unnecessary. Every one loaded down with apples, the boys continued to Lilly Lake, where the idea of swimming suggested itself, much to the satisfaction of all. After some stunts in the water, which included a mud fight ,the trip home was started by a tired, but happy bunch of "hobo hykers."

The programme for the week at the local Association, is as follows:

Tuesday—Opening session of Junior Collegiate class at 4.15 p.m.

Meeting of Membership Committee 8.00 p.m., opening session of Intermediate "Gym." Class at 8.00.

Business Boys' Gym. class at 7.00 p.m.

Wednesday — Senior Leaders' Annual Meeting, 6.30 p. m.; Junior "Gym" class 4.15 p.m.

Thursday — Business Boys' 'Gym' class, 7.00.

Intermediate 'Gym.' class, 8 p.m.

Friday — Junior Leaders, 5.30 p. m. Welcome banquet by the boys to Mr. S. L. Spicer, M.D., their new Secretary, 7.00 p.m.

Saturday—9 a.m., Junior Boys' Gym Class; 10.30 a.m., Junior Collegiate Gym. Class.

The opening session of the Bible Study Club was held Sunday afternoon at 4.00 o'clock, and was well attended. This Club is making a study of the parables of Jesus, and every man is invited Sunday at 4.00 p.m.

DON'T PULL OUT THE GRAY HAIRS

A Few Applications of a Simple Remedy Will Bring Back the Natural Color.

"Pull out one gray hair and a dozen will take its place" is an old saying, which is, to a great extent, true, if no steps are taken to stop the cause. When gray hairs appear it is a sign that Nature needs assistance. It is Nature's call for help. Gray hair, dull, lifeless hair, or hair that is falling out, is not necessarily a sign of advancing age, for there are thousands of elderly people with perfect heads of hair without a single streak of gray.

When gray hairs come, or when the hair seems to be lifeless or dead, some good, reliable hair-restoring treatment should be resorted to at once. Specialists say that one of the best preparations to use is the old-fashioned "sage tea" which our grandparents used. The best preparation of this kind is Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, a preparation of domestic sage and sulphur, scientifically compounded with later discovered hair tonics and stimulants, the whole mixture being carefully balanced and tested by experts.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is clean and wholesome and perfectly harmless. It refreshes dry, parched hair, removes dandruff and gradually restores faded or gray hair to its natural color.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

MAN WAS DISORDERLY ON C. P. R. TRAIN

Sandy Detcher and Wm. Kelly, two back-woods men, were arraigned in the Police Court this morning on a charge of being drunk. They pleaded guilty and were discharged. Detcher stated that he just came in from the woods, and intended to get some clothes and go back, but got drunk. He promised to go back at once. Kelly tried the same story. When he was arrested he had $10 on him, but a local livery man put in a bill for $2, and after this was paid, he did not have much to purchase the clothes with.

James Tierney was arraigned on the same charge, but he was still affected by the debauch, and it was necessary to remand him for a week in order to sober him up.

Michael Scott, an outsider, was charged with being disorderly in a passenger coach on the C.P.R. between Toronto and this city. He pleaded guilty and was remanded until Monday, when the Provincial Constable, Mr. George Brodey, will be present and will give some information relative to the incident. His disorderly conduct, it is understood, consisted of refusing to show his transportation certificate, and raising a racket in general.

SUDDEN DEATH OF MRS. DAVIES

Well Known Resident Passes Away From Attack of Paralysis

Sad indeed, are the circumstances in connection with the passing away last evening, in her apartments, in the Grand Central building, of Mrs. Alfred Davies, relict of the late Professor Alfred Davies, and one of the best known and most respected residents of Peterborough. Apparently in her usual good health on Sunday morning, Mrs. Davies attended divine service at St. John's Church, in the morning, but at 7.30 o'clock in the evening was suddenly stricken with paralysis and never recovered consciousness, passing away last night, shortly before 11 o'clock, surrounded by her friends. Mrs. Davies' daughter, Miss Helen, was married only last Wednesday and was on her wedding trip with her husband, Mr. Geo. Sherry, when her mother's death occurred. It is a tragic coincidence that her father died in July, 1900, only a few days after Mrs. Sherry had left Peterborough on a visit to England.

The late Mrs. Davies was born and married in Swinton, Eng., and afterwards came to Canada with her husband. They resided for some years in Norwood, Ont., and some twelve years ago removed to Peterborough, where Mrs. Davies had resided ever since. She enjoyed the esteem and friendship of a very large number of Peterborough people and her sudden death will cause a distinct shock to everyone. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Sherry, and by a sister, residing in England.

Her daughter has been communicated with at Chicago and is expected home at noon to-morrow. No arrangements have been made for the funeral, pending Mrs. Sherry's arrival.

HARVEST HOME SOCIAL AT PARK ST. CHURCH

The Harvest Thanksgiving Festival held last evening in the Park Street Baptist Church, took the form of a social.

At six o'clock a bountiful supper was spread before the assembly who rendered practical the saying that a good appetite is an approval of the fare, and the way in which the arrangements were organized cannot be eulogized in too extravagant a manner.

The concert commenced at 8.30 o'clock. The church was tastefully and elegantly decorated with the products of the soil. There were some fine specimens of fruit and flowers, and the beautiful palms were an added charm to the scene. At the termination of the evening's proceedings a number of baskets, well stocked with fruit of various descriptions were disposed of for a nominal price.

The Choir, which opened the programme, is a fine combination. Their rendering of an anthem was well balanced and devotional. The Rev. W. C. Riddiford, who acted as Chairman, then made a few preliminary remarks and the programe proceeded as follows:

Anthem—The choir.
Prayers.
Address—The chairman.
Recitation—Miss Ethel Hill.
Song—Mr. Walter Chambers.
Address—Rev. J. R. Bonner.
Male quartette—selected.
Address—Mr. J. H. Burnham.
Solo—Mr. Walter Chambers.
Solo—Miss Lee.
Address—Rev. J. R. Webb.
Solo—Mr. A. Huycke.
Selection—The choir.
God Save The King.

A. B. MILLER AT GOSPEL HALL.

Last night's address was a splendid appeal to the unsaved, the subject being "Justification." The subjects for the week are: To-night, "Peace with God"; Wednesday, "The love of God"; Thursday, "For Whom did Jesus Die?" Friday, "Reconciliation". Try and hear all of these.

DEATH OF OLD RESIDENT

One of the oldest residents of the County of Peterborough passed away last evening in the person of Elizabeth Metheral, relict of the late George Westlake, whose death occurred at the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. Thomas Tindle, Lot 2, Concession 3, Smith. The deceased had reached the ripe old age of ninety years and six months, and had lived in Smith for over forty years, enjoying the respect and esteem of a very large number of friends and acquaintances. She was born in Cornwall, England, and came to Canada fifty-six years ago. She had been ill for the past four months, death being due to the encroachments of old age.

The late Mrs. Westlake is survived by four sons, John of Cavendish, Philip of Smith, and William and Giles of Peterborough, and by two daughters, Mrs. J. K. Stabler and Mrs. Thomas Tindle of Smith. One sister, Mrs. Marks, is living in Cornwall, England, and hale and hearty at the remarkable age of ninety-five years.

The funeral will take place to-morrow (Wednesday) afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family residence of her son-in-law, Thomas Tindle, Lot, 2, Con. 3, Smith, to Little Lake Cemetery.

Better Times After a Change in Food

Lack of energy is usually the outward sign of faulty nutrition.

Folks who don't feel "spry" because of lack of the right kind of nourishment

"Pick Up"
On Grape-Nuts
FOOD

Thousands who know the personal value of clear-thinking and vigorous action, make Grape-Nuts a part of their regular diet.

FEEL RIGHT
When You Feed Right.

You know one always feels "very fit" when the head and nerves swing along peacefully and with that certain sense of power that is unmistakable.

But when overwork or anxiety breaks down the soft gray matter in the brain and nerve cells (anxiety will do it quicker than overwork) faster than the food you have been using replaces it, then to save yourself from that horror of darkness, nervous prostration, you must change food and take on some sure rebuilder.

That's the mission of Grape-Nuts, made of the selected parts of wheat and barley containing the natural Phosphate of Potash which combines with Albumen in the human body, and makes the soft gray filling of the brain and nerve centres.

Another thing to be considered is that Grape-Nuts is "processed" in making and the starchy parts converted into a form of sugar, exactly as the process of digestion in the body so Grape-Nuts has really passed the first act of digestion and therefore the food is quickly assimilated in the most perfect manner by babe or athlete.

Would Fall In a Faint

When She Attempted to Work, so Exhausted Was the Nervous System

The Feeble, Wasted Nerves Were Restored and Revitalized by

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Nervous prostration is a terrible disease to all who understand its symptoms. At times the sufferer feels comparatively well, but with slight exertion the dreadful helplessness returns and all strength and vitality seems to leave the system.

This letter from Mrs. Martin very well describes the terrible conditions in which many a sufferer finds herself. She also tells how she regained health and strength by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food after all other treatments had failed.

Mrs. Edwin Martin, Ayer's Cliff, Que., writes: "Before I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I was in a terrible condition from nervous exhaustion and prostration. Dizzy spells would come over me and I would fall to the floor. The weakness was so great that I could not so much as sweep the floor without fainting, but the nerve food helped me after the doctors failed. It has done wonders in building up my nervous system. I can do my own housework now and washing, and feel that this great medicine has been a God-send to me. I think it is the best of medicines."

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

FELL FROM POLE AND FRACTURED HIS SKULL

To slip from his lofty perch on the top of a steel pole, and be dashed to the bottom of a steel-lined pit, 25 feet below, was the terrible experience of James Halliday, foreman on the steel structural work at the new Auburn Power House, about nine o'clock this morning. Mr. Halliday who, by the way, is a young man, and whose home is in Sherbrooke, Quebec, was working at the top of a steel pole, and by some means unknown, missed his hold on the top and fell through a clear space of over 25 feet, alighting on his back on top of some steel pipes in the bottom of a pit. Dr. McNulty was called and after a short examination, summoned Dr. Halliday, when the two physicians made a thorough examination of the injured man, disclosing a fractured skull, there being a large gash over the eye, and with concussion of the brain. He was taken to his home immediately, where his injuries were dressed, and the latest report of his condition, is that he is resting quietly. The physicians in charge informed the Examiner that if the injured man showed signs of getting worse he would be removed to the hospital at once. Mr. Halliday came to this city for the purpose of taking charge of the structural work on the new Auburn Power House, and was boarding on Hilliard St. This was his first accident.

A SENSIBLE METHOD OF RAISING MONEY FOR RELIGIOUS WORK ADOPTED

Presbyterians Will Have a Conference in Every Home and a Chat With Every Wage Earner in Regard to the Business of the Church---A Big Conference in St. Andrew's Church.

Almost half a hundred men gathered in St. Andrew's Church last evening to talk over the work upon which they start out to-day and this evening—the work of raising Peterborough's share of the Million Dollar Missionary Budget and of placing the current revenue on a basis commensurate with the needs of the local churches. Among that half hundred men were some of Peterborough's sanest and most progressive and successful business and professional men. They could underwrite a large amount of the money required. It is safe to say that by the time this is in print, they will have arranged for their fair share. They are not on the job to roll their responsibility on others. They will do the right thing themselves and, in addition, give their time until the work is done. No one will be asked for large sums to be paid annually, but for such amounts as their finance will warrant each week for current revenue and missions.

The weekly amounts range from 5c to $5.00. This latter amount will enable the contributor to support a Home Missionary for a year, as the average cost to the Mission funds of a Home Missionary, in excess of what the people in the Mission field contribute, is $250.00. There are a number of people in Peterborough who have been giving this amount. That number will likely be increased by the present movement.

Knox Church, on account of the special claim of their building fund, have arranged a card to meet this special need as follows:

"Knox Church Offerings."

As my share of the Church's obligations, I agree to give:

1st—For current expenses $..... weekly.

2nd—For Mission work at home and abroad $..... weekly

3rd—For the building fund on or before Dec. 1st, 1911, $.....

This is neither a rich man's work alone nor a poor man's work alone. Every man needs this work of helping for the enlargement of his own life, for the broadening of his own horizon, and the measure is "Every man according to his ability." Let no man, dowered richly with this world's goods and adding rapidly to his store, be satisfied with a share that would be large for the wage earner, but would be no expression of his own capacity for service. Let no poor man decline to give according to his ability, because he cannot give as much as he would like. The standard "Each man according to his ability" is a common sense standard, it is a just standard, it is a Scriptural standard, it is a standard that will abide. We will all be facing it long after our door of opportunity for service here has closed.

When we all get on a job that is as big as ourselves we will all come into a sense of the worth of the other fellow and into a new self-respect that has both strength and healing in it. It is by such movements as this, that the gulf between rich and poor can be spanned by the bridge of a new comradeship.

HOW WOULD THIS METHOD WORK IN PETERBOROUGH?

In view of the difficulty the local authorities have had with the dust evil, it will be interesting to learn that the highways department of the city of Leeds has recently treated portions of a macadam roadway with granular calcium chloride to combat the dust. Solutions of the same had previously been tried at greater cost and without such satisfactory results.

The road is first well swept and two applications of the chloride are made on succeeding evenings, of about one-half pound per yard, at a cost of about $0.009 per square yard. From personal observation the American Consul at Leeds notes the following: July 19, first application; July 20, rain; second application July 21, dry, breezy day, no dust; July 24, no dust; July 25, heavy thunder showers; July 31, no dust, after a few days of very hot weather; August 9, road in good condition, chloride seems to act as binding; August 10, stiff breeze, but no dust; August 14, road still in good order.

The ordinary sweeping of road was carried on.

A HIT

What She Gained by Trying Again

A failure at first makes us esteem final success.

A family in Minnesota that now enjoys Postum would never have known how good it is if the mother had been discouraged by the failure of her first attempt to prepare it. Her son tells the story:

We had never used Postum till last spring when father brought home a package one evening just to try it. We had heard from our neighbours, and in fact every one who used it, how well they liked it.

"Well, the next morning Mother brewed it about five minutes, just as she had been in the habit of doing with coffee without paying special attention to the directions printed on the package. It looked weak and didn't have a very promising colour, but nevertheless father raised his cup with an air of expectancy. It certainly did give him a great surprise, but I'm afraid it wasn't a very pleasant one, for he put down his cup with a look of disgust.

"Mother wasn't discouraged though and next morning gave it another trial, letting it stand on the stove till boiling began and then letting it boil for fifteen or twenty minutes, and this time we were all so pleased with it that we have used it ever since.

"Father was a confirmed dyspeptic and a cup of tea or coffee was to him like poison. He never drinks it any more, but drinks Postum regularly. He isn't troubled with dyspepsia now and is actually growing fat, and I'm sure Postum is the cause of it. All the children are allowed to drink it, and they are perfect pictures of health." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ontario, Canada.

SEES IN PETERBOROUGH UNRIVALLED POSSIBILITIES

It is twenty years since James Callaghan left this city for South Dakota to carve out for himself a career. Peterborough was then beginning to assert itself as a city. It was, practically speaking, "at the parting of the ways"; new blood was being instilled into the community and manufacturers all over the country were awakening to the fact that this city presented unrivaled possibilities to the prospective manufacturers. That era of growth has continued throughout the last twenty years, until today Peterborough is in the front rank of prominence, as a city, from an industrial and residential point of view. As Mr. Callaghan expressed himself when interviewed by the Examiner to-day. He said:

"Peterborough is as fine a city as any I have met on my travels through out the West, including Minneapolis, St. Pauls and other prominent cities of the West."

Mr. Callaghan is a man of indomitable energy, who has borne the brunt of life in its many ups and downs. Possessing a reminiscent mind, he was not loathe to divulge his opinions as regards the future possibilities of Peterborough.

Mr. Callaghan is engaged in the ranching business in Dakota. He likes the country fine, having a good climate and a good class of people. Prior to his leaving for Dakota, twenty years ago, Mr. Callaghan, together with his brother, the late John Callaghan, found profitable employment at the Wm. Hamilton foundry. This is his first visit to the city, and he assured the interviewer that it was an extremely pleasant one. "Should I ever wish to retire from business," said Mr. Callaghan, "Peterborough would be my choice as a place where I could spend the evening of my life. When I left this city twenty years ago, there was scarcely a house west of Park street, cement sidewalks were practically unknown, and a street railway service was not even thought of."

As the time is now drawing near for the shipping of ranch cattle Mr. Callaghan will be compelled to terminate his visit on Monday or Tuesday. During his visit here he has been the guest of his sister-in-law, at 497 Elm street.

Only Sober Men Wanted

Competition is too keen and life is too strenuous for an employer to keep on his pay roll men who are not in mental or physical condition to perform their duties. Every line of business is closing its doors to "Drinking" men. If you are a drinking man it may be your time next. Better stop drinking at once. Orrine, the standard remedy for the liquor habit, will help you. By the aid of Orrine thousands of men have been restored to lives of sobriety and industry, hence they have become worth more to their employers, and best of all they've made their loved ones happier.

Orrine is a simple home treatment. No loss of time from work while you are taking it. Start to-day. You will be surprised at the results. We are so sure that Orrine will benefit you that we say to you that if after a trial you fail to get any benefit from its use, we will give your money back.

ORRINE is prepared in two forms. No. 1, secret treatment, a powder, absolutely tasteless and odourless, given secretly in food or drink. ORRINE No. 2, in pill form, is for those who desire to take voluntary treatment. ORRINE, costs only $1.00 a box. Write for free Orrine Booklet (mailed in plain sealed envelope) to ORRINE COMPANY, Orrine Building, Washington, D.C. Orrine is recommended and is for sale in this city by Wm. Medill, druggist.

A WEAK CHESTED BOY

"My boy Frank seemed weak-chested, and took a very severe cold," writes Mrs. D. Stevens, Ninga, Man. "The many medicines used did not seem to benefit him, until we tried Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and found it to be exactly what was wanted to cure him." No treatment is so thorough and effective as a cure for croup and bronchitis.

Smoke Will Run In Examiner Road Race

Dan Whetung, jr., of the Chemong Athletic Club, informed the Examiner yesterday that Albert Smoke, who runs under the colours of the Chemong Club, and who has for the last two years carried off the champion senior Examiner road-race last year in record time, will make an effort this year to win the Stratton Trophy for the third time in succession. He has been a trifle under the weather, but is rounding to nicely now, and has begun training for the big event. The Chemong Club will also havve an entry in the junior event, and may possibly have a couple more representatives in line before Thanksgiving Day. W. Willis and Harold Smith of the Y.M.C.A. are almost certain entries, and both are already in good shape, so that Smoke will have to step all the way through to make it three straight as there will be lots of opposition this year.

WORLD'S SERIES

Might just as well pull down the shutters on that "if" business. The next world's series to be pastimed between the rival legions of both leagues will be fracased at Philadelphia and over at Coogan's Bluffs, N. Y., as both the world's champions and the Giants have their pennons spiked down for keeps.

Take the American League, for instance. Detroit, to trim the Athletics, the latter winning half their remaining games, must slip through with every frolic on the card. The Macks will romp away with their eight, O. K., but the Tigers haven't as much chance to pull away with a clean-up of the remaining squabbles as the snowball to gather in force across the Styx.

The Giants, too, are conclusively proving on this Western trip that they are going to cop and romp away with the gonfalon. Pittsburg has failed to stop the rush of the McGrawians. St. Louis has been a joke. The Cubs will not more than split-even. Thus it is all up with the wild and woolly West, and the next world's wrangle is to be waged between parties in the effete East.

Which brings us down to the matter of merits in the pair when it comes to a hook-up for the championship and the piece of money. The National League race has been a tight affair, but it ought to look like a schoolboy handicap compared, on form, with the world's series. It will be a test of speed. If the Giants win it, they will have to play at the pace with which they have forged to the front in the race for the National League championship. They are faster than the Athletics when it comes to a matter of speed. Speed has been one great factor in their campaign this year. The speed was what McGraw staked his plans on, and he has won to date on his theory as to what could be done with the quality of ball players who were coming to the front.

If New York doesn't keep up its speed it will get a sound walloping, just as any other old baseball nine might get under like conditions.

And those Athletics have speed too—yards and oceans of the fast stuff. So for rapidity keep an eye on the post-season set-tos.

How to Grow Hair

It has been proven that Hermo leaves contain the ingredients that will positively grow hair. That they contain this long-looked-for article is proven every day.

This preparation is called SALVIA and is being sold with a guarantee to cure Dandruff and to grow hair in abundance. Being daintily perfumed SALVIA makes a most pleasant hair dressing. Warne's drug store, your druggist, is the first to import this preparation into Peterborough, and a large, generous bottle, can be procured for 50c.

TRAFFIC RUNNING AS USUAL.

For some days, on account of the construction of a sewer into a residence on George street north, passengers on street cars have had to transfer on reaching this point as the car lines were undermined. The Radial Railway Company left one car north of the break, and passengers weer transferred to and from it. Today, however, the trench has been filled in and the north-end cars are running as usual.

CHARITY BOARD.

A meeting of the Charity Board was called for last night, but they did not get a quorum, so the meeting was adjourned.

THE PRIZE-WINNERS.

Owing to the pressure in the Examiner's news columns in view of the elections and from other causes the publication of the winners at the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition has been delayed. The lists will, however, appear in both the daily and weekly papers.

WORK IS PROGRESSING.

Good progress is being made with the new Murray Street Baptist Church. A large force of men are employed, and the contractors are going ahead with the work as rapidly as possible, taking advantage of the fine weather.

Nova Scotia Schooner In Collision.

Vineyard Haven, Mass., Sept. 26.—The vessel which the steam yacht Viking reported at New London, Conn. yesterday as having been in collision with, off Little Light, Long Island, on Sunday night, was the British schooner Exilda. The Exilda, which is bound from New York for Eatonville, N.S., arrived here yesterday.

Foreigners Are Safe.

Pekin, Sept. 26.—Foreigners have not been attacked in the disturbed Province of Sze-Chuen.

The leaders of the agitation against the Chinese Government's policy of building railroads with foreign capital evidently have instructed their followers not to molest foreigners.

American Crooks Caged.

Brockville, Sept. 26.—William Deb and Charles Cranston, two American crooks, who pleaded guilty to burglariing the homes of Henry Hollingworth and J. Lee at Addison, wer yesterday sentenced by Judge McDonald to one year and thirty-six days in the Central Prison.

Earthquake In Alaska.

Seattle, Wn., Sept. 26.—A strong earthquake shock was felt in the Prince William Sound country of Alaska Thursday night, but its extent cannot be learned because the earthquake severed the cable connecting Sitka and Valdez, 100 miles south of the latter place.

A steamer arriving here a few days ago reported a severe earthquake a Yakutat early in the month. Three Aleutian volcanoes are in moderate eruption, sending out only smoke.

Babies Thrive In Fireless Oven.

Willows, Cal., Sept. 26.—A fireless oven or cooker, used as an incubator has come to the rescue of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Pieper in sustaining life in their twin children, born a day or two ago. Curled in separate compartments of this kitchen appliance, the boy, who weighed only two pounds and the girl who weighed three, is sleeping their way to health when receiving food through a medicine dropper.

Coming to See Borden.

London, Sept. 26.—Lord Strathcona sailed on the Mauretania on Saturday. He caught the boat train at Euston at the last moment. Breathlessly he ejaculated, "Yes, yes, I'm going to see Borden, can't discuss reciprocity."

King's Medal to Mrs. McFall.

London, Sept. 26.—His Majesty the King has awarded the Edward medal of the first class to the widow of William McFall, of the driver of the C.P.R., killed through devotion to duty at North Wakefield last April.

MARKET REPORTS.

Liverpool and Chicago Wheat Futures Close Lower—Live Stock—Latest Quotations

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—Depression in the wheat market to-day came largely as a reflection of weakness in Wall-street. The close was 1-3c to 2-3c and 1-3c and 2-4c under Saturday night. The latest trading left corn 1-3c and 3-4c down; oats off 1-4c to 1-2c, and provisions at 7 1-2c to 22 1-2c down.

The Liverpool wheat market closed ¼d to ⅝d lower than Saturday; corn ¼d lower. Paris wheat closed unchanged to ⅛c higher, Berlin ¼c higher, Antwerp ⅛c lower, and Budapest ⅛c higher.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Sept. 25.—Business in Manitoba spring wheat and oats for export account continues very quiet, owing to fact that prices bid are away out of line with values here. The foreign demand for spring wheat flour was fair, and sales of 10,000 sacks were made. There is also a fair enquiry for winter wheat grades. The local and country trade is fair. Bran and shorts in big demand and scarce. Cheese fairly active and firm. Exports for the week, 29,359 boxes, against 71,307 a year ago. Demand for butter fair. Exports for week, 5311 packages, against 825 a year ago. Eggs fairly active. Trade in provisions good. Dressed hogs weaker and 25c per 100 lbs. lower.

Dressed hogs—Abattoir, $9.75 to $10 per 100 lbs.

Beef—Plate, half-barrels, 100 lbs., $7.50; barrels, 200 lbs., $14.00; tierces, 300 lbs., $21.50.

Pork—Heavy Canada short cut mess, barrels, 25 to 35 pieces, $33.50; half-barrels, $13; Canada short cut and back pork, 45 to 55 pieces, barrels, $23; Canada clear pork, barrels, 30 to 35 pieces, $20.50; bean pork, small pieces, but fat, barrels, $16.50.

Oats—Canadian western, No. 2, 47½c, car lots, ex-store; extra No. 1 feed, 47c; No. 2 C.W., 46½c; No. 3 local white, 46c; No. 2 local white, 45½c; No. 4 local white, 45c.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Union Stock Yards.

TORONTO, Sept. 25.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 118 cars, comprising 2496 cattle, 210 hogs, 480 sheep and lambs and 46 calves.

Exporters.

Export steers sold at $5.30 to $6.45, and one extra quality load brought $6.55. Export bulls sold at from $5.25 to $5.60.

Butchers.

Prime picked lots and loads of butchers sold at $5.20 to $5.15; good at $5.05 to $5.20; medium at $5.30 to $5.55; common, $4.50 to $5.25; cows, $3 to $5.25; canners, $2.00 to $2.50; bulls, $3.50 to $4.50.

Milkers and Springers.

About a dozen milkers and springers sold at $40 to $65 each.

Veal Calves.

The market was steady for veal calves, at $4 to $8.50 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

The market for sheep and lambs was fairly strong, at following prices: Sheep, ewes, $3.50 to $4; rams, $3.50 to $3; lambs, $5.75 to $6.00, or an average of $5.50.

Hogs.

W. J. Johnston, for Gunns, reports selects, fed and watered, at $9.10, and $8.75 f.o.b. cars at country points.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Sept. 25.—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market the receipts of live stock for the week ending Sept. 23 were 1650 cattle, 2600 sheep and lambs, 2800 hogs and 300 calves, while the offerings on the market this morning for sale amounted to 1100 cattle, 1400 sheep and lambs, 1450 hogs and 130 calves.

Altho the supply of cattle was fairly large, and the weather was unfavorable, a stronger feeling prevailed in the market, and prices since Wednesday show an advance of 15c to 25c per 100 pounds. A feature of the trade was the demand from exporters, and sales of Manitoba domestic cows, weighing 1250 to 1300 lbs., were made at 5c to 5½c per lb. The increase in offerings is attributed to the supplies coming forward from Manitoba, there being fully 500 head on the market from that source. At the advance in prices butchers were not disposed to operate freely, and in consequence the demand throughout was rather slow. [illegible]

TWO MORE RIDINGS

Conservatives Carry Gaspe and Chicoutimi-Saguenay

MAJORITY NOW 49

Montreal, Sept. 26.—The two deferred elections in Quebec those in Gaspe and Chicoutimi-Saguenay, took place yesterday and resulted in the return of two members who may be added to the majority against the Government.

In Gaspe the latest returns indicate the defeat of Hon. R. Lemieux, Minister of Marine, by Dr. C. P. Gauthier, who is leading by 558. Mr. Lemieux will, however, be a member of the new House, as he was elected last Thursday in Rouville.

In Chicoutimi-Saguenay there were four candidates in the field, the victor being J. Girard, the late member, who was first elected as a Conservative, but who supported the Government in the late Parliament. Mr. Girard's majority so far as heard from is given as 1,200.

Russell's Majority.

Ottawa, Sept. 26.—The majority of Hon. Chas. Murphy in Russell County is 1,008. There is talk of his election being protested by J. W. Vincent, Conservative candidate, on the ground of irregularities. The majority of Honore Achin in Labelle is 93.

Neely Is Safe.

Winnipeg, Sept. 26.—Latest bulletin from Humboldt gives Neely, Liberal, 4,000, with twenty polls still to hear from.

Leaders Meet.

Ottawa, Sept. 26.—Mr. R. L. Borden and Sir Wilfrid Laurier met for the first time since the election last night at a dinner tendered the Governor-General by the Rideau Club. Both leaders supported the toast to His Excellency.

The possibility of the appointment of a royal commission to investigate the spending departments is being discussed in Ottawa. The Conservative opposition moved repeatedly for such a commission and it was refused. Another suggested move by the incoming Government is the rearrangement of portfolios with the Departments of Commerce and Labor amalgamated, and the census added.

Praises Laurier's Decision.

London, Sept. 26.—The Pall Mall Gazette says the cancellation of Laurier's ultimatum, reciprocity or retirement, was doubtless prompted by his chivalrous regard for the plight in which his followers would otherwise find themselves. With a leader like Laurier, Canadian Liberalism will be far from being an ineffective critical force.

The Westminster Gazette says: "For our part we never saw in reciprocity any danger to the Empire, because that would mean the Empire depended [illegible] which is the keeping [illegible]."

The Sheffield Independent says with the Conservatives in power "there will be such a tightening of the grip around Canada's throat as will prevent her from breathing. Laurier's policy brought prosperity; his rival's will inevitably cause a revulsion, ultimately meaning the free exchange of natural products."

Fine Jail Record.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 26.—Pavel Macca was sentenced to three months in the county jail for contempt of court. That was two years ago. At the expiration of the sentence he received another three months' sentence, and then his case apparently was forgotten. He was found yesterday occupying a cell in the county jail, still serving his sentence, apparently not knowing why he was there and making no effort to get out. Macca was sentenced for contempt when he said he was unable to pay his divorced wife $1,200 alimony.

A writ of habeas corpus was filed in the Superior Court during the afternoon asking for his release.

Women Clerks Made Him Rich.

Saco, Me., Sept. 26.—Benjamin F. Hamilton, the first merchant in this country to employ girls as saleswomen in a store, is dead here, as the age of 92 years.

Hamilton's store in 1855 was one of the largest dry goods houses in the east. He created a tremendous sensation in that year by employing comely young women as clerks, and the women of Saco showed their disapproval by boycotting the store.

The idea eventually "took," however, and Hamilton opened similar stores in Biddeford and Portland, where the novelty of women clerks made both enterprises tremendous successes.

New Station at London.

Montreal, Sept. 26.—London is to have a new C.P.R. station, the erection of which will be started at once. The new building will cost about $10,000, and it will be a modern structure in every respect. The main building will be 65 feet long and a storey and a half high, and in addition there will be additions at either end, giving the building a total length of 121 feet.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Snow fell at Montreal yesterday morning.

The Methodists of Canada raised $630,000 last year for missions.

A movement is on foot by American manufacturers for reciprocity with countries other than Canada.

Sir Donald Mann expects to see the completion of the Canadian Northern transcontinental line in two or three years.

The front of the building at 184 King street west, Toronto, fell to the street ad one man narrowly escaped death.

Mr. John Waldron, returning officer at Washago, was brutally beaten in his house and the ballot-box was stolen.

Hon. S. N. Parent announces his resignation of the Chairmanship of the National Transcontinental Railway Commission.

Three thousand Jews who left Kiev following the assassination of M. Stolypin, fearing that they might be the victims of racial riots, have returned.

A. E. Shank leaped in front of an engine and knocked eight-year-old Wm. Mayes out of the way. Shank's escape from being struck was almost miraculous.

Dr. J. C. Clarke, an amateur aviator of New York, who was to try for his license today, fell 200 feet in his Queen Bleriot monoplane, sustaining such injuries that he died at 7.50 o'clock last night in the Nassau (Long Island) Hospital.

Twenty-three of the Vienna food rioters were condemned to serve jail terms amounting to ten years and seven months. Stone-throwing was penalized with a year at hard labor, while persons accused of tripping up police men got two years.

B. & O. Telegraphers' Demands.

Baltimore, Sept. 26.—Following a recent conference between a committee of telegraphers and officials of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, at which demands made by the operators in matters of increases in pay, shorter hours of employment and adjustment of working conditions, the company claimed could not be met.

The men, it was learned here yesterday, are voting to empower the committee to further take final action in pursuing negotiations with the officials. Several conferences have been held in the matter of wage adjustments, and the course now being taken by the employes, it is said, is with a view to authorizing their representatives to reach an agreement with the railroad. It is understood that the demands, which include a request for fifteen days' vacation annually with pay, if conceded, would increase the expense of the company 35 per cent.

Twelve Years a Leper.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 26.—After having suffered from leprosy for twelve years during which time he walked the streets worked and had unlimited opportunities to transmit the disease, Ludwig C. Dryegrov, a tailor, is dead at his home here. The nature of the malady was discovered yesterday after Coroner Gilbert Seashore viewed the body, suspected leprosy, and sent the body to Dr. H. B. Robertson of the University of Minnesota, who performed the autopsy.

Foretells Severe Winter.

Middle Haddon, Conn., Sept. 26.—Horace Johnson, Connecticut's aged weather forecaster, who achieved some prominence by foretelling the blizzard of 1888, now foretells a long and severe winter this year. He says: "There will be a snowfall as early as October 18, and ice will form on the streams by November 12." He also forecasts a drought for 1912.

Duel to Death In Circus Crowd.

Madill, Okla., Sept. 26.—Tom Rorie, liveryman, and L. L. Reed, carpenter, dead, and two men wounded, is the result of a shooting affray in a crowded circus tent here. Rorie had objected to Reed's show of authority as a special officer for the day.

Press Must Keep Dark.

Rome, Sept. 26.—The Government yesterday issued another warning to the press, threatening severest measures under the penal code against journalists and correspondents who give publicity or information concerning the movements of the army and navy

TRACEY ON TRIAL.

Autoist Drove Into Crowd at 26 Miles an Hour.

Toronto, Sept. 26.—Alexander S. Tracey, the Port Huron man, who drove an automobile into a crowd of people at the corner of Roncesvalles and Queen street on Labor Day, appeared before Judge Winchester in the sessions court yesterday, on a charge of criminal negligence, occasioning bodily harm.

A plea of not guilty was entered.

Many of the injured persons appeared as witnesses against Tracey. The most important witness, however, was that of Policeman C. Grant, whose duty it is to follow speeding autoists and other power vehicles on the street.

His attention was first directed to the automobile near the corner of Tecumseh and King streets. At that time the auto was going at about 22 miles an hour. He and Policeman Anderson followed on their motor cycles along King street, up Dufferin, and along Queen street.

"As far as I could judge," he declared, "the auto was running at about 26 miles an hour when it ran into the people at the corner of Roncesvalles and Queen street. There were two people in the auto, of whom the prisoner is one."

W. Broadbent, a motorman on a Queen car at the corner, testified to having seen the car coming, about 300 yards away, and thought it would stop. He told of helping to lift the auto off a number of the injured people.

As there were still a number of witnesses to hear at the hour of adjournment, the case will be continued today.

Wants Drunkards' Farm.

Hamilton, Sept. 26.—No more "dollar and cost or thirty days" sentences for drunkards was the slogon flung out by Rev. B. H. Spence of Toronto in his address on the "Drunkards" yesterday afternoon to the delegates to the Canadian Conference of Charities and Correction in session here.

Rev. Mr. Spence took the ground that drunkards could be reformed, and it was worth while for society to reform them "but the present method of dealing with this class of unfortunates," declared the speaker, "is a relic of barbarism." "The drunkard is treated with contempt by the individual, and this attitude is reflected in his treatment by the law."

Instead of being fined $1 and costs or 30 days a drunk should be given an indeterminate sentence on a detention farm, where the proceeds of his labor would go toward the support of his family. The speaker emphasized the importance of giving scientific instructions in the public schools concerning alcohol. Paris, France, had used Government money to advertise the ill-effects of alcohol. He hoped to see Toronto and Hamilton do likewise.

Senator Cloran Must Pay.

Montreal, Sept. 26.—A judgment involving the validity of a gift made to a Senator in exchange for the latter's influence in securing a sub-contract, was rendered yesterday by Mr. Justice St. Pierre in the case of David Bavastre, plaintiff, v. Hon. H. J. Cloran of Montreal, defendant, and Louis Hamon and Ernest Hess, intervenents.

The suit, which was taken on behalf of the house of Bavastre Freres, silk and lace merchants, of Marseilles, sought $213, this being the value of an Irish lace dress and coat delivered to the defendant on the 30th of November, 1907, by Jules Rosello, agent of the company.

The suit was opposed on the ground that the transfer of the coat and dress was not a sale, but a gift made by Ernest Ness to Madame Cloran, in exchange for the Senator's influence in securing for Ness a sub-contract for Mosaic floor work in connection with the Royal Victoria Museum at Ottawa.

Oxford Graft Enquiry.

Toronto, Sept. 26.—The Court of Appeal has reserved judgment in an application by J. C. Makins, K.C., for an order quashing the conviction of John Youngs by Mr. Justice Britton on March 28th last. The charge against Mr. Youngs was that in May, 1908, he promised to pay Robert E. Butler, a candidate for the Legislature, $1,000 to induce Mr. Butler to use his influence to procure the appointment of Youngs to the office of goalkeeper in the common jail of the County of Oxford.

Mr. Makins argued that the gift of the office was not in the power of Mr. Butler, and that his recommendation was not sufficient to bring the offer under the statutes. Mr. Makins also declared that the purchase must be absolute, and as a matter of fact Mr. Youngs never got the office.

Juvenile Court for Montreal.

Montreal, Sept. 26.—Judge Choquet interviewed the Board of Control yesterday relative to the opening of the juvenile court that the city is establishing in Champ de Mars street. He desired to know when the court would be opened, so steps could be taken to get the Legislature to appoint a judge.

In reply he was informed by the controllers that the building which had been bought for the new court had been extensively remodelled and would be in a very short time entirely completed.

The building cost $13,000. For a time it will be used both as a juvenile court and as a house of detention for young offenders. Later on the Legislature will be asked to build a special court, and if this is done, the ecivic building on Champ de Mars street will be used for detention purposes only.

ANXIOUS FOR PEACE

Germany Endeavours to Pacify Italy and Turkey

ITALY AROUSED

Berlin, Sept. 26.—Although Germany has not offered formal plans it is known that she is exerting her best efforts at Rome and Constantinople to bring about a peaceful settlement of the controversy between Turkey and Italy over Tripoli. Germany regards hostilities between those two countries as a menace to European peace, since it would probably be followed by an outburst of the Balkans, into which Austro-Hungary and the other powers might be drawn.

Germany advocates as a solution of the question Turkish recognition of Italy's special interests and her abandonment of opposition to the economic development of Tripoli by Italy and also of the recognition by the latter country of Turkish sovereignty.

Germany's position is a delicate one as she is bound by an alliance to Italy and by friendship to Turkey.

Italy Is Aroused.

Chiasso Sept. 26.—According to the latest advices received here the whole of Italy, with the exception of a section of the Socialists now demands the speedy occupation of Tripoli. The Socialists argue that Italy is not sufficiently prepared to stand the heavy expenses to enter colonial competition.

In the meantime the Italian Government is taking the present opportunity to experiment in the partial mobilization of the troops. The entire fleet is now ready for war, including the smallest and the oldest ships. The coast fortifications have been strengthened to meet any attack. Sixty steamers have been chartered for the transport of 35,000 soldiers, war material, aeroplanes and dirigibles and Red Cross workers.

The contingent of soldiers kept in service after their time had expired, with the reserve called up, bring the standing army to 80,000 above normal. The troops intended for Tripoli are chiefly in the Naples, Sicily and Tarante Barracks.

King Victor Emmanuel has expressed a chance to review the troops before they leave for Tripoli, but definite decision has not yet been reached.

Chance For Peterboro' In Canadian League

This City May Have an Opportunity Next Year of Placing a Team in the Ontario Organization Along With Ottawa and Toronto as the Eastern Ontario Representatives.

That Peterborough may get a chance next year of placing a team in the Canadian Baseball League, if sufficient financial backing can be obtained here, was the statement made to the Examiner this morning by Mr. M. M. Robinson, sporting editor of the Hamilton Spectator. Mr. Robinson, who is an old Peterborough boy, and a son of Mr. W. S. Robinson, city, is secretary of the Canadian League and part owner of the Hamilton Club. He says that the League authorities have under consideration the extension of the League into possibly an eight club organization, adding Toronto, Peterborough and Ottawa to the present membership. It is said that the Toronto Baseball Club is willing to place a team in the League, the Toronto home games to be arranged of course so that they could play at the Island when the Leafs were on the road. By having a Canadian League team, the Leafs would have a fine farm for their second string players when they would be immediately available if needed in the faster company. Ottawa is very anxious to get a team in organized baseball, and, with Toronto and Ottawa coming in, it would be a golden opportunity for Peterborough, as the clubs would welcome this city to break the journey between Ottawa and Toronto. It is felt that Peterborough would support a ball team of Canadian League calibre. The town in Western Ontario have made money on their first year, and every one knows that the first year for a new League is always the critical one. If the initial season is weathered successfully it is always clear sailing afterwards, and so the Canadian League magnates look forward to a big summer next season. A League composed of St. Thomas, Guelph, Berlin, Brantford, Hamilton, Toronto, Peterborough and Ottawa certainly looks like the real gilt-edged article. Peterborough has good grounds available, and the additional grandstand accommodation that would be required would no doubt be provided.

RUGBY TEAM COMMENCES PRACTISES AT NIGHT

The West End Rugby Club had their first night's practice of the season last night in Central Park, in front of the Armouries and from now on there will be three evening practises a week. The Club is, indeed, fortunate in having secured permission from Col. Clegg to use this ground for practise purposes. The light is quite sufficient to have a workout by and there is a big expanse of level turf to work on. In addition the location is central and convenient, and the players have no excuse for not turning out. There will be practises to-morrow and Thursday nights at Central Park and on Saturday afternoon at Riverside Park. A cordial invitation is extended to all those interested in Rugby to turn out and get into the game. The players are very enthusiastic and a noticeable feature is the way the young players are coming to the front.

President Barrow's Review Of The Eastern League

Canadian Press Despatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—The 191 season of the Eastern League closes yesterday (Sunday), with double headers at Providence and Newark the tail-enders in the season's standing. President Edward G. Barrow, in reviewing the season, said it might easily be classed as one of the most successful in the 21 years' history of this senior organization of minor baseball leagues.

"The winning of the pennant by Rochester for the third consecutive time," said President Barrow, "constitutes a record in the league, for no other club, in fact, has won the flag even twice in succession. The success of John Ganzel's team was well earned for it excelled in all departments of the game, and was particularly strong on the road. Luck was also something of a factor. The nine went through the entire season practically intact.

An Interesting Race.

"It has been an unusually interesting race," he continued, "notwithstanding the wide gap which separated first and second division teams. Both Baltimore and Toronto threatened to capture the pennant, and it is remarkable that either one of these clubs won enough games to do so under ordinary conditions. Rochester however, being urged by the two speedy clubs at its heels, ran its winnings up to 98 games out of the 152 played. This is another record for the league.

"It was not until this past week that the flag winner was decided, and not until yesterday that the battle for second place was concluded, with Baltimore the victor."

Toronto Made Record.

President Barrow said it had been a successful season financially.

"Toronto held the record of attendance," he said, "for the club there drew crowds of major league proportions, at times as many as 17,000. Buffalo and Baltimore were the banner cities of the circuit for steady attendance, however. An average of about 1,000 spectators saw every game in those cities. Not a club lost any money this year, and most of them made more than ever."

Stars of the League.

The batting and fielding records are not officially completed, but in commenting on the individual stars, President Barrow said:

"Miller of Montreal is to be credited with the most base hits and stolen bases, while Tim Jordan of Toronto made no less than 20 home runs, which helped a lot in keeping Toronto among the leaders. In the official averages Murray of Buffalo may be classed as the leader in batting, but he has not played in nearly as many games as Miller and Jordan. Pitching honors may safely be awarded to McConnell, the 'spit ball artist' of the pennant-winning team, who has just been sold to the New York Americans."

President Barrow left last night for Rochester to make arrangements for the post-season games between the pennant winners and an all-star nine of other Eastern League clubs, beginning at Rochester Tuesday.

FOOTBALL

The West End Athletic Club Rugby team had a rattling good practice on Saturday afternoon at Riverside Park Twenty-one men were in uniform, and judging from the material at hand, one of the best Rugby teams in years will represent Peterborough. Among the men out was Thompson, an Old Country College player of great promise. He has speed, is a good punt, and has the weight. Another man was Langley, from down Pittsburg way. He has played the American game with the Union College, which was affiliated with Yale. Bill Grant, of the Argonaut Seniors, is going to turn out and he will, no doubt help the team considerably.

The enthusiasm displayed is very encouraging to the officers of the W. E. A. C. and augurs well for a successful season.

No Rival In Sight

The wrestling excitement is over, and the championship, like the America's cup, seems destined to remain in this country for many years.

Doubtless the thoughts of that $67,000 "gate" at the Comiskey Park, Chicago, on Sept. 4th last, will impel wide-awake managers and promoters to scour the highways and byways of the world in the hope of scaring up a worthy opponent for Frank Gotch. Already he has been challenged on behalf of the big Pole, Zbyszko, and in all likelihood the startling news will be forthcoming after a while that a bulging Bulgarian with a seventy-two-inch chest and arms and legs in proportion, has been located, somewhere in his native land or that the very latest thing in Turks is coming to this country to put he smiling gentleman from Humboldt to route. But what will it all avail? The public has sense enough to know that worthwhile wrestlers are not discovered weekly. They are not unearthed as pigs unearth truffles.

Wrestling, more than any other form of athletics, requires especial talent and much schooling and practice before proficiency is reached, and such being the case, it will be to laugh when the plague of outlandish hip and thigh specialists sets in. That there will be such a plague is thought inevitable.

The best way to figure the chances of any unknown wrestler in a match with Gotch is to reflect on what happened to Hackenschmidt. Here was a man acknowledged to be the superior of all the Turks and Poles and Mohammedans that ever clutched a neck or grappled for a leg hold. While biding his time until Gotch should agree to meet him a second time, he went around the country tossing all the champions of far lands with ridiculous ease. The Russian lion's roar had been heard all over the universe, from St. Petersburg to Botany Bay, and whenever it was heard, the men of the mat tumbled.

Yet, in the hands of Gotch, the supposed czar of the wrestling kingdom was as helpless as a trussed turkey in the hands of a chef. So helpless, indeed, that in the target of the slangsters, "the show was rotten." Had it been ordained that Gotch instead of Hackenschmidt was to lose after such a wretched display, the public would have felt toward wrestling as it did toward boxing when fear-shaken Jeffries collapsed at Reno.

LATEST CITY NEWS.

Apple Crop Good.

The apple-picking season is now in full swing, and apple packers report a fairly good crop of winter apples.

Accommodation For Visitors.

Ladies visiting the city will find a comfortable place to stop at Y.W.C.A., corner Simcoe and Aylmer. Phone 1216.

Probabilities.

Moderate northerly winds, fine; local frosts to-night. Wednesday, southeast winds and becoming warmer.

Pictures Framed.

If you have any pictures to frame, try Kelsey Bros., the new framery, corner Charlotte and Aylmer streets. Best work, at low prices.

Commissioners to Meet.

Mayor Morrow is out of the city and it is not likely that a meeting of the Police Commissioners can be arranged for before Friday.

A Fine Car.

Pupils, Attention!

Miss Geraldine King wishes to announce that she is prepared to receive pupils in vocal and instrumental music, commencing September 1st, 1911, at 280 Charlotte street. Both phones 134.

One More Snap.

Good, brick house, three bed-rooms, good verandah and first-class garden. Terms to suit purchaser. Price $1,200.—M. Carton; C. J. Carroll, 372 Water street. 'Phone 822.

Peaches and Grapes.

The peach and grape season is just about over. Those who have not got their supply should get them this week. Big stock at James E. Bell's, 161 Hunter St., 43 Hunter St. Phones 455, 584.

Regular Meeting.

The regular meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held in the Public Library on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. All members are urgently requested to be present as business of importance must be transacted.

Narrow Escape.

It is said that truth is stranger than fiction. At the south end of the city this morning a man was grabbing a stump when his axe slipped and cut off the toe of his boot without injuring his foot.

Annual Meeting.

The Men's Bible Class of the Charlotte Street Church will hold their annual meeting on Friday evening next, in the lecture room of the church. All men of the church are invited, and all the members are especially requested to be present.

Oyster Weather.

We are now receiving sealshipt oysters, both in bulk and cans. Just the thing that is relished these cool days. Also, sweet potatoes, cranberries, quinces, grapes, pineapples, egg plant, etc.—W. J. Oke. 'Phone 18 and 19. 376 George St.

Grapes Spilled.

An express driver, while driving out Charlotte street yesterday morning, had the misfortune of letting a few baskets of grapes tumble off the waggon. One basket was strewn along in the mud, and its contents were lost but the others were saved, though the baskets were just a little bit muddy.

Stalled on Crossing.

Considerable inconvenience was experienced at the Charlotte Street G. T. R. crossing on Saturday evening by the stalling of a train immediately on the crossing. Traffic was tied up for 10 or 15 minutes. It was just as the people were going home from work in the evening, and there was a large crowd assembled on both sides of the track. The train had to be cut.

A Youthful Beggar.

A young lad of tender years with a portion of his right leg missing and possessed of monetary ambition, was going the rounds to-day soliciting money, which he stated was to be used in purchasing an artificial limb. His progress was somewhat abruptly terminated by the arrival of his parents on the scene, who promptly informed the police of the matter and took the youth home.

Patronize Home Industry.

There is no need of sending to Toronto, or elsewhere, for showcases or store-fixtures of any kind. Patronize the Peterborough Showcase Co., a well-equipped factory, for turning out large contracts, as well as small ones. The material and workmanship is of the best. Prices are right, and terms to suit all people. Any one intending to equip their stores with showcases, wallcases, etc., for the coming Christmas trade, by sending their order to the factory by the 30th of September, will be allowed a discount of 10 per cent. on orders exceeding $75.—W. Fighting Near Chentu

Special to The Examiner

CHENTU, CHINA, SEPT. 26.—There has been renewed fighting between bodies of insurgents and Government troops ten miles west of here and two hundred wounded were brought into this city and attended by Canadian missionary doctors and nurses in the Methodist hospital.

ECZEMA AND SORE EYES
"My daughter suffered from inflamed eyelids and eczema on her head," writes Mr. R. W. Lear, Port Stanford, N.S. "The child was in a bad state and suffered greatly. The doctor failed to help her and on recommendation of a friend I used Dr. Chase's Ointment, which made a complete cure. With a grateful heart I write you this letter."

Cabinet Met To-day

Examiner Special:

OTTAWA, SEPT. 26.—The first step towards the change of Government was taken this morning, when the Cabinet met in Council and disposed of some of the routine business, which had accumulated during the campaign. All the ministers were present except Hon. William Paterson, who is ill in bed at Brantford, and Hon. Messrs. Oliver and Templeman who are on their way back from the West. It looks to-day as if it would be the end of the week, or even later, before Sir Wilfrid Laurier can resign. Indeed, it is quite likely that no decision can be reached for ten days or so.

NO RISK AT ALL
Cuts, bruises, burns, scalds, boils, and such mishaps carry no risk of blood poisoning whatever, and cause very little discomfort, if you promptly apply that SURE CURE, "Mecca Ointment". None should be without it. Big 3 oz. jar, 25c., at all druggists.

DEATHS.

KENNEDY—This morning, at 546 Park street, Gavin Kennedy, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Gavin Kennedy, passed away, aged five months.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at the Little Lake cemetery.

DERRY.—Last evening, at 469 McDonnell street, Lillian Gladys, the nine-year-old daughter of Mr. Wm. Derry, passed away after an illness of only two days.

The funeral will take place this afternoon at the Little Lake Cemetery.

Ottawa Turns Out to Welcome the Premier Elect

GREAT PROCESSION

Ottawa, Sept. 27.—Ottawa gave R. L. Borden a joyous welcome last night. The Premier-elect was the central figure in a demonstration which for size and enthusiasm was parallelled only by the Liberal rejoicings in 1896, when Laurier was returned to power.

The chief event was a monster procession which escorted Mr. Borden from his house through the main streets of the city and back to his home again.

Several thousand people took part in the parade, while the streets were thronged with cheering crowds, who heartily acclaimed the Conservative leader as he passed in his carriage, drawn by 100 men.

There was no doubt about the wholeheartedness of the tribute paid to Mr. Borden. The procession took 40 minutes to pass a given point, and there was a roar of cheering all along the route. It was a great night for Ottawa Conservatives.

In the carriage with Mr. Borden was George H. Perley, whose tireless work as chief opposition whip did so much to carry the party to victory, and the two elected Conservative members for Ottawa, Messrs. Fripp and Chabot. The parade reached Mr. Borden's house on Wurtemburg street at eight o'clock, and Mr. Borden and his confreres were placed in a carriage, and dragged through the three miles of packed humanity.

The Union Jack was everywhere in Ottawa last night, and the city was brimming over with British sentiment. Some of the banners carried in the parade caught the eye of the crowd, particularly one which proclaimed that "Reciprocity is dead," "We kept Canada in the Empire" was another favorite motto, while the length of life of the Conservative administration was slightly exaggerated in the slogan "Borden forever."

Mr. Borden was obviously pleased and touched by the magnificent welcome. He was kept bowing continuously, and when the crowd had vented their enthusiasm and escorted him home again, it was a tired but happy Premier-elect who, in a few brief words, thanked his fellow-citizens for the honor accorded him. There were no formal speeches.

Hon. William Pugsley, it is stated, will resign his seat in St. John City and go out of federal politics. Mrs. Pugsley made what practically amounted to a statement of his intentions in conversation yesterday. He does not want to sit in opposition with Conservatives in control of his old department, especially when there are prospects of lucrative law work in St. John.

Transatlantic Route.

Montreal, Sept. 27.—The Allan Line directors are planning the inauguration of a fast service from this port to Liverpool, and hope to have it in operation early in 1913.

Tenders have been invited for the construction of two new liners, in which speed is to be the chief consideration. The ships will be somewhat larger than the big turbine vessels, the Victorian and the Virginian, which are 560 feet in length. They will have a minimum speed of 18 knots per hour, and will have large first and second-class passenger accommodation.

TO CURB BETTING

Moral Reform Committee Will Start Another Campaign

TO EXTEND RESTRICTIONS

Toronto, Sept. 26.—"The executive of the council in the light of these facts and considerations is of opinion that the time has arrived when this matter must again be faced and the battle fought to a finish, it being impossible to rest until this debasing business of exploiting vice is made in law what it is in fact, a criminal business, quite regardless of whether it is practiced by those in the highest social circles or in the lowest strata of society."

In these words, following a long preamble setting forth the results of the recent legislation at Ottawa designed to restrict race-track batting, the legislation committee of the Moral and Social Reform Committee urged that renewed efforts be made.

The matter of race-track gambling was referred to a committee which was authorized to obtain legislation which will make race-track wagers illegal.

Commenting on the race-track situation the report says:

"Two racing seasons have passed and several things have transpired.

"1. Race tracks have increased in number.

"2. Several tracks have introduced the pari-mutual machines, either along with or as a substitute for bookmakers.

"All the information we have been able to gather as to how this innovation is working out leads us to believe that it has not resulted in the lessening of the evils of race-track gambling and betting, but rather increasing them. Many people who were afraid of matching their wits against the bookmaker have no objections to putting up their money against each other through the medium of the pari-mutual machine.

By this system the racing association becomes the keeper of a common betting house within the definition of the criminal code itself. The reports from Australia also bear testimony to the same fact that the pari-mutual machines encourage and extend the vice of gambling.

"3. The courts have interpreted the law as not prohibitting the publication and circulation of information that may be used in bookmaking.

"4. At least one race track, namely, the Minoru of Vancouver, B.C., has had three immediate successive seven-day racing meets with full gambling and betting accompaniments, the second and third being held under the auspices nominally other than those of the association owning the track.

"Comparatively little progress has been made during the past year in the securing of legislation bearing upon morals," read the report of the legislation committee, which was largely adopted. "The blocking of Parliamentary progress, resulting from the struggle over reciprocity, prevented the introduction of a number of important amendments to the criminal code, particularly bearing on social vice, to which the Minister of Justice and the Prime Minister had consented for Government action."

The recommendations of the committee favored: Legislation against race-track betting; protection of morals of men in all employments; probation or indeterminate sentences in certain cases of infractions of the law; complete suppression of immoral resorts; refusal of bail in cases of social crime; power to search for obscene literature given to constables; make the possession of obscene literature a crime; amelioration of conditions in lodging-houses of low standards.

Washington, Sept. 27.—Naval officers who have contended that the battleship Maine was destroyed by an internal explosion, and that there was no external cause for the accident, argued yesterday that there was overwhelming proof of the soundness of their theory in the terrible disaster in Toulon Harbor on Monday.

The Liberte's bow was thrown upward and finally backward upon the midship section of the hull. This was caused by the tremendous downward force of the explosion amidships, which acting on the solid water as fulcrum, tilted the bow over backward after it had been severed from the rest of the hull. To some of the experts this seemed to indicate that the condition of the wreck of the Liberte is almost precisely like that of the wreck of the Maine in Havana Harbor.

Naval constructors expressed a fear that the real cause of the explosion never would be known.

Russell Tells Story.

Montreal, Sept. 27.—The continuation of the examination for discovery in the case of Mr. David Russell against the Pinkerton Detective Agency and the Montreal manager, Mr. McNamara, in which Mr. Russell is claiming $200,000 for alleged conspiracy against him, which opened tamely enough on Monday, continued yesterday and brought forth some remarkable testimony.

Mr. Russell occupied the stand almost all day. The well-known financier outlined the story of alleged plot against him, the object of which were to secure his incarceration in an institution for the insane. As told by Mr. Russell, there were two distinct plots against him, the centre of the action shifting between Montreal, New York and Pittsburg. The first, he declared, was a version of the "badger" game, in which he claimed that a man named Patterson from Pittsburg had brought a woman to Montreal and tried to get him tangled up with her. This failing, he said a further attempt was made to have him declared insane and confined in an American asylum.

The evidence as a complete narrative left much to be cleared up the whole story of why Mr. Russell was plotted against in this manner and how he foiled the plotters being left untold.

Morin Murder Case.

North Bay, Sept. 27.—John McDougall is on trial before Judge Sutherland and a jury, charged with the murder of Lament Morin on April 4 last in Phelps Township.

Frank Arnold, K.C., is crown prosecutor, while the prisoner is defended by G. L. T. Bull.

Morin was shot by McDougall in the bush while taking out telegraph poles. Morin's son, Fabian, and another witness swore to witnessing what they believed to be a deliberate accosting, as it followed loud and unfriendly talking between the two men.

McDougall gave himself up to the authorities after the shooting, and made the statement he was shooting at Morin's dog, which was about to attack him at Morin's suggestion. Instead of hitting the dog at the first shot, Morin received the charge and fell. The second barrel of the shotgun was then fired, killing the dog. The case is still in progress.

Banks Deny Union.

London, Sept. 27.—The announcement cabled across to the effect that the Colonial Bank is about to be absorbed by the Royal Bank of Canada received official denials at both offices. Tentative negotiations, it is said, were under way sometime ago, but have fallen through for the present.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

A pole that dropped from a balloon at Windsor Park grounds killed Fred Smith, a young colored boy.

The British Government has decided to appoint a Board of Trade Commission to arbitrate on labor disputes.

Mr. J. U. Vincent, the defeated candidate in Russell, states that he will protest the election of Hon. Chas. Murphy.

Dan McAulary was arrested at Seven Bridge on the charge of assaulting Deputy Returning Officer John Waldron at Washago.

Harvey Johnston, the five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Johnston of West Toronto, was struck down and killed by a motor car yesterday.

While out duck shooting yesterday morning on the Sauble River, below Grand Bend, Samuel Sweitzer, reeve of Stephen Township, was accidentally shot at 10 o'clock and died at three o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Walter E. Omer, of Cornwall, took carbolic acid while sitting in a cab in a local livery yard. He threw out the empty bottle and a farewell message he had scribbled to his wife, who is left with three young children.

Declaring that the Canadian election results makes it necessary, the Kidderminster Chamber of Commerce urges the Government to appoint a royal commission to investigate the whole question of the British fiscal system.

Killed in Pistol Fight.

Little Rock, Ark., Sept. 27.—Sheriff W. D. Preston of Desha County and Deputy Sheriff Barney Stiel of Little Rock were killed in a pistol battle with a party of negroes near Dumas, Ark., late yesterday afternoon. Three negroes were also killed.

Preston and Stiel were endeavoring to arrest several of the negroes, wanted in Little Rock.

Cheap Cable Letters.

London, Sept. 27.—New features are proposed in connection with the recent Atlantic cable agreement, namely, a daily cable letter and a weekend cable letter, which can be sent at a very low rate and enable the public to save the six to eight days occupied in the transmission of mails

"The Only Thing That Will Relieve Neuralgia."

The piercing pains of Neuralgia, which often follows a bad cold or La Grippe, are frequently almost unbearable and few medicines afford any relief to the sufferer.

"I am a rural mail carrier and have been a user of the Dr. Miles' medicines for years.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills can't be beaten. They are the only thing I have found that will relieve my neuralgia and I have tried most everything, besides medicine from the doctor. I am willing to tell anyone what the Anti-Pain Pills did for me."

TURKEY IS STAUNCH

Will Resist Italian Aggression Says United States Ambassador

FRANCE STARTED TROUBLE

Bellport, L.I., Sept. 27.—Zia Bey Pasha, the Turkish ambassador to the United States, told a representative of the Canadian Press last night that he had as yet received no instructions from the Porte to invoke the good offices of the American Government in the way of restraining Italy from hostile action in Tripoli.

A despatch from Constantinople on Sept. 25, said that all Turkish representatives abroad had been requested to act in this direction. But should such instructions be received, the ambassador said he would not be surprised, for it would be entirely in accord with the treaty of Paris of 1856, to which the United States had subscribed, and by which the powers undertook to guarantee the integrity of the Ottoman Empire.

The guarantee of integrity contained in the treaty of Paris, which concluded the Crimean war between Russia and Turkey, was reiterated in the treaty signed at Berlin in 1878.

Zia Bey Pasha believes that the Tripoli dispute will be settled without recourse to war. He is entirely familiar with every phase of that question, and during his long and varied diplomatic service, at St. Petersburg, Berlin and Paris, has had an opportunity to follow at close diplomatic range its various aspects and developments. He is moreover, an authority on international law, and is now engaged in translating an important treatise on that subject from French into the Turkish language.

"Remember," said the ambassador, "that Tripoli is a province of Turkey. According to some despatches, Italy would try to take that province and make it an Italian protectorate. When France took Tunis, Italy, which had declared itself uninterested in Tunis, received from France the recognition that Italy had predominant rights in Tripoli in other words that she had in Tripoli a special interest on account of her nearness and special financial connections."

"You might draw a parallel between this and the United States and Canada. The United States is on the border of Canada and she has special economic interests in that country but it would be ridiculous to say because of these conditions the United States has the right to take Canada merely because some other country says she has a sphere of influence there.

"Tripoli is a province of Turkey," said the ambassador, "and Turkey means to guard it. The new Turkey, the young Turkey of union and progress has built up a strong and loyal army. Our fleet cannot perhaps compare with the fleet of Italy, but our army is mighty. Like every country, we have some political dissension at home. In the case of Turkey the Government of union and progress is opposed by a small minority party of extreme radicalism. That is the internal question. It will be regulated. But when it comes to aggression from abroad, Turkey stands united to a man to defend her rights."

The correspondent explained that the sentiment in Germany was reported as fearing a general European conflict in case of hostilities between Turkey and Italy, and as fearing particularly the long-anticipated conflict in the Balkan States.

"In the event of war," said the ambassador, "Turkey's military strength is such that she will be able to take care of the Balkans and at the same time defend her rights in Tripoli against Italy. But Turkey does not want war. She is happy to be on friendly terms with all nations, including Germany and the United States. In my opinion, as I have said before, war will not come with Italy. Turkey stands for fair play and for compromise when compromise means honorable peace. Such a compromise, it is conceivable, might follow the lines of recognizing Italy's particular interests in Tripoli. I am, however merely expressing my personal opinion."

Italian Squadron Ready.

Chiasso, Switzerland, Sept. 27.—The Italian naval squadron, which is now at Augusta, near Syracuse, Sicily, under Admiral Aubrey, is under orders to be in readiness to sail at a moment's notice for Tripoli. Fresh reserves have been called out for service, if necessary, against Turkey. These belligerent measures are causing great alarm among the extensive Italian colonies in the Ottoman Empire. They fear Mussalman fanaticism, which would expose them to massacre.

Although the situation is considered very grave, the hope is still entertained that a conflict will be avoided, as notwithstanding official denials, negotiations are now going on with a view to inducing Turkey to agree to some form of Italian protectorate over Tripoli, which would preserve the sovereignty of Turkey. This proposal includes also a considerable payment to the Italian.

Floods In Martinique.

Fort de France, Martinique, Sept. 27.—The flooding of the Madame River has inundated the nearby portion of the city, causing considerable losses. Several houses have been washed from their foundations and stores have been invaded by the waters. The river embankments are crumbling.

VERDICT IS MURDER.

Bruce Farmer Victim of Foul Play, Says Jury.

Wiarton, Sept. 27.—"We believe that James McCartney came to his death on the 23rd day of September from wounds inflicted on the head by some person unknown."

This was the verdict at the coroner's inquest, presided over by Dr. H. Wigle. Dr. Charles Wigle made the post-mortim examination.

The last time that the late James McCartney, who lived on the 10th line, Albemarle, was seen alive was Saturday afternoon at three o'clock, when he started off to find some yearlings. He wandered in the direction of the back of his lot which joins that of Wesley Thompson. The yearlings returned home towards evening, but he did not.

The sons then began to search for him, but were not successful. On Sunday the whole neighborhood was aroused, and about twenty-five men searched for him all day without success, but on Monday morning at 11 o'clock Marty Boyle discovered his body at the back end of his lot in a depression of the ground surrounded by trees, about three-quarters of a mile from his home. Foul play was suspected, and evidence was given throwing suspicion upon a man in that neighborhood.

Jennie McCartney swore that she had heard this neighbor declare that if he ever met the deceased in the bush he would "mow him down like a thistle," and, further, that he had said he would take the life of the deceased if it took him twenty years to do it.

The sons of the deceased had never heard of any threats against his life.

Everything, however, indicated murder. There were a number of small cuts in the forehead, and upon the right side of the head a cut about two inches in length, and the head was badly bruised and swollen. There was no evidence that this had been done by falling on rocks.

Even With the Game.

DRUNKEN WITH FALSE DOCTRINES

Day Dawn Is Upon Us—Man Worships Pleasure Rather Than Reveres God

Jersey City, N.J., Sept. 24.—Pastor Russell's address at the Opera House was the event of the day. As usual he had the closest attention and a crowded house. His text was "Lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God; having a form of godliness but denying the power thereof. From such turn away." (II. Timothy iii, 4, 5.) He said:—

Our text could scarcely apply better to present-day conditions if St. Paul had written the words this very day. The world seems to be going pleasure-mad. Very evidently we are in the "perilous times" mentioned in the context. It is proper that we investigate this tendency toward pleasure and formality as respects religion. What is the cause of this condition? It is not because mankind have naturally more desire for pleasure than for God. On the contrary, Phrenology shows us that the very highest organs of the human mind are those which relate to spirituality and reverence. Under normal conditions, therefore, all mankind might reasonably be expected to have their chief pleasure in spiritual things, in harmony with a proper reverence for their Creator and His will.

What has changed this natural condition, and turned the hearts of men away from reverence for God and spiritual things to more sensuous pleasures, with merely an outward form of piety? The answer is that man's reverence for his Creator and for spiritual things has been taken advantage of by Satan. God has been pictured to men's minds as All-Powerful and devilish. These false doctrines, St. Paul declares, are "doctrines of demons" (I. Timothy iv, 1). These misconceptions, formulated into multitudinous creeds, became their idols. Each idol creed contained a little nucleus of truth, around which monstrous errors were aggregated. For a long time we blindly and stupidly worshipped our creed-idols, fighting for ourselves and against others. Contributing our money to the point of sacrifice and self-denial, we built costly temples, each party for his own idol.

We were kept so busily engaged in thus fighting and working and building, that we did not stop to carefully notice, nor to consider their blasphemous misrepresentations of the true God of Justice, Wisdom, Love, Power.

The Apostle says, "They that sleep, sleep in the night and they that are drunken are drunken in the night." Many thus have been asleep and have dreamed terrible things respecting the future which our Heavenly Father has ordained for His creatures. Various hallucinations and nightmares have afflicted us. Many have been drunken with the wine of false doctrines, mentioned in the Apocalypse, which tells us that this "drunkenness" or stupefaction of error has extended to all nations of Christendom (Rev. xviii, 3).

We may well thank God that "the night is far spent and the day is at hand." "The Sun of righteousness shall rise with healing in His beams" (Malachi iv, 2). The result will be the complete scattering of darkness, superstition and error, which for so long has more or less beclouded the minds of many of us to the true character of our God and the true teachings of His Word. It is because we are in the dawning of the New Day that we are beginning to see, as never before, the horrible features of our creed idols.

The majority of Christians have not yet discovered the real character of the Almighty. They are in a transition state. They no longer worship their idols as formerly, yet they still worship them. We can direct them to worship the true God, but the idols so monstrously misrepresent the God of all Grace that the worship is necessarily faint and half-hearted; or, as the Apostle declares, it is merely "a form of godliness," without the power, the force, the strength which should accompany the worship of the true God, rightly understood and properly reverenced.

The dawning of the light of the New Day of Messiah begins to waken us from the nightmares of the Dark Ages. We have begun to doubt our creed idols. Many have ceased their worship altogether. Many others respect them merely as fetishes of the past. Some are afraid that if the masses cease to worship the idols all reverence for holy things will pass away and the world will lapse into heathenish darkness. We should remember, on the contrary, that we have been in heathenish darkness and are merely now escaping from it. The heathen has had his idol of wood and stone while we have had more ethereal ones. The heathen's idols are ugly enough, yet far less horrible than the creed idols of civilized lands. No excuse will longer maintain idol worship of any kind.

The great difficulty with the masses is that, repudiating the idols, they are lapsing into agnosticism—doubt. They know not what they believe. They are looking for the Truth. They find the leaders of the creeds still bowing formally to the idols, but privately repudiating them. Such leaders are unworthy of confidence and only partially honest. Hungry and thirsty for something to satisfy the craving of their hearts, the famishing people are turning toward pleasure. They are lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God."

Comparative few any longer believe in purgatory or everlasting torment, but they believe that these doctrines have a Scriptural foundation, which they proportionately discredit, and charge with being the source of all their ignorance and superstition in the past. With faith in the Bible gone, the masses know not where to go nor whom to trust respecting enlightenment regarding the future. They are reaching the conclusion that everything is a big guess, and that they may as well do their own guessing as to pay a minister to do it for them.

The situation is a deplorable one. As we have already intimated, humanity is so constituted that religion holds the very highest place in his mental organism—the seat of power and control in all the affairs of his life. With no fixed conviction, men are drifting. The learned are going into infidelity, under the more refined name of Higher Criticism. The poor and less learned are going into doubt respecting any intelligent Creator or Supervisor. As a matter of fact they are saying not only there is no God who would torment mankind eternally, but apparently, There is no God who takes any interest in humanity.

In this frame of mind Socialism appeals to them. They propose to bring about "Paradise Restored," by the power of Socialism. They say to themselves, "We are without a God, without a future hope, and without confidence in our former views, 'let us eat, drink and be merry'—let us enjoy life—let us get all that we can of pleasure out of present existence, for we are hopeless respecting a future one." Is it any wonder that the Apostle foretold that, under these conditions, the masses would become more and more, pleasure-mad?

Thus we account for the great lament that is going up from all churches that the pews are empty; and the collection-boxes empty, and that the system would go down except for the benevolent wealthy, who really do not believe in the creed idols, but who desire that others shall believe in them and worship them. In a word, the crowds which once flocked to the churches, with their nickels and pennies, now make for the theatres and crowd the hard, rough "bleachers" of the ball grounds. They have become lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God, because the representations of God in the various creeds are too repulsive, too irrational, too devilish, to be longer believed in or worshipped. What the people need is a general smashing of all the creed idols and the unanimous return to the study of the Bible, and to the worship of the true God, which the Bible sets forth.

No men in the world are to be more sympathized with than the preachers. The creed idols have been richly endowed by well-meaning votaries of the past. The interests of the clergy are all wrapped up with the interests of the creed idols—not only their financial interests, but their honor, dignity, titles. The question with the clergy to-day is, How can we smash the creed idols? How can we destroy them? If we tell the common people plainly what we believe, they will all leave the creed idols. They will ask us, How long is it since you came to this conclusion? If we tell them that we have not believed in our creeds for many years, will they not call us hypocritical and lose their confidence in us? And, besides, what could we offer them instead?

It is no secret that the great majority of the educated clergy are total unbelievers, not only in the creeds which they profess, but also in the Bible—they call themselves "Higher Critics" and "Evolutionists." They have nothing that they could teach the people, except their doubts, their misunderstandings. Having lost faith in the creed idols, they are seeking for the true God, in whom the masses believe little enough as it is. They are bound to God and religious things by a very slim cord composed of three strands—ignorance, superstition and natural reverence. The ignorance and superstitution will soon break, and all that will be left will be man's natural reverence. Now is the time for replacing ignorance with knowledge, and superstition with loving obedience to the true God.

When I was in Boston last June the largest opera house of that great city, seating thirty-six hundred, was crowded; four hundred more were behind me on the platform besides those who stood, and I learned afterwards that hundreds were turned away from the doors. The next day the editor of a religious journal called on me. His leading question was: "Pastor Russell, how do you explain the fact that the people of all creeds, and of the world, come in such crowds to your meetings? I was present yesterday at the Boston Theatre and witnessed that vast concourse of intelligent people. As I looked at them I asked myself the question I am now asking you, 'How is it that such crowds attend your services, even in this sultry, summer weather, when the summer resorts and seashore pleasures would call them elsewhere, and while many of our leading and able ministers, supported by talented choirs, have small attendance—twenty, forty, fifty or so? What is your explanation?'"

I replied, "My brother, I believe we are witnessing a fulfilment of the Scripture which says: 'There shall be a famine in the land! Not a famine for bread, nor a famine for water, but a famine for the hearing of the Word of the Lord' (Amos viii, 11). The public are getting their eyes too widely opened to ever again respect the God whom Brother Calvin pictured—a God All-Wise and All-Powerful, but thoroughly unloving, who foreordained and predestinated a saintly handful to glory, and the unsaintly thousands of millions to an eternity of torture. We once believed those things, but the new morning of God's grace in Christ Jesus is gradually scattering the darkness.

"Neither can we longer believe with Brother Wesley that our God is good and loving, and would like to save everybody if He could, but was unwise in His creation of man, and is lacking in power to direct the matter now. The people are hungering for something better—for something consistent and rational and in accordance with the Bible declaration, that Divine Justice, Wisdom, Love and Power are co-ordinates—that God is Love, and as just and wise and powerful as He is loving. The people need to be shown a theology which will accord with this Divine character and with the Divine statement that 'known unto the Lord are all His works from the beginning of the world'; and again: 'My Word that goeth forth out of My mouth shall not return unto Me void, but shall accomplish that which I please,' said the Lord, 'and shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it'."

Christian people need to believe the Bible doctrine of Election, but must see it in a different light from that which Brother Calvin threw upon the subject. They must see election from the Bible standpoint—the election of a saintly Church, a "little flock," "a royal priesthood, a holy people," to be the Bride of Christ, and His joint-heirs. They must see that this "elect" Church with the Redeemer in God's appointed channel for the blessing of the non-elect world. They need to be shown clearly that the saintly few, gathered first from the Jews, but subsequently completed by additions of those of saintly character of all nations, are with Christ to become the great Seed of Abraham, the great Messiah, Abraham's spiritual Seed, "like the stars of heaven." It must then be shown why this spiritual Seed has been "called," "elected," selected from amongst mankind—that it is for the very purpose of blessing the non-elect, the masses of Adam's race, in harmony with God's promise to Abraham—"In thy Seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed."

St. Paul refers to this spiritual Seed, saying, "And to thy Seed, which is Christ," and "If ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's Seed and heirs according to the promise" (Galatians iii, 16, 29). All these are Heirs of the great promise that has not yet been fulfilled. The fulfilment waits until the completion of a foreordained number, an elect "little flock" of the saintly few. Then these, changed by the power of the First Resurrection, from human nature to divine nature (II. Peter i, 4), will constitute the glorious Kingdom of Messiah. The Kingdom blessings will go first to Abraham's natural seed, and through them to all nations.

God's character is so great, so grand, that, if seen by men, it would be reverenced. God's Plan of Salvation is so grandly beautiful that, when rightly understood and comprehended, it proves more fascinating than any novel.

The world has been kept away from God and from the Bible by the machinations of the Adversary. He has had much to do with the formation of our creed idols. Seeing men breaking away from error, in the Reformation time, and groping after the Truth, Satan presented himself "as an angel of light" and misguided our fathers into the formation of their various creeds. This is corroborated by St. Paul's words, "The god of this world hath blinded the minds of them that believe not, lest the glorious light of the goodness of God, as it shines in the face of Jesus Christ our Lord, should shine into their hearts" (II. Corinthians iv, 4). The Adversary did not wish us to see with "the eyes of our hearts" the glorious character of our Creator, His love for mankind and His glorious provision for us. He wished, on the contrary, to blind us with prejudice, to turn us away from God and from the Bible. And surely his plan has been measurably successful.

Nevertheless, Satan has gained no real victory, he has in no way hindered the finding of the "elect." Rather, we may assume that these various, blinding influences and stumbling stones have but served to prove, to test the love, loyalty, faith and obedience of the "called and chosen and faithful."

If we have seen why the world is going pleasure-mad, and if we have seen the steps which should be taken to guide the well-intentioned into the ways of the Lord, let us, my beloved hearers, not only be faithful ourselves to the Lord's way, but let us lift high the Royal Banner of our God and of our Saviour, and "show forth the praises of Him who hath called us out of darkness into His marvelous light."

Thirty Kinds of Kisses.

A few years ago Dr. Nyrop, a Danish university professor, wrote a whole volume about kissing. He noted that while even the stern Romans had three words for a kiss, according to the nature of the salute—oscula, basia and suavia—the sentimental English have one term for every sort of kiss. The Germans have over thirty different styles of kisses recognized by and entered in their dictionaries. As it is, most people can get along with kissing in the singular number, but lovers may note the German word "nach kussen," which means making up for kisses which have been missed through absence.

HOW many "calories" did you absorb this morning?
Depends on what you had for breakfast.

Calories are the energy producing units in food—and the more of them it contains, the more energy it gives you.

Look at these youngsters and the figures beneath them.

They show how many "calories" you get for a quarter in different foods.

Note the relative positions of eggs, sirloin and oats. There you have it!

A quarter's worth of rolled oats has 31 times the energy producing power of a quarter's worth of eggs—12 times that of a quarter's worth of sirloin.

1c. worth of rolled oats produces more energy than 31c worth of eggs or 12c worth of sirloin.

Have porridge for breakfast tomorrow! But get the right rolled oats.

Tillson's Oats are the best and tastiest you can buy. Absolutely clean,—no black specks or hulls. Have a delicious flavor, result of the pan-dried proces.

Be sure to have a package of Tillson's Pan-dried Oats always on hand. And take a dish for breakfast every morning.

TORTURED BY BILIOUSNESS

AND TERRIBLE SICK HEADACHES

Both Completely Cured by "Fruit-a-tives"

DRESDEN, Ont. July 17th, 1910.

"I was a dreadful sufferer for many years from Sick Headaches and Biliousness, or Torpid Liver. I tried many remedies and physicians, but nothing seemed to do me any good. I finally used "Fruit-a-tives" and after the first box, I was so much better that I continued using these fruit tablets and they have entirely cured me.

"I certainly can recommend "Fruit-a-tives" to anyone who suffers from Headaches, Biliousness or Stomach Trouble." MRS. ISAAC VANSICKLE.

Thousands of people have had the same experience as Mrs. VanSickle. They have tried doctors and taken all sorts of medicine, only to find that "Fruit-a-tives" is the one and only remedy that actually cures these troubles.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world made of fruit juices, and is the greatest Liver Cure ever discovered. It acts directly on Liver, Kidneys and Skin—sweetens the stomach and purifies the blood.

Miss Millicent's Neighbor

How Curiosity Got the Better of Her

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Miss Millicent Elliott stood on her side porch and looked disapprovingly at the yard which adjoined her own trimly kept garden. It was a neglected yard, overgrown with plantain and dock, while a forest of sunflowers concealed the tumbledown chicken house. Unpruned shrubs gave witness that some careful hand had once planted a garden here and that sloth and indifference had let it run to decay.

The house, too, was shabby, with peeling paint and blinds sagging from their rusty hinges. On the front porch there was a comfortable painless rocking chair, and sitting therein with his feet elevated to the porch railing was a large, shaggy looking man who was apparently reading the morning newspaper. As a matter of fact, his keen gray eyes were looking straight over the edge of his paper at Miss Millicent, and a wry smile was curving his lips, half concealed by a grizzled beard.

"Shiftless!" sniffed Miss Millicent as she went inside her immaculate little house, but her lips trembled as she uttered the word.

She stepped briskly to and fro making a chicken pie. Her kitchen was spotless, and she worked with a neat deftness that left no disorder in its wake. Presently a knock came at the door and was immediately followed by a stout woman who wore a checked sunbonnet over her glowing cheeks.

"My, but it's hot, Millie!" she gasped as she sank pantingly into a chair by the open window.

"Florrie was saying only this morning that you oughtn't to keep your place looking so nice, Millie."

Millicent turned her sweet contented face to her caller. "Why not?" she asked calmly.

"Why, because it makes Captain Ben's place look all the worse!" cried

SHE STOOD THERE MOTIONLESS.

Mrs. Benson, the words fairly tumbling out of her eager lips. "Ain't it a disgrace the way he's come home and not lifted his finger to fix up the place?"

"Perhaps he isn't ready to do anything," evaded Millicent, picking over strawberries with slender brown fingers. Her dark lashes swept the smooth oval of her olive tinted cheek, where a little flush came and went. Mrs. Benson made a note of the flush to tell her daughter that Millie Elliott was not so indifferent to Captain Ben Perry's return as she appeared to be.

"He's waiting a good long time. Why, he's been home six months, hasn't he? Came home the first of the year and has lived like a hermit ever since. What does he say about it?" asked Mrs. Benson cunningly.

"Captain Perry hasn't mentioned the subject to me," said Millicent calmly. "Are you doing up any cherries this year, Ellen?"

"Twenty-four quarts," said Mrs. Benson, with a baffled glance at the younger woman. "I must be going home now. I've got to get dinner. It beats the how the captain gets along all alone. He must eat sometimes, and yet he seems to be sitting out there on the porch most of the time. Somebody said he ate down to the hotel. Does he?"

"How should I know?" asked Millicent rather crisply.

Mrs. Benson darted a keen glance of displeasure at Miss Elliott's neat profile. She opened the door that she might have a clear way for flight. "I thought maybe you ought to know something about his affairs, Millie," she said meaningly, and she slipped outside and banged the door shut.

In the kitchen Millicent was smiling over her strawberries; it was a queer little smile, mingled of triumph, bitterness and regret. Presently it was all regret, for she was thinking of that distant day when she had sent handsome young Ben Perry about his business, and he had straightway gone to sea and vowed he would never see her again. Millicent learned too late that the feeling she had thought was coquetry was love and that the departure of Ben Perry was the turning point in her happiness.

Ben did not return to Little River. His people moved away to another village, and she heard indirectly that he was in command of a large schooner in the coasting trade. Then one day, six months before, it was announced that Captain Ben Perry had fallen heir to the little house next door to Millicent Elliott's and was expected home.

He did come there to live, and Millicent met him on the street the next day, and because her heart was beating so trippingly she ignored his attempt at greeting and passed him swiftly by with uplifted chin.

How he spent his time Little River conjectured whenever it met at postoffice, sewing society or mothers' meeting. His whole careless mode of housekeeping furnished gossip for nine times nine days.

Just as Miss Millicent was concluding her solitary dinner she saw her neighbor emerge from his shadowy porch and stride down the overgrown path to the gate. A moment later he was swinging down the road toward the hotel.

As if giving way to a long repressed impulse, Millicent left the house and stole down through her little orchard to come out at last at the farthest corner of Captain Perry's domain. Here was a break in the fence, and she slipped through and plunged into a thicket of raspberry bushes. When she came forth she was scratched and bleeding and her neatly arranged hair hung in rippling disorder over her ears.

"Of all the shiftless"— gasped Millicent as she found her way up to the back door of the house. It was neater than she had hoped to find it, and when she had lifted the door latch and found herself in the kitchen of the house she exclaimed with wonder at its shipshape appearance. The stove was brightly polished and every pot and pan hung upon its appointed hook. It was all as snug as the galley of a ship.

The sitting room was cool and cozy, with a smell of fragrant tobacco. There were large comfortable chairs and piles of newspapers and books. On the mantelpiece a large clock ticked loudly, and Millicent fancied that its round face watched her curiously.

She opened another door and stood petrified with astonishment. Here was the little bedroom of the master of the house, and on the immaculate cover of his dressing table was an old fashioned photograph of Millicent herself. After her first gasp of surprise she stood there motionless, her heart throbbing heavily, her eyes shining strangely.

All at once there was the clang of the clicking gate and firm steps on the path. Captain Ben was returning.

Millicent gazed wildly around and opened the door which she thought led into the kitchen to find herself at the foot of the back stairs. At the sound of steps on the porch she drew the door close and stood panting with fright.

The front door opened and closed, and Captain Ben came into the sitting room whistling cheerily. Millicent heard him clap a handful of papers down on the table and light a scratch of a match and the smell of tobacco. If he would only smoke his front porch, as was his custom, and thus permit her to escape by the back way, but he did not. He settled himself in a creaking chair, and Millicent heard the rustle of his newspaper.

She glanced up the dark stairway. Once up there she might conceal herself until Captain Ben went out again. Then she might escape to her own domain.

She kicked off her slippers; then, feeling like a thief, she crept softly up the stairs to the upper floor, which was quite bare of furniture. She heard Captain Ben arise and walk around the room. He even went into the unused east wing and tried a door there. Then he paused in the lower hall, as if pondering whether to go upstairs.

Did he suspect her presence there or the presence of an interloper on his premises? Had she left any telltale evidence of her visit below?

At last he went back into the sitting room, and she heard him whistling softly.

It was sitting hot upstairs, where the sun had poured all day through the unshuttered windows, and Millicent felt quite faint as she sat on the top step and leaned her head against the wall, while the thunder rolled and the lightning flashed sharply. Then came the rain in silver javelins that battled on the roof of the east wing and drummed a tune against the window panes.

When the rain was over and the sun peeped palely forth Captain Ben's voice came up the stairs with startling suddenness.

"Why don't you come down, Millie?" he asked quietly.

So he had known she was there all the time! Now he was aware that she had entered his house and pryed into his rooms just as a common gossip might have done!

"Millie," he repeated softly, "I have waited a long time for you. Won't you come to me—now?"

And Millicent, struggling between love and pride and a sense of shame, went down the front stairs and into Captain Ben's waiting arms.

"Saw you when you got caught in the briers," explained the captain softly. "I was coming back, and then I went on. I guessed you hadn't time to leave when I did come back, and I knew you were here, heard the seventh stair creak as you went up. I came back to find myself your neighbor and that you wouldn't speak, and I made up my mind to anchor here for awhile. I thought maybe you'd stayed single because you didn't find any one you liked, and so you might as well like me, if you could."

"Why, I always have, Ben," whispered Millicent. "I couldn't like you any better—why, Ben!"

WOULD SCREAM FOR HOURS WITH ECZEMA

Baby Dreadful Sufferer. Could Not Keep Him from Scratching. Every Joint Affected. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment and He Is Well.

"Enclosed find my son's photo and I feel by writing these few lines as you'll am only doing my duty, as my son was a dreadful sufferer from eczema. At the age of two weeks he began to get covered with red spots on his legs and genitals, which finally throughout was red sore or blotch; but day by day it grew worse until every joint and crevice were affected and being started screaming for hours day and night, until a thing as sleep was out of the question. I took him to two of Sydney's leading doctors; one said it was one of the worst things he had seen, the other did not think it so serious; one ordered ointment for rubbing in, the other a dusting powder. I followed their prescriptions for over many months and still baby kept getting worse. I could not keep him from scratching, so great was his agony.

"When he was five months old I tried the Cuticura Remedies and I am very thankful to say my baby is to-day as clean as his self-denying. His arms were bleeding when I started and other parts affected were the lower part of his body under the knees, arms, in arm joints, eyebrows and teeth; but after having Cuticura Ointment I began to see a difference and by the time I had used one tin, along with the bathing with Cuticura Soap, baby was nearly cured. I still kept on using the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and now, thank goodness, he is quite well and, although he is now ten months old, has not had any further return of the trouble." (Signed) Mrs. O. Martin, 2 Knight St., Exhibitville, Sydney, N.S.W., Mar. 31, 1911.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the world but a liberal sample of each, with a 32-page book on the care and treatment of the skin and hair will be sent free on application to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., 60 Columbus Ave., Boston, U.S.A.

RAISING KARA-KULS

A NEW INDUSTRY FOR UNITED STATES SHEEP BREEDERS

OUTCOME of Tests Made with the Only Herd of Arabi Sheep Ever Imported Proves Conclusively That This Country Can Excel Asia in Fur Raising.

B. C. C. YOUNG, author of the following article, imported the first and only herd of Kara-kul sheep ever brought into the United States. His father, who had been engaged in fur raising in Russia for twenty-five years, was unable to export any full blood Karakul rams from Bokhara, but Dr. Young took up the work in this country in 1906, and finally, with the assistance of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, brought five rams and ten ewes to Texas on December 4, 1908. This flock has increased to fifty-four head, and tests are in progress throughout the country to prove that American breeders not only can compete with Asiatic in raising Persian lamb, Astrachan and Krimmer furs, but can excel foreign rivals. The Department of Agriculture already has begun the final experiment, and Dr. Young himself is receiving the assistance of the American Breeders' Association.

BY DR. C. C. YOUNG.

(Copyright, 1911, by the New York Herald Co. All rights reserved.)

At one time Arabi sheep were found in a wild state in the semi-independent Khanate of Bokhara, Central Asia, but to-day one sees them in small numbers in the Kishlacks of the Kisel-Kurn and Kara-Kurn desert, which extends for five hundred miles north of Bokhara, in Western Turkestan.

Bokharans say that several centuries ago the small Arabi was domesticated with great difficulty, and not until the animal became seriously annoyed by hunters did it leave the arid regions of Bokhara. Some Usbeck authorities on Kara-Kul breeds, however, maintain that originally the Arabi did not inhabit Bokhara, but Arabia, and hence the name Arabi.

As there is nothing found in the animal history of Arabia about the Arabi sheep the real origin of the name Arabi is much in dispute. In the last fifty years the name Kara-Kul has been substituted for Arabi, and means in Turkish "black lake." There is a town of Kara-Kule, which is on the railroad running east from Krasnowotsk, on the eastern shore of the Caspian Sea, to Merv, and thence to Andishan, not far from Tashkent, and many graded Arabi broadtails have been brought there from the interior of Bokhara and the Kisel-Kurn and Kara-Kurn desert for exportation to Afghanistan, Persia, Caucasus and of late years European Russia, and now the name Kara-Kul is used entirely to designate the Arabi sheep.

That the Arabi is the original broadtail from which all broadtail breeds descend is an indisputable fact and it is a pity that this hardy, fur producing and most lustrous and highly pigmented member of the ovine family has been allowed to become nearly extinct, thanks to the absence in Asia of woven wire fences, which make it almost impossible to prevent the animal from becoming contaminated with other classes of sheep.

One need but look at a genuine Arabi lamb skin and compare it with one containing even a small per cent of the blood of some other breed to realize what the world is about to lose and why the precious Arabi furs often adorn the heads of the rulers of Asia. To see the priceless skins on the walls of the palaces of the Shah of Persia and the Emirs of Bokhara, Turkestan and Afghanistan, alongside the costliest rugs and oil paintings, is a treat that those of us who have been permitted to view them will not soon forget.

Full Blood Kara-Kul Yearling Ewe, Xenid

We attain similar results in this country by crossing a Kara-Kul ram with a black faced Highland ewe. The Persian lambskin produced in Bokhara, Turkestan and Afghanistan does not differ from the Astrachan, except that the curls are tight and should be closed, demanding a different kind of white long-wooled sheep from that which is indigenous to Astrachan. Persia never did produce much of the so-called Persian lamb, but as Persians have for years bought up the tight curled black skins in Afghanistan and marketed them the trade name "Persian lamb" will no doubt continue.

Excellent tight curled black skins are produced in Texas by crossing Kara-Kul rams with our American Lincolns and Cotswolds, and it is safe to predict that the Leicester and Welsleydales will give fully as good fur if not better. A three-quarter bred Texas Kara-Kul Shropshire skin recently produced in Texas was priced at $10 by furriers in Chicago, and half breed Kara-Kuls, Lincoln and Cotswold lambskins will bring even more, which is due to the difference in lustre between the Shropshire and the silk wool Lincolns, Cotswolds, Leicesters and Welsleydales.

In fact, Asia cannot possibly expect to compete with us in lustre unless its sheep fur producers will breed Kara-Kul Shropshire resulting from crossing a Persian broadtail—the best of them are only half bred Kara-Kul longwools—to a Shropshire ewe, and yet even this small amount of Arabi blood gave some satisfaction. Needless to say that a quarter breed Kara-Kul-Lincoln would have given better results, as any of the American longwools excel the Shropshires in quality of mutton, and also weight, and do not lessen the natural lustre of the Kara-Kul, thus assuring the breeder of a salable lustrous skin (gray Krimmer) that will bring from $5 to $8.

The Michigan tests also proved conclusively that Merinos that received a slight strain of Kara-Kul were very hardy and able to withstand the greatest cold, and seemed to prefer to remain outdoors in the snow, which is remarkable, as the Merino is not fond of severe cold weather.

Bokhara is noted for its severe cold winters and extremely hot summers, and this explains why the Arabi, being inured to such a climate, is able to withstand any amount of cold or heat, and it is doubtful if there is a hardier animal in the world. This animal is able to go for weeks without water, and possesses a wonderful power of resistance. The small herd which we brought to this country was a year and a half in transit and half of that time was spent in quarantine.

Quarantined in Darkness.

For more than four months they were held in quarantine at Athenia, N. J., where they were confined to a dark barn, and the only photographs that were taken during that time were flashlights. This rigid quarantine is necessary in order to ascertain the presence of surra, which cannot be detected unless the animal under inspection is kept away from sunlight. Notwithstanding this and the tedious trip across the desert, detention in quarantine in Russia and the long trip across the ocean, we did not suffer the loss of a single head.

It is an easy matter to cross the Arabi with any domesticated sheep known, and we believe that this could be done with the Rocky Mountain sheep. The Kara-Kul in its habits is no doubt nearer to the goat than to the sheep family, and quite recently we succeeded in crossing a half breed Kara-Kul Shropshire ram to an Angora goat. As the Arabi seems to possess the property of neutralizing the strong musk flavor of the Merino, it will most probably do so with the goat family and thus assure us of a better meat.

On account of the wonderful natural lustre of the Angora goat, it can easily be seen that a magnificent commercial Kara-Kul-Angora fur will be obtained from this cross. We have the best proof of this in a black Kara-Kul-Shropshire-Angora kid which was born a few days ago and possesses great lustre, notwithstanding the fact that it only contains twenty-five per cent of Kara-Kul blood, and its lustre was naturally greatly reduced by the Shropshire strain.

The large Arabi has a massive head, short face, nose line greatly bent, ears large and pendulous, sometimes absent, feet thick, short and very strong. The tail is immense and triangular shaped, with a twist on the end, often weighing thirty-five pounds and coming clear to the ground, and has to be supported in some cases by a two wheeled cart, to which the animal is hitched to prevent dragging on the ground, making manipular coupling absolutely imperative. This class of Arabi contains some foreign strain of the common Asiatic longwool sheep family. The little lambs are not always born black and occasionally one is born auburn, another proof of some foreign strain.

The wool is gray, long and coarse, with occasionally a soft underwool, which indicates the presence of tightwool blood, and is not wanted, except on the front head and lower extremities, where it is black, very lustrous and curly. The young lambs are black and curly and, like the lambs of the small class of Arabi, possess a wonderful lustre, but do not have the rich velvet appearance of the original wild Arabi.

This is the heaviest sheep in the world and excels in weight the Lincolns and Cotswolds. In our opinion the large Arabi will become the most popular in the United States as the fur obtained by crossing it with our silky long wooled sheep is sufficiently lustrous to make pretty and salable fur that will average $10 a lambskin, besides giving us wonderful mutton that will enable the Merino breeders to convert their flocks into the best of mutton sheep and give them an increase of about twenty per cent in weight and create a much hardier animal.

The American long wooled sheep, which are hard to herd when in range on account of their scattering so much, lose their tendencies when crossed with the Arabi, as all Kara-Kul breeds, on account of their wild nature, flock close together.

There is an intermediate class of Kara-Kuls resulting from crossing the small with the large Arabi, which has, however, no particular advantage over the other two classes. This country is predestined to develop the largest broadtail known by crossing the Kara-Kul with the Lincoln, and we have already ample proof to make this assertion. In days to come Asia will view the American broadtail with as much wonder and curiosity as we exhibit to-day when talking of the large Kara-Kul with its "terrible" tail.

In order to avoid all dangers resulting from inbreeding, another importation should be made and we have already received the very necessary concession to bring another flock of fifty head to this country, and have reasons to believe that on our second trip through the desert of Central Asia we shall be accompanied by certain gentlemen now connected with the Department of Agriculture, as there is very much left, indeed, to learn about this wonderful breed, which, in the near future, when wild fur producing animals will have become extinct, will have to be utilized for the protection of our people against severe cold weather.

The non-broadtailed sheep of Asia that do not contain Kara-Kul strain are certainly very much inferior to our sheep, and yet our best mutton sheep cannot compare in quality of mutton with such graded Kara-Kuls as the Persian broadtails, Astrachan broadtails, Krimmer broadtails, Shirazi, Doonboy, Zigai and African broadtails, all of which owe their hardiness, great weight and quality of mutton entirely to the Kara-Kul strain they contain.

In conclusion, we will say that those Kara-Kuls which were born on our ranch, near Wichita Falls, Texas, possess all the true characteristics of the best of Arabis which we have seen in Bokhara, and were in no way affected by the difference in the climate, and we can say the same thing of the last crop of lambs which were born in Coahuila, Mex., where the entire flock was grazing for a period of six months, and on account of the cheap lands and practically free range we would have left them there permanently had we not become dissatisfied with certain conditions due to local political influence.

From Left to Right Kara-Kul Rams, Lowden, Fasset and Teddy.

Kara-Kul Lambs, Whose Fur, in Five or Six Months, Will Be Light Gray, the Natural Color of the Matured Kara-Kul.

Three-Quarter Bred Kara-Kul Longwool Black Skin Known as Persian Lamb, Worth Thirteen Dollars, Produced in Texas.

Three-Quarter Bred Black Kara-Kul Shropshire, Can't Possibly Call It Persian, as the Parents and Also the Lamb Were Born in West Texas.

One-Quarter Bred Kara-Kul Longwool Known as Krimmer, a Gray Fur, Will Bring Five Dollars a Skin. Would Bring Ten Dollars if the Lustre Were More Pronounced.

Half Bred Kara-Kul Merino Lamb Skin. Black Fur. Known in South Russia as Peasant Fur. Produced in West Texas. Does Not Possess Sufficient Lustre; Is Therefore an Inferior Class of Fur. Would Not Bring Over Three Dollars a Skin

Unborn Half Bred Texas Kara-Kul Shropshire Prematurely Obtained. A Black Velvet Figured Fur with a Wonderful Lustre, Which Is Almost Entirely Absent if Skin Is Obtained After Birth.

Half Bred Kara-Kul Cotswold; a Magnificent Black Fur, Would Pass Under the Trade Name of Astrachan, Will Bring Eight Dollars a Skin.

There are not many people that can afford to wear full blood Arabi fur, but millions wear fur that owes its beauty to the Kara-Kul strain it contains. In some cases only as little as twelve and one-half per cent will produce a magnificent fur, as is the case with the gray Krimmer produced by the Tartars of Crimea when crossing half breed Kara-Kul rams with common white Russian long wool sheep. The black Astrachan fur, named after the Russian province Astrachan, is produced in a similar manner, but it takes more of the Kara-Kul blood than is the case with the Krimmer, as the color sought must be black. The loose and open curls of the Astrachan lamb skin are due to the particular white long wool blood which enters into its formation.

first breed their native white sheep to English longwools and improve them in lustre before crossing them with graded broadtail Arabis, such as the Shirazi. England and the United States should raise the best commercial Kara-Kul fur in the world, and yet they never produced a skin until very recently.

In 1908 we succeeded, thanks to President Roosevelt, in bringing, at a ruinous price, fifteen Kara-Kuls to this country, and to-day we have fifty-six of them. We have enough full blood bucks to cover five hundred ewes, and before many years our sheep breeders will be enabled to buy graded Kara-Kul bucks which will make it possible for them to raise such commercial Kara-Kul furs as Persian lamb, Astrachan, Krimmer, Afghanistan, &c. Several eminent breeders have made tests for us, not only in Texas but also in the North, and the results were most convincing and gratifying.

At present the Department of Agriculture is making final tests, and this fall bulletins will probably be issued, showing the many advantages derived from crossing native American sheep with Kara-Kuls. There is no doubt that in a few years our millions spent annually for Kara-Kul furs in Asia will remain among our sheep breeders in the United States. Before mentioning the other advantages gained by crossing our native sheep with the Arabi we will first give a description of the original wild Arabi, known also as the Small Arabi, and here we quote the Russian naturalist, Sinitzin:—

"Head small and narrow, with curved headline, ears small, feet thin and long, closely resembling those of the American mountain sheep; triangular, broad tail; average weight not over ten pounds, making manipular coupling unnecessary; always horned;

GRAVES IN THE WILDS

WHITE CROSSES TELL OF TRAGEDIES OF THE NORTH.

Canada's "No-Man's-Land" Has Beside Its Trails Many a Story of Suffering Told By the Rude Memorials to Loved Ones—Monuments to a Mother and Child in Timber River District Have Sad Story.

We were wayfarers on a lonely trail through No-Man's-Land—one of those historic pathways which link the wilderness, with its romance and its tragedy, to the busy haunts of men. It was far beyond the pale of the frontier, beyond the bustling strife of the market-place; and beyond the sorrows and joys, and suffering and gladness, the luxurious comforts and the distressing privations, the hypocrisy and the devotion, the pride of riches and the degradation of poverty, and the success and the disappointments which so strangely commingle in the civilization of a commercial age. Only the tinkle, tinkle of the bells of the pack train with their silvery echoes through the gorgeous though tattered autumnal forest and the monotonous crooning of the Indian guide disturbed the sanctified stillness of the wolderness. Far below us the beautiful, tempestuous Timber River, along which we were skirting, foamed through its tortuous channel amidst its evergreen banks of stately pines. There were "pines, pines and the shadows of pines as far as the eye could see, a steadfast legion of stalwart knights in dominant empery," while the phantom form of Roche Myette and his serried host haunted the horison through a filmy, violet haze.

And in the most picturesque spot of that beautiful landscape, where a grassy glade overlooked the river, with the sunbeams glinting through the trees, was a rude, crumbling palisade betokening that there was hallowed ground—"a grave in the wilderness." It proved to be the last resting-place of a mother and her babe, who had traveled, probably together, the long, lone trail across the Great Divide, the sands of which show no returning footsteps.

Close by were the ruins of a home, the battleground whereon some brave, rugged woodman and pioneer who had flouted the wild and followed its lure—one of those strange, courageous, adventurous spirits who shun the society of their fellows, and with their even more brave and devoted wives push out into the unknown to blaze the paths of civilization and [illegible] dog goes down." Only a dismantled log cabin in a little clearing where nature was rapidly effacing the evidence of this resented intrusion, together with those lonely graves wherein his heart and his hopes lay buried, remained to mark the struggle for a home and existence.

A grave in the "Great Silence" beyond the fringe of a busy world always arouses a throb of sympathy and a pang of sentiment as the traveler passes by, but here involuntarily I reined my horse to gaze on the scene which, at a glance, revealed one of the tragedies of life—a sad, sad story of the desolation of what must have been a happy though humble home by death; of the breaking of ties of affection under peculiarly distressing conditions; of a true though rugged heart left to sorrow alone when evidently all that it cherished was gone forever; but a story of pure, undying love which was manifested more beautifully, more eloquently than if it had been blasoned on marble and bronze, or if the mortal remains of the sleepers had reposed in a magnificent mausoleum decked with costly sculpture instead of beneath those spreading evergreens.

No plumed hearse or funeral car had borne them to that beautiful secluded spot where the fawns would play in the dancing sunbeams of the early morning, where the weird shadows of evening would linger longest and where the silvery moonlight would fall softly as a benediction; no clergyman was there to commit "dust to dust" amidst the tears of assembled loved ones and the wreaths of sympathy, no surpliced choir had chanted a dirge; no organ pealed; no cathedral bell had tolled.

Under the pickets now falling to decay were two crosses, one large and one small, which had respectively marked the graves of the mother and her child, but which had rotted from their sockets. Around them the wild peas and the roses twined and clung as if in sympathy. On the larger cross was cut in deep, irregular letters the simple, sacred word "Wife."

What a wealth of sentiment, of endearment, of devotion, and of pathetic grief was conveyed by the brief inscription, carved no doubt with a hunting knife!

The erection of the palisade must have been a labor of love, entailing a protracted vigil beside the graves which it was to protect from the desecration of the wild animals of the forest. Every picket had been carefully hewn from timber, while the corner posts had been shaped with the skill of an expert axeman. A little border of white stones gathered from the bed of the river 200 feet below encircled each grave like many seen in the cemeteries of civilization.

There was no name or other clue to the dead, nor yet any trace of the survivor. He had taken their history with him when he departed. The ruthless hands of time were rapidly disintegrating the touching memorial he had erected; and the stranger could only surmise what might have been the fate of one in whom lived the sentiment and the spirit of the wilderness.

Tenderly and reverently I replaced the crosses from were they had fallen and then rode slowly away from the scene of another man's grief, impressed with the fact that surely in these days of social scandals and marital faithlessness the life of that humble unknown frontiersman was a whole some object lesson.—D. J. Benham in The Saturday Globe.

PULLING THE COURT'S LEG.

A Practice the English Judge Did His Best to Discourage.

The following remarkable judgment was delivered some years ago by a magistrate in one of the English colonies:

"Pachua is hereby charged with having on the 11th of January followed the court on its rising and while said court was in the act of mounting into its buggy came from behind and, seizing the court's dangling leg, the other foot being on the step, forcibly pulled back the court, frightened the horse and nearly caused an accident. The reason alleged for this by accused is that he wanted to hear the result of an application of his. The practice by petitioners of pulling the courts by the legs is one that should be discouraged. Accused only says he is a poor man, admitting the truth of the complaint. He is sentenced to one month's rigorous imprisonment."

Strange to relate, the lieutenant governor of the province on reading this sentence felt it necessary to intimate to the magistrate that neither the sentence itself nor the peculiar phraseology in which it was couched was calculated to meet with approval from minds running in legal grooves.

Berne and Its Bears.

Berne is surrounded by the blue green river Aare, and seven bridges cross into the picturesque suburbs; the view of the Alps is one of the finest to be had. One may walk through the streets of Berne, writes an American visitor, and find constant surprises. The odd fountains will be observed with interest. They were mostly built in the sixteenth century. There are a number of public institutions worth a visit—the historical museum, museum of industry and the museums of art and nature; several libraries and the public gardens, which contain the great bear pit so universally known, to say nothing of the quaint gates and the headquarters of the Postal union. Bears have been kept on public exhibition in Berne since 1480 in commemoration of the killing of one by the Duke of Zahringen on the site of the town.

When the Guitar Arrived.

The advent of the English guitar in the eighteenth century caused the disappearance of bandores, poliphants and similar wire strung instruments, or, rather, it supplanted them, for, owing to the use of fingers, the Knglish guitar, though smaller, could be used for accompanying the voice as well as for solo performances. The instrument, which had a decorative appearance, is frequently depicted in the portraiture of the eighteenth century. It was made in various sizes, two of the smaller "to be managed by young ladies from seven to ten years of age, the other by ladies of ten and upward."

Fish Delusions.

There are two popular delusions about fish—one that they cannot live out of water and the other that they can live in any pure water, the food supply taking care of itself. As a matter of fact, there are fish in Africa which, having to exist in absolutely dry rivers for a portion of the year, have developed lungs, while in many an amateur's aquarium fish cannot live in the water provided owing to lack of food.

Suspicious.

"Very suspicious man, they say."

"Very. Bought a dictionary last week, and now he's counting the words to see if it contains as many as the publishers claim."

True Courage.

True courage has so little to do with anger that there lies always the strongest suspicion against it where this passion is highest. True courage is cool and calm.

Cheerful.

"She's of a very cheerful disposition, isn't she?"

"Yes, indeed. She even sings while washing dishes."—Detroit Free Press.

There are few things reason can discover with so much certainty and ease as its own insufficiency.—Collins.

VARICOSE VEINS CURED

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on Varicose Veins. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialties, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors a little better than curses. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skilful. I wrote them and got The New Method Treatment. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $21 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $31 and never loose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

HAVE LITTLE TO SAY.

Do Provincial Cabinet's Activities Foreshadow an Election?

Toronto, Sept. 26.—Whatever its political significance may be, there was an unusual activity yesterday up at the Parliament Buildings. All afternoon the Premier's office was a busy place. A Cabinet meeting was held in the morning, with nearly every Minister in attendance. At noon one or two of the Ministers left the city, grip in hand and wearing a very business-like expression. Sir James Whitney had numerous callers during the afternoon and there was every evidence that business of importance was being discussed.

Andrew Broder, M.P. for Dundas, was in calling on the Premier, and so was J. S. Carstairs, the Conservative organizer for Ontario.

When asked about the report that he might be the new Minister of Agriculture in the Dominion Cabinet, Mr. Broder said: "I have no particular ambitions, personally. But I do want to see Mr. Borden with a good, strong honest Government."

J. S. Carstairs was in good spirits. He hadn't heard anything about provincial elections. "But we couldn't have too much of a good thing," he jokingly remarked.

Sir James Whitney had no positive information to impart concerning the political plan of action in Ontario at this time.

"With regard to the question of these nine bye-elections, or whatever may develop with reference to them," said the Premier, "there is nothing to say beyond the fact that these questions will be taken up and dealt with by the Cabinet in the ordinary routine way."

As the reporters left the office, Sir James remarked that the weather was very nice.

It is stated that the provincial lists are being printed, which would seem to indicate that an appeal to the country is not many months distant.

TRACEY IS GUILTY.

Reckless American Motorist to Be Sentenced Later.

Toronto, Sept. 26.—After an hour's deliberation the jury in the general sessions yesterday afternoon returned a verdict of guilty against Alexander S. Tracey, who ran his motor car into a crowd of people at the corner of Roncesvalles avenue and Queen street on the evening of Labor Day.

W. A. Henderson for the defence reviewed the testimony of his client while in the witness box the previous afternoon, and pointed out how he had sworn that the car was brought almost to a standstill before reaching the corner, and that the brakes had suddenly failed to work. The car sprang ahead, throwing the people to both sides of the road.

Acting Crown Attorney Monahan in addressing the jury reminded the jurors that Tracey's first words after alighting from his car were, "Have I injured anyone?" "Now, that is exactly what a man under the influence of liquor would say, and if he ran his car at the rate of speed the witnesses state he did, he is guilty of criminal negligence."

The jury in presenting its verdict asked for mercy on behalf of the prisoner.

Tracey will appear at the close of the sessions for sentence.

O.J.C. Fall Races.

Sixth race, five furlongs, purse $500, for two-year-olds—Acton, 1st; Flying Yankee, 2nd; Missiou, 3rd. Time, 1.01 1-5.

Seventh race, one mile and seventy yards, purse $500, for three-year-olds and up, selling—Dr. Holaberg, 1st; Troy Weight, 2nd; Ed. Keck, 3rd. Time, 1.46 4-5.

Seized Box of Fish.

Montreal, Sept. 27.—The vigilance of the officers of the local branch of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, was rewarded yesterday morning when a box seized at the offices of a local express company, was found to contain between twenty-five and thirty pounds of undersized brook trout, which had been consigned from her son at St. Faustine, near St. Agathe, to Mrs. J. Sissons, 28 McGill College avenue, of this city.

Mr. Innes said yesterday morning, regarding the seizure, that while the present was open season for fishing of all kinds, it was against the fish and game laws to catch or kill anything in the shape of brook trout which was less than six inches in length. The fish in the seized box averaged four and a half inches each, and altogether there must have been a couple of hundred.

John D. Celebrates.

Cleveland, Sept. 27.—John D. Rockefeller yesterday issued his first statement to the public in many years. It came in the shape of a message expressing his thankfulness for a long and successful business career, following the gaining of his first job 56 years ago.

Incidentally it revealed the fact that the Oil King held only one "job" in all his career.

Here is how the statement read:

"The flag is flying over Forest Hill to-day in memory of 56 years ago when I secured by first and only situation, in the forwarding and commission house of Hewitt and Tuttle, on the river. I am very grateful for this memory."

The statement was made by Mr. Rockefeller to his brother-in-law, Geo. Rudd. The latter telephoned it to the papers.

Hewitt and Tuttle years ago was a well-known business firm, with offices on the Cuyahoga River front.

Bitten by Dog.

Toronto, Sept. 27.—James Stevens, who came here from Clinton on Sept. 14, is at the Western Hospital undergoing the Pasteur treatment for rabies. The treatment is being done by the provincial health authorities. Mr. Stevens was bitten by a dog, but the animal had died and was so decomposed when brought to Toronto that it was impossible to examine it for rabies. Formerly the Provincial Health Department conducted the Pasteur treatments at the General Hospital, but now the Western Hospital is being utilised as their headquarters.

Rather English Than Rich.

London, Sept. 27.—The Bishop of London drew prolonged cheers at Newcastle when he remarked that Canada preferred to remain poor and English rather than rich and American.

MARKET REPORTS.

Liverpool Wheat Futures Close Lower, Chicago Higher—Live Stock —Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—Bullish comparisons regarding the world's available supply of wheat brought about a rally to-day in the market for that cereal. The close was at a net advance of 1-8 to 1-2c. Corn and oats showed also a final gain—corn 1-8 to 3-8 to 1-2c, and oats 1-4 to 3-8 to 1-2c. In provisions the outcome was 5 to 10c decline.

The Liverpool market closed to-day ½d to ⅝d lower than yesterday on wheat, and ⅛d to ¼d lower on corn. Antwerp closed ⅝c lower on wheat, Berlin 5⅛c lower, and Budapest ⅝c lower.

Aids Nature

The great success of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in curing weak stomachs, wasted bodies, weak lungs, and obstinate and lingering coughs, is based on the recognition of the fundamental truth that "Golden Medical Discovery" supplies Nature with body-building, tissue-repairing, muscle-making materials, in condensed and concentrated form. With this help Nature supplies the necessary strength to the stomach to digest food, build up the body and thereby throw off lingering obstinate coughs. The "Discovery" re-establishes the digestive and nutritive organs in sound health, purifies and enriches the blood, and nourishes the nerves—in short establishes sound vigorous health.

If your dealer offers something "just as good," it is probably better FOR HIM—it pays better. But you are thinking of the cure and its profit, so there's nothing "just as good" for you. Say so.

TWO PETERBOROUGH STREETS TO BE PAVED THIS YEAR IF IT IS POSSIBLE

The Board of Works Decides to Place Asphalt Blocks on Chambers Street and a Section of Hunter Street.

START WILL BE MADE

The Board of Works decided last night to proceed with the work of paving Chambers street and Hunter street between Park street and Belmont avenue, and to get these improvements finished this autumn if at all possible. The streets will be paved with asphalt blocks, supplied by the Ashphalt Block Company, a representative of which, Mr. Reid, was present at last night's meeting and gave the Board some interesting information in connection with paving material. The Board had previously received requests from residents on the streets in question, asking that they be paved. The matter was discussed at some length, the question at issue being which street should be done first. Mayor Morrow thought that Hunter street should receive attention first, as he did not think Chambers street was in condition to be proceeded with this season.

Ald. Buller thought the residents on the street should be consulted as to what material they wanted to be used. He himself was doubtful as to the best paving, but was rather in favour of the bithulithic pavement, believing that it would give more employment in its construction.

City Engineer Hay said that a curb should be laid on Chambers street that would do away with the necessity of a sidewalk this fall, and the paving could quite easily be done.

It was decided, on motion of Ald. Graham and Buller, that Chambers street and Hunter street, between Park street and Belmont avenue, be paved this autumn, and that the chairman be authorized to advertise for tenders.

A letter was read from the Bell Telephone Company, offering to instal and maintain the alarm system at the pumping station for $40, and, on motion of Ald. Graham, seconded by the Mayor, the chairman was instructed to make the necessary arrangements with the company.

The City Engineer reported that Mr. F. Bartlett was through with the work upon which he had been engaged, and suggested that he be placed in charge of a sewer gang. Otherwise, it would be impossible to get all the sewers advertised done this year.

On motion of Ald. Graham and Buller, Mr. Bartlett will be engaged as sewer foreman at a salary of $3 per day.

The matter of purchasing a pile driver was left in the hands of the chairman of the Board, Ald. Metheral and the Engineer, on motion of Ald. Graham and the Mayor.

Ald. Metheral, chairman of the Board, reported that it had been impossible to do anything with the diversion of the Downie street creek owing to the fact that Mr. Blodgett, one of the property-owners along the creek, had refused to give a right-of-way unless a concrete wall was built along his property.

The City Engineer was instructed to take up the matter of an approach into the property of Thos. Laing on Cambridge street—a question brought up by the Mayor, and of a cement crossing on Crescent street as advocated by Ald. Buller.

The Engineer reported that the cost of two badly needed new culverts on Beaver Mead Creek, East City, would be $1,455, a portion of which the G. T. R. is liable for. He had so written the company's Superintendent, Mr. Lynch, but who had not yet replied. One of the old culverts—the southern one—is immediately on the G. T. R.'s right of way.

The City Engineer and Solicitor were authorized to take whatever steps are necessary to protect the city's interests in regard to the foregoing.

The City Engineer was authorized to rebuild the northern culvert on Beaver Mead Creek at once.

Teamster Matchett was granted two weeks holidays.

CITY NOT LIABLE

According to the opinion of Messrs. Holmes & Holmes, Solicitors, Toronto, Mr. W. A. Bailey has no claim on the city for damages in connection with his arrest by P. C. Newhall last spring. Mr. Bailey claimed damages and the City Solicitor sought advice from Messrs. Holmes and Holmes. The latter's opinion was read at last night's meeting of the Legal Committee and was to the effect that the city was in no way liable.

STURGEON POINT COTTAGE BURNED TO THE GROUND

Summer Home of A. F. McMichael Destroyed by Blaze—Occupants Had Barely Time to Escape With Their Lives and Had a Very Narrow Escape.

LINDSAY, SEPT. 26. — Sturgeon Point was visited by a destructive fire at an early hour this morning, when the cottage of Mr. A. F. McMichael of Toronto, was burned to the ground, together with the contents.

The cottage, which was occupied by Mrs. McMichael, two children and her mother, Mrs. Shiller, was situated on Irene Avenue. It was a two storey frame structure of six rooms, and was just back of the Dickson cottage.

About a quarter to one, this morning Mrs. McMichael was aroused from her slumbers by a crackling sound, and immediately proceeded to investigate. She opened the door leading to the lower storey, and was almost suffocated by dense smoke. She gave the alarm and the other occupants of the cottage made their escape from the doomed building. There was no time to save anything—in fact they had barely time to escape with their lives, for had not Mrs. McMichael been aroused from her sleep, the four would undoubtedly have met a terrible death.

The cottage burned like matchwood and the burning shingles were carried far out into the lake.

The fire attracted the other residents of the Point, who were soon on the scene, but the fire had gained such headway that it was impossible to save anything. The fact that it had rained during the night prevented the fire from spreading to other property, otherwise there is no telling what destruction would have been wrought.

The cause of the fire is a mystery as everything appeared to be all right when the occupants retired for the night. It is understood that the cottage and contents were insured.

Mr. McMichael who is in Toronto, was notified of the fire this morning.

SPLENDID LECTURE BY REV. G. W. HENDERSON

An attentive audience listened with delight to a lecture given by Rev. G. W. Henderson in St. James' Church last evening, on the subject of "Plodders, Loafers and Croakers." This lecture, in praise of work, was a most wholesome presentation of very practical truths and was delivered in Mr. Henderson's usual forcible style. With pointed humour the speaker distinguished the men and women, who display a real part in life's affairs, from the idlers, shirkers, excuse makers, and talkers. Incidents most aptly chosen and from actual life, were related to illustrate the distinctions made. Concerning Christian workers and their methods the speaker made many sane and helpful remarks. The great work of the consecrated service of the boys and girls as well as of their parents, in Christian work, was very effectively illustrated. True workers were always at it; there was no vacation in Christ's service. Tactfulness and consecration of the sort that reaches far enough to obtain the use of our money and wealth was essential. It is the Holy Spirit who empowered and effectively equipped for Christian life. This was the supreme need of the church.

A vote of thanks, moved by Mr. A. R. Kidd, and seconded by Mr. J. H. Moss, was tendered the speaker for his able and profitable lecture.

Mrs. Middleton and Miss Leader contributed solos that were much appreciated.

Rev. I. Couch of George Street Methodist Church, and Rev. J. R. Webb of Murray Street Baptist Church, offered brief complimentary speeches.

The lecture was under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society and was a decided success.

PAINFUL ACCIDENT

Six-Year-Old Girl Falls and Breaks Her Leg

Yesterday afternoon, about 4 o'clock, the little 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Panter, of 125 Stewart street, was playing with other children and had the misfortune to fall and break her leg, just above the ankle. Drs. Frederick and Neale were summoned, and they set the broken limb. The child, although suffering considerable pain, is resting as well as can be expected at her home. She is a bright little child, and much sympathy is felt for her and her parents.

CLAIMS DAMAGES

John H. Briggs Knocked Over During Fire Drill and Holds the City Liable—Chief Howard Makes a Statement

MAN WAS INJURED

The City Legal Committee last night took up the claim of John H. Briggs, for $60 damages and a doctor's bill, arising out of a fire drill held by the Fire Department at the corner of Aylmer and Brock streets, in June last. The complainant alleged, through his Solicitor, W. H. Moore, that he had been knocked over by a stream from a hose nozzle, sustaining injuries which confined him to his bed for five weeks.

A report was read from Fire Chief Howard that on the morning of the drill he had detailed Fireman Kidd to keep people from getting too close but that Briggs had refused to move when ordered and had sat down close to the nozzle. At this stage in the proceedings the hose burst near the nozzle and the accident to the complainant resulted. This report was corroborated by a letter from ex-Fireman Kidd.

On motion of the Mayor, seconded by Ald. Bradburn, the matter was left in the hands of the City Solicitor and Chairman Graham.

DON'T BE BALD

Nearly Anyone May Secure a Splendid Growth of Hair

We have a remedy that has a record of growing hair and curing baldness in 93 out of every 100 cases where used according to directions for a reasonable length of time. That may seem like a strong statement—it is, and we mean it to be, and no one should doubt it until they have put our claims to an actual test.

We are so certain Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will cure dandruff, prevent baldness, stimulate the scalp and hair roots, stop falling hair and grow new hair, that we personally give our positive guarantee to refund every penny paid us for it in every instance where it does not give entire satisfaction to the user.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is as pleasant to use as clear spring water. It is delightfully perfumed, and does not grease or gum the hair. Two sizes, 50c and $1.00. With our guarantee back of it, you certainly take no risk. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store. McDermid and Jury.

A CLEVER ARREST

Chief Chilton, of Lindsay, is winning his spurs. During the past few days he has made some clever arrests and among the more recent captures, is one made on Monday at noon. A Lindsay shoemaker informed the Chief that a pair of boots had been stolen from the front of his store, but he had not the slightest idea of who the guilty party was, nor could he give any information as to his appearance, but simply told the Chief what the boots were like, as near as he could remember. The Chief wandered down street, and a few minutes after met a man wearing a pair of boots. He took a glance or two at the boots, and, after satisfying himself that he was justified in making an arrest, he did so, and the man was proven guilty in court, and was fined $9.50 and also had to pay $3 for the shoes.

THIEVES IN LINDSAY

(Lindsay Post)

Lindsay seems to have been visited by a number of the light-fingered gentry on Saturday, as a number of people are mourning the loss of their pocket books and wallets.

The Post yesterday referred to two gentlemen who had been relieved of their money on the fair grounds, but they did not fare as badly as two Mallaba on Saturday.

The two men who were labourers, went to the 6.23 G. T. R. train to go to Toronto. The platform was crowded with people and the Italians wended their way to the sitting room to purchase their tickets. On assembling for their tickets they were surprised to find it missing. Between them they were relieved of $130. There is no clue to the parties who robbed them.

The Italians are at present with a corn cutting gang on a farm just south of the Ops bridge.

WAR PROSPECTS INCREASE AS THE HOURS PASS

Only a Decisive Interference on the Part of the European Powers Can Prevent a Bloody Conflict Between Turkey and Italy—Turks Determined to Prevent Landing of Italian Forces.

Special Wire to The Examiner.

CONSTANTINOPLE, SEPT. 27.—The Turkish authorities are said to be determined to take energetic measures to prevent Italy landing troops in Tripoli, and this morning troops are being mobilized here by the thousands to reinforce the Turkish garrisons at present in that country. The prospects of war there increase as the hours pass, and it is feared here that nothing short of a decisive interference by the European Powers can prevent a bloody conflict between Italy and Turkey.

This morning Italian warships with transports loaded with soldiers were lying twenty miles off shore of Tripoli, and it is stated here the landing of soldiers was delayed only by the threat of the Turkish Governor to immediately massacre all Europeans in Tripoli should the Italians make an attempt to land. According to some official advices here, Turkey has appealed to Great Britain, France, Germany and Russia to intervene, but each nation refuses.

BORDEN WILL NOT PRESENT ELABORATE BILL OF FARE

Special to The Examiner.

OTTAWA, ONT., SEPT. 27.—While much of the legislation which was on the Commons order paper when Parliament dissolved will be formally adopted by the Conservative Government, there are other bills affecting party policy and controversial matters which will be thrown overboard in their entirety, notably the terminal elevator bill and branch line proposals. Premier Borden cannot accept them, as he is practically pledged to municipal ownership. It does not seem likely that an elaborate bill of fare will be presented when Parliament meets in November. Probability is that short session will be held before Christmas, and meeting again in February.

Official Majority In This Riding 42

The Returning Officer for West Peterborough, Sheriff James A. Hall, has officially announced the returns for this Riding in Thursday's elections, Mr. Burnham's majority being given as 42. The ballot boxes were opened at 11 o'clock this morning, and the result was a reduction in the Conservative majority, from 62 as tabulated in the newspapers, to 42, the official figures. The official returns make several changes in the figures, at some of the polling divisions, but on the whole the final newspaper statistics were found to be correct. Sheriff Hall's totals are as follows: Burnham, 2,944; Stratton, 2,902. Majority for Burnham, 42. The official figures for the East Riding will not be known until Saturday, when the ballot boxes will be opened by Registrar Morrow, who is the Returning Officer for the Riding.

HOUSE WAS BURNED

Home of Jos. Levasseur, Jr., in North Monaghan Totally Destroyed by Fire Early This Morning

ORIGIN A MYSTERY

At 3 o'clock this morning the home of Mr. Jos. Levasseur, jr., situated in North Monaghan, at the foot of Park street, was totally destroyed by fire, the building and its contents being completely wiped out. The house was a storey and one half clapboard structure. The origin of the blaze seems to be a mystery. The flames spread quickly, and Mr. Levasseur and his family had only time to escape, having no opportunity of saving any of the contents. The fire was outside the city limits, and the fire brigade was not called out. Their services would have been useless in any case, as the fire had a good start.

GUNS ARE POWERFUL

Concussion Breaks Windows on Shore Ten Miles Away

Special to The Examiner.

PORTSMOUTH, SEPT. 27.—When H.M.S. Orion's thirteen and a half inch guns were tried in the English Channel today, the concussion of the firing smashed windows of buildings on land ten miles away, and also fractured the thick glass windows of the port holes and burst open all the canned goods on the ship. However, the structure of the ship is not damaged, and the Admiralty regard the experiment as satisfactory.

GERMANY ACCEPTS

Special Wire to The Examiner.

BERLIN, SEPT. 27.—There will be no war between Germany and France regarding Morocco. Ambassador Cambon was received by the Foreign Minister, Herr Von Kiderlin, at Wiechter to-day and informed that Germany accepted the latest French proposals regarding Morocco.

VICTORY FOR DEMOCRATS

Special to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, SEPT. 27.—Yesterday's state primaries were the roughest ever seen in this city and resulted largely in victory for the Democratic party, led by Tammany Hall, with the old-time vigour. Several men may die in the hospitals, following fights.

Pudding Sauce with the real Vanilla flavor

Unknown to themselves, most people for years have been using imitation Vanilla, because ordinary dessert are made from cheap substitutes. But to taste the real Vanilla flavor, put a few drops of Shirriff's True Vanilla in your pudding sauce. The flavor is exquisite. So delicious you'll always use Shirriff's True Vanilla—the real thing, made from the finest Vanilla beans grown in Mexico. Surpasses all others in strength, flavor and bouquet. 29

THE NAME NO TEST.

It is all very well as a pleasantry to suggest that honest government is an improbability because lawyers predominate in the membership of the new Parliament at Ottawa. There are 76 lawyers, as compared with 36 farmers, 33 merchants, 21 doctors, 17 manufacturers, 10 lumbermen, 8 newspaper men, 7 notaries, 4 brokers and 1 labour man. Eight journalists in the House should supply sufficient of the salt of honesty, not to speak of brains, to keep the parliamentary porridge from spoiling. Even without this moral disinfectant, the lawyers are not so dangerous as popularly supposed. As a class, lawyers contain about the same relative proportion of honest and dishonest men, as other callings. If there is any undue proportion of dishonest lawyers, it may be owing to circumstances. It is the business of lawyers to make other people honest, and possibly their indifferent success in so many cases may make them cynically up to the general prevalence of that virtue It is not a man's profession, but his principles that determine his honesty, or dishonesty. The prefix "rev." to a parson's name is no more an infallible voucher for honesty and high principle than the ourffix "K.C." to a lawyer's name is an indication of dishonesty, or loose principles. A name, or denomination, is no test of the honesty of the bearer.

THE CANADIAN NAVY.

Since the administration of national affairs has passed into other hands it is not without point to inquire whether, in regard to great national steps of advance, a policy of progress or retrogression, will be pursued. The adoption and initial application of the policy of a Canadian navy was one of the most striking evidences of our emergence into the standing of nationhood. It was due to our self respect, to our prominent place in the empire, to our just relation to the obligation to discharge the debt of protection we owed, and have owed, the Mother Country for generations. It was due to our own interests, to the protection of our own commerce, that we should undertake the very plain duty of self-defence. It was due to our place in the empire that we should step forward from the place of a mere ward of the Mother Country, in discharge of our responsibilities as a part of the Empire; it was due to our loyalty to the policy of development of our domestic resources, and of our industrial capabilities that we should undertake the construction, and maintenance of a navy for the protection of our trans-and-league coasts, and our sea-borne commerce, and to cooperate with the Imperial navy in time of stress—if such a time should unhappily come. Both sides of the House, both parties recognized this, and a resolution was unanimously adopted, in 1909, affirming this principle. Sir Wilfrid Laurier was amply justified in acting upon this unanimous mandate and the bill establishing a Canadian navy was passed the next session. But not with the same unanimity. Political exigency—the necessity of an Opposition opposing, led Mr. Borden to lead his followers into the support of a counter proposal, quite at variance with the self-respecting policy of Canada acting on her own responsibility in the matter of a navy. He proposed the presentation of the price of two Dreadnoughts to the British Government—a too easy way of shirking Canadian responsibility—a way that meant a return to the too long prevalent condition of Canadian dependence for naval protection upon the Mother Country. Mr. Borden, during the debate on the naval bill, and at other times, insisted upon a Canadian navy, "built in Canada from our own resources, by our own men, with our own material." This was in most creditable contrast with his later attitude of a gift of twenty million dollars to the Home Government, to be used without the "say" of the Canadian taxpayer—to give employment to workmen not Canadians, and the use of materials not Canadian; for ships to be built not "from Canadian resources and by Canadian men, with Canadian materials."

What will be Mr. Borden's attitude to the Canadian navy question, which is proven no more a question, but a fact? He owes no small share of his support in the House to a party wickedly hostile to British ideals and British interests, a party that declares out and out against a navy, or, even, contribution to a navy. Will he yield to this wing of his party and turn back the hands on the deal? In some quarters there is mention of a "referendum" on the naval question—upon a matter fixed and decided upon. The naval question has been settled according to the fundamental principles of British Government—the responsibility and competency of Parliament. When Confederation was under consideration, the matter of a referendum was suggested. Sir John Macdonald took strong ground against the proposal. He rightly held that Parliament, in accordance with sound British polity, was competent to deal with the matter, and it was so dealt with. The referendum is a too radical an innovation to suit British ideals of government.

SURELY NOT MONK.

It is amazing to see the name of Mr. Monk included in the new Cabinet "slates." Mr. Monk is the parliamentary leader of the Nationalist party, and Mr. Bourassa's first lieutenant.

Mr. Monk for years has denounced Sir Wilfrid Laurier as being too subservient to the English-speaking majority, a renegade to his race and his faith.

It was Mr. Monk who moved to make French an official language in the Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Mr. Monk has been one of the most industrious anti-British agitators in Quebec, and was read out of the Conservative party by the Toronto News, because of his attitude toward the question of imperial naval defence.

Surely there will be sufficient self-respect in the Conservative party to reject Mr. Monk's pretensions.—London Advertiger.

OUR NEIGHBORS.

Mr. Borden says of the election that "the verdict was in no wise dictated by any spirit of unfriendliness to the great Republic. No such spirit exists."

But Mr. Borden cannot acquit many of his platform and press supporters of the crime of trying to arouse a spirit of worse than unfriendliness to the United States. The cartoons of the Montreal Star, the Toronto World and Toronto News, copied by anti-reciprocity journals in every province, were studiously insulting to the American people, President Taft in particular, coming in for the most scurrilous abuse. The great majority of Canadians are not imbued with the hatred of the United States which the active enemies of the Canadian Government tried to breed, but the anti-American propaganda preyed on the fears of a sufficient number to influence the result of the election in this Province. The mischief-makers were, of course, not sincere, and our American neighbors, who have had experience of the same tricks in their own country, are able to see through the game and make allowances.

It is only fair to add that the organizers of the anti-reciprocity campaign have nothing but cordial feelings towards certain American interests, especially the lumber trust, the paper trust and the grangers. There was something more than brotherly love in their mutual relations.—London Advertiser.

Oh, my! how your complexion has improved. Yes, Miller's Compound Iron Pills did it.—Wm. Madill, Druggist.

AS TO THE FUTURE OF THE CANADIAN NAVY

Among the legislative and administrative legacies left over by the Laurier Ministry to its successor will be the carrying into effect of the naval policy that has been developed in and by the Canadian Parliament during the past few years, and especially during the last three. That policy was embodied in the session of 1909 in a statute entitled "An Act Respecting the Naval Service of Canada," and very much has been done in the interval toward putting that statute into effective operation. Fortunately, the Liberal members-elect will be unanimous in support of their leader, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in this matter; it remains to be seen what the attitude, or attitudes, of the Conservatives and their Nationalist allies will be. Action of some sort must be taken almost immediately by the new Government in consequence of the receipt of tenders for some of the preliminary constructive work. This will be made all the more necessary by the fact that considerable progress has already been made with the construction of the Australian fleet unit. A first class armoured cruiser, which is now under construction on the Clyde, will be launched next month, and the cruisers of the Bristol class and two submarines are rapidly progressing. Canada must begin at once to make visible progress or prepare to be discredited by contrast.

In order to enable the public to understand not merely the present position of the Bourassa-Borden party on the navy question, but also how Mr. Borden has been driven into it by Mr. Bourassa, it is not necessary to go further back than the Parliamentary session of 1909. Mr. Foster early in that session gave notice of the following resolution:

"That in the opinion of this House, in view of her great and varied resources, of her geographical position and national environments, and of that spirit of self-help and self-respect, which alone befits a strong and growing people, Canada should no longer delay in assuming her proper share of the responsibility and financial burden incident to the suitable protection of her exposed coast line and great seaports."

In a temperate speech Mr. Foster put forward strong reasons for the adoption of his resolution. It was accepted in spirit by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who also argued in support of its main contention, but the Premier expressed a wish that it should be made more definite, and in order to make it so, he offered a substitute, which was afterwards modified at Mr. Borden's suggestion and adopted by the House without a division, as follows:

"This House fully recognizes the duty of the people of Canada, as they increase in number and wealth, to assume in larger measure the responsibilities of national defence.

"The House is of opinion that under the present constitutional relations between the mother country and the self-governing dominions, the payment of regular and periodical contributions to the Imperial treasury for naval and military purposes would not, so far as Canada is concerned, be the most satisfactory solution of the question of defence.

"The House will cordially approve of any necessary expenditure designed to promote the speedy organization of a Canadian naval service in cooperation with and in close relation to the Imperial navy, along the lines suggested by the Admirality at the last Imperial Conference, and in full sympathy with the view that the naval supremacy of Britain is essential to the security of commerce, the safety of the Empire, and the peace of the world.

"The House expresses its firm conviction that whenever the need arises the Canadian people will be found ready and willing to make any sacrifice that is required to give hearty co-operation in every movement for the maintenance of the integrity and honour of the Empire."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier was quite justified in assuming that this was a mandate from the House of Commons to take the steps necessary for giving effect to its previously expressed will, and accordingly it was intimated in the Speech from the Throne in the session of 1910 that a naval bill would be submitted for enactment. Such a bill was introduced early in January, and a brief debate took place on the motion for its first reading. The Premier explained the nature of the contemplated organization of the naval service, and announced definitely that "when Britain is at war Canada is at war," that in time of peace the Canadian navy would be absolutely under the control of the Canadian Parliament and the Naval Department, and that it would probably comprise "four Bristols, one Boadicea and six destroyers." The Bristol is a protected cruiser, with a tonnage of 4,800 and a speed of 25 knots; the Boadicea is an unprotected cruiser of 3,300 tons, and six four-inch guns; the destroyers are to be of the very latest and most approved type. Mr. Borden spoke strongly in favor of the construction and organization of a "Canadian navy," but criticized the Government proposal as "either too much or too little," and added:

"I say to my Right Honourable Friend, the Prime Minister, so far as my words may have any weight with him: 'Go on with your naval service. Proceed slowly, cautiously, surely. Lay your proposals before the people, and give them the necessary opportunity to be heard, but do not forget that we are confronted with an emergency which may rend this Empire asunder before the proposed service is worthy of the name.' In the face of such a situation immediate, vigorous, earnest action is necessary."

Even in this first reading Mr. Monk made it clear that he was opposed to the creation of a Canadian navy. He has opposed it consistently ever since but Mr. Borden is now in a position to leave him out of consideration. The situation as it stands is full of interest, and its outcome will be closely watched.—The Globe.

RHEUMATISM GONE, SAYS DETECTIVE KILLEN

Morrisey's No. 7 and Liniment Cured His Knee. Feels good as new."

St. John, N.B., April 12, 1911.

"I am glad to report that my knee is completely cured of Rheumatism—thanks to Father Morrisey's No. 7 Rheumatism and Kidney Tablets, as they alone are responsible for my cure. I was troubled for a number of years, and tried everything I heard of, and, needless to say, spent quite a sum of money without any results. I have no further trouble now, and my knee feels as good as new. I was personally acquainted with the late Father Morrisey and know his remedies are good. Anyone suffering from Rheumatism and Kidney trouble should by all means try No. 7 Tablets, as I can cheerfully recommend them."

Patrick Killen,
Provincial Detective, St. John, N.B.

The above prescription is not a "Cure-All" or so-called patent medicine. Dr. Morrisey prescribed it for 44 years and it cured thousands after other doctors failed.

HIGH-CLASS ADVERTISING

The latest report received from the Grand Trunk System from their representatives at the Festival of Empire, Crystal Palace, London, Eng., gives particulars regarding the interest that is being shown in the beautiful exhibit that the Grand Trunk and the Grand Trunk Pacific installed in their handsome building erected expressly for this event.

The number of people who have visited the pavilion up to September 2nd, has been 250,756, and the number of pieces of literature descriptive of the company's lines, that have been distributed, amount to over 150,000 copies.

A special feature of the exhibit is the series of cinematograph shows given in the Grand Trunk Railway Pavilion daily, and since the opening of the Festival, May 21st last, 720 shows have been put on, each one of which has been attended by hundreds of people.

The building in which the exhibits are installed, is a replica of the magnificent new station that the Grand Trunk have erected at Ottawa, and its ornate design, and classic lines of architecture, has elicited admiration from all who have seen it.

The general exhibit is one of the best that the Grand Trunk have installed, compared to all those at the big exhibitions of recent years, and the company were gratified a few days ago to learn that they had received the highest awards from the Jury of Awards by the award of two "Grande Prix" for their endeavours.

The Grand Trunk exhibit in London this year is a splendid advertisement for the Dominion of Canada.

CHEMONG PICNIC

A picnic was held at Chemong in connection with the Sunday School. Sports of all kinds was indulged in. One of the main features was the needle race, won by Alex. Knott, first, and Dan Whetung, second. Mrs. Kerpatrian of Toronto, contributed towars the entertainment of the young people, which was much appreciated by the youngsters, as well as the older people.

The old men's race was won by Mr. John Taylor, who is over 70 years of age. The sack and bag race was won by Kenneth Jacobs, first, and Henry Taylor, Jr. The girls' spoon race was won by Flora Cappaway, first.

The boys' spoon race was won by Lawrence Taylor, first, Austin McCrea, second.

Men's spoon race by David Jacobs.

Boys' three-legged race by Austin McCue and Winson Prosser.

A baseball match between the seniors and juniors was also pulled off, resulting in a win for the seniors, with a score of 10 to 12.

This was one of the most successful picnics of the season. The weather while cool, was very propitious for the carrying on of the sports.

Can Now Work With Comfort

The Old Pains and Aches Are Now Only a Memory

Tells of the Wonderful Benefits Obtained From

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

Like many another Newfoundlander living far from doctors, Mr. Stone feels unbounded gratitude for the benefits obtained from the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

For years he had suffered from a congested condition of the liver and kidneys, with headaches, backaches, pains in limbs and body. Words fail to describe his sufferings as well as the gratitude he wants to express for the cure.

Mr. Alex. J. Stone, West Point, Nfld., writes: "I suppose you thought I had forgotten all about you when I got Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, but I haven't. You must excuse mistakes, for like many Newfoundland men, I have not much education, but I want to thank you many times for your medicine.

"I cannot tell you what I suffered from liver and kidney derangements, indigestion and constipation, nor can I find words to express how much good this medicine has done me. I feel better than I have for ve years and have given some of these pills to friends, who tell me they have done them a wonderful lot of good. I want to express my heartfelt gratitude for the benefit derived from the great medicine."

DRINK HABIT
Cured in Three Days

Each time you look upon a wreck of manhood staggering along the street it is with pity; each time you see a gently-bred and reared woman reduced to poverty and toil because she married a drinking man, there is compassion in your heart. But you should stop and THINK! Haven't you a liquor drinker in your OWN family right now? He may be considered a "moderate" drinker, and YOU may believe that he will continue to drink moderately, but in that you are mistaken. Daily, the alcoholic poison is accumulating in his system—it cries out through the nerves for more and MORE alcohol. Soon, mentally and physically weakened, socially and financially ruined, he will be looked upon just as any other drunkard is looked upon. Now, RIGHT NOW, is the time to have him cured.

THE Gatlin Treatment
"Safe Because It Contains No Poisons."

The Gatlin treatment will cure any drinker—any drunkard—in three days. It will restore his will power, his manhood, his normal brain-strength—it will cause him to regard drunkards as sober men now regard him, and it will do away with craving, desire, physical and nerve-demand for liquor.

NO HYPODERMIC INJECTIONS

The Gatlin treatment is internal. The absence of hypodermic injections, substitutive stimulants, poisonous drugs, renders it a safe treatment to take. There can be no bad after-effects. It would not harm a child.

Each patient is accepted for treatment under legal contract that it has to be entirely satisfactory in every particular, or the fee paid is refunded when the patient is leaving the Institute, and the treatment costs nothing.

The Gatlin Home Treatment is just as effective as Institute treatment if simple directions are followed.

The New Fall Coats

Dozens of Cleverly Designed Models---From Simple Utility Coats to Elaborate Evening Wraps---Embracing all Styles, Fabrics and Colours That are Worth While From the Well Dressed Women's Standpoint.

Fashion Originators and Style Creators have certainly been lavish in the matter of separate coats for Autumn.

In the history of this store never was there a season that provided such variety, so much beauty, and such wide field for satisfactory selection.

To mention only a few:—there are simple utility coats for the street, many exclusive styles including the reversible beavers and tweeds which are destined to be so popular this season. In every case the models are confined solely to us in Peterborough, enabling you to purchase a coat unlike anyone else in the whole town They are all new, all distinctively original and individual in appearance. Their grace and beauty is due in no small measure to their adherence to the prevailing slender silhouette effects that are so becoming, and which have been built into these outergarments by master hands.

You are sure to find just the New Fall Coat you want among these distinctive models, these exclusive patterns and the pleasingly moderate prices.

Regular Weekly Drill of the Rangers Last Night---No March Out on Account of Small Turnout---No Drill Until Further Orders---Orders for the Week Are Important.

The regular weekly drill of the 57th Regiment, "Peterborough Rangers," was held last night in the Armoury. Drill will be discontinued for the present, until further orders. There was to be a march-out last night, but owing to the small turnout, it was not considered worth while. The orders for the week are somewhat important, and are as follows:

Headquarters Peterboro,
Sept. 26, 1911.

Orders by the Officer Commanding 57th Regiment "Peterboro Rangers."

No. 1—The following extract from General and Militia Orders are promulgated for the information of the Regiment:

G. O. No. 93—6th June, 1911. "Peterboro Rangers"—To be signalling officer: Lieut. G. K. Rackham, vice W. R. G. Higgins. 2nd May, 1911.

G. O. No. 97—13th June, 1911—To be Lieut.-Col. and to Command the Regiment, Major E. B. Clegg, vice Lieut.-Col. A. Stevenson, who is hereafter to the reserve of officers. 20th April, 1911.

G. O. No. 98—20th June, 1911—To be Provisional Lieut., Chas. Hogan Ackerman, gentleman. 16th May, 1911.

To be Brevet-Major, Capt. D. Walker. 11th June, 1911.

M. O. No. 347—18th July, 1911—A certificate of qualification as Lieutenant is granted to Lieut. W. G. Hall, 57th Regiment.

M. O. No. 285—2nd July, 1911—"Pursuant to Par. 1407 A, King's Regulations and Orders for the Canadian Militia, 1911, the following Armoury and Drill Hall shall fly the Union flag on all Sundays and royal and public occasions: Peterboro, Ont."

G. O. No. 83—1st June, 1911—(1) The Colonial Auxiliary Forces officers decorations under the provisions of the royal dates 19th May, 1902, and general order No. 132 of Nov., 1901, is awarded to Lieut.-Col. A. Stevenson, 57th Regiment Infantry; (2) the Colonial Auxiliary Forces long service medal is awarded to Privates W. H. Cunningham, R. M. Beach, and G. Fitzgerald, 57th Regiment Infantry.

No. 2—Drill will, after this date, be discontinued until further orders. Shooting will, however, be continued for September and October, as follows: Tuesdays—A and B Companies; Wednesdays—C and D Companies; Thursdays—E and F Companies; Fridays—G and H Companies. Buglers and bandsmen will shoot with the companies to which they are attached.

No. 3—Each company, the bandsmen, the bugle band and the stretcher section, will immediately after the parade send a representation to the men's recreation room to arrange a schedule for indoor baseball.

No. 4—Leave of absence from parade is hereby granted to Major Bennet, Capt. A. P. McLean and Lieut. Rackham.

ALFALFA FIELDS WILL NOT BE JUDGED THIS YEAR

Some Interesting Information About the Special Alfalfa Competition---How the Crop Secured This Fall Should be Managed---Facts of Vital Importance.

The committee of management in connection with the Special Alfalfa Competition, which was arranged last spring in the interests of the farmers in Peterborough County, has decided that it will not be necessary to judge the alfalfa fields this fall. In drafting the regulations under which the alfalfa competition would be conducted, a provision was made that the fields were to be judged twice before the prizes would finally be awarded; first, on or about the first week of October, and the following summer on or about the first of June. It has since developed that every purpose will be served by judging the alfalfa but once and that early next June before it is cut for hay.

Several local farmers who have sown alfalfa this season for the first time have inquired recently as to how they should manage the crop they have secured this fall. A real fine catch has been secured by a goodly number of farmers in the district, and in many cases it is of considerable length, and their owners are anxious to cut or pasture it. In one case an inquirer has secured so luxuriant a stand that he is afraid the crop will be smothered out unless he cuts it before winter.

Facts of Vital Importance.

All who have alfalfa and are not experienced in handling the crop will do well to remember that the first winter is the most critical time in the whole life history of the alfalfa plant. Once it is safely through the first winter, the alfalfa has a fair chance of persisting and yielding abundant and profitable crops for some years in succession. While many alfalfa growers have found that they can pasture their alfalfa without danger to the stand, it should be understood by all that it is decidedly risky to pasture alfalfa the first fall. A real good top is essential to ensure the stand coming through the winter safely. A good top on the plants favours root development and protects the ground from alternate freezing and thawing in early winter and in spring, and it holds the snow during winter and thereby provides the very best of protection for the crop.

Ensure the Crop for Next Year.

Those of our readers who have secured a good stand of alfalfa from which they look for good returns next year are advised to forego any immediate returns in the way of hay or pasture from the crop in order that they may the better ensure the returns they seek next year.

Anyone having a first-class stand of alfalfa of this year's seeding and have not entered it in the Alfalfa Competition are advised to get in touch with the secretary. Five valuable prizes are to be awarded to the winning competitors who secure the highest number of points. There is no entry fee whatever, and competitors have everything to gain from entering in the competition. The competing fields will be judged by experts on or about the first of June, 1912. All communications, entries and inquiries should be addressed to the secretary of the competition, care of Farm and Dairy, Peterboro, Ont.

Four-Dollar Bills In Use

The Ottawa Free Press says: If you find among your small change that someone has passed off a four dollar bill on you as a one dollar bill, don't worry! The four dollar bill is quite as good currency as the one, and it is the other man that is three dollars out. The trouble lies in the fact that the man, who designed the four dollar note, made it altogether too much like the one dollar bill.

Generally the similarity does not bother tradesmen very much, but at present there are an unusually large number of the four dollar bills passing around. At the present time, with the tremendous crops moving in the west, all the banks have their currency out to pretty near the limit. As an emergency currency they are using the old government four dollar bill, and are stocking up their own bills as much as possible for use in the west. To make the circulation go as far as possible they are using the four dollar bills.

"There is no danger of any shortage in currency, now that we have the four dollar bills in circulation," said Mr. J. H. Neeve, inspector of the Bank of Ottawa to The Free Press the other morning. "This will tide us over until we are able to issue some new currency.

"Every bank is allowed to issue currency to the amount of its unimpaired capital, but from October 1 to January 1 are emergency months; and then we are allowed to issue 15 per cent. over our unimpaired capital, and pay interest to the government. On October 1 we will be able to relieve any strain there is on the currency."

An official of the Bank of Montreal told The Free Press that the four dollar bill was universally disliked because of its similarity to the one dollar bill and frequently came back to the bank defaced. The latest issue, the one which is being used now, however, had "Four" written in the two top corners, and $4, the figure, in the two lower ones, so that there could be no mistake.

TIRED-OUT KIDNEYS

Kidney troubles are so frightfully common because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or excesses of eating and drinking. Cure is effected not by whipping them on to renewed effort, but by awakening the action of liver and bowels by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This rests the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

A NEW ORGANIZATION

An enthusiastic meeting of the young people of St. Andrew's church was held on Monday evening, when plans on a large and promising scale were formulated for the coming season's work. In future the young people's societies will be known as the St. Andrew's Young People's Association, which takes in the Young Men's Guild, the Young Ladies' Mission Band and the Y.P.S.C.E.. The two first societies, however, will have their regular meetings, as formerly

The following officers were elected for the organization:

President—Mr. Rutherford.

1st Vice-Pres.—Miss Maggie Gillespie.

Recording-Secretary — Miss Helen Harper.

Cor.-Sec.—Miss Jennie Richardson.

Convenor of the Social Committee—Miss Margaret Ree.

Convenor of Programme Committee—John Sharpe.

Pianist—Miss Lizzie Shearer; Assistant, Miss Girvin.

The programme of meetings for the coming season was mapped out. The main reason for the amalgamation of the societies into one is to promote as much as possible the sociability of the society, and to endeavour to bring new members into the church. During the winter, sleigh drives and various other forms of social functions will be given for that purpose. Once a month there will be a district meeting of the association, when prominent men from outside places will be secured to address the society.

Claim For Damages

At the meeting of the Legal Committee last night a letter was read from Mr. A. E. Dixon, on behalf of Jas. O'Connell, claiming $300 for damages done to his property on Smith street, owing to the construction of an approach to the Smith St. bridge.

City Solicitor Hall stated that according to the plan made by Surveyor Cameron nearly all Mr. O'Connell's home was on city property, and he believed the proper thing to do was to notify Mr. O'Connell to remove his house from city property.

On motion of Ald. Bradburn and Edgar, the City Solicitor will write Mr. O'Connell to that effect.

Accounts were presented from Messrs. Jas. Akey and Daniel Bellegham, for damages to their vehicles, said to have been sustained during the runaway of a horse employed on city street work.

The Committee will get a report from the City Engineer in regard to the matter before taking any action.

A Coming Treat

The management committee of the Sergeants' Mess is making arrangements with Mr. Oscar Telgmann for the production in Peterborough at an early date of the military opera, "Leo the Royal Cadet," a most spectacular production, which will require the services of 200 local people, including many members of the 57th Regiment. "Leo the Royal Cadet" is a military romance in four acts of unusual interest, telling a pretty story of modern life aptly fitting the old adage, "All is fair in love and war." Its military character gives it brightness. It is not marred by parts that drag; the action moves hurriedly from start to finish, solos, choruses, tableaux, etc., follow each other in quick succession. The music is catchy, the songs tuneful, and the choruses spirited and the military evolutions and scenic effects all tend to make it one of the most brilliant spectacular and refined operas before the public.

Johnson In Training

Paris, Sept. 23.—Jack Johnson, the negro champion, who has been training here for his fight with Bombardier Wells on Oct. 2nd, says he knows all the latter's tricks. He has gone through his first round of training on his own ideas. It consists of two hours in running, a brisk walk on the Bois de Boulogne in the early morning, and an hour with the dumbbells, skipping, and Swedish gymnastics, and another hour in sparring. In the afternoon he spends three hours playing pinochle.

Johnson has stopped giving his exhibitions in the Magic City. He says his match with Wells is much too serious for him to comply with the expectations of the public here in the daily shows. They want lively exhibitions. The colored champion tried so hard to satisfy them that one day during the week Cutler, one of his sparring partners, landed a swing on his lip, and re-opened a wound he received during the Reno fight with Jeffries. "No more of this," said Johnson. "I cannot afford to fool around this way with a big fight coming off."

Johnson laughs at the action of the clergymen who are trying to stop the bout. He says they are only advertising the match. The colored champion says he is surprised to find that the French have some real fighters. "They are just as scientific as we are," said Johnson, "and maybe I will fight my first big fight here this winter."

29th ANNUAL CONGRESS OF THE SALVATION ARMY

The 29th Annual Congress of The Salvation Army in Canada will be held in Toronto from October 11th to the 16th, inclusive. This Congress will be of special significance to the officers and members of The Army, as General Booth has arranged for his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Bramwell Booth, wife of the Chief of the Staff, to conduct the entire series of meetings. Mrs. Booth will be accompanied by Colonel Mildred Duff, also from London, England.

Mrs. Booth is head of the Women's Social Work in all lands, and is a recognized authority on the treatment of those unfortunate women who are cared for in connection with this beneficial work.

The Welcome Meeting to Mrs. Booth will take place in the Massey Hall on Wednesday, October 11th. This will without doubt be the most impressive spectacular and interesting demonstration of The Army work ever held in Canada. It will be in the nature of a pageant, over three hundred persons taking part in the same.

On Sunday afternoon, Mrs. Booth will give a special social address in the Massey Hall. The chair will be occupied by his Hon. Lieut. Governor Gibson. This will be followed by a special evangelistic service in the Massey Hall in the evening.

The programme of meetings (public and private), prepared by Commissioner David M. Rees, leader of The Salvation Army in the Dominion of Canada, is indeed an extensive one, and will be of interest to those who are fortunate enough to attend. It is anticipated that many members and friends of The Army will go to Toronto to participate in this Congress, special railway rates having been arranged with the different Transportation Companies.

WILL HOLD ANOTHER HARVEST SALE

Although the harvest thanksgiving sale in the S. A. Temple on Thursday evening was well attended, it was found impossible to dispose of all the goods received in the limited time, and another sale is being arranged for Thursday evening, Sept. 28, at 8 o'clock, when the balance of the goods will be cleared out. In view of this extra sale, further donations of fruit, flowers, vegetables, poultry and staple goods of all kinds will be gratefully accepted at the Temple, Simcoe St., on Thursday, or a card to Ensign Merrett, 320 King St. or 'Phone 440 will receive attention. The public are invited to the sale.

Bicyclist Run Down

An accident which might have assumed more serious proportions, occurred yesterday at about 4.45 o'clock on George street. A boy named Jack Lirkins was riding his wheel south on George street, when two other little boys drove up behind him with a pony attached to a buggy, and ran into him, knocking him off the wheel, and the buggy passed over him. The little boy's cries attracted a large crowd, and he was assisted to his feet, when it was found that he was not much hurt, but bruised, where the wheels of the buggy passed over him. It is evident that those in the buggy did not see the youngster. His wheel was slightly damaged.

WEDDING BELLS

RUSSELL—MERRILL.

A quiet and pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Merrill, Benson avenue, on Wednesday, September 27, when their eldest daughter, Hazell Zieda Winnifred and Geoffrey P Russell, formerly of Guelph, were united in the holy bands of matri- united in the holy bonds of matri-

The bride was daintily attired in a white satin striped voile, with satin and insertion trimmings, wearing the conventional bridal veil and carrying a shower boquet of white roses.

To the strains of the Lohengrin bridal chorus, played by her sister, Miss Myrtle Merrill, the bride entered the parlour leaning on the arm of her father, and took their places beneath an arch of ferns, mountain ash berries, and white asters.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Couch, after which the company adjourned to the dining-room, where a dainty dejeuner was served.

The bride's "costume de voyage" was of navy blue serge and black picture hat.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell left by the 4.28 C. P. R. for Toronto, Hamilton, Guelph, and other points, and on their return will reside in their new home in Benson avenue.

HICKSON—ENGLISH.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Paul's church, Norwood, when Miss Katherine English, one of Norwood's most popular young ladies became the bride of Mr. Robert Hickson of Ennismore. The bride, who looked charming, was given away by her brother, Mr. Edward English, while Rev. Father Kelly performed the ceremony. The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Josie O'Donnell of Peterborough, and the groom was supported by Mr. J. Kilon of Ennismore. After the ceremony the bridal party drove to the home of the bride, where a dainty repast was served to over sixty guests. The bride was the recipient of numerous and costly presents, showing the esteem in which she is held by her many friends. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome gold watch and fob, and to the bridesmaid a ring set with emeralds and pearls, while the groomsman received a watch fob.

After receiving the congratulations of their friends the happy couple left on the 4.46 train for Toronto, where the honeymoon will be spent, after which they will reside in Peterborough. The bride's travelling costume was a tailored suit of navy blue with a velvet hat with willow plumes.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. M. Fee and daughter, Miss Josie of Winnipeg; Mrs. M. Cowhey of Chicago, and Miss Julia O'Donnell of Toronto.

ANGLESEY—SULLIVAN.

A pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Martin's Church, Ennismore, yesterday morning, when Miss Minnie Sullivan, daughter of Mr. Michael Sullivan, Ennismore, was united in marrriage to Mr. Patrick Anglesey, of Young's Point, and son of Mrs. M. Anglesey, 149 Rubidge street, City. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Fitzpatrick in the presence of a few intimate friends. Miss Lizzie Sullivan, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, while the bridegroom was assisted by his brother, Mr. Jas. Anglesey of Peterborough. The young couple, who willl reside at Young's Point, were the recipients of a number of very handsome presents.

OBITUARY

DAVID LITTLE.

At the ripe age of 74 years David Little passed away last evening at the residence of his nephew, Mr. S. J. Little, Lot 12, Con. 11, Smith. The deceased was born in England, but had been a resident of Cobourg for twenty-five years, removing to Peterborough in the advent of his sickness, some two months ago.

He leaves no family and is survived only by one brother, in England.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at the Little-Lake cemetery.

CLARENCE E. SHERIN.

An old Peterborough boy passed away in New York on Saturday last, September 23rd, in the person of Mr. Clarence E. Sherin, whose death occurred after an operation for appendicitis performed in St. Elizabeth's Hospital, West 51st Street, on the previous evening. He became ill on Thursday while on a train returning to New York from Rochester. The deceased was born in Emily, Ont, and was educated in Peterborough and neighbourhood, and lived there until about 20 years of age. He was the eleventh of a family of eight boys and four girls, in which the first break occurred only two years ago.

The late Mr. Sherin was a special newspaper representative for about three years when he sold out and started the general advertising agency which bears his name, doing business at 452 Fifth avenue, New York City. He was president of the C. E. Sherin Co.; president of Repetti; a large stock holder in the New York and Kentucky Company, and many other business enterprises.

Before he went to New York he was owner and publisher of the St. Paul Daily News, and before that business manager of the St. Paul Dispatch.

His home is in Bound Brook, N. J.

The funeral services were held in the Bound Brook Presbyterian church at 2:30 on Tuesday afternoon.

He is survived by his wife and two daughters, Mrs. Arthur F. Hetherington, of Bound Brook, and Miss C. Eloise Sherin. J. W. Sherin, now of Emily is a brother, while H. P. Kennedy of Peterborough, is a nephew of the deceased. Another brother, Henry Sherin, is a real estate operator in Toronto.

Personally, Mr. Sherin was widely esteemed for his companionable qualities, which made him friends far outside the immediate range of his business. He was a great lover of nature and nature's works and to indulge this predelection, he bought an extensive property at Bound Brook, N.J., on the Raritan River, and made it a show place where practical farming, landscape gardening and kindred operations engaged his leisure. There Mr. Sherin surrounded himself with cattle and horses and dogs and other living creatures for which men of his temper have an honest love. One of his horses, "Interpreter," was a prize winning jumper at most of the horse shows in New Jersey. Mr. Sherin fished and hunted and out of these diversions got all the pleasure full-blooded men usually do. No one had a keener sense of the joys of the sportman. He was a member of the Beaverkill Trout Club, Beaverkill, Sullivan Co., N.Y., New York Club, New York Athletic Club, the Wachung Country Club and other Social organizations, and a Mason, (Palestine Commandery Knights Templar.)

WEDDING BELLS

RICHARDSON—JAMIESON.

St. Andrew's Church was the scene of a pretty wedding at 3.00 this afternoon, when Ivy, daughter of Mr. John Jamieson, of 314 Boswell avenue, and Mr. W. A. Richardson, son of Mr. Thomas Richardson of Peterborough, were united together in the bond of holy matrimony.

The bride, who looked charming, was given away by her father, and the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Jas. Rollins, B.A. The ushers were Messrs F. Gillespie and E. C. Howard. Miss McClelland played the wedding march.

The bridal couple left this afternoon for a trip to Vancouver and Seattle, after which they will reside at 317 Boswell avenue.

Causing No Excitement

London, Sept. 24.—Although the world's heavyweight championship is presumably at stake, the coming battle between Champion Jack Johnson and Bombardier Wells, the English title-holder, is not causing a great deal of excitement in sporting circles here. Even the big purse of $40,000, the largest ever given for a prize fight outside of the United States, has not stirred the public to enthusiasm.

If opposition can be considered advertisement, the fight has received such from widely divergent sources, as the sporting writers and the pulpit. Most of the pugilistic experts, writing for the sporting papers, continue to criticize Wells' backers for permitting him to battle against the champion. These writers agree in describing Wells as a promising but inexperienced fighter, and they deplore the blight to his career which a defeat at this time would entail.

Apparently unmoved by the opposition against their meeting, the champion and challenger are hard at work at their respective training quarters, Johnson in Paris and Wells at Leigh-on-Sea and Earlscourt. When the black champion left here for the French capital he was fat, and if he attains fighting weight by Oct. 2nd he will have put in some strenuous work over the boulevards. Wells claims to be in the pink of condition, and looks it. For the remainder of his training season the English champion will take things easy, doing only enough work to keep in weight.

This will be the first heavyweight championship to be decided here since the fight between Tommy Burns and Gunner Moir at the National Sporting Club, and preparations are being made to accommodate a record crowd of spectators. The match will take place in the Empress Hall, Earlscourt, a place now used as a skating rink. The hall, which is one of the largest in London, will be converted into a perfectly equipped boxing area, seating 18,000 and providing standing room for several thousand more. The ring will be pitched in the middle of the floor, giving every spectator an unobstructed view of the fight. The only detail of the fight still unarranged is the question of the referee, which will be decided by the fighters to-morrow night.

Try on Some of Our New Suits and Overcoats

See how attractive they are in style, how perfectly they fit, and of what excellent fabrics they are made. You'll see an immense line of quite practical and refined styles which are so much in demand by correctly attired men. The gaudy, loud and freakish garments are entirely omitted. The garments we show will appeal to discriminating men who appreciate distinction, yet desire refined styles. We always put the importance of Quality before Price. But our prices are low when you consider the quality. As people grow more careful in buying, the surer we are of their trade.

SPORTING NOTES

"Soldier Bill" Grant, one of the veteran football players of the Argonaut Club, is on the staff of the local branch of the Bank of Montreal here, and will be available for the West End Rugby Club this fall. He is an experienced and clever player, who has forgotten more of the game than many players will ever know, and it is hoped that he may be induced to turn out and get in the game.

As intimated in the Examiner some time ago, there are undoubtedly among the Englishmen in the city a number of capable rugger players from across the water. One of these has turned up in the person of Mr. Thompson, who was out with the West Ends on Saturday, and who shapes up like a star as soon as he has learned the wrinkles of the Canadian game.

Although the hockey season is still a long way off, there is already a proposition on hand for a game in the Christmas holidays between the Peterborough team and the Peterborough old boys home for the holidays. Pete Campbell will look after the old boys' team and will have a good squad to pick from, including Harry Smith, who is now in Toronto, Frank Heffernan at Ottawa College, Ken Crane in Toronto, Hugh Burritt in Seaforth, and a number of other candidates.

"Dutch" Conter, who was one of the Peterborough Midland League baseball team during the summer is on the back division of the St. Michael's College rugby team.

FAREWELL TO GREY

Ottawa Canadian Club Tenders Him a Monster Send-off Banquet

WILL LEAVE OCT. 12

Ottawa, Sept. 28.—The announcement that Earl Grey has postponed the date of his departure from Oct. 6 to Oct. 12, in view of the political situation now existing, was made at the farewell banquet tendered him by the Canadian Club of Ottawa.

The banquet was held in the restaurant of the House of Commons and was presided over by Judge MacTavish, president of the club, and attended by 300 club members, the consuls-general of the various countries represented at Ottawa.

R. L. Borden and Sir Wilfrid Laurier occupied positions to the right and left of the chairman and Earl Grey.

The health of Earl Grey was proposed by Sir Charles Fitzpatrick. Earl Grey in responding announced his intention of disregarding the unwritten convention which forbids former Governor-Generals from revisiting Canada.

His Excellency also dwelt on the importance of the construction of the Hudson Bay Railway and of its importance as a factor in bringing the east and west to a better understanding, the one to the other. Reference in eulogistic terms to the colony of Newfoundland was also made by Earl Grey, who urged Canada to try and get better acquainted with the lovable people of this, the oldest colony of the Empire.

Judge MacTavish presided as president of the Canadian Club.

Royal Society to Earl Grey.

Ottawa, Sept. 28.—The Royal Society of Canada presented Earl Grey with an address of farewell, regret and appreciation yesterday. It was informally handed over by Dr. W. F. King, Dominion astronomer, president of the society, mentioning what the retiring Governor-General had contributed toward letters, arts and science for the Dominion.

Hitch in a Deal.

St. John, N.B., Sept. 28.—There is a hitch in the negotiations for the sale of the York and Cornwall Cotton Mills to the Canadian Cottons, Ltd., the Canadian syndicate that now controls many of the Canadian mills. The transfer is not to be completed, but that the property will be left in the hands of the St. John shareholders. A. P. Barnhill, solicitor, says that the purchasers declared the property was not as represented.

Investigating Mme. Eames' Marriage.

New York, Sept. 28.—A Paris cable says: An ecclesiastical court, composed of the best known canonists in the Archdiocese of Paris, is considering the marriage of Mme. Eames and Emilio De Gogorsa, at the request of Archbishop Falconio, apostolic delegate in America. American Catholics have been scandalized over the marriage of two divorced persons without any explanation.

Duke Sails Friday Week.

London, Sept. 28.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—It has been officially announced that the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, accompanied by Princess Patricia, will sail Friday week on the Empress of Ireland. Miss Pelly will be lady-in-waiting to the duchess.

BUREAU IS SAFE.

Official Figures Give Him a Majority of Two Votes.

Three Rivers, Que., Sept. 28.—The official canvass of the recent election as appointed yesterday by the returning officer about a majority of two for Hon. Jacques Bureau. On the night of the election the announcement was to the effect that Mayor Normand had defeated the Minister by a slight majority. A judicial account will be demanded.

This leaves the Bureau majority at 42.

Chiefs in Conference.

Montreal, Sept. 28.—W. F. Maclean, M.P., for Jacques Cartier was called to Ottawa yesterday afternoon, having a prolonged interview with Hon. Rodolphe Forget, M. P., before leaving town. Last evening at the Windsor, Messrs. C. F. Doherty, M.P.; R. Forget, M.P.; George H. Perley, M.P.; and W. Price, ex-M.P., met by appointment and talked over matters referring to the Quebec contingent in the Cabinet.

It looks as if the slate would be Monk, Forget and Pelletier, with C. J. Doherty, representing the English-speaking Catholic element, also Perley or Ames.

Some Final Returns.

Ottawa, Sept. 28.—Ed. Kidd, the successful candidate in Carleton, has received complete returns from all but two polls, which give him a majority of over 1,900, and doubling Mr. D. H. McLean's vote with 100 to spare. Unless these two polls turn the tables, Mr. McLean will lose his deposit.

Information from Wright County shows Mr. E. B. Devlin's majority to be 1,516 over Mr. Louis Cousineau, the Conservative candidate.

In Pontiac, Gerald H. Brabason, Conservative, obtained a majority of 667. The figures are: Brabason 2,168, Cahill 1,491, Hodgins 1,169.

The official declaration in North Renfrew gives Gerald White 705 majority, while in Prescott Edward Proulx has 1,804.

Protest in Wright County.

Ottawa, Sept. 28.—Louis Cousineau, Conservative candidate in Wright County, Que., who was defeated by E. B. Devlin, by a majority of over 1,800, yesterday stated that he has definitely decided to protest the election.

He alleges corruption, and also that in one poll there were 14 more votes polled than were on the list.

Nationalists Quite Independent.

London, Sept. 28.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Bourassa cables Financial Post that Canadian Nationalists will continue the fight for the principles for which they have been struggling and will maintain an attitude of complete independence.

"If any Government despises the rights of the people, we shall fight it as we did the Laurier Government," he says.

For a $300,000 Dam.

Ottawa, Sept. 28.—The James MacLaren Company of Buckingham has awarded a $300,000 contract to Haney, Quinlan and Robertson of Montreal to build a dam across the Lievre River above High Falls, 24 miles from Buckingham, for log-driving purposes at the present and for power development in the future.

Germany Yields.

Paris, Sept. 28.—The German Minister of Foreign Affairs, Herr Von Kiderlen-Waechter, received the French ambassador to Germany, M. Cambon, at the Foreign Office in Berlin at noon yesterday, and informed him that Germany accepted the latest French proposals concerning Morocco.

Strange Epidemic.

Cobalt, Ont., Sept. 28.—The hospital at New Liskeard is caring for about forty employes of the T. & N. O. Railway construction gangs, who are suffering from a sort of combined typhoid fever and ptomaine poisoning.

HOSTILITY CERTAIN

Italy is Determined to Send an Expedition to Tripoli

CENSORSHIP IS RIGID

London, Sept. 28.—The Constantinople correspondent of The Reuter Telegram Co. sends a despatch dated Tripoli, which gives the report of an impending Italian landing.

It is confirmed that Germany is using her good offices to effect a settlement.

The British Foreign Office, at a late hour last night, was without news of fresh developments in the crisis. No official appeal has been received from the Anglo-Maltese colony in Tripoli for protection. It is assumed, however, that as Great Britain has considerable interests in Tripoli the Government has taken advisable steps to be prepared for eventualities.

The censorship maintained in Italy is so rigorous that it is difficult to learn the exact position of affairs. There is no confirmation that Italy has presented an actual ultimatum, setting a time limit, although undoubtedly she has warned Turkey against despatching troops and war material to Tripoli.

In well-informed diplomatic quarters it is believed that no mere economic concessions will meet the Italian view and that an expedition to Tripoli is a practical certainty—an expedition, too, so large that any serious fighting on the Tripolitan coast with poorly armed Turkish forces would be improbable. Little is hoped from Germany or other powers in their attempts at mediation, if, as is believed, Italy insists upon her demands for a protectorate.

Germany Working Hard.

Berlin, Sept. 28.—Germany's diplomatic action at Rome and Constantinople, in an endeavor to bring about a peaceful settlement of the controversy between Italy and Turkey, is still progressing, the German officials are somewhat more hopeful than yesterday. They still are evidently anxious over the situation, but Germany believes that Italy will not take decisive action without further diplomatic exchanges.

Saloniki, European Turkey, Sept. 27.—All the Italian merchant vessels in Ottoman waters have been recalled.

Europeans Leave Tripoli.

Tripoli, Sept. 28.—The native population of Tripoli are quiet, but Europeans are leaving the country in large numbers.

Italian Military Busy.

Vienna, Sept. 28.—A despatch from Milan says that all railways leading to the ports are crowded with military trains loaded down with war supplies. Troops destined for Tripoli are concentrated at the ports for embarkation and are awaiting completion of their equipment.

Turkish Steamer at Tripoli.

Rome, Sept. 28.—It is semi-officially announced that the Turkish steamer Derna has arrived at Tripoli, with a small contingent of soldiers, some arms and a quantity of food supplies aboard. The Italian warships had no orders to capture her.

A decree issued by the Ministry of the Treasury raises the normal rate of discount from 5 to 5 1-2 per cent.

Italian People Against War.

Chiasso, Sept. 28.—At Vigevano, Province of Pavia, the manifestants paraded, led by a woman, and singing anarchistic songs. They stoned the carabineers who attempted to head them off, wounding some of the soldiers. A judge who sought to interfere got his ears boxed.

The revolutionary socialists, backed by the anarchists, are attempting to provoke anti-military disorders and have compelled the Government to make a great display of force to check their plan.

The general strike supposed for yesterday in protest against a peasant war with Turkey failed. Only a portion of the workmen deserted their posts.

Ready To Go Back.

Toronto, Sept. 28.—There are 500 Italians in Toronto, Interpreter Frank Moria says, who would go back to Italy, for service on the reserve list, if war should break out with Turkey. Local Italians are much exercised in the turn affairs have taken, and will send money back to the old land, or go back themselves, if needed.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

A first light mantle of snow fell at Bryant's Pond, Maine, and vicinity.

It is definitely stated that Saskatchewan provincial elections will be held on November 8.

Wenceslas Franco, a resident of Acala, State of Chiapas, Mexico, was crucified by rebellious Chamula Indians when they sacked that place last Saturday.

There is rumor that Hon. S. N. Parent of the N.T.R. Commission, will either enter the Gouin Cabinet in Quebec, or accept a position under its administration.

William McCleister, aged 28 years, a car checker in the employ of the G.T.R., was struck by a freight car yesterday afternoon and instantly killed at Sarnia Tunnel.

Aviation's oldest world's record was smashed Tuesday at New York when Lieut. T. DeWitt Milling of the U. S. army, remained for 1h. 54 min. 42 2-5 sec n the air, with two passengers.

Funds for the erection of a $60,000 church by the Polish residents of Hamilton will be raised by the contribution of a day's wages once a month by each of several hundred Poles.

James Howley of Montreal was yesterday morning found guilty of perjury by Judge Langelier, and created a sensation by falling headlong from the dock as the decision was announced.

Plans for the re-organization of the American Tobacco Co., which are to be submitted shortly to the United States Circuit Court are said to provide for the formation of three new companies.

Bound together by straps about their wrists, the bodies of Mrs. Mary Lacey and her son, J. B. Lacey of Fitchburg, Mass, were found in Lake Lashway. Grief over the son's arrest is the cause.

W. H. Wilcox, manager of the Wood stock Opera House, and Mrs. Wilcox had a narrow escape from death as a result of eating pork and beans at a restaurant. But for prompt medical attendance the cases might have proved fatal.

McDOUGALL ESCAPES.

Jury at North Bay Acquit Him of Murder Charge.

North Bay, Sept. 28.—John McDougall, charged with the murder of Laurent Morin, in the Township of Phelps, April 4 last, was found not guilty by a jury after deliberating two hours.

Morin was shot dead by McDougall after an altercation over tally of poles, which Morin was cutting on property of McDougall's son. Accused's contention was that Morin had set his dog on him, and in firing at the dog he hit Morin by mistake.

Judge Sutherland, in commenting on the verdict, told McDougall that the most he could have hope for was a verdict of manslaughter on the evidence of witnesses and his own admissions in the box. His remarks intimated strong disapproval with the verdict, and he commented on the increase of crime in Canada, due, in his opinion, to indiscriminate carrying of weapons.

The prisoner, who is a man of 60, was then discharged from custody after thanking the jury for their verdict. McDougall was defended by Mr. G. L. T. Bell.

George Evans, charged with manslaughter, in causing the death of Charles Russell at Thornloe, August 10 last, was found not guilty by the jury and discharged. Russell and Evans were at a garden party, when one of the guests lost his tie pin and Evans accused Russell of taking it. A fight resulted, in which Evans struck Russell, who died shortly after from a fractured skull and a clot of blood upon the brain. Medical evidence showed that Russell's skull was [illegible]

Violent Scenes Are Enacted on the Wall Street Exchange

J. P. MORGAN THE CAUSE

New York, Sept. 28.—One of the most exciting episodes in the history of Wall Street in recent years was yesterday's session of the Stock Exchange. Aside from times of panic, it is doubtful whether the fluctuations of stocks were ever more violent. The market was in a state of complete confusion throughout the day. The range of prices in some cases exceeded six points.

J. Pierpont Morgan having announced that he was going to support U. S. Steel, Wall Street waited expectantly for an opening bulge. It came. A tremendous flood of orders was poured in the opening price of 49 1-4, a gain of 2 1-8 points over the close of the night before and, like an insatiable torrent, the quotations mounted till 58 was reached. Then, as abruptly, the price broke under an avalanche of selling orders, and despite determined efforts at absorption of offerings, it declined to 56 1-8, closing, after a day of tremendous activity, practically at the level of yesterday.

A peculiar feature of the day's trading was that it resulted in the utter route of both the bull and the bear factions. As the opening there was a stampede of bears to cover their contracts, which they were compelled to do at heavy losses. In the afternoon the bulls obtained control of the market, but these melted away. At the [illegible] turbulent session the bears retired victorious from the field of battle.

The United States Steel Corporation's statement Tuesday night that dissolution or disintegration were not contemplated by the corporation, was the pivot around which the market moved. To some extent it relieved Wall street's fears. It did not answer the question whether the Government was contemplating a suit for dissolution, however, so that the situation was not changed in one of its most perplexing aspects.

Veteran floor traders said that they never had witnessed such scenes as these on the floor of the exchange yesterday morning. Long before the opening brokers began to gather about the post at which U. S. Steel is traded in, ready to execute the buying orders which had been pouring in as a result of the Steel Corporation's statement. As the hour for the opening of trade drew near the crush became greater. The brokers were packed so closely that it was difficult for anyone to raise an arm above his head.

The gong which signalled the opening of the trading was succeeded by a long howl. The men surged and swayed about the post, and then moved in a struggling mass across the floor. The stronger element, composed of the sellers, who had gathered on one side of the crowd, forced the entire group across the floor. The brokers dragged each other about in such a fashion that an inexperienced observer would have thought that a pitched fight was in progress. The crowd soon returned to the Steel post, but there was scarcely a let-up throughout the day in the excited trading. Never before had such quantities of steel stock been dealt in. The total for the first fifteen minutes was more than 100,000 shares, and for half an hour 275,000.

The decline was as relentless as the advance. Bear traders took courage when they saw that the gains were being lost, and resumed operations. At times during the afternoon the market was almost demoralised. The close was nervous and unsettled. Total transactions for the day were largest for the year.

Government Undeterred.

Washington, Sept. 28.—The Steel Trust investigating committee will proceed to carry out its program notwithstanding the assurance of Judge Gary and J. P. Morgan, that the law has not been violated, said Representative Stanley of Kentucky, chairman of the House committee which is looking into the Steel Corporation's affairs.

The committee will meet about the first week in November, said Mr. Stanley, and its work, carried on with a great deal of general interest during the last session, will be continued for some time, with Steel Corporation magnates again among the prospective witnesses.

PLOT UPON PLOT.

Russell Case at Montreal is Greater Mystery Than Ever.

Montreal, Sept. 28.—It was made plain at yesterday's hearing of the action of David Russell against the Pinkerton Detective Agency that the hearing is going to be a long one. Most of the day was devoted to preliminary work, examining a few score of telegrams involved, and trying to find out just what they all meant. The result, however, was merely to pile mystery upon mystery, a great part of the evidence being evidently of importance to the plaintiff's case, but so shrouded in a remarkable tangle that just where its significance comes in will not be seen until the key to the whole thing is furnished.

John W. McNamara, Montreal manager of the Pinkerton agency, who is charged with having been engaged by Mr. Russell to unravel a conspiracy against him, and then having joined with his enemies in a plot to have him [illegible]

New York Primaries Were Riotous.

New York, Sept. 28.—Only one leader was supplanted by Tuesday's riotous primaries, but several defeated candidates say they will demand a recount. In the 33rd district, the younger Republican element elected Alfred B. Simonds, unseating Edward Healy, district leader for twenty years.

An assault on James Ahearn, the Tammany leader in the 19th district, and the shooting of three men, in front of Tammany headquarters, in the tenth district, marked the most serious disturbance. Ahearn has a broken arm. It is supposed that he was struck by the night stick of a policeman who waded into a row that started when his opponents tried to throw him out of the polling place.

To Those Required

GLASSES

Eight years is a short time in the life of a man, but it is a period of sufficient length, in business, to carry with it a guarantee of honest effort and satisfaction.

For this number of years I have carried on an Optical business in this city and I have fitted thousands of people with glasses. The fact that I have been successful leads me to believe that my methods are right, and for that reason, I wish to give you additional assurance that there will be no shyness in them in future. I am in a position to give you the best of everything that means eye comfort.

It is barely possible that you are in need of new lenses, frame or an eyeglass and I would ask that you give me the privilege of giving your eyes a scientific examination and proposing the proper glasses for you if you need them.

I examine the eyes in the examination and fitting of the glasses. I do not overlook the fastenings of making glasses which will add greatly to the personal appearance of those who wear them, in other words every detail will be have my most careful consideration.

I carry the finest procurable Optical stock in Peterboro, and that of our own.

You will incur no obligation by calling and consulting with me.

A Sham Duel

A Story of the Reconstruction Period in the South

By G. MORGAN WOODRUFF

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Colonel Meredith was one of the older Federal officers of the civil war. It was some ten years after its close that the colonel, then an old man, concluded to go south and take up his residence there. His reason for doing so was that, being in poor health, he thought the climate would agree better with him than that of the north.

The colonel took up his abode in a beautiful town in one of the cotton states. That period was too soon after the war to admit of his being received with especial friendliness by all the people of the place. Some welcomed him, some ignored him, and some—principally women—treated him rancorously. One group were disposed to admit the colonel to citizenship on equal terms. These were the Confederate veterans who had fought for the lost cause and dropped it forever at Appomattox.

A small newspaper, the Banner, was published in the place, its editor being Charles Morrill, a man about twenty-eight years of age. He was the pet of two elderly maiden aunts with whom he lived and who had from his childhood idolized him to such an extent that though he was eighteen years old before the war closed they would not consent to his joining the army. Nevertheless they were among those who retained all the bitterness engendered by the unfortunate struggle and did all they could to keep it alive in their nephew.

"I AM YOUR NEPHEW."

The presence of Colonel Meredith in the town was especially obnoxious to these ladies, and they found it impossible to rest easy as long as he remained there. They snapped at the Confederate veterans contemptuously for permitting one of the south's invaders to settle among them, but the veterans were not disposed to interfere. Then the ladies called upon persons of their acquaintance to ostracize Colonel Meredith, but met with indifferent success. Finally it occurred to them that their nephew might accomplish through his newspaper what they had failed to effect by other means.

The nephew was one of those young men who find it easy to be smart. He had always been considered such by his aunties, who had no difficulty in transmitting their opinion to the object of their adoration. No suggestion was needed to inspire Mr. Morrill with an idea of making it so unpleasant for Colonel Meredith in the community that he would of his own accord pack up his belongings and return to the north. He began a covert but annoying fire upon the object of his displeasure, such as that officer had during his term of army service often been subjected to, though the missiles used had been lead instead of type metal. These articles were so worded that though no direct reference was made in them to Colonel Meredith every one knew that they referred to him.

One branch of the Meredith family had lived in the south, the colonel's sister having married John Turnlee, a Louisianian. Her husband had fought for the southern side and had fallen in one of the battles around Richmond. After the war was concluded the president of the United States had appointed the Confederate soldier's son, Edward Turnlee, to a cadetship at the United States Naval academy. While Colonel Meredith was beginning to suffer the annoying articles in the Banner young Turnlee was completing an education to fit him for an officer in the service of the United States.

Colonel Meredith, who had fought both in open fields and behind breastworks, was not to be dislodged by innuendoes. He paid no attention to the petty shots in the Banner. Indeed, he was so advised by a few of the citizens with whom he was on good terms. They remonstrated with the editor, but the people were not yet united on the treatment that should be given a northern man, and Morrill found those to egg him on in his attacks upon the colonel.

Finally an article appeared casting a reflection on Colonel Meredith's good name. The object of the attacks had thus far listened to the suggestions of his friends as to what course to take with regard to them, but now he decided to take the matter into his own hands. He wrote a polite note to the editor requesting him to prove his allegation or withdraw it.

The colonel was by this time more than seventy years old. His eyesight was defective and his heart had not been improved by his sojourn south. Besides, he was suffering from the effect of wounds received in the late war. He was not a proper person to be pitted against a young man in any form of encounter. Morrill resolved to continue to harass his antagonist. If the colonel insisted on satisfaction he could decline to give it on the ground that his challenger was not a proper adversary for one in the prime of life. Since he could not prove his charge he replied to the colonel's note that the colonel was not warranted in presuming the article referred to him. Several notes passed between the two, in the last of which the colonel said that if they were in northern territory he would sue the Banner for defamation of character. Such a course at the time in the south would be impracticable. He therefore felt obliged to settle the matter by the prevailing custom in that region—the code duello. Would Mr. Morrill kindly refer him to a friend?

Had Morrill been anything but a prig and a fool he would have seen that his adversary, though living among a people still smarting under the effects of a war in which he had opposed them, was sure in the end to get the advantage. Instead of having such discernment his consummate egotism led him further in his idiotic course. He conceived the idea of getting rid of the colonel by ridicule. He would accept his challenge and turn the affair into a mockery.

He succeeded in convincing some of his friends that this was the best and only way out of the matter both for Colonel Meredith and the town. He persuaded one of his friends to offer his services to his enemy on the ground that he felt that the colonel was right in demanding satisfaction and should have fair play. The colonel accepted the offer, and in this way the editor controlled both seconds so far as making the affair a sham was concerned, though the colonel's second had been assured that the plan was merely to satisfy the colonel without resorting to bloodshed.

The intention being to make the affair an imitation duel, it was not hurried, as such matters usually are. Indeed, some of the Confederate veterans, hearing that a duel between the ex-Federal officer and the editor was about to take place, went to Morrill and protested. Morrill said that no harm was to be done the colonel and the proposed fight with blank cartridges was the best and only way to settle the matter. The veterans withdrew and held a consultation. Finally one of their number, who had become more friendly with Colonel Meredith than the others and knew more about him and his affairs, said:

"Leave the matter to me."

This was done, and as a body the veterans took no further action.

On the morning the duel was to come off Morrill was in fine feather. No one except the two seconds and one or two of his intimate friends knew that the affair was to be a sham. The editor intended after it was over to put himself right in the matter of fighting an old man by publishing a ludicrous account of the meeting, announcing that there had really been no fight at all. He had written the article, into which he had thrown all his ability as a comic writer, and had it locked in his desk ready for use.

At 3 o'clock in the morning he arose, dressed himself, bid a mock heroic adieu to his aunts, to whom he told his secret, and in due time a carriage drove up with his second, and the two men went to the place appointed for the meeting. Morrill showed his indifference to danger—as it was supposed by those who understood the fight was to be to the death—by laughing and joking with the seconds. The ground was being paced off when a carriage was driven up and a young man in a dark blue undress uniform alighted. Making straight for Colonel Meredith, he put out his hand and said:

"How do you do, uncle?"

The colonel not recognising him, he continued: "I am your nephew, Edward Turnlee, just graduated from the Naval academy. A Confederate veteran who knew all about my father telegraphed me that you were to fight a young man and suggested that I, a young man, should take your place. I am here for that purpose."

The change in the spirits of the man who was to be the hero of this sham affair was instantaneous. He turned white as a cloth and trembled like a leaf.

"My dear boy," said Colonel Meredith, "it is very good of you to come all the way down here to take your uncle's place, and it proves you to be worthy of my dear sister and your brave father, but I claim the right to settle this matter with Mr. Morrill myself."

But the colonel was too old to stand against the young midshipman. The latter insisted upon seeing the pistols loaded and that they contained ball cartridges. Then he told the seconds that he was ready.

But Mr. Morrill was not ready. He told the secret and asked to have the affair called off. To this young Turnlee would not consent without an ample written apology for his past offenses. Such an one was drawn up and signed, and in the next issue of the Banner it appeared for the edification of the good people of the place who had been gradually dropping the animosities occasioned by the war and were ready for different conditions.

The Squeak of the Sardine.

"As dumb as a fish" is a saying that does not apply to many species of sea water denizens. The sardine before it draws its last breath raises a feeble squeak like the squeak of a mouse. In some fish the vocal organs are sonorous and well developed.

The Cutty Stool.

The cutty stool was the seat of repentance formerly employed in the Scottish church for the exposure of offenders against the moral law. The transgressor, having been deprived of church ordinances and duly taken to task privately, was then compelled to make a public acknowledgment of the misdeed, prior to being restored to favor. Each culprit did penance by occupying the cutty stool in the presence of the whole congregation and was openly lectured by the minister on the enormity of the offence.

WOMEN MAY AVOID OPERATIONS

By taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The following letter from Mrs. Orville Rook will prove how unwise it is for women to submit to the dangers of a surgical operation when it may be avoided by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was four weeks in the hospital and came home suffering worse than before.

Here is her own statement.

Paw Paw, Mich.—"Two years ago I suffered very severely with a displacement. I could not be on my feet for a long time. My physician treated me for seven months without much relief and at last sent me to Ann Arbor for an operation. I was there four weeks and came home suffering worse than before. My mother advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I did. Today I am well and strong and do all my own housework. I owe my health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and advise my friends who are afflicted with any female complaint to try it."—Mrs. ORVILLE ROOK, R. R. No. 5, Paw Paw, Michigan.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for women's ills, and has positively restored the health of thousands of women. Why don't you try it?

Perfect Porridge in 15 Minutes

SOME housewives don't believe it. That's because they have not tried Tillson's Rolled Oats.

True, you can't do it with some rolled oats, which are so unevenly rolled that they must be cooked all night to become digestible.

But you can do it with Tillson's.

Tillson's Oats consist of perfect flakes rolled to a filmy thinness. Every flake is whole, unbroken and of uniform size. The meal or flour is retained in the flake instead of being spilled out. 15 minutes on the stove cooks them through and through.

And the aroma and appetizing appearance of the porridge made from Tillson's far surpass those of any other porridge you ever ate.

Hot Water as a Tonic.

Drinking a cup of hot water is a more efficacious treatment for many ills than some persons realize. There are physicians who prescribe it for inactive livers, a gill to be taken as soon as one wakes in the morning. The warmth as well as the liquid are beneficial, for it is a well known fact that few persons drink as much water through the day as they should.

That the dose affects the complexion favorably there is no doubt. Some persons add the juice of half a lemon to the water. There is no doubt that for certain systems this is beneficial, but it is a matter that a physician should decide in individual instances.

Many a case of simple indigestion may be cured by drinking a cup of hot water, the dose to be taken as soon as there is any sense of discomfort. Adding a half teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda is recommended by some physicians where there is pronounced acidity of the stomach, the soda acting as a neutraliser, while the warm liquid carries the matter from the stomach.

Persons who are dieting for reduction find hot water more thirst quenching than cold, and they therefore can get along comfortably with a smaller quantity. That water taken with food is fattening there is no doubt.

Hot water is an excellent substitute for tea for persons made nervous by the beverage and on certain occasions may be used as a food substitute.

If for any reason there is a desire to get along with the least quantity of food and the stomach becomes empty, hot water is soothing and fills the void, so that for a time a feeling of faintness is obviated.

It is in no way a food, however, and should not be regarded as such.

Changing the Hair Line.

So much has been said of the folly of changing the coiffure to suit each passing style that the other side is apt to be overlooked. Hair can be worn too continuously in one style, and if a woman is not careful she may find herself without any hair on the top of her head in the place where the hair ought to grow.

The girl who thinks she looks picturesque with parted hair should occasionally take weeks off for a pompadour unless she wants a bead path across her cranium. This holds good of the angles at which the long hair is arranged, and there should be frequent changes, if only in the privacy of the boudoir.

The benefit of these changes is realized when one finds that dandruff accumulates under the thickest part of the hair, and if it is too long in one spot there is danger of the trouble becoming chronic.

Mothers have much to be responsible for by not regarding hair strain for their daughters. No girl who wears her hair in one way from the time she is six or eight until she puts on long frocks can hope to have a good head of hair. It is bound to be worn in places.

Cosmetics as Character Builder.

Cosmetics as an aid in character building are advocated by many doctors who have an extensive practice among society women. One of those physicians says woman who have any little defect that can be hidden by powder or paint should never hesitate to employ the artificial method. "Appearances," he explains, "mean much to a woman mentally and socially. A girl who has some slight personal defect, such as a scar, a poor complexion or bloodless lips, is enormously handicapped. The knowledge of her defect and the thought others may observe it make her shy and lacking in self confidence. She shuns society and becomes morbid and miserable. I know of one case where a girl's life was ruined because of complexion troubles. So long as a woman's makeup is not so obvious as to be objectionable her means to an end are justifiable. She does no one any harm and she does herself a great deal of good. The knowledge that her particular defect is no longer visible to all beholders gives her a contented mind, and that has its inevitable result upon her character and outlook on life."

Grace Without Petticoats.

"Are you a petticoatless woman? And if you have discarded your underskirts have you learned to go without them gracefully?" said the beauty lecturer to her audience. "The advice I would give to the unpetticoated, to the woman who wears a skirt so snug and clinging that she must adopt some other style of underwear than the old time petticoats, is this:

"Look at your shoes. Your skirt may not be cut off at your boot tops, but it is certain that they will show.

"Have your ankles trim. Wear buttoned boots and set the buttons over until they absolutely pinch your ankles.

"Don't wear shabby shoes. Your feet simply must look nice.

"Wear thin stockings, the gauzier the better; under them wear flesh colored silk hose.

"If you go without petticoats your feet will show all the time, because your skirt slinks in. So learn to toe out. Don't be pigeontoed."

Futile.

"Fly with me," pleaded the youth. "What's the use?" answered the girl. "Dad's biplane would catch that old machine of yours before we had got a thousand feet high."

Miss Scott Makes Daring Flight in Her Airship.

MISS BLANCHE STUART SCOTT.

Miss Blanche Stuart Scott, the young woman who recently has acquired such distinction as a daring and intrepid aviator, is the same young woman who nearly two years ago drove her automobile from New York city to San Francisco. Miss Scott's companion on this wild and dangerous adventure was Miss Gertrude Phillips. Their arrival in the Golden Gate city alive and unhurt is a fine tribute to American womanhood.

Miss Scott flies one of Baldwin's red devil metal biplanes. This aeroplane, on account of its speed and diminutive size, is considered much more perilous to operate than any other. Its driver must be gifted with unusual nimbleness of mind and body. Miss Scott chafes very much under the flying restraints placed upon her on account of her sex, but she succeeded in showing her ability to fly as high as her men competitors in a recent air contest.

There is serious talk of organizing a woman's aero club here in America, the idea being recently hatched by Baron von Dewitz, and the women interested in aviation are enthusiastic about the movement. It is proposed to model the club after the Aerial League of Great Britain or the Stella of France.

An Elaborate Coat.

The long coat of the season has many uses and milady's wardrobe, if she is at all smart, must contain a number of long wraps for different occasions. The coat pictured is an airy affair for evening, carried out in a cyclaman colored figured crepe fabric. A deep band of satin in this new shade of cerise trims the bottom of the coat, and the shawl collar is of lace and satin combined.

Worth Knowing.

When you drop accidentally some of the yolk in the white of eggs in separating same the yolk can easily be removed by touching the bits of yellow with a dry cloth, to which they will readily adhere.

Earthquakes.

People of antiquity thought that earthquakes were produced by dead warriors fighting with one another underground and so shaking the earth.

For the Children

The Grosbeak a Good Friend of the Farmer.

Until recently the grosbeak has been considered somewhat of a pest, but since the United States department of agriculture investigated the habits of this beautiful bird he has become a desirable citizen. Seven kinds of finches, commonly known as the grosbeak, summer within our boundaries. A majority of these are good friends of the farmer and deserve to be widely known in order that their services may be appreciated. The grosbeaks are easily distinguished from other finches by their stout form, bright plumage, massive bills and melodious voices. They live largely in agricultural regions and secure most of their food about cultivated lands. They perform invaluable service in destroying many of our worst insect pests.

The rose breasted species is a great destroyer of the potato bug. He breeds over Kansas and the mountains of Tennessee. The birds shown in the picture are of the rose breasted variety.

Domino Fortunes.

Darken the room, burn salt and alcohol in a bowl in the center table, around which are spread dominos. Allow each one in turn to draw five. The ingenious fortune teller makes up a thrilling tale from the following significations:

4-4 denotes amusement and success.
4-6 denotes early marriage and much happiness.
6-6 denotes constancy and affection.
5-5 denotes orderliness, industry and economy.
6-1 denotes two marriages and riches in old age.
6 blank denotes the death of a near friend.
Double 5 denotes good luck in every venture.
5-4 denotes a marriage with attendant poverty.
4-3 denotes ample means and eventual great wealth.
3-3 denotes an unfortunate love affair.
5-3 denotes an invitation to an enjoyable affair.
5 blank denotes danger from gambling or games of chance.
Double 4 denotes (bringer) luck to lovers, farmers and laborers.
4-3 denotes neither riches nor poverty.
4-2 denotes a change in circumstances.
4-1 denotes childlessness, but wealth.
4 blank denotes fame as a writer.
3-2 denotes extensive travel by land and sea.
3-1 denotes caution in all undertakings.
3 blank denotes deceit of sweetheart.
Double 2 denotes thrift and moderate riches.
2-1 denotes life of luxury and single blessedness.
2 blank denotes poverty and continual bad luck.

The Chamois.

The chamois is extremely agile. He can leap over ravines from sixteen to eighteen feet wide. A wall fourteen feet high presents no obstacle to him, and he passes readily up and down precipices which almost no other four footed animal could attempt. He is said to descend obliquely precipices of more than twenty feet that are almost perpendicular, striking his feet once or twice against the rock as if to stay or guide his descent and alighting securely, often on a narrow ridge of rock, with his hind feet first and bringing the fore feet almost into contact with them.

An Apple Seed Game.

Give all guests an apple and a fruit knife and tell them to pare their apples, trying to take the skin off in one piece. The best parer gets the prize. After the one piece skin is off let the parer throw the snakelike skin over her left shoulder, and the initial it forms when it reaches the ground will be the first letter of her married name.

Game of Conglomeration.

Each takes six slips and writes a word on each. These are shuffled, and each drawing six slips must write a sentence containing all the words. Other words may be added or not as the company decides.

Forest Friends.

It may sound peculiar,
Yet all must agree
Each boy can secure
His appropriate tree,
And they who their woodland
Companions would know
May find them out forth
And may read as they go.
For a wise boy, magic;
For a homesick boy, pine;
For a fisherboy, basswood
Or shadbush is fine;

For a mush loved boy, poplar;
For a chilly boy, fir,
While a boy at the seashore
A beech must prefer.
For a happy boy cherry
Seems always first rate,
And the boy who loves history
Yearns for a date,
While the poor injured boy
Who when sadly distressed
Would bind up his bruises
Thinks balsam is best.

Artificial Teeth.

Artificial teeth were used in the first century, Martialis then referring to them thus: "You use without a blush false teeth and hair; but, Laelia, your enamel is your own."

JUDGE FOR YOURSELF

How many times have you had the old, old tale told you in regard to investments, "Yes, sir, you are bound to make money," or "These lots will rise rapidly in value," or again, "It's absolutely impossible for you to lose."

Now you know very well that a good salesman can always sell even a poor proposition. He is usually a highly paid man, and a man who excels in his line; he has taking ways, great personal magnetism, is a fluent and convincing talker, and though you may not know it, has answers prepared beforehand for every objection you may make, and consequently often is able to sell to a person against their better judgment. He tells you all the things I have stated above, but does he ever say to you—

Our Company Will Refund You Your Money on Demand Plus Six Per Cent. if you are Dissatisfied

In other words, does his Company ever give you an Agreement in black and white backing up his statements, when he promises you that you will make money. Have you ever in all your experience known of a company who absolutely guaranteed you against any loss, who have offered when they were selling you property to give you an agreement to refund your money on demand plus 6 per cent. interest. The proposition I am now putting before the public is THE TALK OF THE TOWN.

In the first place I am offering the most stupendous bargain to the public that has been put on the market. It is something brand new in the shape of a proposition, not only brand new in this Province but brand new in the history of real estate, and I do not intend to be backward in letting the public know about it through the medium of the press, because the terms on which I am selling these lots are the most remarkable, unheard-of, safest, fairest, best and most generous, that have ever been put before the investing public.

Situation of Richmond Park, Moose Jaw

Richmond Park, Moose Jaw, fronts on Main street, which is to Moose Jaw what Portage avenue is to Winnipeg, and lies in the direct line of growth; and property on this street will increase in value to the same extent in proportion as the property has that borders on Portage avenue. The property is 2½ miles from the C.P.R. depot, 2¼ miles from the centre of the city, 2 miles from the site of the C.N.R. depot, and a mile and a half from the site of the G.T.P. depot. Every street is graded and sidewalks are to be laid down at once. Richmond Park is on a hill overlooking all the city and will be the finest residential district in Moose Jaw.

What is Happening in Moose Jaw

Six new railroads are coming into Moose Jaw, two of them will be in within the next thirty days. The population has been increasing at the rate of 42 per cent. per year, the census for 1906 showed a population of only 6,000. The estimated population for 1911 is over 20,000. The new Post Office being built by the Dominion Government is the largest in the West outside of Winnipeg, costing $300,000. The building permits for June were nearly $700,000, Moose Jaw being sixth on the list in all Canada. Moose Jaw is the principal divisional point for the C.P.R. and is the only town west of Winnipeg having direct connections with Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Prices and Sizes of Lots

The prices are $90 and $100 for lots 25 by 125; $200, $225 and $250 for lots of 50 by 125. Each lot runs to a lane, is perfectly dry and fit for building. Payments are one-tenth cash and one-tenth each month. 15 per cent. discount for cash. 10 per cent. discount on any amount you pay over and above your first instalment.

Special and Extraordinary Terms

Torrens title, no interest, taxes paid to 1913, no payments to be made if ever you are sick or out of work, even though this may be for six months, then when you have been working for thirty days start your usual payments again by making one payment. Think what this means when the winter comes on. Your money refunded plus 6 per cent., if you so wish. This guarantees you against any possible loss. A clear title at once given to your widow or next of kin should you die before you have completed your payments, even though you have made only one payment on your purchase. Now, sum these facts up: You cannot lose; you are risking nothing, and yet you will without any doubt make a huge profit, for this is one of the choicest pieces of property in the whole city. These lots will sell for from $750 to $1,000 within a very few months. Three lots given free to the first person erecting a $2,000 house and two lots to the second builder.

DON'T HESITATE—The man who hesitates in these days is lost. The times are so progressive that you cannot afford to think too long about it. Guess I hear that dear, sweet, old cry of the very wise old owl saying, "What a lot of hot air." All right, my bird of sombre plumage, take the trouble to examine the situation for yourself; make a comparison of prices, location, size of lots, terms and the protection my company gives, and if I cannot skin anything else that is being offered, by a mile and then some, why then you are sure entitled to your reputation of being a very wise old bird, and you can say what you like about me. It is always a good thing to investigate all the good things that are being offered before buying, and I want to impress this on you and get you to do so because you will find my proposition stand out so much ahead. So don't delay, get in right now, you can't go wrong, you can't lose and it is a lead pipe cinch, and as sure as night follows day, that you will make enormous profits from these lots. BUY NOW. MAPS, PLANS AND LITERATURE SENT FREE ON REQUEST.

DEPARTMENT OF RAILWAYS AND CANALS.
Intercolonial Railway
BADDECK BRANCH LINE.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Alba-Baddeck Branch," will be received at this office until sixteen o'clock on Thursday, October 19th, 1911, for the construction of a branch line of railway from a point on the Intercolonial Railway near Alba to the town of Baddeck, a distance of 16.7 miles.

Plans, specifications and form of contract to be entered into may be seen and full information obtained on and after the 16th inst. 1911, at the office of the Chief Engineer, of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, and at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Intercolonial Railway at Moncton, N.B.

Tenders will be required to accept the fair wages schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and in the case of firms, unless there are attached the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque for the sum of $20,000.00, made payable to the order of the Minister of Railways and Canals, must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, or the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The cheque of the successful tenderer will be held as security, or part security, for the due fulfilment of the contract to be entered into.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

By order,

GUIDE BOOK OF CANADIAN HOMESTEAD LAWS' REGULATIONS.

ANY PERSON who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties.—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts, a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of home-stead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.

W. W. CORY.
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

N.B.—Unauthorized publication of this advertisement will not be paid for.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Public Building, Wallaceburg, Ontario," will be received at this office until 4 P.M., on Tuesday, October 10, 1911, for the construction of a Public Building at Wallaceburg, Ont.

Plans, specification and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained at the office of Mr. H. J. Lamb, District Engineer, London, Ont., at the Post Office, Wallaceburg, Ont., and at this Department.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

LUCKY LAST LOOK

It Preserved the Declaration of Independence in 1814.

SAVED IT FROM THE BRITISH.

The Precious Document Would Have Been in the State Department When It Was Burned but For Pleasonton's Final Glance Around the Room.

Comparatively few of the present generation know how near to being lost was once the most precious of our national documents, the Declaration of Independence. It was during the war of 1812. The Declaration of Independence hung for many years in a frame in the state department in the room then occupied by Stephen Pleasonton. Mr. Beasley, commissary of prisoners of war in London, forwarded to the state department some London newspapers, stating that the English fleets and transports were receiving troops at Bordeaux, France, with the intention of operating against Washington and Baltimore. Soon after it was learned that the British fleet was in Chesapeake bay and that it was ascending the Patuxent. The officials and citizens of the little capital city were hourly expecting an attack.

Upon receipt of this information, which was a few days before the enemy entered Washington, Mr. Monroe, then secretary of state, James Madison being president, mounted his horse, rode to Benedict, a small village on the Patuxent, where the British forces were being landed, and climbed an eminence within a quarter of a mile of the village, in order to ascertain the strength of the enemy. Being convinced, after his inspection, that we had no force available that could successfully resist them, he sent a note to Mr. Pleasonton by a videtta, advising him to see that the best care was taken of the books and papers of the state department.

Acting at once upon this authority, Mr. Pleasonton purchased some coarse linen and had it made into bags of suitable size, in which he, assisted by others in the office, placed the books and other papers.

While engaged in this work General Armstrong, then secretary of war, passing the state department on his way to his own office, remarked that he thought they were unnecessarily alarming themselves, as he did not think the British were serious in their intentions of coming to Washington. Fortunately Mr. Pleasonton was of a different opinion, and observed that it was the part of prudence to take measures to preserve these valuable papers of the revolutionary government. Had Mr. Pleasonton delayed but a few days, had he followed the advice of the secretary of war, an irreparable loss would have been sustained. For the papers which Mr. Pleasonton had placed in the coarse linen bags comprised the secret journals of congress, then not published; the correspondence of General Washington, his commission, resigned at the close of the war; the correspondence of General Greene and other officers of the Revolution, as well as laws, treaties and correspondence of the department of state from the adoption of the constitution down to that time.

Mr. Pleasonton had the bags carted to a grist mill, which he selected as a suitable depository. The mill, which was unoccupied, belonged to Edgar Patterson and was situated on the Virginia side of the Potomac, beyond the Chain bridge, two miles above Georgetown.

The last load had left, and Mr Pleasonton was just quitting the vacant rooms when, glancing back and dimly to see whether anything had been left behind, to his consternation he saw the Declaration of Independence, which had been overlooked hanging upon the wall. He hastily cut it out of the frame and carried it away with the other papers.

He then began to be uneasy about the place he had chosen, for if the British took Washington, which he firmly believed they would do, and very soon at that, they would in all probability detach a force for the purpose of destroying a foundry for the making of cannon and shot in the neighborhood and, of course, would consider a grist mill too valuable a thing to be left standing in a country they meant to subdue. Mr. Pleasonton therefore visited some of the Virginia farmhouses, whose owners were only too willing to lend him wagons in which to convey the documents to Loudoun, a distance of thirty-five miles. There they were deposited in an empty house, the keys of which were given to Rev. Mr. Littlejohn, who was one of the collectors of internal revenue.

Worn out with his labors, Mr. Pleasonton states in a letter, he retired early to bed that night and slept soundly. Next morning he was informed by the people of the little tavern where he had stayed that evening that they had seen during the night, the same being the 24th of August, a large fire in the direction of Washington, which proved to be the light from the public buildings, which the enemy had set on fire and burned to the ground.

When he returned to Washington on the 28th he found the public buildings still burning and learned that the British army had evacuated the city the preceding evening in the belief that the Americans were again assembling in the rear for the purpose of cutting off their retreat.—Kansas City Times.

FELL AMONG THIEVES.

And the Old Man Didn't Know Which Set Was the Worst.

An old man from rural England with his wife was on a holiday in London and decided on an evening at a theater. He looked up the advertisements in the papers and selected a house where "Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves" was being played. It was a "cheap" house, the price of stalls being given as two-and-sixpence. The farmer was surprised, however, on arriving at the box office to be met with a demand for 6 shillings for the two tickets. The extra sixpence per seat, it was explained, was for booking. Then he was called upon to pay sixpence for a program, and the female attendant who showed him to the seats also asked for sixpence, in addition to which there was a shilling to be paid for hats and coats being taken care of in spite of his protest that they could take care of them themselves. A footstool was brought for his wife and was accepted without suspicion that it would be charged for, but the attendant who brought it demanded another sixpence, and finally opera glasses were handed to them and payment of another sixpence requested. Then the farmer went in search of the manager and, finding him, said in a tone of deepest disgust: "You may do what you like with these tickets. There are so many thieves in front of the house that we don't think we want to see the forty on the stage"—London Answers.

THUNDERSTORMS.

They Kill Over 300 Persons a Year in Madagascar.

Thunderstorms never occur in the arctic regions, and even the north of Scotland very seldom suffers from such a visitation. The nearer you get to the equator the more frequent and severe are the electric manifestations. In parts of Central Africa the average of thunderous days rises to the astonishing total of 250 per annum.

Yet there are curious exceptions. In Java and Sumatra, both intensely hot climates, there are but ninety-two storms yearly, and in Borneo only fifty.

The Gold coast of Africa has only sixty a year, which is less than occur in Florida, though the latter country is outside the tropics.

In Jamaica there is a thunderstorm every day during the rainy season, which lasts for five months. These storms almost always occur between midday and 3 in the afternoon.

Perhaps the most astonishing fact with regard to thunderstorms is that the island of Mauritius, which is only 550 miles east of Madagascar, has, on an average, only one thunderstorm in eighty years. Yet in Madagascar the lightning is more destructive than anywhere else in the world, the annual death roll being over 300.—Pearson's Weekly.

Costly Privacy.

Although a writer, he was very human, so when he perceived that the young couple who had been assigned to his table had many matters tender and confidential under consideration he retreated to a respectful distance and stared at the opposite wall. The restaurant proprietor disapproved of that humanitarian attitude.

"Don't stand away back there," he said. "Go up and hang over that fellow's chair back for awhile."

"Oh, no," expostulated the human writer. "They want to talk."

"Of course they do," the proprietor retorted. "That is why I want you to butt in. Every time you come near they will send you to the kitchen for a fresh order to get you out of the way."—New York Times.

Grim Relics.

A prison sale is held annually in Paris. The articles offered for sale are the clothes of murdered people, the instruments with which the crimes have been committed and the effects which have belonged to the deceased prisoners. Articles which have been taken to the prefecture of police and have not been claimed are also sold. The proceeds go to the Paris almshouse. Unclaimed jewelry is usually bought by ordinary brokers, but the articles which have belonged to criminals, especially those who are notorious, are bought at high prices.

Dodging a Difficulty.

"Are you going to send the Sparkler girl a wedding present?"

"No, old Sparkler and I had a squabble yesterday?"

"That's too bad. What was the cause?"

"I really can't afford his friendship. He has five marriageable daughters."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Wharf and Dredging at Sarnia, Ont.," will be received at this office until 4.00 P.M., on Tuesday, October 3, 1911, for the construction of a Wharf and Dredging Basin at Sarnia, Lambton County, Ont.

Plans, specification and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained at the offices of H. J. Lamb, Esq., District Engineer, London, Ont.; J. G. Sing, Esq., District Engineer, Confederation Life Building, Toronto, Ont., and on application to the Postmaster at Sarnia, Ont.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

THE COMSTOCK LODE.

A "Starter" That Was Destined to Influence the World's Finances.

"You've struck it, boys!" These said Henry Paige Comstock to Peter O'Riley and Patrick McLaughlin, who were his fellow prospectors in a search for gold in Six Mile canyon, near the present Virginia City, then capital of Nevada. The date was June 10, 1859. In that remote spot in the American wilderness by these three obscure men was made on that day a discovery destined to affect the current of American politics for a score of years and to have for long a disturbing influence on the world's finances.

The thing which was "struck" on that June day of 1859 was the vein covering what came to be known as the Comstock lode, in which were hidden the richest deposits of silver ever found anywhere on the globe. Their development years afterward simultaneously with that of the silver mines of Colorado started the downward flood in the price of silver which broke the old ratio between the money metals, changed the monetary system of the leading nations from the double to the single gold standard, incited the movement, beginning in 1877 under the leadership of Richard P. Bland, for the reopening of the mints to silver on the same terms as to gold, led hence to the passing of the Bland-Allison limited silver coinage law of 1878 and to that of the Sherman silver bullion deposit act of 1890 and was the issue which split the two great parties and made havoc among the smaller ones in 1892, resulting in the act of 1900 which gave statutory recognition to the gold standard in the United States.—Atlantic.

THE EARTH'S CHANGES.

What the Fossil Remains of Plants and Animals Tell Us.

There was a time when even the polar regions bloomed with many of the splendid and varied forms of life that now adorn the tropics.

The fossil remains of these ancient forms preserved in the bosom of the rocks carry us back perhaps millions of years in the earth's history and show clearly what wonderful revolutions the surface of the globe has undergone since the first plants and the first animals appeared upon it.

Who would think of meeting a rhinoceros nowadays on the prairies of northwestern Canada unless perhaps a traveling menagerie should pass that way? Yet at one time, as discoveries of recent years prove, a creature closely resembling the rhinoceros of India and Africa dwelt in that now comparatively cold, snowy and barren region.

Remains of these extinct ancestors of an animal that in our day thrives only in the tangled tropical forests and under the hot equatorial sun have been found buried in the Canadian rocks, where now the cold blasts of winter blow over treeless plains and sweep the flanks of ice incrusted mountains.

The rhinoceros of that remote age was no less formidable a beast than its descendants, for the skull of one of the skeletons discovered is three feet long, while some of its teeth are four inches across.

The fossil remains of many other forms of animals have been found in the same region within recent years.—Harper's Weekly.

Charms of Labrador.

People are not apt to think of Labrador as a particularly delightful land to dwell in. No tourist thinks of going there for a summer vacation. Yet if Mr. H. H. Prichard's impressions, gathered while hunting big game, are to be accepted, Labrador possesses charms of scenery that it would be difficult to match elsewhere in the world. The words that he quotes from Saltatha, a "Yellowknife Indian," best indicate the nature of these scenes: "You say the kingdom of heaven is good, my father, but tell me, is it better than the land of the musk ox in summer, when the lakes are sometimes misty and sometimes blue, and the loons cry often? That is good, my father, and if heaven is better I shall be willing to dwell there until I am very, very old."—Youth's Companion.

One Man Overcomes a Nation.

Jean Angot, who died in 1551, was a French merchant in the African and East Indian trade. When some of his ships had been taken by the Portuguese he fitted out an armed fleet that kept Lisbon blockaded until the government of Portugal indemnified him for his losses. At one time he was immensely wealthy, but he lost in speculations and in money lent to the king of France, and the closing years of his life were passed in destitution.

The Truthful Milkman.

Mr. Youngwed—We never get any cream on the milk. Why is it?

Mrs. Youngwed—It's all right, dear. I've spoken to the milkman about it, and he explained that they fill the bottles so full with milk there's no room left for any cream on top.—London Telegraph.

No Hope.

"Well, how are you getting on with your admirer, Alice?"

"Oh, I have given up all hope now. We got stuck in a lift for three hours yesterday, and even that didn't make him propose."—Fliegende Blatter.

"There seems to be a penalty provided for everything but stealing a man's daughter."

"There's a penalty for that too."

"I'd like to know what it is."

NAPOLEON'S TAILOR.

One Man Who Dared to Disobey His Imperial Master.

The diary of Peyssins de la Silhouette (born 1758, died in 1850), recently translated into English, has something about Napoleon, that remarkable man who continues to be the most interesting figure in European history. Here is one about Napoleon's carelessness in dress and what came of it:

In 1810, when Napoleon went to Compiegne to receive Marie Louise, his sister, the Princess Borghese said to him:

"Your clothes are badly cut and do not fit you. You are so obstinate about not wearing braces—your trousers always look as if they were falling off"—

"Well," answered the emperor, "what do you advise me to do about it? Can you recommend another tailor?"

"Have a talk with Constant."

Constant, the emperor's valet, was sent for and named one Leger, who was tailor to Murat, Prince Eugene, Joseph and Jerome Bonaparte. A messenger was sent to summon him, and he arrived at Compiegne the next day. From that moment he made everything Napoleon wore. He consistently ignored his imperial patron's suggestions concerning his clothes. For instance, the emperor wished the skirts of his tunics to be turned back, like those of Frederick the Great. "I should not think of allowing such a thing, sire! You would look absurd, and my reputation would be lost. The eyes of the whole world are upon your majesty, and if you were seen wearing such a uniform as you propose it would be a disadvantage to you, and I should have to bear the blame. I would not make you such a tunic if you offered me the whole of your empire."

A Boston Street.

It was one of the older conductors breaking in a new recruit who had shown that he was not particularly quick to catch an idea. The car came to Webster street, and the older conductor whispered the name to the recruit. The latter did not understand, and the conductor, losing patience, said, "Webster—Webster's dictionary." And the passengers were amused to hear the new man bawl out, "Webster's dictionary."—Boston Post.

Yearned For Excitement.

"Yes, the great society leader is absolutely ennuied."

"Tired of everything, eh?"

"Positively. The last time I saw her she was faintly wondering in a bewildered way whether she'd better take up aviation or get a divorce."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Moncton Yard and Cut-Off," will be received at this office until sixteen o'clock on Monday, October 2nd, 1911.

Plans, profiles, specification and form of contract to be entered into can be seen on and after the 6th of September at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, and at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Intercolonial Railway, Moncton.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered, unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and in the case of firms, unless there are attached the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque for the sum of $40,000.00 made payable to the order of the Minister of Railways and Canals must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The cheque of the successful tenderer will be held as security, or part security, for the due fulfilment of the contract to be entered into.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

MARKET REPORTS.

Liverpool and Chicago Wheat Futures Close Lower—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—After the New York stock market became demoralized to-day, big traders here began selling out wheat they had bought yesterday. Largely as a result, the close was at a decline of 1c to 1 1-4c under last night. Corn showed a net loss of 1-2 to 1-2 to 5-8c, oats were down a shade to 3-8c and provisions lower by 7 1-2 to 15c to 37c.

The Liverpool market closed to-day 3/8 to 3/4d lower than yesterday on wheat, and unchanged on corn. Berlin closed 1/2c higher, Antwerp unchanged, and Budapest 1/2c lower.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Sept. 27.—There was no improvement in the volume of business in Manitoba spring wheat over the cable, owing to the fact that the prices bid continue to be away under what exporters are offering it at, and until values on this side decline to meet foreign buyers' views, or they advance to meet ours, the prospects for any activity are not very encouraging.

The local trade in oats is quiet, owing to the fact that the general impression is that prices are going lower; consequently the demand is only for small lots to fill actual wants. A fairly good trade continues to be done in flour for both local and export account, and the undertone to the market is steady. The demand for millfeed is good, of which the offerings are limited and prices are firmly maintained. Cheese is quiet and easy, and the butter market is weaker at a further decline in prices of ½c per pound. Eggs rule fairly active and steady. Demand for provisions is good.

Dressed hogs—Abattoir, $8.75 to $10 per 100 lbs.

Beef—Plate, half-barrels, 200 lbs., $7.50; barrels, 200 lbs., $14.50; tierces, 320 lbs., $23.50.

Oats—Canada western, No. 2, 47c, car lots, ex-store; extra No. 1 feed, 46½c; No. 2 C.W., 45c; No. 3 local white, 45½c; No. 3 local white, 45c; No. 4 local white, 44½c.

Flour—Manitoba spring wheat patents, firsts, $5.60; seconds, $4.90; winter wheat patents, $4.75 to $5; "strong bakers", $4.70; straight rollers, $4.25 to $4.40; in bags, $1.90 to $2.

Rolled oats—Per barrel, $5.15; bag of 90 lbs., $2.80.

Corn—American, No. 2 yellow, 74c to 74½c.

Millfeed—Bran, Ontario, $23 to $24; Manitoba, $23; middlings, Ontario, $27 to $28; shorts, Manitoba, $25; moullie, $26 to $28.

Eggs—Selected, 24c to 26c; No. 1 stock, 20c to 22c.

Cheese—Westerns, 14½c to 14¾c; easterns, 14c to 14¼c.

Butter—Choicest, 24½c to 25c; seconds, 24½c to 24½c.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Sept. 27.—Trade at the East End Stock Yards was rather dull. There were more buyers present than on Monday, but on account of the high prices asked for the poor grade of cattle on offer they bought only for actual wants. There was no demand from packers.

Receipts of cattle estimated at 600. Market dull and prices steady at Monday's level. Northwest cattle (four loads on offer), $5.10 to $5.70; no choice eastern steers; good steers, one lot sold at $5.10 to $5.90; fair at $4.75 to $5.

Bulls are of slightly better quality, and for heavy bulls $3.50 was asked, but only $3 to $3.25 bid; light bulls, $2.50 to $3.75.

Cows—No good cows on offer; demand poor. Poor to medium, $4.30 to $4.75; canners, $3.50 to $3.85. One load of heifers sold by one shipper for $5. No demand for milkers; steady; $2.50 to $3.75 each.

Calves—Receipts, 100; market steady; demand for springers; new laid, $40 to $50 each.

Receipts of hogs estimated at 1600; market easier; demand fairly good; select hogs, $6.75; under-weights (under 160 lbs.), $6.50; sows, $5.25; stags, $3.75 per 100 lbs., off cars.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Sept. 27.—Cattle—Receipts, 125 head; market dull, steady; prime steers, $7.25 to $7.40; butcher grades, $6 to $6.75.

Calves—Receipts, 50 head; market active and 25c higher; cull to choice, $5 to $10.25.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 2000 head; market active; lambs 25c higher; choice to prime, $6.50 to $6.60; cull to fair, $4.50 to $6.25; yearlings, $4.50 to $5; sheep, $3 to $4.25.

Hogs—Receipts, 1200; market slow, 5c lower; yorkers, $7 to $7.15; pigs, $6.85 to $6; mixed, $7.10 to $7.25; heavy, $7 to $7.05; roughs, $5.50 to $6; stags, $5 to $5.50.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Beeves—Receipts, 2100 head. Demand, slack. Market, unevenly lower; steers, $5.25 to $7.60; bulls, $3 to $4.75; cows, $2.50 to $4.60.

Calves—Receipts, 2167 head. Market firm for good veals; grassers, 25c to 50c lower; heavy westerns, no demand. Veals, $7 to $10.75; culls, $4 to $6; grassers, $3 to $4; southern and western calves, $4 to $6.50.

ESKIMO SEALERS.

A Battle of Alertness Between the Hunter and His Prey.

The Eskimo method of hunting seals shows a primitive sailing improved to a fine art. When a seal is discovered the direction of the wind is at once noted. Then the hunter, keeping himself to the leeward of the seal, walks up to within about a quarter of a mile of it. Beyond this he begins to crouch and advances only when the seal's head is down.

Now, as the seal is one of the most wideawake of animals and has the habit of throwing up its head quickly every few seconds to guard against danger, it follows that the Eskimo has to be extremely alert if he would get his seal. When the seal's head is down upon the ice its eyes are shut, and it is said that in these brief intervals it takes its sleep.

The hunter by carefully watching the seal's movements is able without much difficulty to get within about 200 yards of it, but at closer quarters he is obliged to employ other tactics. He lies down at full length on the ice. Then the real sport begins.

When the seal's head is down the hunter, who keeps a keen eye on his prey, is able to approach still nearer by dragging himself forward on his elbows. This maneuvering continues for some time until the distance between man and beast has been reduced to a few yards.

When near enough to make a sure shot the Eskimo takes his bow and arrow from his side and sends a swift shaft through the head of his outwitted companion. Sometimes instead of the bow and arrow a harpoon is used with equal effect.—Harper's Weekly.

The Parents' Joke.

Some parents seem unable to resist the temptation to make a joke with the Christian names of their children, says the London Chronicle. The Somerset House registers testify to the existence of a Mr. Mineral Waters, a Frosty Winter and an Alfred Days Weeks. There is something to be said in favor of naming children in the order of their arrival—Primus, Secundus, etc.—but it is unfortunate for a well known Canadian named Cumber that it should have fallen to his lot to be Quintus, for his name is always appearing in the papers as Mr. Q. Cumber.

Candle Superstitions.

A collection of tallow rising up against the wick of a candle was styled a winding sheet in olden times and deemed an omen of death in the family. A spark at the candle denoted that the person opposite to it would shortly receive a letter.

Cotton and Thread.

One pound of cotton has yielded as much as 4,770 miles of thread.

Iodoform.

The vagal nerves are so sensitive that the odor of iodoform can be recognized in quantities as small as one hundred billionth of a gram. In such a case the odor was distinct, although hundreds of years would be required for the substance to lose a thousandth part of its weight.

OXO Cubes are the greatest advance in food invention since man began to eat and woman began to cook.

Hon. S. C. Biggs Dead.

Toronto, Sept. 28.—Hon. Samuel Clarke Biggs, B.A., K.C., formerly Minister of Public Works in the Manitoba Government, died yesterday at 171 East Roxborough street. He had been in ill-health for some years and had two paralytic strokes.

Hon. Mr. Biggs was born in the Township of Ancaster, County of Wentworth, in 1851, and after leaving the public school went to Victoria College, Cobourg. He afterwards attended Toronto University and graduated, taking the silver medal in honor natural sciences. He was married on May 5, 1875, to Emily Orythia, daughter of Rev. Thomas Atkinson, a Methodist clergyman.

He studied law with Sir Charles Moss, then of the firm of Harrison, Osler and Moss. Removing to Winnipeg in 1875 he commenced the practice of his profession there, and was founder of The Winnipeg Daily Sun. In 1886 he went to St. Paul, Minn., where he engaged in large enterprises and was largely successful. In 1899 he returned to Toronto, continuing to practice his profession. While in Manitoba he was a member of the legislative for St. Paul's and was Minister of Public Works in that province.

Delirious Man Suicides.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 28.—Edward Mannon, one of the well-known young men of this city, late Tuesday night jumped from his bed, where he had been confined by typhoid fever, pulled on a sweater and pair of trousers, and ran down to the lower steel arch bridge over the Niagara Gorge. There he walked out and jumped off the bridge.

His body was picked up from the stones near the old mill-race yesterday morning, after his relatives had been searching all night. Death had been instantaneous, as he landed upon the stones near the river, instead of in the water.

Says Wedding Fees Are "Tips."

Cleveland, Sept. 28.—Ministers who accept fees for officiating at weddings were attacked by Rev. J. B. Lemen, pastor of the William Avenue Baptist Church at the Baptist Ministers' Conference here yesterday. He declared such fees are no more than "waiters' tips" and should be refused if ministers would preserve their self respect.

Contractor's Ruse.

Winnipeg, Sept. 28.—The fashionable class that frequents the Country Club of Winnipeg are afraid to go near the grounds for fear of being blown up by half a ton of dynamite, which a dissatisfied contractor has planted somewhere on the 500 acres donated to the club.

D. B. McIlvay, who took this unique way of forcing the club to settle a disputed bill, was arrested Tuesday and bound over to the Assize Court for refusing to tell where the dynamite is.

"I won't tell until they settle," he told the court.

Auto Omnibus In River.

Paris, Sept. 28.—An auto omnibus, occupied by about twenty persons, was crossing the bridge Archeveche, over the Seine, near the Cathedral of Notre Dame yesterday, when suddenly it left the roadway and, crashing through the parapet, fell into the water.

The auto omnibus was a closed vehicle, with the passengers inside.

A LITTLE DANDERINE WILL MAKE YOUR HAIR LUSTROUS, SOFT, FLUFFY, ABUNDANT

Get a 25 Cent Bottle Now and Forever Stop Falling Hair, Itching Scalp and Dandruff

If you Wish to Double the Beauty of your Hair in Ten Minutes surely Try a Danderine Hair Cleanse

Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a Danderine hair cleanse. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair.

A delightful surprise awaits particularly those who have been careless, whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair at once, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

Try as you will, after one application of Danderine you cannot find any dandruff or a loose or falling hair, and your scalp will never itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair sprouting all over the scalp. Danderine makes the hair grow long, heavy and luxuriant and we can prove it. If you care for pretty, soft hair and lots of it surely get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any druggist or toilet counter, and just try it.

LINDSAY'S PROBLEM

Ratepayers Are Divided as to Buying the Power Company Out or Accepting Seymour Co's Offer

MEETINGS HELD

LINDSAY, SEPT. 27.—Lindsay is up against a big commercial proposition at the present time. The Lindsay Light, Heat and Power Company is to be sold, and the ratepayers are divided as to the practicability of buying the plant. A valuation of $230,000 has been put on it as a going concern by the Hydro-electric experts. The town has the option at that figure.

At this juncture the Seymour Power Company steps in with, it is understood, a bigger offer to the power company and certain very favorable conditions to the town for the privilege of a franchise on the streets. The by-law to grant the latter is to be voted upon on Friday next, while the by-law for the purchase of the plant by the town is to be voted on October 9.

Hon. Adam Beck's proposition is being very favorably received by the citizens, as attested by a monster meeting addressed by him in the Academy. The meeting lasted until after midnight, and told strongly in favor of the town purchasing the plant. The Seymour people are anxious to secure the franchise, and held a big meeting last night.

Separated For Forty Years

For the first time in forty years Mr. Louis Denno, Romaine Street, met his brother, Mr. Xavier Denno, of Boston, to-day. This is Mr. Denno's first visit to this city, and, needless to say, he has a very high opinion concerning Peterboro's possibilities. He arrived this morning on the 8.10 Grand Trunk, and expects to remain here for a few weeks.

Secures Twenty Year Lease

Mr. I. A. H. Dale, of Franklin, Pa., and Sec. Treas. of the Marble Lake Mining and Milling Co., in Fontenac County, situated near Clyne, and about 18 miles from Caledar, on the C.P.R., and Mr. Kraft, of Buffalo, solicitor for the company, and Mr. A. M. Thomsen, of Buffalo, N.Y., are in the city to-day transacting business in connection with the company. The Examiner was informed by Mr. Dale that Mr. A. M. Thomsen has secured a twenty year lease of the Marble Lake Mining and Milling business. It is understood that there are some local stockholders, but no information is, as yet, to hand.

Mr. Thomsen stated to an Examiner reporter this afternoon that he had secured the lease, but he was unable to say whether he would proceed with operations until he had seen the mine. As yet none of the parties have surveyed the place. In the course of the next few days, the above mentioned gentlemen will visit the mine in order that they can ascertain its qualities. There is nothing further in connection with the business for publication at present.

A RUNAWAY

"Jerry," an ex-member of the Fire Department, made another escapade yesterday, when he ran away with a truck belonging to the Board of Works Department. Jerry's connection with the Fire Department was not long enough to secure for him a long service medal. Last spring he was transferred from his position on the hook and ladder truck to one of the city's dump carts. Since that time he has come into prominence as a runaway horse. Yesterday he ran from Smith Street to Box 38 McDonel and Reid, where he was persuaded to stop by a small boy. Probably he scented smoke. Fortunately no damage was done, which fact is in itself a record for Jerry.

A PAINFUL ACCIDENT

A painful accident befel John Taylor of Chamberlain street, this morning. He was engaged in punching sheet steel, in the Canadian General Electric Works, this morning, when a piece of the metal flew up and lodged in his eye. Messrs. Comstock's ambulance took him to the Nicholls Hospital, where he was attended by Drs. Buchanan and Young.

PROGRESS MADE IN THE PRESBYTERIAN CAMPAIGN

Laymen in Peterborough Are Doing Faithful Work and Canvassers are Being Given a Kindly Reception Wherever They Go---The Duplex System.

The Presbyterian toilers, who have to get up at six in the morning, are staying with the task until 10.30 and later, in order to cover the work assigned. The people are giving them a kindly reception and the work is doing everybody good. Of course, there are some disappointing features At times a worker drops out because of the pressure of other work, or sickness in his home and a substitute must be provided. Then there are some who do not yet have the right point of view about supporting the Church. They are not in favour of contributing weekly and put up the claim that they should give only when there, that is, they pay for only what they get themselves and some do not take very much. Business men know that the only way to keep up a business is to secure a regular income, and the Church is learning business methods, though all of the people do not yet see their obligation as members of their own church.

This is supposed to be an enlightened age, yet there are some who will not give to the missionary objects of their church. One who knows, says they are simply repudiating their vows which they took upon themselves when they united with the Church of Christ.

But the great majority are responding nobly. The building fund of Knox church is receiving some attention, but not the response it requires. The people of that church, however, will be sure to be heard from with no uncertain sound by December 1st, when they make their donations for the building account.

Many new boxes of envelopes will be required in Knox and St. Andrew's churches, where the duplex system is followed. The young people are going to have a new interest in the church because of their share in the givings. The story is told of a young boy to whom a box of Duplex envelopes had been given for the first time, that on Saturday when offered a trip on the train, which meant absence from his own church on the Sabbath, he refused because "You see, Daddy, I am going to duplex to-morrow." Many of the young people will be duplexing after this week. The great work initiated this week will produce large results in the days and years to come.

There is one thing that the Committee in charge would like to impress upon all Presbyterians of the city, that is, if the work which we have undertaken is to be accomplished, all must have a share in it. no one must shirk his duty in the matter. The average per member which is asked for, is only about $5.60 per year, or 10 cents per week. Surely this is not an impossible amount, from even the poorest in our congregations. Some large amounts have been promised by the more wealthy members of the congregation. This is as it should be. The Scriptural method of giving is that we should give according as God has prospered us.

If the Presbyterians of Peterborough succeed in raising this amount it is sure to result in greater efficiency to the whole work of the church.

COURSE OF EXAMINER ROAD RACE WILL BE THE SAME AS USUAL

Although the matter of changing the route of the Examiner road-race has been under discussion by the management for some time, this year will see no difference in the conditions, and the course for the senior race will be the same as before, from Lakefield to Peterborough. The Examiner has been trying to select a course that will allow the start and finish to take place at the Examiner Office. Of course this could be done by having the contestants run five miles out the Lakefield road and return, but this will involve coming back over the same road, a condition that the runners do not appreciate. Another suggestion was to have the course start at the Examiner Office, from there along George and Water Streets and the Lakefield road to Nassau, cross the river there, come down through East City to Downer's Corners, cross the Locks bridge and return to the Examiner via Lansdowne, Lock and George Streets. This would make a good route, and it is possible that another year may see some such course as the above selected. For this year, however, the old course will be used, the contestants starting at Lakefield and finishing in front of the Examiner Office. Keen interest is already being taken in the events, and junior and senior runners are both in training. A record field in both events is looked for, and as far as condition goes, this year's races will probably see start the best conditioned men in the history of the contests.

PRESENTATION MADE TO REV. CHAS. CARPENTER

Advisory Board of St. John's Church Show Their Appreciation of His Services by Presenting Him With a Handsome Purse of Gold and an Appreciative Address.

The members of the Advisory Board of St. John's Church met in the guild room of the Sunday school last night at 7.30 to say farewell to Rev. Carpenter, and to present the departing clergyman with a handsome purse of gold. The congregation realise that they are about to lose a beloved friend as well as a devout minister, but they are willing to make the sacrifice for the good of the congregation of which he will be the pastor.

Rev. Canon Davidson, Rector of St. John's, made a few introductory remarks, in which he explained the nature of the occasion, and called upon Mr. A. H. Stratton, who read the address, which was as follows:

To the Rev. Charles Carpenter:

Dear Mr. Carpenter,—On behalf of the congregation of St. John's Church, Peterborough, we wish to employ this occasion to address you and to express our congratulations upon the well-deserved confidence in your ability to perform worthily the sacred work of the ministry, reposed in you by His Lordship the Bishop of the Diocese of Toronto, in advancing you to the honourable and responsible position of Rector of Christ Church, Campbellford.

We have had the pleasure and, we hope, edification and profit of your ministrations the past year. We have had opportunity and occasion to admire your blameless life and to appreciate your fidelity to, and your zeal, interest and energy in, the work of your sacred calling; and if we might venture to pronounce upon His Lordship's judgment we can from knowledge and observation, truly assert our belief that he has made no error in reposing in you the confidence implied in the appointment.

With our congratulations we must conjoin the deep regret, that by your acceptance of the care of Campbellford, we lose your presence and ministrations amongst us. During your year with the church and congregation of St. John's, they have come to esteem you very highly in love for your works sake.

In earnest of the warmest wishes (in which are included Mrs. Carpenter and family) for many years of happy and prosperous life for you and them, and, for yourself, many years of faithful service in the Master's vineyard; and as a material mark of our love and respect, we ask your acceptance of this small gift.

On behalf of the congregation of St. John's Peterborough,

A. H. Stratton,
A. E. Coulthard,
Wardens.

Mr. A. E. Coulthard then made the presentation, which was followed by a short address, in which he expressed the regret of the congregation, that Mr. Carpenter was leaving, and assured him that he carried with him the best wishes and prayers of the congregation he was leaving behind.

Rev. Mr. Carpenter then addressed the assemblage, and thanked them sincerely for the kind gift, and assured them that he would always cherish it as a token of remembrance of the time he had spent among them. He said that an occasion like the present humbled one because when one heard such good things said about oneself, it brought to the mind the things that had been neglected, or that had been left undone. He also told them that although he had only been among them about a year, he had got to know them and he felt it as quite a break to get away from them so soon. Regarding his future duties, he said that the call was one not to be lightly put over. He expressed his gratitude to the members, as representatives of the congregation, for all the kindnesses shown to both his family and himself, and concluded by wishing them and the parish every success in the future.

TRAINS COLLIDE

Two Freights Have a Rear-end Mix-up Between Havelock and Norwood Early This Morning

TRAFFIC DELAYED

Special Wire to The Examiner.

SMITH'S FALLS, SEPT. 28.—A rear-end collision between two freight trains occurred on the C. P. R., between Havelock and Norwood at an early hour this morning. Considerable damage was done to two trains and some of the trainmen were injured, though, it is said, not seriously. The traffic was tied up for about four hours before the track could be cleared.

Cochrane To Get Position In Cabinet

Special to The Examiner.

TORONTO, SEPT. 28.—Premier-elect Borden has sent for Hon. Frank Cochrane, the Provincial Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines, to go immediately to Ottawa, and Mr. Cochrane, who was in the wilds of Algonquin Park on a fishing tour, had to be reached by Indian guides and long canoe trips. He is to-day on his way to Ottawa. It is thought he is slated for an important place in the Cabinet.

35,000 Railway Men To Go On Strike

Special to The Examiner

CHICAGO, ILL., SEPT. 28.—Thirty-five thousand men of the Shopmen's International Union of Harriman lines, including the Illinois Central Union and Southern Pacific, will go on strike Saturday or Monday, unless their demands are recognized by Company, and the companies have stated they will not give in.

"WITH EDGED TOOLS"

Famous English Company Coming to Peterborough

According to advices just received from the Shubert office in New York, Henry Seton Merriman's great book play "With Edged Tools," adapted from his famous novel of the same name, will open in the Capital, Ottawa, on Oct. 2nd. Peterborough is to have it for one night and a Matinee on Oct. 7th.

The original English Company arrive by the Royal Edward on Sept. 30. It will be precisely the same company that has given 1079 performances of the play in Great Britain. Many things contribute to the success of "With Edged Tools." It is witty, it is literary, and withal, it is strong and sympathetic, and with the Merriman glamour of romance over all. It is also beautifully played and splendidly mounted ,the entire production, weighing over five tons, being brought over complete.

TO RECEIVE PROMOTION

MONTREAL, QUE., SEPT. 28.—It was announced this morning from the office of President Hayes that Second Vice-president Wainwright would not retire altogether from service on attaining his 70th birthday, but would receive promotion.

Big Fight Called Off

Examiner Special:

LONDON, SEPT. 28.—Because of the hostility of the authorities the Johnson-Wells fight negotiations and arrangements are all called off.

A Record At Young's Point

The Young's Point polling division in Smith certainly did its duty in the Dominion elections last Thursday by obeying the adage that every man should exercise the privileges of its franchise. There were ninety-seven names on the list for this division, and exactly ninety-seven voted, one ballot being rejected. Taking out the votes of the two scrutineers, this means that out of ninety-seven people only two failed to vote. Sheriff Hall the returning officer, sent out one hundred ballots to the division, and only three were returned. Young's Point gave Mr. Stratton a majority of 4.

ITALY PREPARING FOR THE INVASION OF TRIPOLI

Army of Occupation Will be Sent on Tuesday Followed by Thousands of Reinforcements Daily---Naval Forces Make a Demonstration Off the Coast.

Special Wire to The Examiner.

ROME, ITALY, SEPT. 28.—To-day reserves are answering the call to colours and there is no let up in Italy's preparations for war with Turkey. Notwithstanding the lies within and without the Government is pressing Turkey on all sides for some act that would justify Italy in immediate declaration of war. In the meantime preparations are being made for the departure of thirty-three thousand men, on Tuesday next, as an army of occupation for Tripoli, followed by reinforcements of ten thousand each day for the balance of the week. While nothing has been stated by the Government openly, the cool, calculating way with which the Government has gone ahead with the preparations for slicing off Tripoli from the Ottoman empire, has led to the assumption that Italy is backed up by some very powerful European power, either Germany, or France, or Great Britain.

LONDON, SEPT. 28.—News has been received here that the Italian squadrons, lined up off the Coast of Tripoli, with transports of the advance guard of troops, made a naval demonstration there and sailed eastward towards Constantinople. This morning the situation was regarded here as ominous and there was a great depreciation on the stock exchanges, in all stocks likely to be affected by war between Turkey and Italy.

CONSTANTINOPLE, SEPT. 28.—The Government Cabinet was in session this morning and on adjournment it was announced that a Governor would be immediately sent to Tripoli, with strong reinforcements. The newspapers have been ordered to stop the discussion of the Italian trouble, on pain of suppression.

First Rugby Game On Saturday, Oct. 14th Big Practice To-night

A full turnout of the Rugby Club is looked for to-night at 8.30 p. m., at the Armouries. On Saturday afternoon all are expected to be out in uniform at Riverside Park, at 3 o'clock. The team plays its first game on the 14th of next month against Parkdale, considered by many to be one of the best teams in the O. R. F. U., so the best of condition will be necessary if a victory is to be expected.

Any men not belonging to the W. E. A. C. are also asked to turn out, as the strongest team possible is wanted to represent Peterborough, in order to make a good showing.

SENSATIONAL EVIDENCE IN $200,000 DAMAGE SUIT

Special to The Examiner.

MONTREAL, SEPT. 28.—Despite strenuous objections on the part of T. Chase Casgrain and Donald MacMaster, K.C., the Attorneys for David Russel in his $200,000 suit against the Pinkerton Detective Agency, it was established at the continuation of the trial this morning that John W. McNamara, the local manager of the Pinkerton Agency, said he had authorization from the Chief of Detectives Carpenter of this city force to use his name in endeavouring to deceive Russel as to his whereabouts. This point for the defence was brought out during the cross-examination of McNamara by Aleni Geoffrion, the Attorney for the defence.

MONTREAL, QUE., SEPT. 28.—John Russell, a brother of the plaintiff, gave sensational evidence. He said he had been summoned by McNamara to Montreal on the statement that his brother, David, was mentally unbalanced, and asking him to come at once to talk over David Russell's deposition to an insane asylum. He was to be examined and sent to the Sanitarium.

THE EXAMINER ROAD RACES

FIERCE AUTUMNAL STORMS PREDICTED FOR OCTOBER

Inl Hicks Predicts Much Stormy Weather for October---Warm Weather Towards the End of the Month

A reactionary storm period, under the combined strain of both earth and Venus equinoxes, is central on the 3rd and 4th, and may be expected to bring a return of storm conditions, with autumnal rain, wind and possibly light snow, northward. Venus lightning and thunder will probably bring in these October periods, followed by rapid change to much cooler, on the 7th. This is one of the most decided storm periods of this month. Violent disturbances should be watched against, both in the Lake and Gulf regions. Rain, wind and thunder will visit east parts of the interior during this period. From the 4th to the 11th, central on the 7th, characterize a severe autumnic period. Snow, northward, rising barometer, and much colder, will wind up this period.

A reactionary storm period falls at the closing of the Venus period, on the 12th, 14th, and 15th. Fierce, autumnal thunder storms will visit many sections, with high gales over lake centres. High barometer, cool squalls and change to much colder at the culmination of these storms.

A regular storm period, covered by the Autumnal and Mastery periods, extends from the 18th to the 22nd. The nights of this period will fall on the 18th, 19th and 22nd. Fierce and unusual storms, with lightning and thunder during the first stages, will mark this period. Autumn rains will occur generally at this time, attended by dangerous gales, especially on and about the great lakes. Early snow in the north and west, with Mercury silent storms that will hamper and endanger wires and agricultural interests, need not surprise those concerned. Another very decided seismic period reaches from the 18th to 24th, centred on the 21st. High north west winds and cold, fair weather will follow this period.

A reactionary storm period will bring in storm changes—low barometer, disturbed and autumnal rains, and wind on the 23rd, 25th, and 26th. Stubborn cloudiness, persistent tendency to drizzle and sleet, snow and cold will attend and follow these dates. Those who will be forewarned of disagreeable weather and autumnal storms, and make haste with all possible outdoor work, will be winners at this time.

A regular storm period is central on the 28th, and extends from the 26th of October to the 3rd of November. The month will end with weather growing warmer, falling barometer, and cloudiness increasing and advancing from the west. Native timing to occur in western extremes, will be in sight to "official observers," and to those "on the spot," as we enter November.

Our readers must remember that we are compelled to close up these forecast pages early in the month preceding the date of issue, hence we are not able to give the seismic, or earthquake record, down to a later date than about one month before the current issue. Our new readers, as well as old, will find or forecasts of all these earthquake disturbances, which were written and printed in our Almanac one year and over before they occurred. The forecasts are also reprinted in Word and Works over a month before the occurrence of the earthquakes.

Irish Railroad Men Accept Company's Terms—Express Regret That Trouble Had Occurred

STRIKE A FAILURE

Special to The Examiner:

DUBLIN, SEPT. 28.—The strike, declared by the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants on all lines in Ireland, ended to-day ,when the men accepted the Company's terms conditionally, and expressed regret that the trouble had occurred. The strike was a failure because the majority of the men did not respond to the call.

NATIONALISM IS ENOUGH.

One would think that the Conservative leaders and press had sufficiently exploited the absurd, insulting and foundationless annexation cry to mislead the electors by beclouding the issue, without continuing it after it has helped serve its purpose. What boots it, to quote obscure "Yankee" journalistic jingoes and demagogic politicians in the United States? No journal of influence and standing and no public men of recognized weight has advocated the annexation of Canada. Even if the whole United States declared for it, it would make little more, or no difference, Canada would have something to say about the matter. Because a man covets a property and attempts to buy what is not for sale, that gives him no chance to get it. The owner has something to say. King David wanted Naboth's vineyard, but he did not get it, king, and absolute king, as he was. The United States may say, which they have not done, that they want Canada; that is not saying that they will get it. They cannot get it without our consent, and that, they will not get. And that should be the end of the matter. It has been an insult to Canadians to argue the matter at all. Why continue the insult? The Conservative party have shown their loyalty to Canada, enough, by accepting the help of Bourassa and his "Nationalist" doctrine to afford to dispense with the dangerous, but no less dangerous, more intangible and equally silly cry of "annexation."

WHAT REALLY COUNTS.

The Laurier Government has given an administration that stimulates every department of secular activity in Canada, and besides gives the churches a little ore than they can do. The Presbyterian Church finds that the needs of its mission work in the West have grown so great, through the rapid settlement of the Canadian West that there are a hundred fields still unsupplied with workers. Money for missions has been lavishly supplied, but the scarcity of labourers to help the fields, white unto harvest, seems to be the lack. The Methodists are calling for a million and a half dollars to be used in mission work, and the Anglicans are making unusual efforts to cope with the situation created by the tremendous growth of population. This condition interests more than those who are directly and denominationally concerned in dealing with the religious and moral problem a great influx of foreign population presents. It is a matter of national import. Given almost inexhaustible wealth of national resources, the material greatness of the country is humanly assured. But there is something more necessary to true greatness. It will not do to rest upon the boast that the West produces the best wheat in the world. Men are more than wheat. If we do not take steps to reap the harvest of the Gospel sowing with the reaping of the wheat, we shall fall short of reaching the highest good. Our new population, and even our transferred population in the West may produce a greater yield of wheat, but it will be a menace, instead of a benefit, if this new population is not placed and maintained in a condition of assimilation with the high moral standard of citizenship which Canada can, happily, boast of. This cannot be done without the influence of the Gospel, no matter how many railways we build and how many farms we settle. The missionary is the true nation-maker. Laurier may plant and Borden may water, but the missionary alone gives the increase that counts.

THE PENALTY OF OPPORTUNISM

Mr. Borden's troubles, by no means, end with the winning of power. The rub will come when he begins to exercise his power; and the trouble he will encounter will be the price he has to pay for his opportunism. His course, antecedent to winning the elections, has been largely influenced by deference to the appeal of this issue. He is now confronted with the ogre of Nationalism. Instead of nipping it in the bud, as he might have done, he encouraged and cherished it. Mr. Borden took a double position on the naval question. he tried to sail south by north. To justify his position he showed his sympathy with the Nationalist movement when first showed its teeth in the Drummond-Arthabaska bye-election, where hostility to the navy and hostility to everything British or Imperial won its first triumph. Mr. Borden applauded this victory over British ideals by not condemning it, and by not rebuking his bosom followers who sent congratulations to the Empire wreakers. Had Mr. Borden manfully joined with the Liberals in condemning this treasonable propoganda it would doubtless have lost head. He could have done so very consistently. While it was ostensibly directed against the Liberal Government, it was in reality directed against all true and loyal Canadianism, and everything British and good. But he chose to accept this expedient for weakening the Liberal Government, and in the last election welcomed, by accepting—accepted by not repudiating—the help of the high priest of Nationalism, Mr. Bourassa, to whom two at least of Mr. Borden's Ontario supporters, Messrs. Smyth and Gordon, pledged themselves in writing to opposition to the Canadian navy in any from—turned traitors at the behest of a traitor.

Now Mr. Borden has to reckon with the power he has invoked to aid his reaching power. Will Mr. Bourassa, to whom notoriety is the breath of life, forego the exploitation of his share of the triumph? The Ottawa Citizen, having, rather fatuously counselled Mr. Borden to "curb the pretensions of Quebec," Le Devoir, Mr. Bourassa's paper, says:

> "To say that Mr. Borden will be able so govern without the Province of Quebec is easy; but Mr. Borden, who at least knows how to count, will not dare—even if he had the desire, which we do not for a moment believe—to risk such a step, because he would find himself immediately in a minority of three or four votes."

And Mr. Bourassa's paper becomes specific and names as eligible for cabinet positions, Messrs Monk, Pelletier, Normand, Dr. Paquet, Nantel and Blondin, all anti-navy and anti-British. It was all Blondin who declared in the Drummond and Arthabaska bye-election that "we have had enough of England and the English". If Mr. Borden, at the behest of the swash-buckling element of Ontario, where he gets most of his support, decides to ignore French Quebec, he stands to have that province solidly against him. He has, of course, the Liberal members against him now; if he sets the Nationalists against him by ignoring them, he may count upon the antagonism of his supporters, not Nationalists, whose local patriotism and pride of race, will justify to them the practice of opportunism, similar to that Mr. Borden has practised in toadying to the Nationalists.

Mr. Borden's troubles are of his own making. He spoke and voted for the principle of the Canadian navy in 1900; he spoke and voted against it in 1910 to secure Nationalist countenance, and now the Nationalists are demanding payment.

Mr. Borden's opportunism is not confined either to the Nationalist naval question. He won power by the play and employment of contradictory forces. He had the help and welcomed the help at the same time, of the anti-reciprocity policy—of the anti-protection policy of the anti-British, of the anti-French, of the anti-American, of the anti-British preference policies. It will keep him busy to "untagle the twist".

HAY IN DEMAND

There was a rush of hay on the market to-day from all parts of the country. Several loads were disposed of at $14.00 per ton, and although there was no advance on this price this morning, the demand shows all evidence of boosting the price. There were several loads of first class hay put up to-day, and these were sold in the course of half an hour. One or two loads of second-grade hay were offered, but the demand seemed to be for the good stuff.

ECZEMA ON THE HEAD

Mr. Peterson, South Bay, Ont., writes "For years I suffered a sort of eczema on the head. I tried four different doctors, giving each a fair trial, but the disease grew worse and spread to my arm. I got Dr. Chase's Ointment, and it has entirely cured me. I give you my name because I want other sufferers to know about this splendid Ointment."

SUCCESSFUL TENDERERS

Aemilius Jarvis & Company, Bond Dealers of Toronto, are the successful tenderers for an issue of $43,964.33 debentures of the Town of Smith Falls, Ont., the award being made yesterday.

The debentures mature in 20 years and bear 5 per cent. interest. School purposes account for $12,500 of the total, and Local Improvements, the balance of $31,464.33.

The Town of Smith Falls is a divisional point, on the Toronto-Montreal line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, has a population of 6,000, and the total assessment amounts to $1,264,319.

RECORD OF ACHIEVEMENTS MR. BORDEN HAS TO EMULATE

There is a great contrast between the outgoing of 1896 and that of 1911, between the Canada Sir Wilfrid found and that Mr. Borden finds.. A declining population, an immigration tending to the vanishing point, an emigration (and phenomenon in a new country) swelling yearly in volume, a deficit, public scandals, a violent discord between one province and the Dominion, a dead Northwest, where the rails did not doff all summer the rust of winter snows, a tariff patched and tinkered at the behest of every interest with a "pull," a general lethargy as of approaching national dissolution, an Augean stable of waste and corruption, such was the legacy of the old regime. What does the Laurier Government bequeath to its successor?

(1) A New West, built up by a competent and aggressive immigration policy. It is idle to deny the important part played by Mr. Sifton. His energy, business intelligence, and advertising system, made Canada known and sought. Until he made himself a millionaire and turned away after false gods he was a tower of strength in Laurier's lines, and his influence lives after his own defection.

(2) Our Transportation Facilities have been made a wonder of the world. Where one transcontinental road languished in 1896, now three flourish and ramify. Our canals and locks are something stupendous. The St. Lawrence route has been made safer and popular. The deepening of Montreal harbour puts it in competition with New York and Boston. Sir Wilfrid Laurier is famous as the champion at Imperial Conferences of the All-Red Route, an ideal yet to be realized, a great fertiliser of imperial unity.

(3) The Agricultural Advance has been amazing. A practical farmer himself, Mr. Fisher has made a great success of the Dominion Experimental Farm, extending its useful influences in many directions. Especially stock-breeding has been promoted. The inspection of fruit has given prestige to Canadian apples abroad, and the inspection of packing houses must also be credited to Mr. Fisher. The cold-storage system on railways and steamship lines, which has been fostered by the Government, puts our dairy and fruit industries on a very different footing from that of 1896.

(4) The Tariff has been scientifically improved by Mr. Fielding. He leaves an immense annual surplus in place of the deficit shuffled off upon him as a sort of mortal coil by Mr. Foster. The tariff of Sir John Macdonald, which his pigmy successors had kept as a law of the Medes and Persians, was overhauled by experienced hands, and made into a new thing. Mr. Fielding gave the country "tariff stability." Next to his competent industry in arranging the principles and details of the tariff at large must be reckoned the great and original departure known as the "British Preference," the result of which has been to increase our trade with Great Britain nearly four-fold.

(5) The Railway Commission is another of Laurier's great works. The Dominion Railway Commission is the most powerful tribunal of its kind in the world. It has emancipated shippers from the costly and dilatory process which rendered them almost helpless against the railway corporations. It has redressed inequalities, prevented abuses, and given the public a means of speedy justice in their relations with the railways.

(6) The Reform of the Postal System should not be omitted. We now take our two-cent letter, imperial and domestic, as a matter of course. Rural mail delivery has been established. The department, a chronic source of deficits, has been put on a paying basis.

(7) Technical Education has engaged the attention of the Dominion Government. Seeing the Whitney Administration half asleep, and only Nova Scotia alive to this great question, the Laurier Government appointed the Royal Commission to go about, collect information, rouse public opinion, and put our country abreast of the times. Shamed into activity in what should be its own sphere, the Whitney Government is now limping late after the Dominion's lead.

(8) The Civil Service has been reformed. The inside service has been placed on a non-partisan basis in which merit alone will count. The extension of the law to the outside service had been determined upon. A civil service commission had been appointed, headed by Professor Adam Shortt, whose name is a guarantee of impartiality and efficiency.

(9) Social Legislation. The Laurier Government has broken new ground. Not a single statute in the special interest of labor had been passed before 1896, except the grant of a public holiday. One of the first acts of the Laurier Government was the abolition of the sweating system on public contracts. Later a good wages clause was inserted in all contracts on Government work. Abroad, the Industrial Disputes Act, really framed by that scientific and practical economist, Mr. Mackenzie King, has received the highest tributes as a method of dealing with strikes. Like the Liberal Government in Great Britain, the Laurier Government has recognized the necessity of governmental intervention both legislatively and executively in the conflict between labor and capital. Adjustments must be made—that is a principle handed on to the Conservative Administration. Mr. King's new law against combines seems a step in the right direction. Will the Borden Government go on in the direction pointed out? If it merely looks for votes, it will not. But the body of social legislation on the statute books is the noblest monument of the Laurier Administration.

(10) Two Provinces have been added to confederation out of the new west. The building of the west and of these two provinces by consequence is indeed one of the most brilliant achievements of the Laurier regime. No one except a few fanatics in Ontario and a few extremists the other way in Quebec now suggests that the work of provincial construction was not well done.

(11) Imperial Naval Defence. The Canadian navy is the first permanent step taken by any prime minister of this country towards imperial cooperation on the high seas. Already Canada had under Laurier taken over her own defence by land. She now has a fleet in the making that will not only take care of her coasts, but furnish a tangible aid to Britain in time of war, if, unfortunately such a time should ever come. Laurier is denounced by a party in Quebec as the Great Imperialist. He has given Canada prestige in the imperial councils, has made her the keystone of the Empire. His latest contribution to imperial co-operation is the plan unanimously adopted by the Imperial Conference in June, the Royal Commission of Commerce, which will go a long way towards unifying the sentiments and interests of all countries under the British flag.

Laurier hands over to Borden a Canada united and prosperous, and soaring towards a future that none can calculate.

A FEW HINTS

From Farm and Dairy.

N. C. Campbell, Brant Co., Ont.

We farmers are not so helpless as we have led ourselves to believe.

Drought can be effectively fought by intelligent cultivation.

A harrow following the plow will conserve tons of water for use in times of drought.

Surface cultivation and a dust mulch will blanket and retain the subsoil moisture in the corn field.

Harrow work on grain fields and corn fields will seal the stores of moisture and keep them for a time of need.

We farmers need not sit down and simply take what comes. We are far more the arbiter of our fortunes than we often imagine.

We can fight drought by accumulated soil moisture for the crops; we can carry our stock over with accumulated supplies of fodder.

The Breeders' Gazette charges that the dairy farmer that has not learned the value of alfalfa and the summer silo has yet to learn the fundamentals of his business.

No other plant will fight a drought as alfalfa will. No other crop will so easily, cheaply and effectively carry the farmer over a scorching summer as will ensilaged corn.

The winter silo is only half the possible provision for the economic feeding of farm animals. The summer silo is coming to be part of the other half.

The more progressive dairymen are hitching up to the summer silo. One silo is not enough. Most dairymen can make good use of two.

It is not uncommon to find two silos on many of our progressive dairy farms. Our up-to-date dairymen now recognize that the season of barren pastures must be met with the summer silo.

It has been established that no high-priced land can yield in grass the value it will produce for the silo. This fact ought to be ingrained in the consciousness of every farmer, even if drought did not frequently cut his profits short.

Alfalfa and the summer silo will fight the fight against drought and come out with a glorious victory; we dairymen cannot too soon hitch our wagons to these stars.

CANADIAN LUMBER

From Farm and Dairy.

Canada is dependent for its lumber supply on the soft woods of the forest much more than is the United States, as seen from the 1910 Forest Products report compiled by the Dominion Forestry Branch and shortly to be published. Of the 1910 Canadian lumber cut, amounting to nearly five billion feet, only one-twentieth consisted of hardwoods or broad-leafed trees, worth barely five million dollars; on the other hand, almost one-quarter of the lumber cut in the United States consists of hardwoods, which country had far greater hardwood forests than ever did Canada.

Canada is already feeling a shortage of the hardwood supply and makes up the national deficiency by importing annually from the United States hardwood lumber to the value of seven and a half million dollars. Thus the value of the hardwoods imported into Canada during 1910 exceeded by 50 per cent. the value of the hardwoods manufactured into lumber. Nearly all of these imports are from the United States and consist of the most valuable species such as oak, hickory, tulip or yellow poplar, chestnut, gum, walnut, cherry and a large amount of hard pine which is so frequently used as a hardwood.

From the foregoing figures it is seen that we are becoming more and more dependent upon the United States, whose available supply for export is surely and rapidly decreasing. Whatever can be done to improve the resources of Canada by the elimination of wood waste, and particularly by the development of the small wood lots of Ontario, Southern Quebec and the Maritime provinces, should be done with all possible speed.

BUTTER MAKING

From Farm and Dairy.

A. H. Hails, Gundison, S. D.

The butter maker should know his business thoroughly. There are lots of them who do. He should be given every chance to make good butter. He should have all the necessary equipment so that he can have no excuse on that score. He should reject any and all milk or cream that will not make a good article. If the board stand with him there will be but very little trouble about the rejections of such products. He should be courteous to the patrons. There should be confidence between the manager and himself and the rest will be easy.

He should be paid good wages and if he is a good man do not be afraid to increase his pay because he is worth just as much, if not more, to you than to the other creamery that is trying to get him. Remember that it takes the right kind of people, as well as the right kind of cows, and enough of them to make a creamery run smoothly and successfully.

THE HUPMOBILE

Psoriasis Was Cured

After Five Years of Suffering ---Three Doctors Failed and Said Case Was Incurable

Itching and Burning Was Terrible Until Relief and Cure Was Effected by

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Psoriasis is another name for chronic eczema. It is the worst form of this dreadful itching skin disease. Once eczema has reached this stage it is usually considered incurable.

But here is a case which proves again the wonderful healing power of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Not only does relief come quickly, but the resulting benefits are thorough and lasting.

Mrs. Nettie Massey, Consecon, Ont., writes: "I thought it my duty to write you telling you the great benefit I received from using Dr. Chase's Ointment. For five years I suffered with what three doctors called Psoriasis. I doctored with three different doctors, with no good results, and one of our noted doctors told me if any one offered to guarantee me a cure for $50.00 to keep my money in my pocket, as I could not be cured.

"The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head. The itching and burning was hard to bear. At last my brother read in the paper about Dr. Chase's Ointment as a healer. I got 8 boxes, and I am glad to say I am entirely cured, not a sign of a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise the ointment enough, and you are at liberty to use my testimony, as I hope thereby to induce other sufferers to try the same."

Wedding At Hastings

Nuptials of Miss Mae Humphries and Mr. A. Thomson

Examiner Special:

HASTINGS, SEPT. 26.—A pleasant event took place on Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Humphries, it being the occasion of the marriage of their eldest daughter, Mae, of Mr. A. Thoson, of Seymour. The ceremony was performed by Rev. D. A. Thompson, pastor of the Presbyterian church, in the presence of about sixty invited guests. After the ceremony and customary congratulations, the bride led the way to the dining-room, where a sumptuous repast was provided, and much enjoyed by all. After ample justice had been done to the toothsome viands, a number of toasts were proposed and responded to, and a short time spent in social intercourse. The bride was gowned in pearl-grey silk with touches of pink, and was attended by her little sister, Grace, who acted as flower-girl. Early in the evening she donned her travelling suit of Copenhagen blue with hat to match, and amid the best wishes of her friends, left with her husband for Campbellford, going by auto and from thence to her future home. Her many friends join in wishing the happy couple a long and prosperous wedded life.

Sunday was duly observed in the Presbyterian church as "Children's Day," and the pastor's address was directed ore particularly to the young people. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with cut-flowers and house-plants, which had been gathered together by friends of the children.

On Friday evening the Epworth League, in connection with the Methodist Church, re-opened, after the summer vacation, by a social evening. Quite a number of the young people were present, as well as older members of the congregation. Light refreshments were served during the evening and a pleasant hour spent together.

A number of the ladies of the town and surrounding country have been attending the Cooking Class, which was carried on in the town hall, under the auspices of the Ogilvie's Royal Household Flour Co., and now that the class has closed they have gone to their homes, resolved to try to profit from the instructions so freely given. We are looking for greater results.

Mr. Skinkail is receiving the congratulations of his friends upon the occasion of his marriage to Miss Armour of Percy. The wedding took place on Wednesday at the home of the bride's parents, the immediate friends and relations being present. Rev. D. A. Thomson was the officiating clergyman, and tied the knot which made them one for life.

Thursday, being election day, the road to the Town Hall was kept well used, electors passing to and fro to mark their ballots.

A very welcome and much needed rain fell during the week, which will be of funtold benefit to the country water, in some sections being very scarce indeed.

A number from this part took in the Lakefield Fair on Wednesday last, and report a good attendance and a fine exhibit.

Mr. Bingham has returned somewhat improved in health from a trip in N. Ontario.

Mrs. Frost of Dummer has been a guest at the home of Mrs. H. McMullen, town.

Miss Flo Tyke has returned home, after an extended visit with her sister in Winnipeg.

Master Jack Parsons met with what might easily have proved a very serious accident when, in splitting wood, the axe fell on the top of his head, inflicting an ugly gash. We are glad to say, however, that the wound is rapidly healing.

Mrs. Patterson and Miss Shearer of Otonabee, have been visiting friends here.

We are pleased to hear that Miss Ethel Stinson is convalescent after a recent serious illness.

Mrs. A. Wilson has been visiting her son in Toronto.

The patrons of the cheese factory are jubilant over the high prices realized at the last board.

The friends here of Mr. C. Brisbois, recently of our town, regret to learn of the serious accident which has befallen him in Peterboro, and wish him a speedy recovery.

Mr. C. Lynn has secured a position in the C.G.E. works, Peterboro. We wish Charlie success.

Blood Poisoning Prevented

You need have no fear of this deadly disease if you apply "Moeca" Ointment promptly to every cut, burn, bruise, scald, scratch, boil or sore spot of any kind. "Moeca" Ointment kills the poison, restores a healthy condition and quickly heals. 25c at any drug store.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

THE FRENCH MAID.

Last night's audience at the Grand are still wondering why the entertainment was billed "The French Maid." Just why it was called "The French Maid" in preference to the "Yankee Maid" or the "Old Maid" is by no means apparent. The offering was nothing more or less than a vaudeville performance with any semblance to a plot left in the dressing-rooms, and it was not at all good vaudeville by any means. The interpolated songs were new and for the most part tuneful and had their rendition been left entirely to the orchestra would have been enjoyable. Vocalism is certainly not the forte of the principals, although the humour of a number of the topical songs carried them through to an encore. Clever dancing specialties by a number of the company were the most meritorious features of the production and some of the dialogue was bright enough for a better setting. The audience found the following and some others to their liking:

"Did you vote for reciprocity?"
"No, why?" "Somebody did."
"Where did you get that bump on your forehead?" "Somebody hit me with a tomato."
"Why a tomato would not make a bump like that!"
"This one was in a can."
"Did you know that the devil is married?"
"No, who is his wife?"
"Oh, an old flame of his."

A DE LUXE BOOKLET

The railways of the American Continent vie with each other in producing their publications in artistic and attractive style and the Grand Trunk have received the palm from connoisseurs for being the leaders in this direction. With their usual taste they have issued a very handsome brochure slightly different to the ordinary run of railway booklets, inasmuch as there is not any descriptive matter in the publication, but it is a book of views that tell their story without words. The name of this unique piece of advertising is simply "Vistas" with the Grand Trunk trade mark on one corner of the cover. The cover itself is a reproduction in colours from a painting of "The International Limited" the finest and fastest train in Canada. Inside the book are found maps of the Grand Trunk Railway system and the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway and a series of sixty-one pictures of Canadian scenes. These pictures are reproduced in the finest of half-tone process from direct photographic negatives and printed on high class coated paper. The booklet is a credit to the Company.

One of the Peterborough hockey team announced last night that he was going to turn out with the Rugby team on Saturday in order to get into shape for hockey. Here is a good suggestion for the other local puck-chasers. By practising with the football men for the season they will find themselves in the pink of condition by the time the ice comes, and to start well conditioned is half the battle in hockey as well as in any other game.

Awaiting Inspection The New Fall Coats

Dozens of Cleverly Designed Models---From Simple Utility Coats to Elaborate Evening Wraps---Embracing all Styles, Fabrics and Colours That are Worth While From the Well Dressed Women's Standpoint.

Fashion Originators and Style Creators have certainly been lavish in the matter of separate coats for Autumn.

In the history of this store never was there a season that provided such variety, so much beauty, and such wide field for satisfactory selection.

To mention only a few:—there are simple utility coats for the street, many exclusive styles including the reversible beavers and tweeds which are destined to be so popular this season. In every case the models are confined solely to us in Peterborough, enabling you to purchase a coat unlike anyone else in the whole town They are all new, all distinctively original and individual in appearance. Their grace and beauty is due in no small measure to their adherence to the prevailing slender silhouette effects that are so becoming, and which have been built into these outergarments by master hands.

You are sure to find just the New Fall Coat you want among these distinctive models, these exclusive patterns and the pleasingly moderate prices.

FOOD AGAIN

A Mighty Important Subject to Everyone.

A Boston lady talks entertainingly of food and the changes that can be made in health by some knowledge on that line. She says:

"An injury to my spine in early womanhood left me subject to severe sick headaches which would last three or four days at a time, and a violent course of drugging brought on constipation with all the ills that follow.

"My appetite was always light and uncertain and many kinds of food distressed me.

"I began to eat Grape-Nuts food two or three years ago, because I liked the taste of it, and I kept on because I soon found it was doing me good.

"I eat it regularly at breakfast, frequently at luncheon, and again before going to bed—and have no trouble in 'sleeping on it.' It has relieved my constipation, my headaches have practically ceased, and I am in better physical condition at the age of 63 than I was at 40.

"I give Grape-Nuts credit for restoring my health, if not saving my life, and you can make no claim for it too strong for me to endorse." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

LAKEFIELD NEWS

Special to The Examiner.

LAKEFIELD, SEPT. 28.—The Misses Ray left on Friday last to pay a short visit to their sister in Goderick, Ont.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Stuart and family, who have been spending the summer at their cottage near Crowe's Landing, returned to the village on Tuesday last.

Mr. Mackenzie chartered the steamer Stoney Lake on Wednesday last and took the boys for their semi-annual outing to Stoney Lake. A number of friends were also invited to join the party, and the day being especially fine, made it a most enjoyable one. A trip was made first through Stoney Lake, then, on returning, moored at Sandy Beach, where they had dinner and spent the remainder of the afternoon. The Lakefield wharf was reached at 6.30, and all declared it one of the most enjoyable days ever spent.

Mr. H. A. Mitchell, of Toronto, was in the village on Thursday last.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Graham and Miss Blanche Graham, who have been spending the past four months at "Vinmede," Stoney Lake, returned home on Tuesday.

The Rev. F. J. Sawers of Peterboro was in the village on Thursday last.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

Lives there a person in the land over twenty-one years of age who has not, at some period of his life, sent some product of his fertile brain to the magazines and newspapers?

Truly, judging by the number of people who write to ask me about the rules of this game, I doubt it.

"What class of work do editors want the most?"

"How should the manuscripts be arranged?"

"What are the best magazines to send work to?"

"What is the remuneration?"

"Do you have to have a story copyrighted before you send it?"

"When do magazines pay for work—on acceptance or publication?"

These are some of the most common of the forty-leven questions that the rising crop of would-be authors ask me, and since there seems to be such a general interest in the subject, I am going to answer them to the best of my ability in my space to-day, instead of replying to each query personally.

The largest literary demand of the present day I am told is for clever short stories of from 1,000 to 5,000 words, especially love stories. Interesting articles on any topic of timely interest come next in salability. Poetry, especially by unknown authors, is extremely difficult—almost impossible to sell. Some magazines actually have their poetry supplied gratis by people who consider the joy of seeing it actually printed sufficient remuneration.

The conventional methods of arranging manuscript is something everyone who is trying to "break into" this game ought to understand. In the first place, have your work typewritten if you possibly can. That makes it that much the clearer, and anything which is clear and doesn't have to be puzzled over, is much more apt to be appreciated and accepted. If you can't have your work typewritten, write it as legibly as possible. Never write on both sides of the paper. If written, have the lines wide apart; if typewritten, use double spacing.

Write the title on the middle of the first page a few inches from the top. Above it in the right hand corner, your full name and address—in the left hand corner, it is well to put the number of words. If you want the manuscript returned, enclose stamps. If you write a letter to the editor, make it very short, simply stating that you offer the enclosed manuscript to him and that if it is not accepted you would like it returned.

Write on small sheets of paper. Never roll your manuscript, but fold the sheets once or lay flat on cardboard and send in a large envelope.

As to what are the best magazines to which to send your work; I cannot be definite as circumstances alter cases. That depends wholly on the style of your work. Read all the magazines you can get hold of and try to decide which style your own work approximates the most closely.

Some people send their work to story brokers, who, understanding the demands of the various magazines, try to dispose of the work for them, and also criticise it.

Remuneration is a subject on which volumes could be written. Rudyard Kipling, they say, gets a dollar a word. Some small magazines and city newspapers pay three or four dollars a thousand words, and country papers sometimes pay a dollar or two for the same amount. Somewhere, between these two extremes, is the remuneration for the rest of us. Fifteen or twenty dollars a thousand words is a reasonable price for a story by an unknown author, while writers of reputation, such as Elinor Hallowell Abbot, get $500 or $1,000 for a story of ordinary length.

You do not have to have a story copyrighted before you send it.

As to the time of pay,—a few magazines pay on acceptance, many more when the article is published. Incidentally, you must remember that most magazines are made up a year ahead, and the story accepted today may not appear for a year or two. Other magazines have stated times, such as once a month or once a quarter when they settle all their literary bills.

There, I hope these few suggestions will smooth the path to fame and fortune of many rising authors and authoresses.

PETERBORO' PRESBYTERY ADOPTS BUDGET OF GENERAL ASSEMBLY

The Peterborough Presbytery met in Campbellford yesterday at 10 a. m., Rev. H. J. Keith, Moderator, in the chair, and transacted a large amount of business. The most important matter on the docket was the budget of the General Assembly for missionary and the other funds of the whole church. This was the first order of business after luncheon, which was served in the lecture room by the ladies of the Campbellford church who also entertained the Presbytery at dinner in the evening.

Dr. McKay and Rev. F. W. Anderson were present and addressed the Court, placing before the Presbytery the needs of the work and the enormous growth in recent years. They explained the new system, by which appeals for separate funds would cease, and the total amount required would be divided among the congregations, so that each would have a definite amount to raise. After the addresses the Presbytery took up the allotment to each congregation within the bounds. St. Paul's, Peterborough, is asked to raise $5,000; St. Andrew's, $2,600, and Knox, in view of the heavy demands of their building fund, $550. The Peterborough delegates accepted these amounts as fair and within the region of possibility. This would make it possible for St. Paul's church to have their own Foreign Missionary and six Home Missionaries, without interfering with ther proportion to Augmentation and the small schemes. And St. Andrew's could have three Home Missionaries and make a proportionate contribution to all the other schemes.

The canvassers for the City of Peterborough were busy at work last night and the returns to hand are encouraging. There is a substantial increase in the giving, both to the local church and to the Budget. The men engaged in the work, some of whom went out with considerable anxiety regarding their reception, are finding the work very pleasant and meeting with both sympathy and success.

At the meeting of Presbytery Tuesday, facts were presented to show the superiority of the Duplex Envelope as a method of raising money for missionary and congregational purposes over every other system. It was pointed out that even the two envelope method, white and blue, was a failure. One congregation was cited where the giving for missions one three years ago was only $190. After a careful canvass and the adoption of the Duplex envelopes, the gifts were increased to $1,200. In the Orillia Presbyterian Church the Duplex Envelope system was introduced at the beginning of 1909. Previously a change from the monthly to the separate weekly missionary envelope had increased the receipts from $700 to $1,800. Under the duplex system the local revenue was increased from about $5,600 to $5,700 and the missionary funds from $1,800 to $5,600. The total missionary givings for all purposes amounted to $7,875 during 1909.

AN APPRECIATION

It is always a pleasure to recognize appreciation of a good man, such as that implied in the unanimous invitation of Rev. G. W. Henderson to the pastorate of the Welland Avenue Methodist Church at St. Catharines. His pastorate of the Charlotte Street Methodist church has justified this appreciation and has shown him to be one of the best ministers in the Bay of Quinte Conference, as he was considered one of the best in the London Conference. As a preacher he is theologically sound and interesting, without being sensational, presenting new points of light in his treatment of subjects, instead of well-worn platitudes. Additions to the active membership of his church are not gained by spasmodic effort, but by steady, well-directed work. With a flourishing new congregation, largely established out of his own, and with an unusual number of removals, he has maintained the numerical standard of his flock. His interest in every adjunct of the church's work, Sunday School, etc., contributes to their healthy activity. In all respects his pastorate in Peterborough has, as far as human judgment avails, been highly successful. He has been loyal to his people and to his sacred trust, and his people have been, and are, loyal to him. The well-deserved esteem and affection in which he is held, the acceptability of his ministration and his unexhausted capacity for a longer term of usefulness suggest, on the part of his people, tangible grounds of discontent with the rule of the Church that limits a pastorate to four years. In a very real sense the loss of Rev. Mr. Henderson's flock in Peterborough is the gain of the Methodists of St. Catharines, who are to be congratulated upon the choice they have made.

WEDDING BELLS

POWERS—CLANCY.

A quiet and pretty wedding was solemnized on Monday at St. Joseph's Church, Douro, when Miss Elizabeth Christiana Clancy of that parish, was united in marriage to Mr. John V. Powers, of Peterborough. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father McGuire. Miss Mary Clancy, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, while the groom was attended by Mr. Patrick Allen. After the ceremony the happy couple drove to the home of the bride's mother, where a dainty wedding dejeuner was served. A large number of guests were also present.

The bride was becomingly attired in a suit of ivory muslin silk and picture hat. The bridesmaid wore a white suill dress and hat to match. The presents were costly and numerous.

After dinner, amid the congratulations of the many friends who were present, the bridal couple drove to the C. P. R. station. They will visit Detroit and other points and on their return will reside in Peterborough.

BOUCHER—BELCHER.

The handsome residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Belcher, 269 Edinburgh St., was the scene of a pretty house wedding yesterday afternoon, when their daughter, Miss May Georgina, was united in marriage to Mr. George Boucher, son of Dr. R. P. and Mrs. Boucher, Brock St., in the presence of a number of friends and relatives. The bride, who was a grand-daughter of the late Lieut.-General John MacDonald, of H.M. Indian Army, was given away by her father. She was attired in her travelling costume of dark broadcloth with hat to match. Her bridesmaid was Miss Flora MacDonald Belcher, who was also most attractively gowned in mauve and wore a black picture hat. Mr. Arthur Boucher, of Montreal, brother of the groom, was best man.

Rev. Canon Davidson, of St. John's Anglican Church, officiated at the tying of the nuptial knot.

Mr. and Mrs. Boucher left on the evening train for a trip to the coast and it is probable that on their return they will take up residence in Montreal.

The bride, who is one of Peterborough's most popular young ladies, was the recipient of a large number of beautiful and costly presents, which included some extremely rare and costly china. Gifts were received from London, Eng., and British Columbia.

Death After a Scratch

Morris Quatsam, an eleven-year-old Windsor boy, fell off his bicycle and scratched his wrist. He thought nothing of the injury, but blood poison set in and he is dead.

Such incidents as these—by no means infrequent—ought to make people realize the danger that may lie even in the smallest flesh wound.

Take a simple illustration. When a knife, a rusty needle, a splinter of dirty wood, a barbed wire fence, or a thorn, scratches the hand, the latter is inoculated with germs, of which the air about us is full.

The way to avoid serious results is to cleanse the wound and apply Zam-Buk. Zam-Buk is a powerful, yet painless germ-killer, and when applied to the broken skin is absorbed into the tissue, instantly destroying the germs that spread disease and stopping the pain and smarting. That is why Zam-Buk is so popular with children.

The flesh thus soothed and purified, the wound is made perfectly healthy and all poison and cause of festering removed. Having done this, Zam-Buk then proceeds to heal the wound or sore, and new healthy tissue is built up in a quick, painless and perfect manner.

Zam-Buk must not be confused with ordinary ointments. Zam-Buk is a unique preparation, possessing antiseptic, soothing and healing qualities that are not to be found together in any other preparation. It is not only a unique healing balm, but it is also a skin food. For all skin diseases and injuries—cuts, bruises, burns, eczema, chafing, ulcers, ringworm, etc., it is without equal. It is also used widely for piles, for which it may be regarded as a specific. All druggists and stores sell at 50 cents a box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse harmful imitations.

Social Events Of Interest From The Lively Village Of Omemee

Special to The Examiner.

OMEMEE, SEPT. 28.—Mr. Charlie Thornton of Detroit, was the guest of Miss Edith Robinson for the past week.

Mr. Beatty and daughter, Miss Mary, of Welland, were in town last week.

Miss Jessie Nicholls spent Sunday at her home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Homer of Peterborough were in town on Sunday.

Miss Edith Robinson spent a couple of days in Lindsay this week.

Mrs. T. J. Parsons is visiting relatives in Toronto.

Mr. David Rea has purchased the house owned by Mr. Bert. Courtney on King street, west.

Mr. Reuben Bradley of Toronto, spent the week end at his home.

Miss Margaret McCaffery, who is teaching at Wilberforce, was home over Sunday.

Miss Muriel Morrison of Peterborough, spent the week-end with her mother.

Over two hundred from here attended the Lindsay Fair on Saturday.

Mr. W. Clarke is spending a few days with his family.

Mr. Wm. Curry returned last week after a pleasant vacation.

Miss Nora Nicholls of Norland, was home over Sunday.

Mrs. Fred Rowan left this week to join her husband, who is teaching in a High School in the North West.

On Friday evening a social evening was held under the auspices of the Methodist Sunday School in honour of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Balfour, who were leaving Omemee. A short programme of readings and music was given, after which Mr. and Mrs. Balfour were called to the platform and the following address was read by the pastor, Rev. R. Burns:

To Mr. and Mrs. George Balfour,—This evening the Methodist Sunday School and many of your friends have assembled in order to express their high regard for you and your family. You will be missed in our school, where, for a number of years, you have led the scholars in the service of sacred song. The Gospel message conveyed in these musical exercises will linger in the memory of the girls and boys, and cheer and mellow their lives as they advance in years. We trust your talent will continue to be used in your new church relationships, and that you will enjoy a long life of usefulness in the Master's work.

Mrs. Balfour will also be missed, for she has always been a kind, genial, sympathetic worker in the Sunday School, as well as in the Ladies 'Aid and W. M. S. We wish her and the family a very pleasant time in their new home.

On behalf of the school and your numerous friends we wish you to accept this chair, and your wife, this china cabinet, as a slight evidence of our Christian love and good will. May the richest blessings of our Heavenly Father rest upon you and yours and when life's labour is ended we hope and pray we shall meet in the Heavenly Home, where we shall join in the new song and wave the palm of victory.

"God be with you till we meet again,
By His counsels guide, uphold you;
With His sheep securely fold you;
God be with you till we meet again"
(Signed)

Miss Amy Parsons presented the chair, and Miss G McQuade the cabinet. Mr. Balfour responded for himself and Mrs. Balfour, and thanked the friends who had so kindly remembered them. The chairman, Mr. S. C. Ivory, then called on several gentlemen in the audience, for short speeches, after which refreshments were served, and a social half-hour was spent. Mr. and Mrs. Balfour and family left on Tuesday for Lindsay, where they will reside in future.

A very pretty wedding took place last Wednesday at 4 o'clock, at the residence of Mrs. Blackwell, when her niece, Selena May Copeland, was united in matrimony to James R. McQuade. The bride's pastor, Rev. R. Burns, performed the ceremony, in the presence of a number of relatives and friends. Both bride and groom were unattended, the bride looking extremely beautiful in her travelling gown of grey. After the ceremony the guests sat down to a dainty repast, at the conclusion of which Mr. and Mrs. McQuade left to catch the six o'clock train. The Post extends congratulations and good wishes.

Mr. Woodger occupied the pulpit of the Bethel Circuit on Sunday, in the absence of Mr. Line.

Mrs. Fielding of Coboconck is visiting her mother, Mrs. Evans.

The annual convention of the W. M. S. of the Methodist church, Lindsay district) will be held in the Omemee church on Wednesday, Oct. 4.

To all appearances, partridge will be very plentiful, when the season opens next month. One flew against a window in the residence of Reeve Mulligan with such force that it broke the pane and cut its neck with the broken glass. Two were also found in the tennis court on the lawn of Mrs. McCrea, while another one flew into the livery stable. Others have been seen flying around, so a great many birds ought to be bagged after the 15th.

Mrs. Percy Nugent and children, have returned to Lindsay after spending several weeks with her mother, Mrs. Caldwell.

The millinery openings in Mr. C. Ivory's store were held on Saturday Monday and Tuesday. Miss Millie is in charge.

Funeral Of The Late Mrs. Davies

The remains of the late Mrs. Alfred Davies were laid to rest this morning at the Little Lake Cemetery. At 10 o'clock a very impressive service was conducted at St. John's Church by the Rev. Canon Davidson, who was assisted by the Rev. Mr. Carpenter. At the beginning of the service the hymn, "On the Resurrection Morning," was sung. Mr. R. J. Devey played, as organ selections, "O, Rest in the Lord" (Elijah) and "I know that my redeemer liveth," and terminated the service by Chopin's Funeral March. The chimes played the hymns "Days and moments quickly flying" and "When our heads are bowed with woe." Mr. R. J. Devey, superintendent, and Mr. W. W. Dean represented the Sunday school, of which the deceased was a devoted teacher, and St. Paul's Church was represented by Rev. Robt. Pogue, Messrs Madill, Shook, and Crane.

There was a large number of friends present, and the beautiful display of flowers, for which a special carriage was set apart, was significant of the love and regard in which she was held by all those who were fortunate enough to know her intimately.

After the service the funeral cortege proceeded to the cemetery, where interment took place. The pall-bearers were Messrs John Crane, Robt. Fair, C. H. Rogers, G. K. Rackham, Geo. Landy, and Geo. Morrow, of Toronto, all of whom were personal friends of the deceased.

PRACTICE TO-NIGHT

There will be a practice of the West End Rugby Club to-night at 7.45 o'clock in the Central Park, and a full attendance of players is expected. The team will also practice on Saturday afternoon, and it is important that these two workouts should be well attended. The opening of the season is only a few days away, and there is need of a lot of work before the local players are in condition. Ability to go the route is one of the essentials of a winning team, and there is only one way to get into shape and that is by consistent practice. Central Park makes an ideal place for night practices, as the light is good. Get in line to-night and at Riverside Park on Saturday.

TO PLAY-QUARTER

WILL BEN PLAY AGAIN?

From Hamilton comes the oft-repeated, Patti-like story that Ben Simpson will be out of the game this season. However, it would not cause much surprise if the Peterborough schoolmaster was to be yanked out of his den before the season is over to bolster up the Tiger's back division.

SOME RULES FOR THE CLUBS OF THE O.R.F.U.

The attention of O. R. F. U. clubs is drawn to the following:

No player may play for any two clubs in the same season. No player who has played with a club in the Interprovincial Union, the Intercollegiate Union or the Q. R. F. U. may play with a club in the O. R. F. U in the same year unless it be in a higher series, without permission from the Executive.

Forms will be issued to each club and they must be properly filled in with the names of the players and placed in the hands of the referee before play commences. They must bear the signature of the Secretary and Manager of each club, which signatures will be a certification as to the accuracy of the list of players under which the signatures appear, and also as to the eligibility of the said players. The forms must be signed by the referee and forwarded to the Secretary of the Union immediately after each game. The onus for all infractions will be placed on the club offending.

Home clubs must provide absolute protection for visiting clubs, and must keep the spectators from encroaching on the touch-line or field. The home club will be held responsible for any rowdyism on the part of the crowd which may be directed against a visiting club. Rowdyism on the part of the players of either club, whether senior or junior, will be severely dealt with by the Union.

The playing rules of the Canadian Rugby Union govern all O. R. F. U. games. The principal change in the rules of last year is the right of teams to substitute players at will.

When competing clubs agree upon a referee they must notify the Secretary of the Union to that effect at least three days before the match, otherwise officials will be appointed by the Union.

No member of a club is eligible to play in a junior game who has played more than once in any one season on a senior team. Permits may be obtained for intermediate players.

All protests must be accompanied by statutory declarations substantiating the disputed points, and by the sum of $25, which sum will be forfeited to the Union should the Executive disallow the protest.

The rule books for 1911 are out of the publishers' hands, and will be issued to clubs on request.

Clubs are reminded that fees are due and payable to the Secretary.

A TOMB IN A TOWER.

A Remarkable Edifice, the Whim of a Wealthy Tea Planter.

Near the well known resort of Southampton, England, there is a remarkable edifice known as Petersen's tower. The erection is all the more singular because it marks the burying place of a certain John Petersen, a wealthy tea planter.

The man appears to have been rather an eccentric individual, and in order to prove to the world his belief in concrete as a building material set about the construction of this great tower. The building took many years to complete, but is entirely of concrete and by the time the final layers had been placed had reached an altitude of more than 300 feet. It is about forty years since the tower was erected, and its present condition is certainly a justification of the faith of the builder.

As has been indicated, Petersen left instructions that his body should be placed under the tower, and this was accordingly carried out. Another desire that the chamber at the summit should contain a light was defeated by the firm stand which Trinity House, the lighthouse authority, took on the matter. Such an illumination would have been visible for miles out to sea and would naturally have proved very misleading to sailors.—Scientific American.

FRIEND OF CHILDREN.

Canadian Woman Revolutionized Method of Teaching Music.

A Canadian woman, who has practically revolutionized the method of teaching music to children, by introducing a kindergarten system that is as unique as it is interesting and practical, is Mrs. Evelyn Fletcher Copp, formerly and, at the time of her invention, a resident of Toronto.

The old saw about the prophet and his country was never truer than in this case, for Canada turned a deaf ear, and it was not until "the Fletcher method" had been adopted and patented in many other countries that Canada awoke to its full significance.

This significance is difficult to realize at first sight. In it one finds the best of Froebel in the teaching of music; but, more than that, it opens to children and, indeed, to those who teach it, an entirely new world in which music is the key; a world in which thoughts, pictures, and impressions may be received and given out again by the mystical language of sound.

I have known Mrs. Copp for a long time, says Katherine Hale in Canadian Century, and I remember when the Great Idea was forming in her mind, here in Toronto, and she would call in little children off the street to teach them the magic games that have become world famous and to watch how quickly their unformed minds responded to the impressions.

"No one knows yet how wonderful it is," she would say in young enthusiasm, "but after a while the world will know, and in the meantime—patience and perseverance and more work on the method."

Always, to this young girl, educated in Germany, amidst the most sympathetic musical conditions in the world, the conviction was borne that she must do something to revolutionize the usual system of music teaching under whose tyranny her soul had suffered as a child.

"Oh, that stiff-backed music teacher!" she would say, "with his endless 'one-two-three,' his torturous scales, his meaningless chords, his dreaded 'pieces' that were as incomprehensible to me, or any other child, as a dead scroll in the hand of an Egyptian mummy. My inherent love of music simply survived his treatment; it never grew an inch. How could it! Something must be done for children. And I must do it. Here, in the land of Froebel and musical freedom, surely I might lay my plans. And I did. Like some slow magic the thoughts came. I would teach scale-building by means of a tone-ladder, and time division by blocks, and rhythm by physical movements, and modulation by a keyboard in which each note should be known, like a little friend, for its own sound, and groups of notes might be taken out and arranged in triads, chords, etc. Indeed, all those earnestly perfected 'toys' that children seem to be playing with all over the world now came into being then."

It was in 1898 that Miss Fletcher founded an association for her own teachers, and this association, in the fall of 1898, began the publication of a unique musical journal—unique in that it was, and probably is, the only music paper in existence edited solely in the interests of the child beginner. In 1900 the system was introduced into Germany, France, and England, and the indorsements of such people as Dr. Hugo Riemann, Liepsic; Dr. Albert Fuchs, Arthur Nikisch, Leipsic, and others, have proved the ready response to this new idea.

And something of the broad ideals that must lie behind all great work are expressed in a recent, personal letter from Mrs. Copp, where she says: "I never expect to make much money. I get my reward, and I get it all along, in the perfect joy that it is to see the financial and artistic success that others are making in teaching my method. And I get it in a constant stream of new ideas and suggestions for the work. I wonder why there is no more unity among musicians? There was a time when I could not see beyond my own highest ideal. But now I believe that when I get a little nearer to the ideal I shall still find more ahead, and when I say 'I,' I mean all of us."

Excavated Big Horn.

A peculiar find of a horn of an immense size was made by workmen excavating and deepening a pond on the farm of Harry Smith, a few miles west of Welland, Ont.

The horn is evidently that of some animal which roamed the country thousands of years ago. It is eight feet in height and a true half circle, two feet and two inches around the large end. It tips the scale at 150 pounds. It is in a good state of preservation, and fifteen wrinkles can easily be distinguished. These wrinkles circle it at the big end.

Smith has been offered a substantial sum for his find.

Suggestive.

"Your motorboat is running very smoothly now."

"Yes; I think something's broken."

GEORGIAN BAY NAMES.

Admiral Bayfield Placed the Most Prominent Ones.

In these heated days when thousands of Ontarians are flocking to summer resorts on Georgian Bay and Muskoka to escape Old Sol's scorching rays, it is interesting to note the way and wherefore of the many names, picturesque and otherwise, which are met with in that vicinity. A most entertaining paper on this subject was read by Mr. James White, secretary of the Commission of Conservation, before the recent annual gathering in Brantford of the Ontario Historical Society, of which Mr. D. Williams, of Collingwood is president. From it we take the following extracts:

Place-names in this area can be assigned to three distinct periods: First, those given by Bayfield when he surveyed it in 1822; second, the local names given by fishermen, residents, and others between the date of Bayfield's survey and 1858; third, the new survey by Messrs. Boulton and Stewart in 1858-63.

In 1813 Robert Saunders Dundas, second Viscount Melville, Sir William Johnstone Hope, Sir George Cockburn, and William Robert Keith Douglas were Lord High Admirals, hence Cape Dundas, Melville Sound, Hope Bay and Island, Cockburn Island and Point and Douglas Bay and Point. Captain Thomas Hurd was Hydrographer from 1808 to 1823; Captain (afterwards, Admiral Sir) W. Edward Parry was Hydrographer from 1823-29, and James Horsburg (1762-1836) was Hydrographer to the East India Co.; hence Cape Hurd, Parry Sound and Island and Horsburg Point. Barrow, for 38 years, 1807-45, Secretary to the Admiralty and Croker Cape and Island after John Wilson Croker, secretary, 1809-30; Dyer Bay, after John James Dyer, for many years Chief Clerk of the Admiralty; Hay Island, after Viscount Melville's private secretary and Amedros Island after an Admiralty official.

As there was a considerable naval establishment on the Great Lakes, Bayfield named a number of features after naval officers. James, Lazas, and Yeo Islands and Cape Commodore, after Sir James Lucas Yeo, Commander-in-Chief on the Great Lakes, 1814; Barrie Island after Capt. Robt. Barrie, acting commissioner of the navy at Kingston; Bushby Inlet, Boucher Point and Basin, Worsley Bay, Grant Island, and Thompson Point are named after officers of the royal navy serving on the Great Lakes.

Confiance rock was named after the Confiance, gunboat on Lake Huron, formerly the U.S.S. Scorpion, captured Sept. 6, 1814. Bedford Island is, probably, after the Duchess of Bedford, the third ship in which Bayfield served.

Solpoy's Bay, Rous Islands, Mudge Bay, and Byng Inlet are after British admirals; the last named being the admiral who was shot, in 1757, for his failure to relieve Minorca—"pour encourager les autres." Fitzwilliam Island, Owen Sound, and Owen Channel are after Bayfield's former chief in the survey of Lake Ontario.

Sandy to Stay Out.

The Conservatives of Charlottetown tried hard to get "Sandy" Martin into harness again, but the genial Scot, who once electrified the House by making a speech of half an hour in Gaelic, which completely put Hansard out of business, and nearly caused a free fight in the French-Canadian ranks, has definitely declined the honor of being the running mate of his former colleague, Angus McLean. Sandy's refusal means that the twelfth Parliament of Canada will lack a real humorist. It was Sandy who called a fellow-member a "liar" in Gaelic, and got away with it, for the simple reason that the only other Gaelic scholar in Parliament was honest old John Tolmie, of North Bruce, and at the time he was indulging in his favorite pastime of "forty winks." To call a man a liar in Gaelic requires some skill. It sounds terrible. However, Sandy Martin has made up his mind, and Ottawa will see him no more. He told me when I called to see him that his oyster beds claimed all his attention (they talk of their oyster beds like we of our back gardens, and he was tired of advocating even such a worthy cause as that everlasting tunnel!—The Mace, in Saturday Night.

Enter the Parsees.

Dr. R. P. Ghadiah, a Parsee, who is proprietor of Indian journal Impartial, is outspoken when discussing Canadian immigration laws and their relation to Hindu immigration.

"It is better," said the doctor recently, "that Canada should encourage the emigration of our race than to hold out the hand of welcome to Germans and other European nations. We are Britishers, and stand high in the regard of the English Government for our loyalty. We are also an intellectual nation, and very hard working. At present I am seeking information in London. We desire to settle in New Ontario, which is not populated, and British Columbia. I and one of my colleagues propose to be the pioneers, and if we find the prospect encouraging I shall, through my journal in India, persuade my fellow-countrymen to follow."

To Make Clay Roads Mudless.

It is reported that an invention for the improvement of clay roads has been submitted to the Canadian Department of Agriculture, and if the inventor's claims are justified it will be of immense benefit to farmers who live in a clay belt and all who have business with them that necessitates traveling over the muddy roads in the autumn and the spring. The first aim of the inventor was to temper clay for the manufacture of brick, tile and other products, but he claims that he afterward discovered that it could be used to make a clay road smooth, noiseless, dustless and impervious to moisture, so that it will never be muddy.

TO-DAY WILL TELL

Italy Has Given Turkey Twenty-four Hours to Dodge War

DEMANDS EVACUATION

Constantinople, Sept. 29.—Italy has presented her ultimatum, demanding an answer within twenty-four hours. She will accept only the immediate evacuation of Tripoli and Benghazi.

It is reported that the Turkish Government has decided to reject the Italian demands embodied in the ultimatum, and has addressed an explanatory communication to the powers.

When it became known that Italy had granted a time limit of only 24 hours in which to enable the Turkish Government to instruct the authorities at Tripoli not to oppose an Italian landing, there was consternation in public and official circles and strong denunciation of Italy's methods.

The Italian charge presented the ultimatum at the usual weekly reception to the foreign representatives at the Foreign Office. The grand visier immediately went to the palace, where the Ministers were summoned to a special council, which sat late.

Italy's Defi.

Rome, Sept. 29.—A note addressed by the Foreign Office to the Italian charge d'affaires at Constantinople some time Tuesday night peremptorily fixed 24 hours as the period within which the Turkish Government must reply to the demands therein set forth. The note began:

"During a long series of years the Government of Italy never ceased to make representations to the Porte on the absolute necessity of correcting the state of disorder to which the Government of Turkey had abandoned Tripoli and Cyrene. These regions should be admitted to the benefits of the progress realized by other parts of the Mediterranean and Africa.

"This transformation, which is imposed by the general exigencies of civilization, constitutes for Italy a vital interest of the first order, by reason of the slight distance separating these countries from the coast of Italy.

"Notwithstanding the attitude taken by the Government of Italy, which has always accorded its loyal support to the Imperial Government in the different political questions of recent times; notwithstanding the moderation and patience shown by the Government of Italy, its views concerning Tripoli have been badly received by the Imperial Government. But more than that, all enterprise on the part of Italians in the regions mentioned has been systematically opposed and unjustifiably crushed."

The note continues:

"The Royal Government has received from its consular agents in Tripoli and Cyrene information that the situation is extremely grave because of the agitation prevailing against Italian subjects and which is incited in evident fashion by officers and other functionaries of authority.

"This agitation constitutes an imminent danger not only to Italian subjects but to foreigners of all nationalities, which requires them for their own security to embark and leave Tripoli without delay.

"The arrival at Tripoli of Ottoman military transports, which the Royal Government has not failed to observe, appears preliminary to serious events, aggravates the situation, and imposes on the Royal Government the obligation absolutely to prepare for the dangers which will result.

"The Italian Government having the intention henceforth to protect its interests and its dignity, has decided to proceed to the military occupation of Tripoli and Cyrene.

"This solution is the only one that will give Italy power to itself to decide and itself attend to that which the Imperial Government does not do.

"The Royal Government demands that the Imperial Government shall give orders that the actual Ottoman representative shall not oppose the measures which will in consequence be necessary to effect this solution without difficulty. An ultimate agreement will be requested, the two Governments to regulate the definite situation which will arise.

"The royal embassy at Constantinople is ordered to demand a decisive response on this subject from the Ottoman Government within twenty-four hours of the Porte of the present document, in default of which the Italian Government will consider itself as being obliged to proceed immediately with measures destined to assure the occupation. Ask in addition that the response of the Porte within the period of twenty-four hours shall be communicated also through the Turkish embassy at Rome.

(Signed) "Di San Giuliano."

Turkey is Ready.

Vienna, Sept. 29.—The News Free Presse learns from an authoritative source that the moment Italy lands troops in Tripoli, Turkey will declare war, expel all Italians from Turkey within 24 hours, abrogate the capitulations and commercial treaty, institute a boycott against Italian goods, and oppose by armed force any further attempts to land Italian troops on Turkish soil.

Reduced Murder Charge.

North Bay, Ont., Sept. 29.—Nicolas Vatille, an Italian, charged with stabbing Henry Vinoit with intent to murder was found guilty of the lesser charge of causing grievous bodily harm, by the jury in the High Court now in session before Judge Sutherland. The stabbing took place May 14 at a dance in South Deloraine mining camp.

Rockets Exploded In Church.

Guadalajara, Mexico, Sept. 29.—An explosion of rockets and bombs in a crowded church here resulted in four deaths and fifteen seriously injured during the merrymaking attending the coming of Madero.

CAR TURNS TURTLE

One Killed and Three Injured in Accident Near Toronto

PLUNGED INTO DITCH

Toronto, Sept. 29.—Running at a high rate of speed along Mason Street, a short distance from Hog's Hollow, an automobile belonging to the real estate firm of Robins, Limited, yesterday afternoon turned turtle, killing the chauffeur and badly injuring three passengers. The car had just come down the incline and suddenly took a plunge into the ditch. One of the front wheels buckled and the machine turned completely over. The chauffeur was struck as it turned and had his neck broken, dying almost instantly. The other three occupants were thrown clear of the car, but received injuries from which they will not recover for some time.

The occupants of the car were:

Henry Langworthy, aged 25, 43 Price street, chauffeur, instantly killed.

J. N. Fountney, druggist, 1,081 Bathurst street, left ankle badly sprained, and bruised about the body.

Mrs. J. N. Fountney, cut about head and face, badly bruised about body, and suffering greatly from shock.

Arthur Parsons, employe of Robins, Limited, 332 Albany avenue, bruised and cut about head and body.

Murder Is Charged.

Chatham, Sept. 29.—Thomas Griffith of Chatham Township was arrested at noon yesterday, charged with the killing of Orlando Arnold. He was remanded pending the verdict of the coroner's jury, which will enquire into the death of Arnold.

Arnold's death is the result of a quarrel between the two named men. It is claimed that Griffith, in the heat of an altercation, struck Arnold over the head. The latter has been confined to his home for the past few days as a result of the injury, and he died early yesterday morning. Griffith will likely have a speedy trial, as the sessions will be held here on Monday next.

Griffith was tried by Magistrate Houston here some fifteen years ago on a charge of attempted murder, but was found not guilty and dismissed.

To Raise Pastor's Pay.

Toronto, Sept. 29.—The executive of the augmentation committee of the Presbyterian Church of Canada met in the board room in the Confederation Life Building yesterday afternoon.

The committee is very anxious to get the past and proposed work of the board before the people, so that they will be enabled next March, at the latest, to increase the stipends of ministers. The purpose is to make the minimum salary of the ministers in Northern Ontario $800, in the prairie provinces $1,000; and in British Columbia $1,100.

Sister Arrested.

New Orleans, La., Sept. 29.—Following a report that the stomach of Elsie Crawford, who died suddenly a few days ago, contained opium, Miss Annie Crawford, a sister, was arrested. Miss Elsie was the fourth member of the Crawford family to die under mysterious circumstances in 14 months.

Miss Annie Crawford is a beneficiary of insurance policies on the life of Elsie, and is said to have been named as the beneficiary on policies on the lives of her mother, father and the sister, who died last year.

Attacked the Strikebreakers.

New Orleans, La., Sept. 29.—Strikebreakers employed by the Illinois Central Railroad here were set upon by several hundred union sympathizers at six o'clock last evening as they were being escorted from the building by a police detail. Two strikebreakers were injured. Several arrests were made. Strikebreakers were continually jeered and threatened by a large crowd.

RUSSELL ON STAND

Montreal Millionaire Testifies in the Conspiracy Action

INVOLVED TWO PLOTS

Montreal, Sept. 29.—The case of David Russell against the Pinkerton Detective Agency and the Montreal manager, John McNamara, for alleged conspiracy, continued yesterday. David Russell and his brother, John Russell, being the chief witnesses. Mr. McNamara was also on the stand.

David Russell told a story of the events which led him to believe there was a conspiracy against him. The conspiracy involved two plots, the first being one motive of which was to play the "badger" game on him; the second to secure his incarceration in an insane asylum.

Mr. Russell was only at the beginning of his story when the court was adjourned for the day.

He told of the arrival at the Windsor Hotel of a Mr. Patterson, accompanied by a woman, who tried no less than four times to secure an interview with him in her rooms. He refused, however, to meet her except in the general reception room.

Mr. Russell caused a sensation by stating that after he had proofs that the Pinkertons had played him false, McNamara had offered to have his $1,000,000 western land suit settled for him if he would drop his case against Patterson.

The evidence of John Russell showed that he had been called to Montreal by a telegram which said his brother was not right in his mind and that efforts were made to show him that his brother's mind was unbalanced.

He also declared that at one time it was planned to enter David Russell's room at his hotel and make a forcible examination, and to conduct him to a sanitarium, but that the doctors objected after hearing his New York lawyers, Messrs. Rose and Kellog, who insisted that Mr. Russell was perfectly sane. John Russell stated he was soon convinced that nothing was wrong with his brother, and left for home after a brief visit in New York.

Second race, six furlongs, purse $570 for three-year-olds, selling—Coldspring, 1st; Fort Worth, 2nd; Moncrief, 3rd. Time, 1.13 4-5.

Third race, six furlongs, Epsom Handicap, purse $800, for all ages—Guy Fisher, 1st; Sir J. Johnson, 2nd; Sully Night, 3rd. Time, 1.12 1-5.

Fourth race, one mile, Minoru Handicap, purse $700, for three-year-olds and up—Star Charter, 1st; Lahore, 2nd; Kate Kittleberry, 3rd. Time, 1.42 1-5.

Fifth race, Brockenhurst Steeplechase, purse $800, for four-year-olds and up, handicap, about two miles—Jimmy Lane, 1st; The Welkin, 2nd; Dr. Heard, 3rd. Time, 4.08 1-5.

Sixth race, Blink Bonny Purse, $600, for two-year-olds, 5 1-2 furlongs—Flamma, 1st; Flower Girl, 2nd; Eton Blue, 3rd. Time, 1.08.

Seventh race, 1 1-16 miles, purse $800, for three-year-olds and up, selling—Animus, 1st; Lady Orimor, 2nd; Ed. Keck, 3rd. Time, 1.47 3-5.

C. H. Smith Committed.

Toronto, Sept. 29.—Clark Hamilton Smith was committed for trial on a charge of conspiring with others to secure the certificate of the treasury board, which enabled the Farmers' Bank to do business by fraud. He appeared in the Police Court yesterday morning.

He was committed to the jail to await his trial. Smith was formerly secretary to the provisional board of directors of the bank. The proceedings were very short as the evidence had all been taken in the case of the provisional directors, who are also awaiting trial. Bail was refused.

Thieves Robbed Barroom.

Chatham, Sept. 29.—Early yesterday morning the Glassford House bar was entered by robbers and $100 taken. The thieves entered the main office and gained admittance through the transom over a door leading into the bar. The cash drawer was opened with a screwdriver and the contents of the register taken.

Pauper Gets Windfall.

Hamilton, Sept. 29.—Heir to a legacy and $5,000, an inmate of the Hamilton House of Refuge, is the present position of one William Patterson, native of Scotland. This information was conveyed to the property committee of the city council at its meeting last night by Supt. Rea of the House of Refuge, who stated that a local firm of lawyers had been engaged to collect the legacy for Patterson, but had been unable to get the money. Mr. Rea asked that the case be turned over to City Solicitor Waddell, and the committee approved of that course.

Principal Dead.

Glasgow, Sept. 29.—The Rev. William Patrick, principal of Manitoba Presbyterian College, Winnipeg, died at Kirkintilloch, Scotland, yesterday.

William Patrick, D.D., was born in Glasgow in 1866, and was educated in Glasgow University. He went to Canada in 1900 and had been principal of Manitoba College since that date.

STRIKERS ON TRIAL.

Fourteen Gowganda Miners Charged With Intimidation.

North Bay, Sept. 29.—Fourteen Gowganda miners were placed on trial charged with conspiracy and intimidation in connection with a strike on the property of the Hudson Bay Mining Co. at Gowganda, which closed down from June until September.

G. L. T. Bull is defending prisoners, who are being tried in two bunches of seven each, and Crown Prosecutor Arnoldi is being assisted by Barrister H. E. McKee of Elk Lake. The first charge is based on the hold-up of a stage, containing a party of Nova Scotia miners on Gowganda trail August 5 on their way to the mines to take the place of strikers. Nineteen strike-breakers were brought from Nova Scotia, but twelve deserted at Cobalt after being interviewed by union men on the main.

Evidence was introduced to show that men were turned back at Crooked Bridge by thirty strikers or sympathizers with threats of violence and death and that a number of revolver shots were fired when the party did turn back. Many attempts were made to reach the mine and the final successful dash to the mine from there was not accomplished until September over one month being occupied by the Nova Scotia party in making the trip from Englehardt to the mine; two days' journey at most.

The strike was the result of the reduction of wages, followed by arbitration, as provided by the act, the men walking out the day after the award was made by the board.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Lieutenant-Governor Sir Daniel and Lady McMillan were banqueted by Winnipeg citizens and given a handsome present. Sir Daniel is retiring.

Lord Strathcona arrived in New York last night on the Mauretania, accompanied by the Hon Mrs. Robert Howard, on a flying trip to Montreal and Ottawa.

Mrs. R. J. Reid of Kingston had a narrow escape when her clothes caught fire from a gas stove. Her daughter saved her mother's life by wrapping old clothes around her.

The body of Joseph Calhoun, the river guide who perished in the Frontenac Hotel fire, Round Island, Aug. 24, was found by workmen yesterday who were cleaning up the ruins.

Thomas Chambers, who runs two level crossing Grand Trunk gates from an aerial cabin, fell headlong through the open trapdoor, 25 feet, to the ground Wednesday, sustaining serious injuries.

The temperance people of Toronto will hold a convention on October 10 to consider further license reduction.

The designs for the new gold coinage to be issued shortly have been announced.

Thomas Fannon, a well-known Kingstonian, has received a telegram from Bulcan, Mich., stating that his uncle, Thomas Fannon, had died and that in his will he had been bequeathed $21,000.

His Four Wives Named Myrtle.

Indianapolis, Sept. 29.—C. A. Bays, a painter of Indianapolis, aged 27 years, has just married his fourth wife. Her name is Myrtle and the name of all his former wives was Myrtle. His fourth wife was formerly Miss Myrtle Hoover, of that city. He was divorced from his third wife two days ago. "I am just foolish about what name Myrtle, and would marry no woman unless that was her name. Mary, Ruth, Margaret, Helen and Pansy can't hold a candle to Myrtle. It is just a fad of mine. If I marry half a dozen times more the name of the girl must be Myrtle." Following are the names of Bays' three other wives: Myrtle Dennis, of Winslow, Canada, died; Myrtle Arney, of Shelbyville, Canada, divorced; Myrtle Hay, Tell City, divorced.

Arraigned For Extradition.

New York, Sept. 29.—Before Judge Chatfield, in the United States Circuit Court yesterday, Nathan Josephson, 25 years old, who used to keep a dry goods store in Montreal was arraigned for extradition. It is charged that Josephson swindled Montreal merchants and corporations out of money to the amount of $4,000 between May 1 and Sept. 15 of this year.

Fearing Dismissal, Resigned.

Calgary, Sept. 29.—J. R. Sutherland, Dominion Government land agent, has sent his resignation to the Department of the Interior. He took such action, believed that Mr. Bennett would carry out his threat he made on election night, to clear out the offices in Calgary, and "fire" every official who took any part in politics.

In his resignation Mr. Sutherland admitted that he had discussed reciprocity, but that he had not discussed the merits of the candidates in Calgary. He has been in the service for eighteen years.

Child Died From Burns.

Essex, Sept. 29.—Willie Patterson, five-year-old son of Mrs. Annie Patterson, died yesterday as the result of burns sustained on Tuesday. The boy was playing with coal oil and matches and spilled a quantity on his dress, which ignited when he lighted a match.

The mother was away washing and the child's sister, who was left to care for the little boy, went over to a neighbor's. While there she heard her little brother crying loudly and ran home to find his clothing on fire.

Fewer Wards Proposed.

Montreal, Sept. 29.—Ald. O'Connell, who was at the city hall yesterday, stated that he was about to bring before the attention of the civic legislation committee a proposal to redistribute the municipal wards. The plan of Ald. O'Connell is to reduce the number of wards from 30 to 22. This is to be effected by amalgamating certain wards.

Applications Received.

Ottawa, Sept. 29.—It is counted significant of Ottawa politics that the two successful candidates in the recent elections have an advertisement in the local papers that persons seeking Government appointments must apply at an office they have opened, at certain hours. They add that persons applying at their private residences "will not be considered."

Rev. R. J. Campbell's Visit.

London, Sept. 29.—Rev. R. J. Campbell, the pioneer of the new theology movement, who sails October 19 for an extensive tour in the States will also preach in Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and Hamilton.

Irish Strike Is Ended.

Dublin, Sept. 29.—The railway strike is virtually ended. The transport union has withdrawn its embargo on railways handling "blackleg" timber, which was the original cause of the strike.

To Those Requiring GLASSES
Eight years is a short time in the life of a man, but it is a period of sufficient length, in business, to carry with it a guarantee of honest effort and satisfaction.
For this number of years I have carried on an Optical business in this city and I have fitted thousands of people with glasses. The fact that I have such successful leads me to believe that my methods are right, and for that reason, I wish to give you additional assurance that there will be no change in them in future. I am in a position to give you the best of everything that means eye comfort.
It is barely possible that you are in need of new lenses, frame or eye glasses and I would ask that you give me the privilege of giving your eyes a scientific examination and advising you honestly about your eyes. If you need glasses, I can supply you at reasonable prices, and if you do not need glasses I will not urge you to buy.
I am a graduate optician and optometrist, and have had many years experience. I do not overwork the eyes in making glasses when none are needed, but I do pay strict attention to the proper adjustment of lenses that the eyes may have every help and relief that glasses can give.
I carry the latest up-to-date Optical stock in Peterboro, and guarantee all my lenses.
You will find my charges by calling and examining my stock.

Good Form

Etiquette.

Chaperons and matrons are given the first choice of seats at a theater party.

The eldest girl in a family is entitled to drop her Christian name and have her card read Miss Merrill.

Cards should bear the full Christian name or names with the surname. Mrs. John Jordan Merrill is better than Mrs. John J. Merrill.

A well bred woman does not wait for the ushers to request that she remove her hat at the theater, but takes it off before the rise of the curtain.

At a well arranged table the host and hostess sit opposite each other and plan not to have two gentlemen or two ladies seated side by side.

A gift sent to a couple celebrating a wedding anniversary should arrive several days before the date of the event and should be accompanied by the sender's card bearing a message of congratulation.

Distance does not eliminate the courtesy of sending a wedding gift. Though the recipient of the invitation live a long way from the scene of the ceremony, the gift should be forwarded to arrive some time before the date set for the ceremony.

Attention, Husbands.

Here are a few rules, clipped from a paper years ago, for the use of the husband who would learn how to keep his wife:

Deserve her perfect confidence.

Never do anything which will make you appear mean in her eyes.

Let her tell you her grievances, and tell her your worries; you may be able to help each other, and you can surely comfort each other.

Try to be as thoughtful of your wife's comfort as you were when you first tried to win her heart; she needs your thoughtfulness more now.

Don't forget all the little courtesies you used to show her and which made you appear so well in her eyes; if there were aught to endear her to you before marriage she should be a thousand times dearer to you now.

Help her with the children sometimes at night, when they are fretful and you have no hired help. Suppose you do put in the plea that you are tired and that you have been working all day, have't she been working all day, too, and isn't she tired?

Hints to the Hostess.

A finger bowl is the final service of a fruit course and usually terminates a dinner. The bowl should be half filled with water and set upon a plate holding a small doily.

When the plate upon which the bowl is carried to the table is intended to receive the fruit, the bowl and doily are placed at one side of the dish. Tips of fingers of each hand are dipped in turn into the water and rubbed together gently until all traces of the fruits are removed. They are dried on the napkin, which should remain on the knees and not be used as a towel after a hand bath.

If the water in the bowl is scented the odor should be very faint indeed. A better plan is to place a single fragrant blossom or leaf to float on the surface of the miniature lake. The host or hostess may set the example by taking the blossom from the bowl, drying it on the napkin, and pinning it on as a favor. Pansies are particularly pretty for this purpose, and nasturtiums make gay little crafts for sailing in the finger bowl.

Postage Stamp Lore.

If one writes a letter on business of an individual nature a stamp should be inclosed for the correspondent's reply. This rule is invariable. In writing to a business house where one's relations are constant one may not need to take this special care. For example, in sending an order for goods to a shop one need not inclose a postage stamp. In writing a letter requesting information the case is different, and a stamp should be sent with the letter. In other words, one should never cause expense, even in the small amount of 2 cents, to some one who is outside one's affairs. The bill for postage stamps where one's correspondence is large soon mounts to the region of dollars and gets itself quite beyond the province of trifles.

The Question of Car Fare.

There is one thing that every woman should do when out with other women, and that is pay her own car fare.

It is a pleasure often to one woman to pay the car fare of the "bunch," but is often an embarrassment as well, and many times one has to spend more money than she can well spare in her effort to be generous.

It's a good thing for the woman to insist upon paying for herself at all times, and it is but a just custom—and certainly a most comfortable one.

Advice For Engaged Couples.

A certain etiquette should govern the actions of an engaged couple, as well for the preservation of their own self respect as for the purpose of avoiding comment from other people.

A man should not make his fiancee conspicuous by too great a devotion in public. Such devotion is correct enough when they are alone, but a modest girl is embarrassed by too great a show of affection when strangers are present.

darned with wool. The wool stitches may be either in self color or in shades harmonizing with the waist with which the set is worn. Bands of lingerie are applied about the edge of the collar and cuffs.

Fragrant Sachet Perfume.

This calls for two ounces of fresh lavender flowers, one-half ounce of Florentine iris, one ounce of bruised rosemary leaves, ten grains of musk and ten drops of attar of roses. Mix together, make sachets and place in drawers among your clothes.

Listless, Backward Children

Made Bright and Active by Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills

Dr. Morse's Pills Cure —Get Genuine.

Many a growing boy or girl is set down as constitutionally slow, stupid or lazy when it is really a question of inactive bowels, lazy liver or sluggish kidneys.

The growing child, with a hearty appetite, certainly cannot long remain healthy and bright if the sewers of the body, the bowels and the kidneys, are choked up with impurities that should be thrown off promptly.

The muddy complexion, dragging limbs and dislike for mental or physical effort show plainly that the child needs Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills to stir up the liver and kidneys and regulate the bowels. Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills do this most effectively, cleansing the whole system, purifying the blood, aiding the digestion and giving plenty of life and activity. As upon the education obtained may depend the success in life of your boy or girl—see to it that the general health of the child is such that study is pleasure and not a hardship.

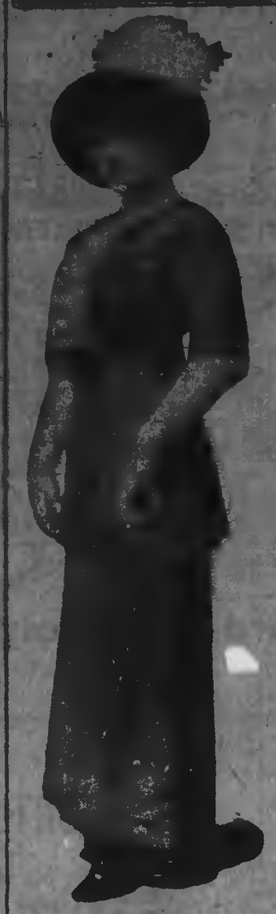
IN EMPIRE STYLE.

A Frock That Imitates Two Piece Suit.



FROCK OF RESEDA GREEN BROADCLOTH.

This dainty costume of reseda green broadcloth, which is braided in the same color, appears to be a smart suit worn over a lace blouse, but the "blouse" is merely a yoke and jabot of cream lace set into the bodice, and a circular hip tunic gives the coat effect.

The Shirt Waist Question.

Many girls and women make their own shirt waists, a task comparatively easy after one has a pattern that is perfectly adapted to her individual idiosyncrasies. One young woman used to have a waist made by the most famous shirt waist maker in the city. She took it home, ripped it apart, cut an exact pattern of it and made her summer waists by the pattern. Her waists always fitted her well, but there were some attendant trouble and expense.

A contributor in Harper's Bazar tells her plan. She bought a plain pattern and some cheap muslin, cut and carefully fitted a waist, ripped it apart—it was only basted, of course—and recut her pattern by it. Then she had a pattern to which she could apply tucks, embroidery or lace at her pleasure, doing this before cutting the goods.

Then She Kissed Him.

"You have not kissed me," she pouted, "for fifteen minutes."

"I know it," he said. "I have very sensitive teeth, which is liable to ache if I do."

"What do you mean, sir?"

"Why, you're so sweet, you know."

Took Him at His Word.

"Some women believe everything a man tells them."

"Yes," replied Mr. Meekton. "Before I married Hortense I told her I would be her slave for life, and the trusting nature refused to accept a compromise."

DEPARTMENT OF RAILWAYS AND CANALS.
Intercolonial Railway
BADDECK BRANCH LINE

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Alba-Baddeck Branch," will be received at this office until eleven o'clock on Thursday, October 12th, 1911, for the construction of a branch line of railway from a point on the Intercolonial Railway near Alba to the town of Baddeck, a distance of 32.7 miles.

Plans, specifications and form of contract to be entered into may be seen and full information obtained on and after the 18th inst., 1911, at the office of the Chief Engineer, of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, and at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Intercolonial Railway at Moncton, N.B.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and in the case of firms, unless there are attached the actual signatures, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque for the sum of $20,000.00, made payable to the order of the Minister of Railways and Canals, must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The cheque of the successful tenderer will be held as security, or part security, for the due fulfilment of the contract to be entered into.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

By order,
L. E. JOSEPH,
Secretary.

Department of Railways and Canals.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Public Building, Wallaceburg, Ontario," will be received at this office until 4 P.M., on Tuesday, October 10, 1911, for the construction of a Public Building at Wallaceburg, Ont.

Plans, specification and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained at the office of Mr. H. J. Lamb, District Engineer, London, Ont., at the Post Office, Wallaceburg, Ont., and at this Department.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signatures, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender which will be forfeited if the person tendering declines to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
E. C. DESROCHERS,
Secretary.

ANNIE PLAYED GOOSEBERRY

And Miss Lettice Answered the Letter in Person.

By ETHEL GERRINGTON.

Blackberries hedged the road on either side as it wound higher and higher upward the Berkshires. Here and there some belated strawberries, tiny specks of crimson in the grass, raised their fragrance to the invigorating breath of the place. From an unpainted barn came the persistent click-clack thud-thud of a loom, where Miss Lettice was weaving yards of carpet from little balls of colored rags. A voice sharp enough to the verge of impertinency startled her.

"Will you finish tomorrow, sister?"

"I—it doesn't hardly seem possible"—

"'Twas promised. 'Pears to me you're uncommon slow. Surely you're not such a fool as to be thinking o' William Henderson and such nonsense at your age."

Miss Lettice's hand involuntarily sought the fastening of her bodice, but the faint crackle of the scented paper was too impenetrable to reach Mrs. Allen's ears.

"The letter was delayed. He's going away tomorrow"—

"Lettice Howard, he's no man for you. We settled that years ago. I'm ashamed for you—that you so much as think on him now."

"He's free again"—Miss Lettice spoke despondingly.

"True, is it? If he wasn't good enough for you when he was young, a widower with three children certainly ain't no gain." With a toss of the head Mrs. Allen recrossed the road to her cottage.

Miss Lettice sat miserably uncertain, her hands idle in her lap. She forgot the loom and Mrs. Harris, who was counting on the finished carpet. Her thoughts were with the curly headed lad from whom her sister had separated her because he failed to battle in the town where he was born, but, like a rolling stone, was forever wandering, apparently gathering little of this world's goods. Now he had returned and wanted to see her. It seemed a cruel prank of fate to have joined forces with her sister and in the form of delayed mail prevent their meeting. A tear gathered beneath her lashes, but before it fell a pair of warm arms wound themselves around her neck.

"Aunt Lettice, you're in love, in love! Don't ask me how I know, because you are. You don't listen to what folks are saying, and all for the carpet"—

"Yes, dear, the carpet." Miss Lettice seized the shuttle and sent it flying through the shed of warp threads. Her feet mechanically worked the treadle shifting the heddles; then with the batten she bent the woof of rag into place again and again.

"We can't talk through that noise," she remarked plaintively.

"My dear, there is nothing"—

"There is, you darling. Come, 'fess up. I'm not to be put off. It's fellow sympathy." The crimson deepened in the laughing face, and with soft wheedling she gained the desired confidence, and Miss Lettice surrendered her letter.

It was in no sense a love letter, yet it was the nearest approach that the spinster had ever received. Possibly she read between the lines:

Dear Lettie—I am visiting my brother Joe till Wednesday. I want so much to see you. If I'd be welcome send me word. Yours, as ever, WILLIAM.

"I—I only got it last night"—

"It's too late to write now," her niece hurried on, "but you must go to Chatham to see him. Make believe you're shopping. Jennie's going tomorrow. I'll have Bob ask her to stop for you."

"Sister would never listen. Besides it's not the carrier's day."

"She's making a special trip for Rob's mother. Just to think"—she still rose excitedly—"it must be ten years"—

"Twelve."

"And you've cared all this time! Oh, Aunt Lettice, how could you bear it? Mother's good as she can be, only she's had so much trouble it's made her a little hard. Do as I say and I'll play gooseberry for you. After breakfast come over here, as usual. About 10 walk down the road till the carrier overtakes you, then to Chatham with her and to Joe Henderson's, ask for William and you'll have hours together. Jennie will pick you up on her homeward trip. You'll be back to supper. Mother need never know unless you choose to tell her."

"But the carpet! If she doesn't hear the loom she'll come over to find out what's wrong."

"Leave that to me. I've got to think, but I'll fix it somehow."

During supper Mrs. Allen glanced anxiously at her sister's flushed cheeks and untouched plate. With the morrow William would be gone, then Lettice would return to her normal self.

Later, when Annie wandered down the road with Rob, the moonlight showed their heads very close together, while now and again the girl broke into a ripple of mischievous laughter. Watching, the mother felt a pang of jealousy. Rob was a good match, yet she dreaded the day she must yield her daughter to another, and tonight the time seemed very near. She went several times to her room for forgotten trifles, and each time there showed a line of light beneath her sister's door.

"Seems to me you're a long time getting to bed," she admonished.

"I—I'm most ready," came the reply. If Miss Lettice's voice sounded less even than usual Mrs. Allen was not herself sufficiently calm to notice.

As was customary in the morning, Miss Lettice betook herself to the barn and the working of the loom broke familiarly on the quiet air. Shortly after 10 Mrs. Allen, attracted by the rumble of wheels on the road, saw that the carrier was making an extra trip. She spoke of it to Annie, who came in hot and tired to noonday dinner.

"Call your aunt," she continued. "The pork will be cold. I got it especially to tempt her. She's eaten nothing these two days."

"Rob's mother invited her"—began Annie nervously.

"What for?" Mrs. Allen turned sharply, dish in hand.

"She has some rags for carpet weaving. Rob told me about it."

Mrs. Allen sniffed disgruntled. "Your aunt had to go traipsing off without telling me. Besides, there's none too much daylight to finish Mrs. Harris' piece."

In the afternoon she was too busy preserving to notice Annie's absence or give thought to her sister, but when the last jar of jelly was sealed she caught up her sunbonnet and crossed the road to relieve Lettice.

As she entered the barn the glare from the outside sunlight blinded her, but even when that passed she doubted her own sight. Rob was working the loom, while Annie, rosy and tender, hung over the back of his chair. Miss Lettice was nowhere to be seen, but the carpet was completed. Even as she entered Rob threw down the shuttle and caught Annie around the waist.

"Now my reward!" he cried, his lips seeking hers lovingly.

"Annie!" At Mrs. Allen's cry the young people turned, but Rob did not release the girl.

"Mrs. Allen, she's promised—that is, with your approval. I love her. I'll be as good to her as I know how."

"Say yes, mother. I'm so happy"—

There was a painful silence then. Mrs. Allen reluctantly gave consent. Then her bitterness sought an outlet.

"Where is your aunt?"

"The carpet's done," explained Rob cheerfully.

"Done, is it? By whom?"

"Miss Allen. Miss Allen"— The carrier drew her horse up at the barn and on Mrs. Allen's appearance thrust a note into her hand and hastened on.

"Daughter, did you know of this?" Mrs. Allen's voice shook as she passed the paper to the girl, who read aloud:

Sister, don't be angry. I just had to see William, and he could not bear that we should part again. I'm very happy.

LETTICE HENDERSON.

"She's married, mother, dear. Not? It's done won't you be glad too?"

But Mrs. Allen turned and walked silently over to the cottage.

"It's a bit rough on her losing you both the same day," admitted Rob, drawing the girl's hand into his, "but we'll make it all up to her in the future."

What's in a Man.

All of us remember the nursery rhyme beginning, "What are little boys made of?" Recently a European medical scientist undertook to decide, chemically, what the average weight man in normal condition would be worth as practical "raw" material were he to be worked up into everyday commodities. He reports a widely scattered assortment of utilities into which this average man may be wrought. This average man in health has the material for 18 pounds of candles, 1 pound of nails, carbon sufficient for 900 pencils, bindings for 16 octavo books, 500 knife handles, 23 violin strings, 20 teaspoonfuls of salt and 1 pound of loaf sugar. We have that individual, healthy, good sized man among us whom we designate as "no good." Even this explanation of his worth as a raw material for necessary products doesn't change his value. Those processes which would be necessary to these ends of manufacture probably would bankrupt any plant equipped for "using him up."—Chicago Tribune.

The Sidewalk Display.

"Going to move again?"

"Yes," replied the patient man. "We've bought a lot of handsome furniture, and we want to give the public a good look at it."—Washington Star.

By ETHEL BARRINGTON.

Blackberries hedged the road on either side as it wound higher and higher toward the Berkshires. Here and there some belated strawberries, ruby specks of crimson in the grass, joined their fragrance to the invigorating breath of the place. From an unpainted barn came the persistent click-clack thud-thud of a loom, where Miss Lattice was weaving yards of carpet from little balls of colored rags. A voice sharp enough to the verge of disharmony startled her.

"Will you finish tomorrow, sister?"

"I—it doesn't hardly seem possible"—

"'Twas promised. 'Pears to me you're unusommon slow. Surely you're not such a fool as to be thinking o' William Henderson and such nonsense at your age."

Miss Lattice's hand involuntarily sought the fastening of her bodice, but the faint crackle of the concealed paper was too imperceptible to reach Mrs. Allen's ears.

"The letter was delayed. He's going away tomorrow"—

"Lattice Howard, he's no man for you. We settled that years ago. I'm ashamed for you—that you so much as think on him now."

"He's free again"—Miss Lattice spoke inappositely.

"Free, is it? If he wasn't good enough for you when he was young, a widower with three children certainly ain't no gain." With a toss of the head Mrs. Allen resumed the road to her cottage.

Miss Lattice sat miserably uncertain, her hands idle in her lap. She forgot the loom and Mrs. Harris, who was counting on the finished carpet. Her thoughts were with the curly headed lad from whom her sister had separated her because he failed to hustle in the town where he was born, but, like a rolling stone, was forever wandering, apparently gathering little of this world's goods. Now he had returned and wanted to see her. It seemed a cruel prank of fate to have joined forces with her sister and in the form of delayed mail prevent their meeting. A tear gathered beneath her lashes, but before it fell a pair of warm arms wound themselves around her neck.

"Aunt Lattice, you're in love, in love! Don't ask me how I know, because you are. You don't listen to what folks are saying, and as for the carpet"—

"Yes, dear, the carpet." Miss Lattice seized the shuttle and sent it flying through the shed of warp threads. Her feet mechanically worked the treadle shifting the heddles; then with the batten she bent the woof of rag into place again and again.

"We can't talk through that metal," she remarked plaintively.

"My dear, there is nothing"—

"There is, you darling. Come, 'cheer up. I'm not to be put off. It's fellow sympathy." The crimson deepened in the laughing face, and with soft wheedling she gained the desired confidence, and Miss Lattice surrendered her letter.

It was in no sense a love letter, yet it was the nearest approach that the spinster had ever received. Possibly she read between the lines:

Dear Lattice—I am visiting my brother Joe till Wednesday. I want so much to see you. If I'd be welcome send me word. Yours, as ever, WILLIAM.

"I—I only got it last night"—

"It's too late to write now," her niece hurried on, "but you must go to Chatham to see him. Make believe you're shopping. Jennie's going tomorrow. I'll have Rob ask her to stop for you."

"Sister would never listen. Besides it's not the carrier's day."

"She's making a special trip for Rob's mother. Just to think"—the girl rose excitedly—"it must be ten years"—

"Twelve."

"And you've cared all this time! Oh, Aunt Lattice, how could you bear it? Mother's good as she can be, only she's had so much trouble it's made her a little hard. Do as I say and I'll play gooseberry for you. After breakfast come over here, as usual. About 10 walk down the road till the carrier overtakes you, then to Chatham with her and to Joe Henderson's, ask for William and you'll have hours together. Jennie will pick you up on her homeward trip. You'll be back to supper. Mother need never know unless you choose to tell her."

"But the carpet! If she doesn't hear the loom she'll come over to find out what's wrong."

"Leave that to me. I've got to think, but I'll fix it somehow."

During supper Mrs. Allen glanced anxiously at her sister's flushed cheeks and untouched plate. With the morrow William would be gone, then Lattice would return to her normal self.

Later, when Annie wandered down the road with Rob, the moonlight showed their heads very close together, while now and again the girl broke into a ripple of mischievous laughter. Watching, the mother felt a pang of jealousy. Rob was a good match, yet she dreaded the day she must yield her daughter to another, and tonight the time seemed very near. She went several times to her room for forgotten trifles, and each time there showed a line of light beneath her sister's door.

"Seems to me you're a long time getting to bed," she admonished.

"I—I'm most ready," came the reply. If Miss Lattice's voice sounded less even than usual Mrs. Allen was not herself sufficiently calm to notice.

As was customary in the morning, Miss Lattice betook herself to the barn and the working of the loom broke familiarly on the quiet air. Shortly after 10 Mrs. Allen, attracted by the rumble of wheels on the road, saw that the carrier was making an extra trip. She spoke of it to Annie, who came in hot and tired to noonday dinner.

"Call your aunt," she continued. "The pork will be cold. I got it especially to tempt her. She's eaten nothing these two days."

"Rob's mother invited her"— began Annie nervously.

"What for?" Mrs. Allen turned sharply, dish in hand.

"She has some rags for carpet weaving. Rob told me about it."

Mrs. Allen sniffed, disgruntled. "Your aunt had to go traipsing off without telling me. Besides, there's none too much daylight to finish Mrs. Harris' piece."

In the afternoon she was too busy preserving to notice Annie's absence or give thought to her sister, but when the last jar of jelly was sealed she caught up her sunbonnet and crossed the road to relieve Lattice.

As she entered the barn the glare from the outside sunlight blinded her, but even when that passed she doubted her own sight. Rob was working the loom, while Annie, rosy and tender, hung over the back of his chair. Miss Lattice was nowhere to be seen, but the carpet was completed. Even as she entered Rob threw down the shuttle and caught Annie around the waist.

"Now my reward!" he cried, his lips seeking hers lovingly.

"Annie!" At Mrs. Allen's cry the young people turned, but Rob did not release the girl.

"Mrs. Allen, she's promised—that is, with your approval. I love her. I'll be as good to her as I know how."

"Say yes, mother. I'm so happy"—

There was a painful silence before Mrs. Allen reluctantly gave consent. Then her bitterness sought an outlet.

"Where is your aunt?"

"The carpet's done," explained Rob cheerfully.

"Done, is it? By whom?"

"Miss Allen. Miss Allen"— The carrier drew her horse up at the barn and on Mrs. Allen's appearance thrust a note into her hand and hastened on.

"Daughter, did you know of this?" Mrs. Allen's voice shook as she passed the paper to the girl, who read aloud:

Sister, don't be angry. I just had to see William, and he could not bear that we should part again. I'm very happy.

LETTICE HENDERSON.

"She's married, mother, dear. Now it's done won't you be glad too?"

But Mrs. Allen turned and walked silently over to the cottage.

"It's a bit rough on her losing you both the same day," admitted Rob, drawing the girl's hand into his, "but we'll make it all up to her in the future."

What's in a Man.

All of us remember the nursery rhyme beginning, "What are little boys made of?" Recently a European medical scientist undertook to decide, chemically, what the average weight man in normal condition would be worth as practical "raw" material were he to be worked up into everyday commodities. He reports a widely scattered assortment of utilities into which this average man may be wrought. This average man in health has the material for 12 pounds of candles, 1 pound of nails, carbon sufficient for 900 pencils, bindings for 16 octavo books, 500 knife handles, 28 violin strings, 20 teaspoonfuls of salt and 1 pound of loaf sugar. We have that individual, healthy, good sized man among us whom we designate as "no good." Even this explanation of his worth as a raw material for necessary products doesn't change his value. Those processes which would be necessary to these lines of manufacture probably would bankrupt any plant equipped for "using him up."—Chicago Tribune.

"Going to move again?"

"Yes," replied the patient man. "We've bought a lot of handsome furniture, and we want to give the public a good look at it."—Washington Star.

ROYAL FAMILY HAS A HIGHLAND OUTING

Scottish Season Has Opened with Many Scenes of Very Brilliant Character.

ENJOY MOVING PICTURES

King and Queen See Views of Themselves Photographed in Colors of Their Surroundings.

[Special Despatch.]

London, Saturday.

With the King and Queen at Balmoral and the gathering in the park, which the Princess Royal, who has always taken a keen interest in the gathering, gave to Braemar for the purpose, the Highland season may be said to have started. One of the most interesting incidents of the meeting was the presentation of the octogenarian, Mr. Macdonald, the president of the gathering, to King George. For half a century Mr. Macdonald has taken part in the Highland games, and remembers Queen Victoria's first visit to Braemar.

All the big houses at Braemar were filled for the festivities, and the visitors' book in the kirkle hall is said to have been filled with names of persons paying their respects to the King and Queen in a way it has never been before. Queen Victoria used to set great store on the observance of the bonnie (kind) connected with it. It came to be a matter of punctilio for every guest to inscribe his or her name after the date of the visit. In the case of several members of the royal family their "kirkle book" has always been a cherished gift. Among the biggest entertainers for the gathering was the American wife of Admiral Beattie, who had a party at Invercauld.

Now Braemar is followed by the great annual gathering at Inverness, where, as usual, Mr. and Mrs. Medley Martin are entertaining on a lavish scale. They have taking rooms in the town for their guests to enable even the long automobile ride back to Balmoral after the dances.

The King and Queen are very fond of the cinematograph. Indeed, the Queen has on several occasions visited the Scala Theatre, where the kinemacolor reproduces every interesting event of the day. Now at Balmoral they have had a kinemacolor set up for the entertainment of themselves, their children and their guests, and on which they can see themselves as others have seen them. There, to their enjoyment, they see themselves at the unveiling of the Queen Victoria Memorial, driving in the circumstance procession, and in the royal progress through London the following day; at the investiture of the Prince of Wales at Caernarvon Castle; they see themselves in the royal yacht, Victoria and Albert, reviewing the great fleet at Spithead, and at the regatta at Cowes. All the effects, such as the pealing of bells at the Abbey, the sound of horses' hoofs in the military displays, and the splash of water in the Spithead pageant are there, worked by men trained in the work at the Scala Theatre.

The first picture that ever been made of King George V. has just become visible at his residence. It is a coloured bronze figure, erected on the steps at the head of Regent Avenue, which is the main roadway of the Festival of Empire. Mr. Arthur Rogers, the sculptor, has put his best work into the statue and produced an excellent likeness. The statue stands 12 feet high, the figure itself being 10 feet, and conveys much dignity of pose.

Society women have been going in more than ever for gold this season, and numerous diamond belt buckles in London drawing rooms are to be seen daily on the gold belts of Gullane and North Berwick, Elie and St. Andrews. Royalty, in the persons of the Duchess of Connaught and Princess Patricia, are to be seen playing the royal and ancient game even in pouring rain at Balmoral. They both play a very good game. Princess Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein is another royal enthusiast of golf. The Duchess of Marlborough, Mrs. Asquith and the Prime Minister's daughters are some of the ladies to be seen regularly on the links of Gullane and North Berwick, which owe their prestige as summer resorts mainly to their excellence and the twentieth century craze for golf.

42 AUTOMOBILES FOR KING IN INDIA

[Special Despatch.]

London, Saturday.

It seems that King George will have forty-two luxuriously fitted automobiles at the Delhi Durbar. They were taken to the London docks a few days ago for shipment to India. Four of these cars are intended for the King's personal use, and every one, we are proudly told, is British built. The cost of the whole of them is £40,000. Those intended for the King's use are all 35-horse power six cylinder standard cars, fitted with luxurious landaulette bodies, and capable of seating six. They are painted a royal blue and upholstered in the same color. His Majesty's personal car will be lighted by electricity from a current supplied by a dynamo driven by the engine of the car. The largest car of the forty-two will seat fifteen persons; the smallest is a four seater.

Revising It Downward.

Chicago Record-Herald:—"Then I'm to tell the firm," the bill collector said, making a memorandum in his notebook, "that you'll probably settle this account next week?"

"Well, I'd hardly put it that way," hesitatingly answered the debtor. "'Probably' is a pretty strong word, better make it 'possibly.'"

VIEW OF THE THAMES FROM THE "STAR AND GARTER."

Modern Ideas to Prevail in Famous Place That O'erlooks the Thames.

Place Is Redolent with the History of Men and Women of the Long Ago.

[Special Despatch.]

London, Saturday.

Untenanted and deserted for more than three years, the famous Star and Garter Hotel, at Richmond, known not only throughout England and the Continent, but to many thousands of travelled Americans, in the days of its prosperity, is to be reopened early next year by an enterprising North of England syndicate, which, having acquired the building and site for something like £30,000, will spend double that amount in modernizing and rehabilitating it.

Mr. W. R. Waters, C. B., J. S. I., head of the firm of Waters & Coombes, estate agents, that purchased the hotel for the new owners, says that, while the managers and the staff will be all English, the reconstructed hotel will be full of ideas from New York, Paris and other capitals of Europe.

"The hotel proper and the restaurant," said Mr. Waters, "will be conducted on separate and distinct lines. The hotel will contain finely equipped suites for quarterly tenants, each with bath attached, steam heated, and with telephone service; the rooms on the top floors will be devoted to bachelor chambers, with every modern improvement; the building will be electrically lighted throughout and will have the latest things in lifts. An auto service will be established between the hotel and the railway station, and the charges—this is important—will be moderate.

"The restaurant and banqueting hall will be like those of New York's Ritz-Carlton, and the service and cuisine will be equal to those of the finest hotels in Europe. This restaurant will be public, but the hotel will be reserved for the residents. All that was beautiful in the old building will be preserved and everything that is necessary to give the hotel the comforts of an up to date home will be introduced.

BEAUTY PRESERVED.

"The beautiful gardens, now overrun by weeds, will bloom again; there will be charming walks, and the garden terrace, from which you can obtain the finest view in all England, will be restored and utilized for open air teas. In fact, nothing will be left undone to make this famous hotel—which has sheltered many royalties and the great in the worlds of war, statesmanship, art and literature—worthy of the great history that is behind it, and the renewed prosperity that we hope is to come."

What that history is may be gathered from the facts that are here set forth:—

Erected originally in 1738 on a piece of waste land at Petersham, leased by John Christopher for £3 yearly from the Marl of Dysart, Lord of the Manor, the Star and Garter, then a mere wayside public house, grew until at the close of the century it came to be recognised as the chief hotel within easy riding distance of London. In those days lords and ladies and all the bucks and belles, tired of the noise and clatter of White's, were wont to visit Richmond from Saturday to Monday to drink in the fresh air on the top of Richmond Hill and the good liquor that came (even then) from the cellars of the Star and Garter.

Good fortune has alternated with bad in the conduct of the hotel, and three times it has been closed. It was reopened a century ago, in 1808, after a five years' period of emptiness and decay, by Christopher Cream, chef to the Duke of York, and he ran the place into "roaring popularity." When he died the business was continued by his widow, but, according to a chronicler of the time, the excessive charges under her administration frightened visitors away—it was a common statement that it cost half a sovereign, merely to enter its doors, and ten times that amount before you could depart—and the hotel finally fell into the hands of Mr. Joseph Ellis in 1832.

FULL OF ROMANCE.

He built several additions, and in 1858 turned the property over to one of his sons, Mr. George Ellis, who managed its affairs until, in 1865, a limited company took over the property and erected a fine new building at the top of the hill. Two years later a great fire destroyed all but the coffee room.

From the ashes came the present rambling but picturesque hotel, and its prosperity continued until a few years ago, when visitors went further afield. The company got into difficulties, and after a series of vain efforts to revive the business of the hotel the doors were closed.

Kings and princes have made the Star and Garter their home, lords and ladies revelled there, and beauties (among them the famous Mrs. Fitzherbert), who were the toasts of the candles of their day, have graced its banqueting hall and ballroom.

King Louis Philippe and his whole family lodged there for six months during the winter of 1848-9, and Queen Amalia stopped there for a time after his death. It sheltered Victor Emmanuel when King of Sardinia. Napoleon III., the Empress Eugenie and the Prince Imperial spent many days there. The Archduke Maximilian (afterward the ill fated Emperor of Mexico), the Duc d'Aumale, the Empress of Austria, the King and Queen of the Netherlands and the Duke and Duchess of Teck also were among the royal and princely personages who at different times stopped at the Star and Garter.

Queen Victoria often visited the hotel, and in later years King Edward and the present King often partook of the hospitality. Queen Mary, too, with her mother, Princess Mary Adelaide, has often graced charitable functions in the fine pavilion with her presence.

MEMORIES OF THE PAST.

Marshal Soult, when he came to England as French Ambassador on the occasion of Queen Victoria's coronation, in 1838, stopped at the Star and Garter, and many other figures who have helped to make world's history have made it their temporary home.

In earlier days, when it was little better than a public house, Sir William Pitt and My Lord Chatham foregathered there on Sunday afternoons, and many men whose names are now immortal in English literature found inspiration without and good liquor within its walls.

Breathing the pure air of the Surrey Hills, with the Thames winding its way like a silvery thread in the valley below, they gave to the world prose and poetry that are now part of the classic literature of England. Here James Thomson is said to have written "The Seasons," while writers of a later day, Thackeray, Meredith and "Ouida," could not forbear to keep their characters out of the old hotel. "Ouida" it was who gave the best picture of the resort in the dashing days of the early seventies. Dickens was wont to go there at times for a good dinner, and it was here that Mario and Grisi were guilty of one of their many extravagances.

The popular favorites one day invited a number of their intimates to a luncheon party in a well known London hotel. The cost of the edibles amounted to £200, but when all were assembled Grisi exclaimed, "It is too hot to eat here; let us drive out to Richmond to lunch," and the costly meal in London was abandoned to the servants, while the carriages conveyed the then public favorites and their friends to the Star and Garter.

Away back in July, 1851, so popular was the resort that, a local historian tells us, five hundred and sixty dinners were served here on a Sunday afternoon. The same authority is responsible for the statement that it was about this time that the original Four in Hand Club used to drive down for dinner every Sunday, and this practice was continued through the seventies and the eighties, when it was the fashionable thing for English society people and foreign visitors (among them, of course, many Americans) who were immured in London over Sunday to join the gay coaching parties that had the Star and Garter as their destination. In the vast stables, where there was accommodation for one hundred turnouts, every bit of room was taken up in those halcyon days, and all Richmond shared in the prosperity attracted to it by the famous hotel.

BLAME THE AUTOMOBILE.

There are scores alive in Richmond today who recall with pride festivities of national import held within the walls of the hotel, famous singers who have appeared at concerts there, Christmas pantomime delights, balls and receptions and other social events of the summer and winter time, when an orchestra of fifty musicians discoursed sweet music, and the roster of those who attended read like the list of a court levee.

Some say it was the automobile that led to its most recent failure, others that high charges were responsible, but, whatever the reason, the new owners are determined, if possible, to renew its glories. They hold that the mad rush for the remote countryside is dying down. Fashionable pleasure seekers are looking for resorts near London once more, and they hope that fashion will again bring prosperity to the hotel which crowns Richmond Hill.

If one recalled all the noble personages associated with Richmond and the Star and Garter one would have to conjure up a vast army of men and women who have graced thrones or served them. If one sought to picture the natural beauties that surround the hotel, with the far stretching green of Richmond Park in front of it and the woodlands sweeping down to the Thames as one gazes at the scene from the central balcony in the rear, one could fill a book. Suffice it to say that from the windows of Wick House, next door, which was built for Sir Joshua Reynolds, the master of portraiture painted the most famous of his three landscapes, and that tells the story.

From the height on which the hotel stands, according to Macaulay, "the sentinel on Whitehall Gate looked forth into the night and saw o'erhanging Richmond Hill the streak of blood red light" that told of the coming of the invincible Armada.

Within a few months thousands of electric lights will glow within and without the Star and Garter on this same hill. There will be bungalows for boating men where the great stables used to be and an up to date garage for automobiles; the building will be thoroughly renovated, the statuary scattered throughout the grounds will be restored, the grounds will be made beautiful ones more, and many thousands who have pleasant memories of this old hotel will join in the wish of the people of Richmond that history may repeat itself, that out of failure may come prosperity, as in the days when the Star and Garter did "a roaring trade" under the management of Christopher Cream, some time chef to the Duke of York.

Lines Are Already Drawn in Battle for Home Rule

Government Is Prepared to Extend Campaign to England, Scotland and Wales.

[Special Despatch.]

London, Saturday.—British politicians are taking a brief rest—only a brief one—after one of the hardest sessions of Parliament in the history of the country. In preparation for an even harder campaign.

The end of September witnessed the opening of the Home Rule campaign. Both sides have already organized, and from one end of the country to the other meetings will be held in support of and in opposition to the government's plans. It is hoped that before long some idea of the government's bill will be given to the public. Mr Birrell, relieved of a Cabinet Minister's main share of work during the last session, has been busily engaged on the measure, and after the holidays the Cabinet will complete the bill and authorize its introduction as early in the new year as possible.

The bill will apply to Ireland only, but the government is prepared to extend it to England, Scotland and Wales if public opinion demands it. The liberals, although on the defensive, are making the first move. The League of Young Liberals has moved into the enemy's country and is carrying on a van campaign in the English counties, where home rule finds its most ardent opponents outside of Ulster itself.

The Young Scots Society, with a membership of 150,000, is co-operating with the regular liberal organization in Scotland, and the Eighty Club, a liberal society, given there to entertaining than to active political fighting, is making a tour of Ireland. In exchange the Ulster Liberal Association is sending some of its best speakers to England and Wales. Winston Churchill, Home Secretary; the Master of Elibank, chief liberal whip, and Robert Harcourt, M. P., are at the head of the campaign and, besides the organizations mentioned, will have the help of every Cabinet Minister, the Irish nationalists and a host of speakers.

Unlike Gladstone, who had to meet the opposition of the non-conformist leaders, Spurgeon, Dale, Bright and Chamberlain, Premier Asquith to-day has the support of the bulk of nonconformity. Sylvester Horne, Dr. Clifford, Sir George White and David Lloyd George are but a few of the members of the Free Church who will take the stump for home rule.

Ireland given home rule, Wales will demand the disestablishment of the Church. The bill to give effect to this has long been ready for introduction, and only awaited the passage of the Parliament bill to give it a chance of getting through the House of Lords. The Prime Minister has given his promise to the Welsh members, and as soon as the home rule bill is out of the way it will be the turn of disestablishment for Wales. English and Scottish liberals are also to have their more urgent demands complied with.

The greatest outrage imaginable, in the eyes of the English radical, is the old system by which voters may exercise the franchise in as many electoral districts as they own property or have other interests. The unionists being the party of the wealthy, the liberals assert that this system gives them a great advantage. It is no uncommon thing for a man to have half a dozen votes. A wealthy London merchant, for example, certainly would have three votes—one for his place of business and one each for his town and country seats—and the elections being held on different days, he has an opportunity to exercise them all. The liberal proposal is one man, one vote and a one day election.

All of this, in addition to land reform for Scotland and other social legislation, including the insurance bill, which if passed this fall will require some additional legislation, is a pretty heavy programme.

SKULL CAP OR GIRL? WHAT'S THE MAGNET?

[Special Despatch.]

London, Saturday.

Some novel ideas are being introduced by the managers of the "Blue Bird" company in order to preserve darkness in the auditorium and allow the electrical effects to be thoroughly appreciated by the spectators. The musicians' electric light bulbs are fitted with special shades and the reflection from their music is obviated by the startling innovation of printing white notes on black scores. Skull caps are provided for bald headed auditors, and there is a great rush of the hairless brotherhood to see this show. But the skull caps are not the inducement. It may be proper to note that the chorus is made up of symmetrical, pretty girls.

GENERAL BOTHA IS NOW TOO BRITISH

[Special Despatch.]

London, Saturday.—General Botha, first and present Premier of the Union of South Africa, the man who fought so hard against the British not so many years ago, has found himself in the unique position of having to look to the English in South Africa as political allies. He has apparently become too British for some of his Dutch compatriots.

Upon his return to South Africa, after attending the Imperial Conference in London, General Botha found a rival claimant to the leadership of the Dutch. General Hertzog, Minister of Justice in the Botha Cabinet, has long been conspicuous for his advocacy of the use of the Dutch dialect in the schools of the Union.

He recently received an address signed by 12,000 Boers, in which he is described as "the national hero par excellence who has roused South African national spirit out of a peaceful sleep, and has helped to lay the foundation of a true South African code of education based upon equal rights." The address concludes with the magnificent words, "We see in you our leader and will follow."

AMERICAN LIMPET ATTACKS OYSTER

And Now There Is Some Fear Expressed for the Future of the Coppery Bivalve.

[Special Despatch.]

London, Saturday.

American limpets on an English oyster bed, sing yo ho and a bottle of rum!

These American limpets apparently are determined to dispose of the coppery tasting bivalve which has been masquerading under the name of oyster in England for many years.

According to the Kent and Essex Fisheries Commission, the beds at Burnham appear to be all limpets and no "spat," and a scientific expert of the Fisheries Board says that the limpet, which has recently appeared on the southeast coast of England, is of a species hitherto unknown in British waters, and undoubtedly comes from America. This expert admits, however, that he has never heard of the limpet harming American oysters.

"Then why dread it here?" he was asked.

"Well," he replied, "in the short time that it has been with us it has spread very rapidly, and oysters have decreased in number."

One cannot understand a well regulated American limpet attacking an English oyster unless it was very, very hungry or felt that it was its duty to destroy these imitations of the genuine, toothsome, succulent bivalves of its native land.

"How did the limpet come there?" the enterprise asked.

The question brought out the astounding answer that for some years the American oyster has been imported and planted alongside of its coppery cousin—if it will permit the relationship—and the limpet, knowing a good thing, came with it.

Some Englishmen want to destroy the limpet. Why not the English oyster?

OLD SOLDIER HEIR TO TWO MILLIONS

Sergeant Major Thomas Smith Has Received Some Very Good News from Canada.

[Special Despatch.]

London, Saturday.

An unexpected and big fortune has fallen to an old soldier who since his retirement from the army has been employed as a [illegible]. Sergeant Major Thomas Smith, formerly of the Royal Monmouthshire regiment, has just received news that under the will of a brother who died in Canada he has become heir to a fortune of £2,000,000.

About twenty-five years ago Smith's brother, Richard, left Devonport for Toronto, where he purchased land, on which he "struck oil," literally, steadily accumulated wealth as an oil operator.

He has left about $10,000,000, the greater portion of which he has bequeathed to charities, but the fifth, amounting to about $2,000,000, comes to his elder brother, Thomas, who says he is not losing his head over the fortune left him, but that he will merely retire to build home in Devonport, with his wife and five children, and spend the remainder of his life in peace and comfort.

LONDON THEATRICAL SEASON IS LIVELY

[Special Despatch.]

London, Saturday.

The theatrical season has fairly opened, and by the end of this week will be in full swing. The ball was set rolling with the Concert," at the Duke of York's; then the Follies with their new face at the Apollo; but the first big gun was fired by Sir Herbert Tree's spectacular revival of "Macbeth" at His Majesty's. On successive nights came Miss Nelson Terry's "Juliet" at the New; Charles Hawtrey's French farce, "The Great Name," at the Prince of Wales, and the new Japanese comic opera, "Mousme," at the Shaftesbury.

Mr. Frank Jefferson, the youngest of the late Joseph Jefferson's five sons, is now in London on a holiday. "It was my father's express wish," said he, "that I should never have anything to do with the stage, and, strange, to say, I have never had any inclination toward a theatrical career, while all my brothers took to it like ducks to water."

Mr. Hall Caine has written a new play called "The Quality of Mercy." It is his first stage offering not dramatized from one of his novels. The play is now being acted in Manchester.

It is an old story for Gaiety chorus girls to become peeresses, but it is a very unusual thing for peers to become chorus men. There is one there now, however. He is Viscount Dungan, the son and heir of Lord Clonmel. He has adopted the stage seriously and hopes to work his way to the top.

Miss Ellen Terry's son, Mr. Gordon Craig, announces in a letter to the Daily Mail that he is in perfect accord with his mother in matters of theatrical art. That should gladden Miss Terry's heart.

Where He Came In.

Harper's:—He gazed tenderly into her eyes as she spoke.

"Life," she murmured dreamily, "is after all nothing but a romance in which we are the characters, moving hither and yon as the supreme author of our being directs."

"And in the novel of your life," said he, tenderly, "where do I come in?"

"You?" she answered with a smile. "Oh you are—let me see—one, chief, I guess—you are Chap Seventeen."

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Moncton Yard and Cut-Off," will be received at this office until sixteen o'clock on Monday, October 2nd, 1911.

Plans, profiles, specification and form of contract to be entered into can be seen on and after the 4th of September at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, and at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Intercolonial Railway, Moncton.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered, unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and in the case of firms, unless there are attached the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque for the sum of $40,000.00 made payable to the order of the Minister of Railways and Canals must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The cheque of the successful tenderer will be held as security, or part security, for the due fulfilment of the contract to be entered into.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

By order,
L. K. JONES,
Secretary.

BRIEF ITEMS FROM BRITAIN

Strike of Doctors---The King Presents a Lion to Dublin Zoo

A Manchester shopkeeper, whose premises were recently damaged by a motor-car, has revenged himself by posting the following in his window:—"Notice to motorists. No thoroughfare."

Fifty Years a Vicar

Canon T. B. Dickins, LL.D., who has resigned the rural deanery of Warwick, has completed fifty years as Vicar of Emscote. His church was built in 1861, and he has been its only incumbent.

Trackless Trams

The trackless tramcar system, as tried in Bradford since June, has proved so great a success that the Bradford Corporation Tramway Committee decided to extend it by some eleven miles.

English Cup Cot

Bradford City Football Club, winners of the English Cup, are considering a project to endow a cot at the Bradford Royal Infirmary in honor of their victory. The club has raised about £2,000 for charities.

Youngest Aviator

Naval Cadet R. F. Wheeler, who is just fifteen, has obtained his pilot certificate of the "Bristol" Salisbury Plain School of Aviation. His tuition, owing to his nerve and sharpness, only lasted four weeks.

Veteran Sportsman's Death

The death has occurred at Beechgrove, Moffat, of Mr. William Carruthers, a notable veteran curler and bowler. Mr. Carruthers, who was in his eighty-fourth year, was a native of Dumfriesshire.

Doctors Strike

The ambulance training has been omitted from the continuation classes of the Old Kilpatrick School Board, because the doctors of the district have come to an agreement that none of them would accept a class under a guinea per night, which the Board could not afford.

Fifteen Workhouse Centenarians

The annual report of the Local Government Board for Ireland states that during the year fifteen centenarians, one of whom was stated to be 110 and another 108 years of age, died in Irish workhouses.

Cashbox in Stocking

A married woman named Ellen Morrissey was arrested at New Ross on a charge of stealing a cash-box containing money from a publican in the town. The police found the cash-box, containing £7.50, tied up in one of her stockings when she was arrested.

The King's Lion

One of the interesting additions to the Dublin Zoo is the African lion, a present from the King. Being a wild, caught animal it is much fiercer than those reared in the gardens, and is relegated to one of the open-air cages of the Roberts House.

Fatal Tasting

A housekeeper named Mary Jane McCrory, of Lower Urney Street, Belfast, has died as the result of a piece of meat lodging in her throat. While engaged cooking some meat she put a piece in her mouth to see if it were properly cooked. Death was due to suffocation.

A Medical Veteran

Much regret has been expressed at Dungannon at the death of Dr. William Twigg, a member of an old Tyrone family, and whose personal connection with the town of Dungannon extended to upwards of half a century. He acted as medical officer of Dungannon Union since 1864.

FOOD PRICES RISE

Many Complaints Being Made by All Classes of People

The increasingly high prices of provisions is a cause of grave alarm in Berlin. Complaints are heard from every part of the empire, not merely from the poorer classes, but from the population generally. In many sections of the country crops have been severely damaged by the long drought. The markets are poorly supplied with vegetables. Housewives are bitterly lamenting the almost two-fold increase of the usual price of vegetables, potatoes in particular costing now from $1.35 to $2.50 per cwt., or just double what they cost last year. Moreover, the prices are expected to rise still higher.

400,000 PILGRIMS SEEK HEALING

Many Bavarians Throng to the Alt-Otting Shrine

The fame of the wonder-working Loudes, although it attracts thousands of German Catholics who are in a position to afford the outlay necessary to reach the supposedly miraculous healing waters, has not reached the poorer inhabitants of the Bavarian highlands. These people, however, have a holy shrine at Alt-Otting, which for them has no equal as a source of health, and whither they make a pilgrimage every year, accompanied by their halt, lame, and sick, in the hope that a wonder may be worked for them. This year the pilgrims have numbered no fewer than 400,000, and among them, although perhaps not in search of miracles, were several princes and princesses of the Bavarian Royal family. The place has been a resort of pilgrims since the sixteenth century, when the picture of the Holy Virgin, which is said to possess the power of miracle, was brought there from the Orient.

Reaping Horses Swallowed Up

While cutting corn at Bridgend, Midlothian, a pair of horses attached to a reaping machine were lost, the ground subsiding and precipitating the animals into underground colliery workings.

VICTORIA SACKVILLE WEST

And her unusual pet, "Ivan the Terrible," which is nothing more terrible than a three months' old Russian bear that has been trained by the Hon. Victoria Sackville West, and which she has under absolute control. "Ivan" takes the place of a dog, and is often seen on the grounds of the West estate, accompanied by its mistress, and amenable to her every wish.

FOR CHEAPER FOOD

Many Serious Riots Have Occurred in the North of France

The strike of the housewives in the north of France has degenerated into serious riots at Montigny, near Lens, and a young man has been nearly killed. A large number of women, accompanied by as many men, paraded the commune, and went from baker to baker to make them sign a certain paper containing a list of the prices fixed by the committee. Nearly all the bakers submitted, but in the evening one of them, who was returning with his wagon, was taken by surprise. The crowd gathered round and wanted him to sign the paper. He did not understand what they wanted, and struck out right and left with his whip.

The crowd then became hostile, and threatened to mob him. He rushed into his house for a revolver, and came out threatening to shoot. A young man tried to wrench the weapon out of his hand, but in doing so a shot went off, and he was wounded in the chest. The mob then became furious, seized the baker, and almost murdered him, rushed into his house, smashed all the furniture, and looted it. Another gang dragged the wagon to a field and burnt it. All the police and gendarmes in the district had to be summoned, and order was restored only late at night.

At Saint Quentin similar riotous scenes took place. Seven or eight hundred housewives, with as many men and boys, marched to the great market singing the revolutionary "Internationale," and attacked the dealers. They upset the stands and pelted the dealers with the vegetables and fruits. The disorder became so great that the police were helpless, and the unfortunate salesmen and saleswomen were driven from the market, pelted with lumps of butter, eggs, cheese, poultry and large chunks of beef.

WEALTHY FRENCHMAN MURDERED

He Had Settled an Income of 30,000 Francs on His Young Wife

The police of Tours are still engaged in investigating the strange murder mystery which occurred one night last June. M. Guillotin, the murdered man, was married to a young woman on whom he had settled an income of $7,000 a year, and in whose favor he had also taken out an insurance policy. After the murder suspicion fell on the cousin, M. Houssard, who has since been arrested, and who, it is alleged, had been at one time in love with Madame Guillotin. After an inquiry of two months, suspicion also fell on the young widow, and she has also been arrested on evidence said to have been given by a lady friend, to whom she is reported to have confessed. The body of M. Guillotin was found on July 14 in a room of a house on the Quai Paul Bert, at Tours. This house had just been bought by M. Guillotin, and was being redecorated. Only one or two rooms were habitable, and these were occupied by M. Guillotin when he came to Tours from Ruffle-sur-Loire, where he had his country home.

RUSSIAN GEESE DISEASED

It is reported from the Russo-German frontier that the German authorities have again discovered some kind of disease among the Russian geese, and, as a consequence, their importation into Germany, which is a very large business, has been suspended. A similar measure against Russian geese a few years ago nearly brought on a war of Customs tariffs between Russia and Germany. The Novoe Vremya suggests that the disease is periodically discovered by the German wholesale buyers for the purpose of lowering prices and the buying up for the German market, by which time the disease generally disappears.

Belgium's Population

Belgium, with 643 inhabitants to the square mile, is the most thickly populated country in Europe; England's figure is 557, Germany's 306, France's 202, Russia's 124, and Spain's 161.

NEW LONDON MUSEUM WITH ROYAL ROBES

Many Interesting Exhibits Will Be Shown, Including a Chamber of Horrors

In the room in Kensington Palace in which Queen Anne died and beneath the windows of which is the tiny playground of Queen Victoria's childhood, Mr. Guy Laking, the King's Armorer, is busily classifying the exhibits of the new London Museum. Considerable time must elapse before they can be placed on public view, for already they number nearly 5,000, and to catalogue a collection which is drawn from every period of London's history is no light task.

The Coronation robes of five sovereigns—Queen Victoria's, Queen Alexandra's, and Queen Mary's, together with King Edward's and King George's, also some of the early costumes of Queen Victoria and the dresses Queen Mary wore at her marriage, at King Edward's Coronation, and beneath her robes at her own crowning—will be on exhibition. Another exhibit will be the christening clothes and shoes of King Edward. All these will form part of the costume history of London, towards which have already been added the magnificent Semeur Lacee collection. The series comprises three or four hundred costumes, ranging from the fourteenth century to the present day. In the Elizabethan and Jacobean periods it is especially fine, and there are some beautiful silver-embroidered leather coats of the Commonwealth. There will also be a Chamber of Horrors, showing the executional axe, found in the Thames, by the Tower; fetters worn by Tom King, the highwayman; some more fetters (sixteenth century), fished up from a well at Newgate; a basin from the condemned cell, as well as some fascinating thumbscrews and hand-crushers.

GERMAN LABOR TROUBLES

Amendments to the Criminal Code are Urged by Employers

Labor unrest in other countries has given rise to considerable uneasiness in Germany. This is manifesting itself both on the side of the workmen and on that of the employers. In the metal trades, in which nearly a million and a half men are engaged, strikes and lock-outs have been going on for some time, and the situation has become so threatening that the united federations of employers have been forced to meet to discuss measures of protection. Should a lock-out occur, as may happen in the course of this month, over 500,000 organized trades unionists will be affected, and along with them a much larger number of unorganized laborers. While this disquieting outlook in one of the principal branches of German industry continues, the employers in other branches are seeking to strengthen the law against picketing, which they regard as a ranger to the community at large. An amendment of the criminal law in the following terms has already been proposed by the Government: "Whoever by means of dangerous threats disturbs the peace of any other person shall be liable to a year's imprisonment or a fine of $250." The Central Federation of German Manufacturers proposes in its petition an additional clause reading: "Whoever undertakes the systematic picketing of employes, workmen, workshops, thoroughfares, streets, open spaces, railway stations, canals, docks, or other places of traffic, shall render himself guilty of dangerous menacing in the meaning of the first paragraph." It is expected that the Reichstag will make this petition one of the first subjects of discussion on its reassembly.

WAR ON BIG HATS

Berlin's Police President Puts Ban on Large Hats at Theatres

Herr von Jagow, Berlin's police president, thrives on unpopularity, so the cyclone of indignation now sweeping over his head as a result of his ban on big hats in theatres will doubtless leave him unmoved. The paroxysm of Anglophobia convulsing the Fatherland has not been diminished by the statement that Herr von Jagow was inspired to issue his decree by impressions gathered in London, where he was struck by the elegant appearance of hatless ladies in theatres. The theatre managers, who are to be held responsible for violations of Herr von Jagow's ukase, and fined $25 for each breach, are no less upset than their lady patrons. Berlin ladies sit in theatre boxes largely for the purpose of displaying ornate millinery effects. A firm of fashionable milliners announces a new creation designed especially to overcome the police president's decree. It is a filmy thing of satin, jewels and spangles, embellished with a rakish aigrette or two. It has been named the "Jagow cap," and forthcoming "first nights" are to witness its debut.

SLAPPED HIS FACE

"All's well that ends well," and the threatened duel between the militant feminist champion of Toulouse, Mdlle. Arria Ly, and her male antagonist, M. Massat, did not come off, because the two antagonists have been reconciled at a police station.

The reconciliation, however, was not effected without a hair-pulling preamble. M. Massatt organized a meeting at which he was to speak and give his views on feminism. Mdlle Arria Ly broke into the meeting, and, while a lady was speaking, she got on the platform and slapped M. Massat. There was, of course, the usual excitement, and all the belligerents were marched off to the police-station, where, after M. Massat had explained that he was making no personal attacks on Mdlle Arria Ly, "but only on her theories, Mdlle. Ly was soothed and shook hands with him.

Storm of Long Ago

In the great English storm of 1703, which lasted two days, 8,000 people were drowned, 20,000 trees were uprooted in Kent, and two million pounds' worth of damage was done in London alone.

WANT BIBLE TAUGHT.

Niagara Synod Will Bring Pressure to Bear on Government.

Hamilton, Sept. 28.—The closing session of the Synod of Niagara was marked by extensive reviews of religious instruction in the public schools.

Hon. Richard Harcourt, former Provincial Minister of Education, suggested after-school services, as provided in the statute, as a substitute for five o'clock parochial calls.

Rev. Dr. Miller said the fact that there was no religious instruction in United States schools was the direct cause of fifty-five per cent. of Americans being non-religious. "We must have more religious instruction if we would prevent the spread of atheism," he said.

Canon Spencer said it seemed the Minister of Education was afraid to bring about religion in the schools. He suggested an interdenominational committee to attempt to get a referendum in Ontario at least.

The special committee on religious education, while regarding denominational schools as the ideal, reported that they were undesirable under present conditions. They urged that pressure be brought to bear upon the Government to introduce in the public schools a syllabus like that used in the Normal schools.

Prefer Canadian Brides.

New York, Sept. 29.—Cupid has made his nest in the Long Island City Hospital, and Canadian reciprocity is responsible, says The New York American.

You see, three-fourths of the nurses in that institution are Canadian girls. And the records show that ten out of twelve have wedded young American doctors they met in the hospital.

Three of these romances have culminated in marriages within the past few weeks. Now Dr. John N. Balderson of Brooklyn has admitted that he is "next." On October 27 he is to wed Miss Doris Tufts, a graduate nurse, the daughter of a ship builder, of St. John, N.B. Dr. Balderson was concerned long enough to be asked, "Why is it that Canadian girls win all the doctors in the Long Island City Hospital?"

"Because they make the best wives," he responded. "I know many doctors who have married American girls, and from what they have told me I am convinced that Canadian girls make better helpmates than do American girls. The American girl is too fond of excitement and variety. She is not attracted by home life."

Negotiations Deadlocked.

Dublin, Sept. 29.—Notwithstanding the announcement earlier in the day that the strike declared by the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants on all the railways of Ireland had been settled, it was later ascertained that the negotiations are deadlocked. The strikers accepted the terms of the companies, but when it came to returning to work the companies refused to reinstate the strikers in their former positions, as that would mean the displacement of the men who had been engaged to fill them.

Will Not Be Extradited.

Los Angeles, Sept. 29.—"General" Chrys. Pryce, former commander of the Lower California insurrectos, will not be extradited to Mexico to face charges of murder, arson and robbery.

United States Commissioner Van Dyke ruled yesterday that there was no ground for his extradition. He will have to face United States proceedings, however, on a charge of having violated the neutrality laws.

All Missionaries Safe.

Toronto, Sept. 2.—A cablegram from Chungking, Western China, has been received at the Methodist Mission rooms to the effect that the missionaries and workers at Chintu are well and safe. The following have arrived at Chungking: Dr. Cox, Rev. J. W. Henderson, Rev. R. E. S. Longley, Mr. Medenhall, Rev. J. W. Sparling, Rev. E. C. Wilford, Misses Rea, Siderkin, Swann, and Smith.

Labor Man Beaten.

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 29.—Jas. Rolph, jr., was elected Mayor of San Francisco on Wednesday. The city has never before known a campaign of such keenness, with J. Rolph, head of a steamship company, opposed in the race for mayor by P. H. McCarthy, incumbent, president of the State Building and Trades Council, and the acknowledged leader of organized labor on the coast.

Fierce Fighting in Persia.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 29.—Teheran despatch says that according to Government advices a great battle was fought Wednesday at Noharan, 50 miles from Teheran. Salar Ed. Dowleh, brother of the deposed Shah, lost 400 killed and 200 captured, in addition to seven big guns. He retired in the direction of Hamaden, to the west, the Government troops pursuing him.

Charged With Forgery.

Ottawa, Sept. 29.—Percy G. Gall of Montreal was arrested in Ottawa at noon by Detective Mort Culver, on the charge of forging two checks and having the intentions of trying to forge a third. The two checks were forged on Mr. J. O. Duford, a commercial traveler, one at the Alexandra Hotel and the other in the Windsor Hotel. Gall was arrested in the Grand Union Hotel at twelve o'clock. He appears in the Police Court to-day.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Sept. 28.—There was a good enquiry from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat, but as the prices bid were 4½ one shilling per quarter under what exporters were offering, no business was done.

The local market for oats was firmer in sympathy with the sharp advance in prices in Winnipeg, which was due to shorts covering on account of continued wet weather. The local demand for car lots was fair, and some business was also done for export account.

The demand for flour is fairly good for both local and export account, and the undertone to the market remains steady. Mill feed is scarce and firm. Cheese is quiet and steady, and butter is easy. Eggs fairly active. Demand for provisions is fair.

Dressed hogs (abattoir), $9.75 to $10 per 100 lbs.

Beef—Plate, half barrels, 200 lbs., $7.50; barrels, 400 lbs., $14.50; tierces, 600 lbs., $21.50.

Stampede to New Gold Field.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 29.—On the eve of cold weather a big stampede is in progress to the new gold camp of Ruby, on the Yukon River below Fort Gibbon, and it is estimated that 2,500 persons will spend the winter there. Most of the stampeders are from the Iditarod. Comparatively little gold has been found, but old-timers say the formation reminds them of the Klondyke.

HIS TIME WASTED.

Foreign Secretary Arose From Bed to Grant Interview.

With international complications on his mind, the foreign secretary, completely worn out, tumbled into bed.

He was just dozing off when the front door bell pealed.

"A reporter, sir," announced a footman. "Will you see him?"

"I suppose so!" sighed the foreign secretary. And, rising, he slipped on his dressing gown and slippers and descended to the library.

The reporter was a mere youth; but, though shivering with cold, the foreign secretary dictated two columns about the reasons for the compromise he had arrived at with a neighboring power. Then, satisfied that he had done his duty, he allowed the youthful reporter to the door.

"G-g-good night," he said, with chattering teeth. "You might let me have half a d-d-dozen copies of the paper in the m-m-morning."

"Oh, this isn't for any paper," said the reporter.

"What!" cried the minister. "What the d-d-deuce is it for, then?"

"Why, you see," explained the youth, "I belong to the new school of journalism, and this is a test interview."—London Answers.

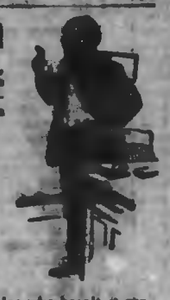
Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription



Is the best of all medicines for the cure of diseases, disorders and weaknesses peculiar to women. It is the only preparation of its kind devised by a regularly graduated physician—an experienced and skilled specialist in the diseases of women.

It is a safe medicine in any condition of the system. THE ONE REMEDY which contains no alcohol and no injurious habit-forming drugs and which extracts no certificate for such ingredients.

THE ONE REMEDY so good that its makers are not afraid to print its every ingredient on each outside bottle-wrapper and attest to the truthfulness of the same under oath.

It is sold by medicine dealers everywhere, and any dealer who hasn't it can get it. Don't take a substitute of unknown composition for this medicine or known controversy. No counterfeit is as good as the genuine and the druggist who says something else is "just as good as Dr. Pierce's" is either mistaken or is trying to deceive you for his own selfish benefit. Such a man is not to be trusted. He is trifling with your most priceless possession—your health—may be your life itself. See that you get what you ask for.

ITALY DECLARES WAR UPON TURKEY TO-DAY

RIVAL FLEETS ARE WITHIN A FEW MILES OF EACH OTHER AND MAY FIGHT AT ONCE

Neither Italy or Turkey However is Entirely Unanimous and There Have Been Anti-war Demonstrations in Both Countries.

THE SITUATION TO-DAY

Examiner Special:

ROME, SEPT. 29.—The state of war between Turkey and Italy commenced at 2.30 this afternoon, the declaration giving as reasons that Turkey has failed to meet the demands contained in Italy's ultimatum. It is believed here that the Minister of Marine has wirelessed from Italy to the fleet to act immediately, and if this is true, a big naval battle may have commenced already.

LONDON, SEPT. 29.—Following the announcement of the declaration of war in Tripoli, Sir Edward Grey, the Foreign Minister, had long conference with Italian Ambassador, Marquis De Francaville, and Turkish Ambassador of Foreign Powers.

The general opinion here is that Turkey's navy would be wiped off the seas by Italy's in a few hours. Italy stands fifth among the great Powers navy, while Turkey's is about fifteenth.

BOMBARD TRIPOLI.

CHIASSO, SWITZERLAND, SEPT. 29.—It is reported that Admiral Aubrey has been instructed to demand the immediate surrender of Tripoli, and if this is refused or delayed, to give population six hours within which to escape, at the expiration of which he shall bombard the place until a landing is possible.

LONDON, SEPT. 29.—The fighting squadrons of Turkey and Italy are within a few miles of each other, off the coast of Tripoli, with the funnels belching black smoke, at full steam, and if they are not emptying their guns at one another in an awful hail of steel and shrapnel and devastation before this despatch is printed in Canadian papers, it is because of this one fact that the Government of either nation is quite sure of the unanimity of the people's opinion in favour of proposed war. In Italy, the opposition to war with Turkey is plain and decisive. Last night and this morning from various parts of the kingdom came the news of riots of the inhabitants, accompanied by the tearing down of telegraph and telephone poles, the ripping up of railroads, all avowed for the purpose of preventing the obilisation of troops for war in Tripoli. Several were shot last night by Carbineers. At a meeting of the Council this morning there was a division of opinion as to whether Italy should not back down in face of such opposition on the part of the people and in Turkey, especially, in Constantinople, there were demonstrations this morning against war. However, one paper came out to-day with a cry for revenge against Italy for such humiliation of Turkey. It says in great red letters: "For vengeance we shall live and we shall succeed." The Government has, for some reason, not interfered, but has rather encouraged the free circulation of this paper. The warships of all neutral nations are now off the coast for the protection of their subjects.

EXIT ONE JOHN BROWN ANOTHER WANTS THE JOB

Policeman John Brown Resigns and His Name-sake Applies for the Position---Police Commissioners Meet But Do Not Make an Appointment.

The Board of Police Commissioners met yesterday afternoon for the principal purpose of dealing with the resignation of Mr. John Brown, of the Police Department. There were only two applicants for the position and no appointments were made.

There were present at the meeting Judge Huycke, Chairman; Police Magistrate Dumble and Mayor Morrow.

The letter from John Brown resigning his position was read and the resignation accepted.

Applications were read from John Brown and P. S. Newsholm for positions as Constables. It was moved by Mayor Morrow and seconded by Magistrate Dumble, that an advertisement be inserted in each of the local papers three times, for applications for the position of Constable

It was oved and seconded that Constable Alex. Kidd, who was placed on the position temporarily, by Chief Thompson, be appointed Constable, at a salary of $500.00 per year up to October 1st, 1911, and $600.00 per year after that date.

The salary of Constable Meagher was increased to $650.00, to go into effect on Oct. 1st, 1911.

The accounts were then read and moved to be paid.

The Commissioners decided to amend the rule requiring the constables who wish to resign to give a week's notice. This rule now requires a month's notice.

A YEAR INDOORS

"For thirteen months I was so bad with chronic indigestion that I could not go out of doors. Nerves were overstrung, the heart bad and smothering feelings came on till I thought I would choke. Doctors' treatment failed me, so I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which I thank for my present good health. I am now doing my housework and have a family of ten."

SEEKS A DIVORCE

Mrs. Ethel Croker-Breen Files Papers on Her Husband J. J. Breen in Ogdensburg, N.Y.

INTERESTING CASE

SYRACUSE, N.Y., SEPT. 28.—Mrs. Ethel Croker Breen, daughter of Mr. Richard Croker, once chief of the Tammany hall forces, has brought suit against her husband, John J. Breen, according to a despatch from Ogdensburg, N.Y.

Papers in the action were served upon young Breen in Ogdensburg last week while he was in that city at the horse show in connection with the Ogdensburg fair. The fact however, did not become generally known until this evening, the despatch asserts, and then Breen had gone away.

Breen handled, while in Ogdensburg, a string of the blue ribbon horses, owned by J. R. Stratton, of Peterborough, Ont. The Stratton entries carried off a number of prizes.

Miss Ethel J. Croker and John J. Breen were married in Jersey City on April 28, 1910, by Samuel Engler, a Justice of the Peace. When the news of the wedding became public two days later, both denied that they had been married.

Breen was a groom employed by the Messrs. Milton & A. C. Schwartz, who lived at the Plaza. He met Miss Croker at Durland's Riding Academy, where the horses of Messrs Schwartz were stabled. On the afternoon of the wedding Miss Croker went alone to Jersey City and met Breen.

A few days after the marriage Miss Croker left for Europe without having admitted that she was the bride of Breen.

Mr. Breen is at present in New York in connection with the application.

Robbers Enter Express Office

HAMILTON, SEPT. 29.—When the drivers and manager of the Canadian Express Company arrived at the office this morning they found the night clerk tied hand and foot and lying on their coats, and somewhere between eight thousand and ten thousand dollars missing from packages that had been left there last night. The night clerk said that at about 3 o'clock masked robbers entered the building, held him up at the point of a revolver, then tied him up and ade away with the cash. They didn't gag him, however, and nobody heard him cry out. The night clerk, whose name is withheld, has been closeted with detectives and Company officials all morning.

THE PETERBOROUGH ITALIANS ARE READY AND WILLING TO RESPOND TO A CALL TO ARMS FROM THEIR NATIVE COUNTRY

Are Excited Over the War Talk and Will Go Home to Fight for Italy if War is Called—Mr. Minnicolo's Views.

LOCAL MERCHANT READY

There are a number of Italian reservists in this city who, in event of war between Italy and Turkey, would respond to the call to arms. The Examiner had an interview with the Minnicolo Bros., the well-known fruit merchants.

"Would Peterborough's Italian colony furnish any assistance to the motherland in the event of a clash between the two countries?" asked the reporter. "Yes," said Mr. Minnicolo, "there would be eight or nine go from Peterborough, and, in all probability, they would take up a subscription."

Every able-bodied Italian is a reservist until he is 39 years of age. Mr. Thomas Minnicolo, who is a reservist himself, emphatically declared that Italy's cause was a just one. A considerable amount of Italian interest, together with a large number of her people, was tied up in Tripoli, and she would leave no stone unturned until her right to establish a protectorate over Tripoli was recognized.

"While I think that the war cloud will eventually blow over," said Mr. Minnicolo, "Italy will push her demands for concessions on the grounds that the present existing conditions render Italian inhabitants in Tripoli extremely unsafe. The Turks have established for themselves a record in the past for their bloodthirsty fanatical disposition which they are wont to exercise to a marked degree on the slightest provocation.

"Tripoli is geographically to Italy what East City is to Peterborough, and it has been very largely built up by Italian capital, and if Turkey won't protect it, it inevitably follows that Italy must."

Mr. Minnicolo was also of the opinion that should war break out, Greece would only be too willing to take a hand in the hostilities as an ally to Italy, and to retaliate for the abuse they have been compelled to take at the hands of the Turks.

ENNISMORE MAY FURNISH A TORONTO ARCHBISHOP

Peterborough people will be interested in learning that Rt. Rev. Bishop Scollard, formerly of Peterborough, may be selected as successor to the Archbishopric of Toronto, The Globe to-day says:

Right Rev. Bishop Scollard, head of the Roman Catholic Diocese of North Bay, was in the city yesterday on business connected with the residence he is building. He returned in the evening to his home.

Bishop Scollard's name is one of those mentioned as probably sent to the Vatican by the Bishops of this ecclesiastical province for appointment as successor to the Archbishopric of Toronto. The meetings of the Bishops, which was held last spring, immediately following the death of the late Archbishop McEvay, was, of course, a secret one, and no one outside of their own number is able to say whose names have been sent to Rome, or, indeed, whether any names have been remitted. This custom is to submit three names to his Holiness. Not until word comes from Rome will it be known by anyone who will be the next occupant of the Archiepiscopal See.

ONTARIO REPRESENTATION IN MR. BORDEN'S CABINET

Speculation as to His Draft on Sir James Whitney's Cabinet Resumed

OTTAWA, Sept, 29.—Sir James Whitney,, Hon. Frank Cochrane and Hon. Robert Rogers appeared on the scene to-day to confer with Mr. Borden in regard to the new crew for the Canadian ship of State. Sir James arived this afternoon from Toronto, and Messrs. Cochrane and Rogers earlier in the day. They had precedence ever a large number of other prospective Cabinet Ministers anxious for a private word with the Conservative leader in his study at his residence, where he has been immersed in work since his return to the Capital. The Ontario Premier and his Minister would divulge no word as to the object of their consultation with Mr. Borden, but it can be stated with authority that both have been offered portfolios in the new Administration. Sir James has precedence over all other Ontario Conservative leaders as a Federal lieutenant of the incoming Premier. He has been offered the portfolio of Justice as being one which he would be fitted to worthily fill. It is believed, however ,that he has declined the offer. Mr .Cochrane has been suggested as Minister of Public Works.

Sir James May Decline

The Ontario leader had a long consultation with Mr. Borden to-night, but of course nothing was divulged as to what transpired. Opinions among the best informed politicians here is that Sir James will hardly prefer a Federal portfolio to his Premiership in Ontario. Hon Mr. Cochrane is, however, very likely to accept a portfolio under Mr. Borden. One phase of the question which has to be very carefully considered first is in connection with the Provincial political situation. If both Sir James and Mr. Cochrane were to leave Provincial politics at this juncture, with a general election campaign almost in sight, the party strength in the Provincial arena would be weakened.

The Ontario Elections

It is understood that the question of bringing on the Ontario elections immediately is also being discussed with Mr. Borden. The incoming Federal Government will naturally co-operate with the Ontario Government when the election takes place, and repay the debt due from the recent campaign.

Mr. Andrew Broder, M.P., is certain to be Minister of Agriculture.

NOTED ENGLISH VISITOR IN PETERBOROUGH TO-DAY

Managing Director of the Richard Dickeson Co., Ltd., of London, is Here Looking Over Local Cheese Factories His Firm Purchases a Large Amount of Canadian Cheese.

Mr. A. W. Prince, Chairman and Managing Director of the Richard Dickeson Co., Ltd., of London, England, was in the city to-day for the purpose of inspecting the cheese factories.

He was a passenger by the "Laurentic," which arrived at Montreal, a few days since, his actual destination being Bermuda. Finding, however, that he had sufficient time to spare he came to Peterborough and will leave for Toronto by the C. P. R. 4.22 train to-day. From Toronto he will proceed to New York, from whence he will sail for Bermuda. His Company are large buyers of Canadian cheese and he is, therefore, interested in its manufacture. When interviewed by an Examiner reporter he had not visited the local factory so was unable to express an opinion.

"I have a very fair impression of Canada," remarked Mr. Prince, "and my journey has been a pleasant one."

When asked his opinion as to the City of Peterborough he expressed himself highly pleased. "It's quaint" he said, to a stranger, such as I, but it is unquestionably a very nice little city.

After visiting the Trewern and Central Smith Factories, Mr. Prince was again interviewed.

"I think they are run on very fine lines," said he on being asked his opinion, and confirmed: "The Peterborough section has the reputation of being one of the best."

He also remarked that the recent dry weather had a marked effect on the cheese production.

Mr. Prince's visit to Toronto will be for the purpose of inspecting bacon factories.

"What do you think of Canadian bacon?" asked the interviewer. "Very fine," replied Mr. Prince. "It is far above that of America, and during the last year or so has improved greatly."

OBITUARY

JOHN McCARREL.

At the very ripe age of ninety-one years, John McCarrel passed away at the family residence, Lot 21, Con. 20, Emily Township, early this morning.

The deceased, who had carried on the farming industry for a great number of years, was an ardent Methodist, and in politics a Conservative. Despite his advanced age he was possessed of a jovial disposition, which rendered him well known and general respected. He is survived by a surviving wife, four sons, William, James, Andrew, Joseph, and Benjamin, and two daughters, Mrs. W. A. Bost and Mrs. Joe Little.

The funeral will take place in Emily at 2 o'clock on Sunday.

BLAMES GREENSHIELDS

Special to The Examiner

MONTREAL, SEPT. 29.—David Russell was cross-examined for considerable length of time this morning as to his relations with women, when the suit for two hundred thousand dollars damages aginst the Pinkerton Detective Agency was being tried this morning. According to Russell's own statements J. N. Greenshields, with whom he was having a legal dispute about the western lands, was behind the plots against him.

CASCARETS CLEANSE LIVER AND BOWELS

Biliousness, Headache, Sick, Sour Stomach, Indigestion, Coated Tongue or Constipation

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Ill. sickness come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give you a thorough cleansing inside and stimulate your eat by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then to keep their stomach, liver and bowels regulated, and never know a miserable moment. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good cleansing, too.

WELLS TO FIGHT IN TORONTO

Special Wire to the Examiner.

NEW YORK, N.Y., SEPT. 29.—M. Wells, lightweight champion of England, has been matched to fight Willy Donovan, in a six-round bout at the Island Stadium, Toronto, on October 6th. This bout was to be held in New York, but the promoters lose the police.

Foy To Be Made Judge?

Special to The Examiner.

OTTAWA, ONT., SEPT. 29.—Hon. E. J. Foy, the Attorney-General of Ontario, joined Premier Whitney and Hon. Frank Cochrane in consultation with Premier Borden today and is said to be slated for one of the vacant judgeships of the High Court of Ontario.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 29, 1911

WHERE THE TURNOVER TOOK PLACE.

The News is entering upon an impossible task when it undertakes to dispute The Toronto Star's statement that "the biggest turnover in the election was in the towns." In South Oxford, for instance, the Conservatives gained 168 in Ingersoll, and their total gain in the constituency was only 117. In West Peterborough the city supplied 320 of the whole gain of 344. In Brockville riding the Conservative gain was 275, of which the town contributed a gain of 219. If St. Thomas were taken out of its constituency, Mr. Crothers would be defeated. And so the story goes. The biggest turnover was undoubtedly in the towns.

CANADIAN INDIVIDUALITY.

In the past fifteen years Canada has progressed more commercially and strictly than in the preceding generation. She has also advanced greatly in the utter of national individuality—autonomy and position of high regard in the eyes of the world. In an article on the British mint, published thirty years ago in Chambers Journal, in the statistics of the total of coinage turned out, so much is credited to Canada. That day is past. As Canada grew in wealth, made more money, it became meet that she should make her own money, in a literal sense. The Canadian mint was established and we are now making our own coined money out of our own mined gold and silver, and copper. We have for some time been issuing copper and silver coinage and soon the fortunate among us will be handling Canadian gold pieces. The new Canadian gold coins will be issued from the Royal Mint in a few weeks. The head of his Majesty, King George, will be on one side and the Canadian coat-of-arms on the other, the $5 and $10 pieces being about identical in design. The $5 piece will likely be known as a "George," as the $10 will be known as a "Double George."

"WHAT'S BEST ADMINISTERED."

The Toronto News says "the wage-earners had a large hand in the defeat of reciprocity; they voted for the retention of the National Policy of moderate protection, under which they enjoy steady employment, at one or less reasonable wages." Protection of itself did not give them "steady employment," under "moderate protection" as administered by a Conservative Government for eighteen years. It gave them scant employment and "less reasonable" wages in this dark period of comparative national stagnation. It was only when "moderate protection" was scientifically administered that it brought the working man "reasonable wages." This condition was in no way affected, or even, menaced, by reciprocity. A return, by Mr. Borden, to protection, in its raw, crude meaning, will be a retrograde step. Tariff relief is the key-note of the people blessed with a protective tariff. The Republican party in the United States promised tariff relief, and the failure to grant it made the demands for such relief more insistent. The party of lower tariff is gaining ground over the border, and it may take no longer than the next presidential election to show that the people have done with a protective tariff, so administered and manipulated as to create privileged classes, whose entrenched opportunities to become rich at the expense of the common people, have come to represent an intolerable burden. The wage-earners of Canada may be stampeded once in fifteen years, but their self-interest and the interests of the mass of the people will not always cede first place in political influence and profit to the classes that exercise their powers—the powers of the few at the expense of the many. The consumers, which includes the wage-earners, will some time get tired of providing the whole loaf, and only getting a small slice of it. Any considerable change upward of the present tariff, and any radical departure from its economic modes of administration can only be made in the interest of the privileged classes, and against the interests of the people who produce and pay. Pope was right when he said "what's best administered is best."

THE "BOY STATESMAN."

There seems to be a feeling that when a man is defeated in an election contest his public career is ended. This feeling is expressed by the Vancouver World in the following unworthy sneer:

"Mackenzie King, 'The Boy Statesman,' passed to oblivion in the full vigour of his young manhood."

To this the Ottawa Free Press replies:

"Not by a jugfull. It will take more than one election to relegate Mackenzie King to oblivion. Instead of his public career being finished, it has only just begun. Whether as boy or man, Mackenzie King is a statesman. His reputation is international.

A young man who can command the respect and admiration of ex-President Roosevelt, of ex-President Elliott of Harvard, of Premier Asquith, of Sir Edward Grey, of Lloyd-George, of John Burns, must have something in him more than egoism. A young man who can make himself worthy of a position in the Cabinet of Sir Wilfrid Laurier must have some brains. A young man who can create legislation dealing with the labour problem that is the envy of the world, must have native ability. A young man who can conduct such an election campaign as that which he put up in Western Ontario against great odds, must have British stuff in him.

The Liberal party needs Mackenzie King in Parliament. We believe he will be there before long. And when he is there he will have still greater chance for the display of his talents in opposition than he had as a Minister of the Crown. Mackenzie King, in the Commons would be a worker; and the Liberal party will need workers.

Oblivion! Not much. We invite the Vancouver Province to watch Mackenzie King."

A WISE GOVERNOR.

Canada has been very fortunate in the matter of the governors sent out by the Mother Country, especially since Confederation. Before that time we have had governors of whose record history does not speak in the most complimentary terms. Earl Grey, who is about to leave us, has established the reputation of being one of the best of our vice regal citizens. The word citizen is used advisedly, for Earl Grey has so largely identified himself as with Canadian feelings and interests, as to make himself one of us. In an address before the Canadian Club, Ottawa, he delivered a careful address, in which he revealed his attitude towards Canada, in a way that explains the satisfactory nature of his term of office. He said:

"I have rejoiced as an Englishman over the material developments of Canada, and over her emergence from the status of a daughter to that of a sister assistant nation in the Empire. If you examine the speeches I have made since I became Governor-General, I do not think you will be able to find one single occasion on which I have referred to you as a colony or as colonials. I have also endeavoured to emphasize the character of your relationship to the Empire, by substituting wherever possible for the expression in ordinary use when I came into office, or 'my ministers'. the more dignified expression of 'His Majesty's Canadian ministers'. It has also been my practice when referring to the loyalty of Canada, to speak to her loyalty, not to England, but to the Empire."

These remarks show a delicate deference to the spirit of self-respect of Canadians, such as is not always shown by party politicians, and party managers, whose desire for political capital leads to no nice discrimination in impugning the loyalty and good faith of their opponents. Earl Grey is a bigger man, with a more statesmanlike outlook. The fundamental condition of Canada's progress is a united people, and a united people can never be made by sectional appeals and unfounded imputations of sinister motives to a large half of the people. Earl Grey's farewell utterances are worthy of his regime.

FOUR DEFEATS.

(Toronto Star.)

When a Liberal looks over the history of political defeats in Dominion politics since Confederation he will find something to console himself with.

Two Liberal Governments have been defeated in 1878 and in 1911, and two Conservative Governments, in 1874 and in 1896.

The two Liberal Governments went to defeat because of questions of policy. The defeat of 1878 was due to protection offered as a remedy for depression, and to a shrewd appeal to national sentiment and the holding out to the people of a glowing hope that they could get even with powerful neighbours who had been most unneighbourly. The defeat of 1911 was on a question of public policy, and the defeat was fashioned from the same materials as before.

The two Conservative Governments went to defeat in 1874 and 1896, not on questions of policy, but because of scandals, moral collapse, and decay. The Pacific scandal ended one Conservative Administration, internal dissensions and weakness ended the other, so that these Administrations were not only defeated, but wholly discredited.

Alexander Mackenzie left office beaten, but respected. Sir Wilfrid Laurier does the same. For fifteen years, under his direction, Canada has had unexampled prosperity; foreign trade has multiplied, the West has been extensively peopled, the place the country occupies in the sight of the world has been made a great one, and in every way Canada has never had so fine a fifteen-year period. The Liberal Government meets with defeat at the height of its power, attempting to put into effect an advanced policy, sound as to economics, but for which the twentieth century is not yet old enough, and our nationality not yet confident enough.

But the Liberal who looks over the four defeats which Governments have sustained, will prefer the up-standing, two-fisted encounters in which his party was worsted, to the bed-ridden endings which have overtaken the Administrations of the other party.

Sciatica AND Lumbago

Suffered for Twenty-five Years and Could Get No Relief

How Tells of the Wonderful Results Obtained by the Use of

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Sciatica, neuralgia and sciatic rheumatism are the result of a run-down nervous system. For this reason all treatments must necessarily fail which do not build up the nervous system.

Mr. Collins suffered for twenty-five years and never was able to obtain satisfactory treatment until he began the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills. While the Nerve Food forms new blood and restores the exhausted nervous system, the Kidney-Liver Pills invigorate the action of kidneys, liver and bowels.

Mr. W. T. Collins, Morpeth, Ont., writes: "It affords me pleasure to be able to speak favourably of two of Dr. Chase's medicines—the Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills. I had been a sufferer for twenty-five years from sciatica, lumbago and neuralgia and tried almost all the medicines I could hear of, without one particle of benefit, until I commenced to use Dr. Chase's. I noticed an improvement before I had used two boxes, and the benefits obtained by continued use have been wonderful. I have so much confidence in these two medicines that I have recommended them to dozens of my friends, and I have yet to hear of a single case in which they failed to give satisfaction."

Dr. Chase's medicines are for sale by all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

PER MILE CAPITALIZATION OF CANADIAN RAILWAYS

The subject of railway capitalization is one that has recently come in for much discussion, much of it of an uninformed kind, it being alleged that much of the railway share capital is composed of wind and water, injected for the purpose of swindling the public and holding it up for rates that will pay dividends on fictitious investments. It is, therefore, interesting to examine the figures compiled for the Interstate Commerce Commission and to compare them with those presented by Mr. Frank Nay, of the Rock Island lines, covering foreign railways, and then to place them beside our own. The figures of the commission show that on June 30th, 1909, the total capital stock of all railways in the United States aggregated $7,065,274,546; the total funded debt on the same aggregated $9,891,869,399, a total capitalization of $17,467,893,935 for 236,466 miles of road, or an average per mile of $74,268. Mr. Nay notes that no two miles of railway cost exactly the same. Some miles of road cost $18,000 to $70,000 originally; and some others $18,000 to $500,000, without equipment. He takes the average estimate of all the United States roads at $30,234, besides the rolling stock, and finds it much too low.

The United States Bureau of Railroad News and Statistics is probably much nearer the actual figures in its recent comparison of railway cost:

Country.	Capitalization, per mile.
Great Britain	$378,000
Belgium	160,824
France	139,000
Italy	124,730
Austria	112,879
Germany	109,788
United States	57,201

The Canadian roads presented in 1909 a capitalization of $54,265 per mile in railway stock and bonds, but there are factors which will increase that somewhat. The Monetary Times calls attention to the fact that the Year Book total of $1,205,482,416 includes the stock and bond liability of the Grand Trunk Pacific, while the mileage of that line is not embraced in the total of 24,104 miles forming the divisor. On the other hand, the mileage of government-owned lines in Canada forms a part of the 24,104, against which there is not any issue of either stock or bonds. If we count out both the capital liabilities and the government owned mileage we get a per mile cost of the Canadian privately-owned roads o. $55,638, leaving them still the lowest of the series, with share capital of [illegible] and $22,228 bonds per mile.

We had at the end of the fiscal year 1909 the tidy sum of $215,629,505 invested in our government railways and we had a deficit on their operation amounting to $12,044,923.

ANOTHER LIFE SAVED

Weak Lungs Restored by Morrisey's "No. 10."

ST. JOHN, N.B., Nov. 17, 1910.

"I had Pleuro-Pneumonia and was taken to the City Hospital to have my lungs tapped. After this was done I seemed to get worse, and never expected to walk again. In fact, I was given up and wanted to be taken home from the hospital. I was in a terribly rundown condition and felt that I was going right into consumption, and for six months was just a shadow. I tried every means to get well, but there was no cure for me until I began taking your No. 10 Lung Tonic, of which I used 12 bottles in all. It was not long after returning home that I surprised my neighbours by gaining in strength and health, and feel it my duty to publish it everywhere, as I am living to-day—saved from the grave by your wonderful prescription. You may publish this letter if you wish, for I am willing to let the world know what this medicine did for me, and I cannot praise it too highly."

Mrs. John S. Barker.

The above prescription is not a "Cure All" or so-called patent medicine. Dr. Morrisey prescribed it for 44 years, and it cured thousands after other doctors failed.

Price—Small Size, 25c.; Large Size, 50c. per bottle — at your dealers, or Father Morrisey Medicine Co., Limited, Montreal.

Pumice Stone.

Pumice is an acid volcanic rock which may be in either massive or finely comminuted form. It owes its peculiar porous, vesicular or pumiceous condition to the rapid expansion of included moisture or gases due to sudden release of pressure at the time of its ejection from the volcano. This expansion may be carried to such an extent that the rock is completely shattered, and the resultant finely powdered material may be carried to unknown distances by wind and air currents and then deposited in beds several feet thick.

FOR SKIN IRRITATION

We Guarantee Relief. Your Money Back If Not Satisfied

We have an ointment possessing extraordinary power to permanently relieve all forms of eczema, skin eruptions, pimples, blotches, ringworm, acne, tetter, scaly scalp, hives, all forms of itching and irritation caused by insect bites. Its power to soothe ulcers, sores and wounds is very pronounced.

We are so positive that Rexall Eczema Ointment is unexcelled for overcoming these ailments that we sell it with our personal promise that it will not cost the user anything unless it in every way gives satisfaction. We exact no promise and is no way obligate the purchaser. You must admit that we could not afford to make such a broad liberal guarantee, except we are certain we could substantiate our claim.

Rexall Eczema Ointment is a grayish-white pleasing smelling, antiseptic cooling, healing salve that is strongly germicidal. It destroys the germs that penetrate the skin and cause eczema and other tormenting skin ailments. A remedy must do that to be effective, for in no other way can such diseases be overcome.

It is positively the best remedy we know of, and we urge you to try it at our risk. Two sizes, 50c and $1.00.—The Rexall Store.—McDermid & Jury, druggists.

PETERBORO' BIRDS WON PRIZES

Peterborough poultry fanciers made a good showing at the Verulam Fair at Bobcaygeon this week. The Lindsay Warder says:

Mr. George Buller, of Peterborough, had many entries and succeeded in taking home first prizes.

Mr. C. B. Tucker, another Peterborough fowl enthusiast, picked up some of the red tickets. He had some fine Buff Cochin birds.

Mr. H. J. Lush, of the same town, got in some good work with his many choice fowls.

Funny in the Wrong Place.

That Prussian police officials are devoid of humor is the firmly rooted opinion of a traveler for a Berlin cotton firm. His business took him to the little town of Nordenburg. When the hotel register was placed before him he filled in the various columns and when he came to "Aim of the Journey" he wrote, "The wide, wide world." Fourteen days later he was charged with having committed a public outrage, for which he was fined six marks, one day's imprisonment being the alternative.

THE EXAMINER ROAD RACES

Thanksgiving Day, Monday, October 30th, 1911

SENIOR RACE

I am an amateur in good tanding, and fulfil the required conditions in other ways and wish to be entered in the Examiner Senior Road Race on Thanksgiving Day.

Name_____

Address_____

JUNIOR RACE

I am an amateur in good standing and am under eighteen years of age. I wish to be entered in the Examiner Junior Road Race on Thanksgiving Day.

Name_____

Address_____

Contestants are required to fill out the blanks in connection with whichever race they desire to enter and send in this coupon to the sporting editor of the Peterboro Examiner as soon as possible.

FIRST ENTRY FOR THE EXAMINER SENIOR RACE SMITH OF Y. M. C. A. IN

Entry No. 1 has come along for the Examiner senior road race, in the person of Harold Smith of the Peterborough Y. M. C. A., who entered last night. Smith, who has a great record at the running game, has been in training for some time and will work out steadily from now until Thanksgiving Day. He is already in good shape and promises to give Smoke and the other speed merchants the time of their lives between Lakefield and Peterborough in the big event. Maria Montgomery, who has been a starter in the last two or three races, informed the Examiner last night that he was going to have another shy at the Examiner silverware, and added that he had a couple of dark horses to spring for Thanksgiving Day. There is already great interest in the big events and a record field in both senior and junior races is expected.

The junior runners must be under eighteen years of age. Last year, Willie Edwards of Keene, who finished first in the Junior race, had to be disqualified because he did not prove that he was within the limit. The prizes have not yet been announced, but they will be the best the Examiner has ever offered. As usual there will be four prizes in each race, the junior winner holding the Examiner Trophy as well as receiving a handsome present.

HOWDEN & EASTWOOD CONTEST ON OCT. 6

Big Events Will Take Place at Riverside Park a Week from To-morrow and Promise to be of Unusual Interest.

A GOOD PROGRAMME

The Howden and Eastwood Trophy contests, emblematic of the all-round athletic championship of the city will be fought out at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 6, one week from to-morrow, and preparations are being made for these annual events. Although under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., the contests are not confined to members of that body, but are open to every amateur in Peterborough, and no entrance fee is required. The Howden Trophy presented by Mr. J. J. Howden, is the senior trophy and was won last year by Stan. Canniff of the Y. M. C. A. The junior prize is the Eastwood trophy, presented by Mr. Vincent Eastwood, and is at present held by Nagle Phelan of the T. A. S. Athletic Club. This year's programme will be made up of the same events as last year, a standard having been adopted, in which the track events and field sports are well mixed to give a good, all-round test. The same system of scoring as is used for the American championships, has been adopted here. A list of the events will be published in a day or two. In the meanwhile all the necessary information will be supplied by Mr. J. J. Thompson, physical director of the Y. M. C. A.
